BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

HOLD UP FOR A RUFF

ONE OF THE most helpful uses of the holdup play is peculiar to suit contracts. It consists of keeping an ace until the second round so that you will be on the lead at the right time to offer the suit again to strive for a third round ruff. This occurs, of course, only when there is a doubleton of the suit in the hand opposite yours—the dummy if you are declarer or your partner if you are a defender.

When the diamond 5 was led against South's contract of 4-Hearts, the declarer could see one spade loser and two clubs, provided he could ruff one club.

He won the first trick with the diamond K and led a club, which West won with the Q. The spade 7 was West's return. On this East played the 8. He read West's lead as a doubleton and decided to postpone capturing the trick until he could give West an opportunity to ruff. Had he gone in with the A at once, the suit would have been set up for declarer. This would have made it possible for South to draw trumps at once as the fourth spade would have provided a spot for a club discard.

When South won the spade trick and led a second club, West captured it and returned a spade. East then gave West a chance to ruff a spade and the contract was set.

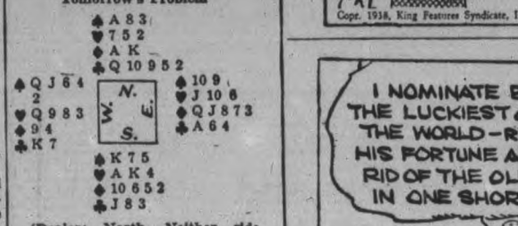
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

With the spade 4 led against South's 3-No Trump contract, how should he proceed to make his contract?

New Industry In Methuen Going Strong

More than 5,000,000 tons of nepheline syenite deposited in a high bluff in Methuen Township is being very slowly chipped away by hard-working miners operating in this district's newest and most thriving industry.

A party of Peterborough men, including J. J. Duffus, M.P.; Vincent Eastwood, Sr.; E. B Fowler, Ald. R. M Glover, and H. L. Garner, last week visited the quarry with Superintendent Ralph H. Kilbon, of the Canadian Nepheline Company.

They found thirty-five men hard at work digging the ore from the gaunt cliff face, transporting it to a crusher of immense power, trucking it to a barge at the head of Stoney Lake. A hundred and fifty tons or more of high-grade ore leave Stoney Lake each day for Lakefield, towed behind the steamer Wauketa, pressed into service during spring, summer and fall.

Find Better Rock.

Because the ore on the face of the cliff where operations have been carried on for several years is now running low in grade, drillers have bored a hundred and fifty feet into another rock face and work will soon be commenced in that location, so good were the findings by diamond drill.

It was a tremendous industry that was revealed to the Peterborough men on their visit—an industry daringly conceived and just as daringly executed. To begin with, a few speculators learned of the deposits of nepheline cyanide—believed to be the only ones on this continent—through Government reports. Their own engineers investigated and found the ore to be of high grade, but its location was twenty miles from nowhere. Undaunted they started to work, built a sort of road to the rock face. The road wound up a hill circuitously from the level of Stoney Lake through scenic beauty that is breath-taking.

Modern Bunkhouse.

With that as a starting point, the company now has stables for horses, a modern bunkhouse that even has shower baths and that will have electric lights and radio this winter, an up-to-date kitchen with first-class cook, a complicated crusher system, garage for trucks. At Lakefield is the company's chief plant, modern in every respect.

The company has come a long way from its tiny beginning in 1935 when production was first started. The Government is helping to improve roads used by the company's trucks, has now a much improved exit for the ore.

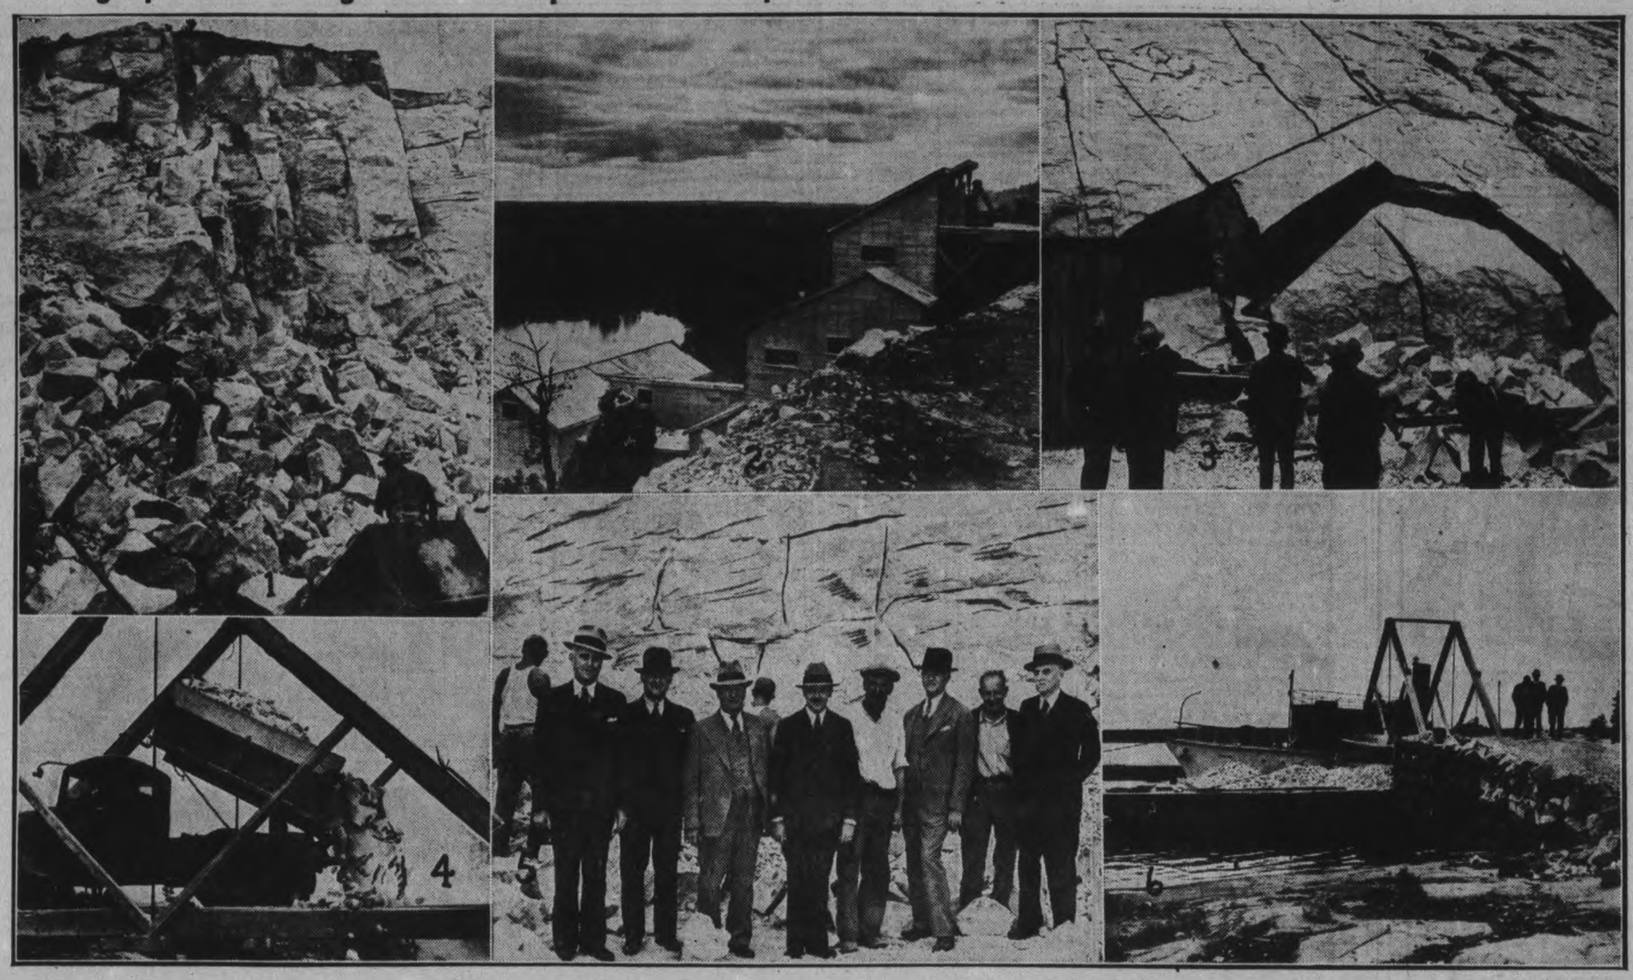
In winter months trucks carry the ore to Lakefield, some eighteen miles away. But from the spring break-up until winter closes over, the ore is now hauled only three miles by truck to the barges on Stoney Lake. A four-hour trip by boat takes it much more cheaply.

The men's quarters are set atop a high mountain overlooking beautiful Emerald Lake. From the door of their home, those workers can look far down to its green waters, and can see surrounding bush land for dozens of miles. They have no complaints about food, as the Peterborough party who visited the mine last week can well testify. For the city men were invited to a dinner that was absolute "tops" in the opinion of all.

Used in Manufacturing Glass.

Nepheline syenite is used in the manufacture of glassware and is giving United States mined feldspar a real race for market supremacy. Its demand is increasing all the time, is said to be greater than the supply. At first the rock was ground into a powder-like substance at Lakefield, but since in crude state it enters the country free, a larger plant has been erected at Rochester, and the product is shipped there in rocks about the size of crushed gravel, there to be processed for market. It can be laid down in Rochester at $5 a ton as compared with $6.50 for North Carolina feldspar. It is causing feldspar manufacturers grave concern, but all attempts to date to place duty on its importation into the United States have failed. It may also be used in the manufacture of chinaware and stove enamel, and other branches of industry are being investigated for the purpose of creating a new outlet for the long-neglected nepheline.

Mining Operations Being Pushed At Rapid Pace At Nepheline Plant



More than 5,000,000 tons of nepheline syenite lie exposed on a high white bluff on the Blue Mountains in Methuen Township. Very slowly the rock is being transferred by truck and steamer to Lakefield and on to the United States, to be used in the manufacture of glass. The quarry is this district's most thriving mining industry, is operated by the Canadian Nepheline Company. Workmen are dwarfed by the huge rocks in which they work in (1). On this face they have blasted for more than two years, will shortly move to another location a few hundred yards away where ore is reported to be of higher grade. In (2) is shown the gigantic crusher that breaks the rocks into a gravel-like substance. The unbroken rock enters at the top, is loaded into trucks at the bottom. In the background is beautiful Emerald Lake. Some idea of the size of these huge blocks of solid rock can be gleaned from (3). Trucks carry the product a little more than three miles to a wharf at the head of Stoney Lake where the rock is dumped onto barges, as in (4), to be shipped to Lakefield, more than twenty miles distant. Each barge carries a load of about 150 tons. In (5) are a group of Peterborough men who went to see the mine last week, came back deeply impressed with its importance. From LEFT to RIGHT they are: J. J. Duffus, M.P.; H. L. Garner, Ald. R. M. Glover, the mine manager, E. B. Fowler, Plant Superintendent H. G. Kilbon, Vincent Eastwood, Senior. The steamer Wauketa, the loading barge and runway are seen in (6). This wharf's construction made possible a much cheaper and easier means of transporting the ore in summer months. In winter it is shipped by truck.

Threat To Press Seen Internally

TORONTO, Sept. 21—(CP).—A free press in Europe will crush dictatorships, but in Canada and the United States freedom of the press is endangered, not by government decree, but by internal conditions in newsaper officer, Harold B. Johnson, editor-publisher of the Watertown., N.Y., Daily Times, said today.

With a free press, continental European dictators would fall within a month, Johnson said in an address prepared for delivery before the Ontario Provincial Dailies Association.

Government decree in Canada and the United States is not threatening press freedom, Johnson said. "Our only danger lies in internal conditions in newspaper offices which hamper free expression and limit and circumscribe freedom of the press."

Commercialization of the press beyond a certain point would limit its freedom and result in "unmistakeable censorship." He said it is from influences at work internally, tending to suppress news and give distroted views, that freedom of the press will be endangered and destroyed.

No Cancer Probe Procedure Fixed

TORONTO, Sept. 21—(CP). — R. Justice J. G. Gillanders, chairman of the Ontario cancer commission, named by the provincial government to investigate cancer treatments, said today no decision had been made regarding method of procedure nor had a date been set for the first hearing. A preliminary meeting towards the end of the month will settle these matters.

Mr. Justice Gillianders' statement followed a report the commission had decided to make its first investigation into the "ensol" treatment developed by the Hendry Connel Research Foundation in Kingston.

It was learned, however, Dr. Hendry Connell made formal application to have his treatment considered first. He was informed decision on the request lay entirely with the commission. The Kingston doctor's desire for earliest possible investigation of his treatment was said to result from assurances given him that United States interests were prepared to erect a $100,000 Canadian laboratory to prepare the "ensol" treatment if and when the cancer commission aproved it.

Nascopie Finishes 11,000-Mile Trip

HALIFAX, NS., Sept. 21—(CP)—Travelling 11,000 miles since leaving Montreal late last June with her party of seamen, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, government scientists and passengers, the R.M.S. Nascopie in command of Captain T. F. Smellie was tied up at a Halifax harbor dock today at the end of another voyage to the Canadian Arctic.

The distance covered by the Nascopie was the greatest since the annual summer patrol around the Arctic Archipelago, Hudson Staint and Hudson Bay was inaugurated in 1922. Three marriages aboard the steamship were included in the several records made during the patrol and reported on the ship's arrival last night.

A feature of the patrol was transfer of two Eskimo families from Greenland to Craig, the British Empire's most northerly post office. Another was the transportation of 30 Eskimo families from Cape Dorset farther into the Arctic Circle.

Government Party Leader Major D. L. McKeand reported the Eskimos well, and prosperous because of a generally good year. The government was interested in northern native migration as helping the food problem. Mass transportation of Eskimos had been carried out before, but on a smaller scale.

50,000 Benefited By Youth Training

OTTAWA, Sept. 21—(CP).—With particular emphasis on placement features, the Dominion-Provincial youth training program for the present fiscal year is making excellent progress, the Federal Labor Department said to-day.

"While it is naturally too early to determine with accuracy the number of young Canadians who will benefit by the plan this year, it is probable that last year's figures will be equalled if not exceeded," the Department's statement said.

"Approximately 50,000 Canadians between the ages laid down in agreements with the provinces have profit by the program. The exact figures are: Men 32,304; women, 23,156; or a total of 55,457. Last year the amount voted by Parliament was $1,000,000. This year the Dominion contribution is in the neighborhood of $1,500,000. Provinces contribute on a 50-50 basis to the expenditure."

Protest Milk Jump

OTTAWA, Sept. 21—(CP)—City council last night decided to protest to the Ontario Milk Control Board an announced increase in the price of milk here for the fall and winter months. Milk, now selling for 11 cents a quart, is to be increased to 12 cents.

75 Offer Eye For Sale But Blind Man Can't Find Doctor

Richlands, Va., Sept. 21 (AP). MORE THAN 75 persons, seven of them women, in the United States and Canada have offered N. O. Warner, blind storekeeper, one of their eyes for sale. The prices range from $500 to $25,000.

Warner recently announced he would pay a "reasonable sum" for an eye to be used in a grafting operation which he hopes will enable him to see again.

His problem is to find a surgeon who will undertake the operation. "I have sent telegrams to three famous eye doctors," Warner said, "but so far I haven't received any answers."

Ten Prison Heads, Guards Indicted

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 21—(AP)—Murder and manslaughter indictments were returned today by the grand jury against 40 officials and guards of the Philadelphia county prison where four convicts recently died from heat in punishment cells.

Those indicted included William Mills, superintendent of the prison, and Frank Craven, deputy warden.

James McGuire, captain of guards and Francis Smith and Alfred Brough, guards, also were indicted on murder and manslaughter charges.

The convicts, who were found "baked to death" in punishment cells Aug. 22, were Frank Comedca, Henry Osborne, James McQuade and Joseph Walters.

Their bodies were found in a small, one storey building containing 12 cells. Twenty-five men were isolated in the building as a result of a hunger strike of convicts protesting what they said was "monotony" of prison fare.

Thousands Left Homeless In Seven States, Fire And Flood Add To Terror Of Worst Storm In Over Century

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP). — A tropical hurricane that struck the eastern Atlantic coast with paralyzing fury left in its wake today at least 200 dead and property losses in seven northeastern states running into untold millions of dollars.

Many persons were missing, and authorities feared the death toll would mount by scores, as fire and flood added to the terror of thousands left homeless by the storm, the worst to hit the northeast coast in more than a century.

In Massachusetts 37 were known dead, in Connecticut 22, Rhode Island 32, New York 20 and New Hampshire seven.

Swirling up from the south, the hurricane swept in from the sea late yesterday, smashing shipping and shore resorts with waves lashed to tidal power, and roared on into Canada.

The 100-mile-an-hour gale dealt its most tragic blows along Long Island's fashionable south shore, where at least 18 persons were dead and 100 missing, and in flood-hit Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island. It left its mark also on New Jersey, Vermont and New Hampshire.

Rich Farms Flooded.

The storm flooded hundreds of miles of rich farm lands, ripped out bridges, railroads and highways, demolished buildings, sank boats, destroyed livestock, tore down telephone and light wires and left scores of communities isolated in chaos and fear.

United States coast guard headquarters in Washington dispatched 2,500 men and scores of cutters to the storm scene. The coast guard estimated between 500 and 700 small fishing and pleasure craft had been sunk or driven ashore.

The hurricane, which spared the Florida and the southern coast as it curved northward, by a similar fluke missed New York city in its haphazard march of destruction.

Power Cut Off

Sections of Manhattan and the Bronx were plunged into darkness for hours, and a power failure stranded several thousand subway patrons underground for several hours, but the rock-based skyscrapers of the city weathered the winds easily. Torrential rains forced hundreds of residents in low-lying section of the Bronx to flee to safety.

Waves battered the entire 100-mile length of Long Island, washing away hundreds of small summer cottages and beach buildings. Among them was a lighthouse that had withstood the sea's whims for 75 years.

Most forlorn of the "gold coast's" villages was West Hampton, a summer playground for New York society, where at least 140 homes were wrecked. A dozen bodies lay in the exclusive West Hampton Country Club, many unidentified.

Ontario Feels Backwash Of Hurricane

TORONTO, Sept. 22 — (CP).— Wind and rain buffeted Ontario during the night and early today, damaging several sections of the province. The storm was apparently the backwash of the hurricanoe lashing the Atlantic coast.

Eastern Ontario felt the full force of the wind, Kingston particularly being hard hit. Rain was general in the western and northern sections, but they reported little wind. Meaford, on Georgian Bay, experienced heavy winds which churned the bay waters, covered most docks with water and kept shipping tied up.

Damage at Kingston was estimated at several thousand dollars. Tents and small buildings were blown down and merchandise ruined at the fair ground. A small building in which birds were housed was wrecked. One ride on the midway was wrecked.

Trees were uprooted elsewhere in the city and at least two automobiles wrecked when large limbs of trees crashed down. More than 100 rural telephone lines were down. Electric power lines suffered extensively.

Lake Ontario was so heavy that the steamship Wolfe Island was prevented making its regular trip to the island. A cabin cruiser owned by Commodore L. Roop of Kingston Yacht Club was torn from its moorings and drifted down the St. Lawrence. It has not been sighted.

Fields Flooded

Nearly three inches of rain fell at Peterborough, flooding fields and low-lying lands. Many trees were uprooted by the heavy wind but damage was not expected to be great. Rain fell at Ottawa and the wind was strong.

In Toronto, the wind reached a maximum velocity of 32 miles per hour; the Meteorological Office said. Rainfall totalled 1.15 inches, heavy but not unusual.

Rain started to fall before dawn at Brantford and there was a west wind. Chatham reported rain and cold weather but no wind.

Hepburn Refuses King's Invitation Sees Seaway Parley, Power Plot

TORONTO, Sept. 22.— (CP). — Premier Hepburn to-day definitely declined Prime Minister King's recent proposals for conferences between technical officials of the Dominion and Provincial governments on power features of the St. Lawrence seaway plan. In a letter to the Prime Minister, Mr. Hepburn said Ontario was "simply not interested" in production of any more power.

The Ontario premier's letter was in reply to one Mr. Mackenzie King dispatched to him Aug. 30 urging resumption of technical discussions between the two provinces. Mr. Mackenzie King's letter followed an attack on the seaway plan by Mr. Hepburn the day after President Roosevelt urged support of it in a speech opening the Thousand Islands Bridge at Ivy Lee, Ont.

Another H.B. Fiasco?

Mr. Hepburn believed the whole seaway project would prove "as great a fiasco as the present Hudson Bay outlet"—the railway from The Pas, Man., to Churchill. He declared he

Mrs. Dodge Retains Lawyer, Seeks More Of Husband's 10 Million Estate

Detroit, Sept. 22 (AP)

A DETROIT attorney indicated today that Mrs. Laurine McDonald Dodge may contest the will in which her husband, the late Daniel G. Dodge, heir to an automobile fortune, bequeathed her $250,000, of a $10,000,000 estate.

Paul Oren, the lawyer, said the 18-year-old widow, whose 21-year-old husband died after an explosion while they were on their honeymoon at Little Current, Ont., has retained him as counsel. He filed notice of his appointment yesterday at Pontiac, where the will comes up for hearing in probate court Oct. 10.

"Between now and Oct. 10," Oren said, "I will decide what action will be taken, if any, if no adjustment or settlement is made before the will comes up for probate."

When the will, dated July 25, was filed it was revealed that its provisions were agreed to in a prenuptial settlement. A large portion of the young heir's estate went to his mother, Mrs. Alfred G. Wilson of Rochester, Mich., widow of John F. Dodge, a founder of the motorcar fortune.

Bowmanville, Ont., Sept. 22 (CP)

GEORGE LYLE, chief of Bowmanville fire brigade, and four other firemen were injured here today when the fire truck collided with a large truck and tractor as firemen rushed to a call.

The police said the fire truck driver saw the transport and tractor bearing down upon him and swerved in an effort to avoid a head-on collision. The transport driver also tried to swerve his machine but they could not avoid crashing.

General Syrovy takes both the Premiership and the War Ministry portfolio in the new Cabinet, Havas reported. Kamil Krofta remains as Foreign Minister.

PRAGUE, Sept. 22 (AP).—General Jan Syrovy, 50-year-old Inspector-General of the Army, today emerged as the almost certain choice of President Benes to head a new military government, replacing that of Premier Milan Hodza.

Syrovy loomed as the strong man of the republic as Benes sought a new regime to replace that of Hodza, which resigned in the face of rising indignation over its "capitulation" to the Anglo-French proposal to Sudetenland to Germany.

A government spokesman said the new regime would not be a military dictatorship but "a military government" capable of the firmness needed to cope with the excited temper of the nation.

There was speculation whether a new government would approve of the "capitulation" to Germany.

The Czechoslovak people have raised demands for much greater firmness in the republic's foreign policy.

While Syrovy was arising as a new leader there appeared to be no slackening of Czechoslovak defence measures. Border reports said soldiers still were moving into defence positions.

Many soldiers on frontier duty still had no information that the government has submitted to the German demands and were ready to resist any invasion.

Prague, meanwhile, became quieter. General Syrovy himself several times made radio appeals—broadcast by street loudspeakers—asking the populace to preserve order. His plea apparently was being taken to heart.

Informed sources, however, said Benes still was seeking a civilian rather than an army man for premier in the belief that the military should not be given complete control.

There was no suggestion from official or other sources that setting aside of constitutional government was being contemplated.

Premier or War Minister

The official broadcast said Syrovy would receive a cabinet post but which one was not specified. It was regarded as a certainty, however, that the general would either succeed Hodza or become minister of war.

The radio said it also was probable that General Jan Vobratilek, who served with Syrovy in the Russian army during the Great War and also is considered friendly to Russia, probably would be named minister of interior with control of the gendarmerie and police.

Ivan Berer, minister of justice, also pleaded in a broadcast through loudspeakers in the downtown streets for the Czechs and Slovaks to maintain peace.

"International negotiations are not ended," the minister said. "On the contrary, they are just starting. We are obliged to be calm, show the world we are in a state of good order and that we are a reasonable people and remain a reliable partner or negotiations.

"Do not let ourselves be provoked by agitators and provocatuers who may work for foreign interests."

So many workers left their jobs in some districts of the capital to join tumultuous processions that the demonstrations took on the nature of a general strike. Similar explosions of popular feeling were reported also from numerous other cities.

In busy Vaclavske street, traffic stopped completely, street cars could not move. At the corner of Jindriska street, probably Prague's busiest intersection, traffic policemen were helpless.

They threw up their hands and let the crowds take charge of the town.

Crisis Not Over British Press Warns

LONDON, Sept. 22.—(CP Cable.)—The crisis is not over, warned the Manchester Guardian (Liberal) today in an editorial discussing the claims of the Hungarian and Polish minorities in Czechoslovakia.

"There is no doubt how it (the question of the demands of other minorities) will be settled or that it will be settled soon," the Guardian said. "This country may be spared the humiliation of telling the Czechs what next they must sacrifice, or it may not.

"Chancellor Hitler may leave it to Poland and Hungary to impose their own terms, backed by his orders and his armies, before or after he occupies the Sudeten districts. Godesberg will show. But one thing we can be sure of already. The true crisis is not settled for us. It only begins."

Must Be Lasting Peace.

The Western Mail of Cardiff (Conservative) said: "The strength and quality of any Godesberg agreement must be judged by its guarantee of peace, not for to-day alone but for many years to come. If Mr. Chamberlain can secure that, he will have achieved the highest purpose of his mission. If he fails, the democracies of Europe must boldly face up to their responsibilities."

The Manchester Daily Dispatch (Independent) warned that "any individual or political group which would try to embarrass Mr. Chamberlain or prejudice the meeting (with Hitler) must be either devoid of sense of deliberately anxious to bring about European war."

The Daily Telegraph (Conservative):

"The Czechoslovakian settlement is going to prove anything but easy. From Germany are coming the most sinster reports of her ideas as to what this settlement should be. It seems she now is aiming not merely a detachment of all those border areas where Germans, Hungarians or Poles are in the majority, but a total extinction from the map of any Czechslovakia state at all.

"There is talk of separating Slovakia from the rest of the country and of Germany dictating the kind of state and degree of independence which the residual Czechs shall be permitted to retain.

"If anything of the sort is in her

Paris Faces Revolt In Cabinet

Half Ready To Quit Over Czech Deal; Wait On Godesberg

PARIS, Sept. 22. (A. P.).—Premier Daladier was faced today with a threatened revolt in his cabinet against the French-British peace plan which won from Czechoslovakia an agreement to surrender Sudetenland to Germany.

Rapid developments last night caused observers to believe the cabinet might break up at any moment as a result of the pressure Daladier and foreign minister Georges Bonnet exerted on France's central European ally.

The names of nine of the 18 cabinet members were mentioned as more or less resolved to take action in protest. They were: Paul Reynaud, minister of justice; Georges Mondel, minister of colonies; Jean Zay, minister of education; Cesar Campinchi, minister of navy; Louis De Chappedelaine, minister of merchant marine; Auguste Champetier De Ribes, minister of pensions; Henri Queuille, minister of agriculture, Raymond Patenotre, minister of national economy and production and Marc Rucart, minister of public health.

Consented Reluctantly.

The consent of these ministers was said to have been won reluctantly to the "unanimous" cabinet approval of the French-British plan on the condition that pressure brought to bear on Czechoslovakia would not include a threat to stand aside and watch her invaded by Germany.

Some political sources said they considered Daladier violated that promise yesterday by sending such a threat to Prague in the form of a virtual ultimatum.

A close associate of Mandel was reported by one commentator to have declared Mandel would resign—alone, if necessary, today or tomorrow. Another source close to political development said Champetier De Ribes had written Bonnet a formal letter demanding an explanation of the pressure exerted on Czechoslovakia and Patenotre was said to have paid a hurried call at Daladier's office, remainily only a few moments."

Wait on Parley Outcome.

One thing which might head off a cabinet break up was a growing conviction among the French that all was not going to be smooth sailing in the conference between Prime Minister Chamberlain and Chancellor Hitler at Godesberg.

Even newspapers which had been among the strongest supporters fo the French-British plan noted uneasily that the situation had changed within the week since the Berchtesgarden meeting. They suggested that Hitler, having been given all he asked for, might easily demand more.

Crown Attorney Is Beaten Up

BRANTFORD, Ont., Sept. 22.—(C. P.). —R. David Evans of Orangeville, Dufferin County Crown Attorney, had seven teeth loosened and was spattered with tomatoes in a disturbance that climaxed the Orangeville- Brantford junior B lacrosse final here last night. Orangeville won the game.

Target for tomatoes earlier in the night, Evans had the teeth loosened when someone smashed him in the face. His mouth was bleeding badly and his lip was cut. He attempted to learn the name of the person responsible, but was given a name regarded as "fake."

Observers said Evans was met with jeers from several youths when he cheered the Orangeville team. Later, he ran to the floor to stop a youth kicking the Orangeville manager. As he turned, someone punched him in the mouth.

BULLETIN

PRAGUE, Sept. 22 (AP). — Premier Eduard Benes in a broadcast to the nation tonight said he did not fear for the future of Czechoslovakia.

"In the whole of Europe changes are taking place, not only in our country," he told his compatriots.

"These changes have different forms in different countries," he said. "We must therefore face changes with calm and unity."

Referring to the Prague Government's capitulation to the Anglo-French proposal to lop off the Sudeten areas, the President said:

"The government has had to act in accordance with present circumstances. I have never feared and I do not fear for the future of our nation.

"I have made my plans and cannot be surprised by events."

Czechs Move Out Sudetens Take Control

By Melvin Whiteleather
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

EGER, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 22 (AP)—Czechoslovakia soldiers, gendarmes and police began retiring from the Sudeten German region at mid-day today as the first step toward carrying out the annexation of the territory by Germany.

They fell back by mutual agreement toward the "language frontier" line which separates the Czech-speaking areas from districts where German is the predominant language.

Simultaneously with their withdrawal, the Sudeten "free corps" organized in Germany by Sudeten leader Konrad Henlein marched in from all sides of the frontier.

The two forces, however, did not meet.

Reports reaching Eger from other districts said all was quiet and that the Czechoslovak soldiers left in perfect discipline.

One False Report

The only excitement was caused by a report that three army tanks were enroute from Falkenau to Eger. In reality they were on their way out of the Sudeten territory.

As news of the evacuation spread the Sudetens immediately went on a wild holiday.

Crowds eight and 10 deep had stood all night in the streets of many towns in the belief the German army was coming. No German troops were visible along the frontier this morning, however.

The entire territory was a mass of swastika flags. The Sudetens saluted everybody, shouting "Heil Hitler." Farmers driving oxcarts and smoking creeked, long-tem pipes beamed as they raised their hands in the Nazi salute.

Merchants decorated their windows during the night with German flags and pictures of Adolf Hitler. Members of the "Free Corps" in civilian clothes and wearing swastika armbands were showered with flowers as they marched into the towns.

Buxom maidens in native costume lined the roads and fell in behind the "home boys" who had fled across the border into Germany and were now returning in triumph.

Armed But Lack Artillery.

The "Free Corps" had lined up along the border after midnight and crossed over at dawn. They were equipped with various sorts of rifles and hand grenades, but had no heavy guns.

Administration of Eger was handed over to Sudeten Germans this morning.

The municipal government was placed in the hands of four men—two newspapermen, one doctor and one lawyer.

Sudeten authorities said this was typical of the provisional government in all Sudetenland. Plans had been made carefully ahead of time.

All roads from Germany were jammed with German automobiles and pedestrians going into the territory to celebrate with the Sudetens.

Salmon caught in and near Alaska this year filled over 6,000,000 cases.

Debate On Fate Of Czechs Will Be Continued Again Friday Morning

German Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop Is Allowed In Last Half Hour; Crowds Jam Streets Waiting Decision

GODESBERG, Germany, Sept. 22 (AP).—Chancellor Hitler and Prime Minister Chamberlain discussed changes in the map of Europe for more than three hours today and parted with promises to continue their talks tomorrow.

The British Prime Minister, who had come to this Rhineland town for his second conference in a week with the German Fuehrer in search of assurances for Europe's peace, left Hitler's hotel at 7.15 p.m. (2.15 p.m., E.D.T.)

They had been in conference since 4 p.m., when Mr. Chamberlain reached the Hotel Dreesen, Hitler's headquarters, having flown from London to Cologne, motored to Petersberg and then ferried across the Rhine.

At first the two met alone except for two interpreters to discuss especially the fate of Czechoslovakia, to whose partitioning at Hitler's request Great Britain and France had agreed.

Allow Ribbentrop In

During the first part of their discussion only Paul Schmidt, German, and I. A. Kirkpatrick, Briton, the interpreters, heard what the leaders of Germany and Great Britain had to say.

But at 6.30 p.m. the two statesmen entered the main conference room on the second floor of the hotel and the talk continued in the presence of the German Foreign Minister, Joachim Von Ribbentrop.

Outside the hotel a throng totalling several thousand stood for hours waiting with keenest anticipation some disclosure of the results of the fateful meeting.

While Mr. Chamberlain and Hitler talked alone the rest of the German and British delegations sat together unceremoniously in a hotel lobby chatting informally in small groups.

The residents of Doesberg, one of Hitler's favored towns, have been in a fevered state for days awaiting the meeting. Rumors that they were about to arrive had spread again and again since Monday.

Space at a Premium

When at last the time for their arrival came gaily decorated streets of the little town of 26,000 were jammed. The influx of the world press and officials placed hotel space at a premium. Communications were delayed, frequently hours, because of the flood of telephone calls.

Mr. Chamberlain, making the second airplane trip in his life, landed at Cologne airport and continued by automobile to his headquarters at Petersberg, across the Rhine from Godesberg.

United Church Shies Off Liquor Policy

TORONTO, Sept. 22 (C.P.). — In a report presented before the General Council of the United Church of Canada to-day the Board of Evangelism and Social Service said it believed it inexpedient at the present time to formally commit the church to a definite policy either for or against the elimination of private control and profit in the sale of liquor.

The Board's report, presented by Rev. W. J. Gallagher of Guelph, Ont., indicated a division of opinion on the subject throughout the church. Mr. Gallagher said the Board would hesitate to suggest any step that might divide the temperance forces.

The report opposed establishment and extension of lotteries in Canada and stated no effort had been spared in publicizing the evils of gambling.

Mr. Gallagher said movements throughout the world indicated the revival of religion. A real, strong evangelistic movement was developing, but present conditions in Europe and the East should shatter any self-satisfaction Canadian Christians might feel in regard to this trend.

Rev. Frank Langford presented the report of the Board of Christian Education which urged the necessity for more candidate for church ministry. Rev. Murdoch MacKinnon, chairman of the committee, questioned the wisdom of giving financial aid to divinity students while they were taking Arts courses. He said he thought an even higher standard should be aimed at for ministerial candidates.

Unrest In Morocco

The frontier between Tetuan and the Tangier international zone was said to have been closed for the past four days.

Godesbergians Hold Kind Thoughts Of Canadian Occupation

By Jack Brayley
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Sept. 22.—(CP Cable.) —The famous Rhineside Hotel, Dreesenhof in Godesberg, Germany, where Prime Minister Chamberlain met Reichsfuehrer Hitler today, once echoed to the songs and laughter of Canadian troops who formed a part of the army of occupation at the close of the Great War.

Beneath the roof where the Union Jack is flying again for the first time since the Canadians marched away, the democratic and authoritarian representatives will discuss the fate of Czechoslovakia.

Old Rhinelanders recall other days when "the Canadians treated us best of all the allies" by shutting their eyes to food smuggling during the post war blockade.

Help a Farmer Out.

Frau Alice Graefinghoff recently told The Canadian Press how Canadians smuggled across the Rhine the body of a farmer's wife, using the same ferry that may carry Mr. Chamberlain from Kongberg, at the foot of Petersberg where his hotel is perched, to the conference room in Godesberg.

House Wall Tumbles Sleeper Decides He Should Arise

The crash came and the other shouted: "Yes!"

They were stranded when a stairway gave way and were rescued by firemen.

London, Sept. 22 (CP Cable)

"NO special significance should be attached to Lord Baldwin's audience today with the King," said a Buckingham Palace spokesman after the former prime minister had been in conversation with His Majesty for more than an hour.

The visit had aroused a flurry of speculation in the face of divided public opinion on the Czech crisis and reports were quickly whispered that Lord Baldwin's call presaged an important political move.

"It is unfortunate, indeed, that ill-founded rumors should gain currency during such a critical time," the palace spokesman said. "Lord Baldwin, who has been absent on the continent for some time, called on the King, as he has often done before, and as an elder statesman gave His Majesty his personal views on the European situation."

Stiffer British Demands To Ensure Peace Seen Likely To Find Hitler Asking Even Wider Concessions

By James Reston (Associated Press Staff Writer.)

GODESBERG, Germany, Sept. 22 (AP).—Amid reports that Chancellor Hitler might raise his price for peace, the German Fuehrer and Prime Minister Chamberlain came to this quiet little Rhineland town today to work out details of the partition of Czechoslovakia.

Mr. Chamberlain reached his hotel here at 1.50 p.m. (8.50 a.m., E.D.T.), having flown from London to Cologne and motored the rest of the way.

LONDON, Sept. 22 (AP). — Prime Minister Chamberlain flew to the German Rhineland today to ask Chancellor Hitler for peace gestures in return for Czechoslovakia's cession of its German Sudetenland.

"Peaceful solution of the Czechoslovak problem is an essential preliminary to better understanding between the British and German peoples."

"That in its turn is the indispensable foundation for European peace. European peace is what I am aiming at, and I hope this journey may open the way to get it."

His plane departed from Heston Airport at 10.48 a.m. (5.48 a.m., E.D.T.) for his second trip to see Hitler.

A week ago, on the trip to Berchtesgaden, he was cheered as an emissary for peace by great crowds. Today, when he left Downing Street residence, several clapped hands, one booed.

The Prime Minister shook hands with the French Ambassador, Charles Corbin, and the German Charge d'Affaires, Theo Kordt, at Heston, as he prepared to leave. But he had forgotten to bring his umbrella from the automobile.

Officials hurriedly retrieved it and placed it beside Mr. Chamberlain's seat in the plane. A smaller ship carried code experts and stenographers.

Baldwin Sees King.

Reliable reports said Mr. Chamberlain also carried these urgent demands that Hitler create a peaceful atmosphere in which to settle details of the Czech cession:

1—Immediate demobilization of German army reservists.

2—German co-operation in a new non-aggression agreement among Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy.

Jailed Soo Border Jumper Gets Homesick Builds Model Of His Home With Matches

Detroit, Sept. 22 (CP).

A MODEL HOME, 21 inches high and made entirely of matchsticks, commanded interest of visitors and officials in the United States marshal's offices today—and therein lies a story.

The seven-room model dwelling, 18 by 19 inches, was built by Jack Inch of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., while he served the last seven weeks of a sentence for illegal entry into the United States. He was released yesterday from the Federal Detention Farm at Milan, Mich., and brought to Detroit to await deportation to Sault Ste. Marie.

Inch became involved with immigration officials a year ago when he entered the U.S. from the steamship Georgian, on which he was employed as a waiter. The dwelling, reminiscent of his old home in Canada, was started partly as an outlet for homesickness while in prison, Inch said.

"I started the house with matches I picked up around the detention farm," Inch said. "When the assistant superintendent saw what I was doing, he got me all the matches I wanted and even supplied the glue.

Inch said he took woodworking instruction in the Sault Ste. Marie Technical and Commercial High School."

Ottawa Minister Is Elected New United Church Moderator

MORE ABOUT—

TORONTO, Sept. 22 (CP)—Commissioners to the eight general council of the United Church of Canada faced a heavy agenda as they met for the second business session of the biennial assembly. Today's meetings were presided over by Rt. Rev. John W. Woodside, D. D. of Ottawa, elected moderator last night in succession to Very Rev. Peter Bryce, Toronto.

The report of the Board of Christian Education, to be submitted to the council, indicates a decrease in the number of candidates for the ministry of the church. This year there are 150 taking theological courses compared with 191 last year and 208 in 1936.

All United Church theological colleges with the exception of St. Stephen's and St. Andrew's report substantial deficits and conferences of 1937 showed a net loss of 44 in the number of active ministers.

The board states there is a need for an increase of 20 to 30 per year in the number who qualify for ordination to the church's ministry.

The general council, the first to meet in Toronto since the union of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational churches in 1925, opened yesterday afternoon with a service of holy communion conducted by Dr. Bryce, Rev. Gordon Sisco, D.D., secretary of the general council and Rev. G. O. Fallis, minister of Trinity United Church where the sessions are being held.

Unanimous Choice.

At the evening meeting the retiring Moderator reviewed the work of the church since the last General Council in 1936. The election of Dr. Woodside as the new Moderator followed. Rev. Robert Laird, D.D., the only other candidate for the highest office in the church, moved that Dr. Woodside's election be made unanimous,

Dr. Bryce told the council the Christian Church throughout the world must give leadership in the great problems of moral and social reconstruction. "If the churches of Canada are to make their real contribution to world peace, they must speak constantly with an ever-increasing authority," he said.

"No half-baked formulas or sentimental aspirations will suffice to meet the insistent demand for clear thinking and loyalty to Christian principles. In the last analysis, the issues to-day are not merely those of democracy versus totalitarianism, or of authority versus freedom or of selfish greed versus Christian charity. They involve the very existence of the religion of Jesus Christ himself."

Of Germany, Dr. Bryce said there appeared to be no doubt the government of that country was determined to do all in its power to uproot Christianity and to introduce a national faith that had nothing to do with belief in God.

Two Are Fined For Selling Eggs

A trip to Peterborough for the purpose of selling eggs proved a costly affair for Albert Goldman of Toronto and for John Nicholson, a youth employed by him. Goldman had overlooked the formality of taking out a transient trader's license and also of securing a driving permit either for himself or Nicholson and the result was the pair found themselves before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., at police court this morning, facing two charges, one of driving an automobile without a license and the other of peddling without the necessary authority.

Goldman pleaded guilty to both offences. On the charge of having no permit to drive he was fined $10 and $2.50 costs and on the other count escaped with a nominal fine of $1 and 75 cents costs.

"I am a poor man and want to make a living," he told the magistrate, promising to go back to Toronto and do no more selling here.

Nicholson, explaining that he had been out of work and took a job with Goldman and drove, although he had no licence, pleaded guilty to operating a motor vehicle without a permit and was fined $10 and $2.50. On the other charge he pleaded not guilty and Chief Newhall offered no evidence, so the case was dismissed.

mind, it can be said at once it would be no kind of settlement. The Czechoslovaks have every title to the fullest measure of self-determination which Herr Hitler was demanding of his own races in his Nuremburg speeech."

The Labor View

The Daily Herald (Labor):—

"Mr. Chamberlain knows perfectly well which his choice has been this time.

"If it is pleaded in excuse of that choice that there was on this occasion no chance of successful resistance, it must be answered that there is no evidence that the possibilities of insisting upon a just and truly peaceful settlement were ever examined. . . .

"The British Government seems to have made no effort to seek information, let alone co-operation, from Moscow. . . .

"In the fundamental matter of seeking not merely peace but justice, Mr. Chamberlain did not so much give up. He really never began to try."

No Responsibility.

Lord Beaverbrook, in a signed editorial on the front page of his Daily Express (Independent) declared there was "no duty or responsibility whatsover on this country to defend that Central European power."

"No moral responsibility rests on us," he declared, "or upon the United States, even though President Wilson himself brought the Czechoslovakian state into existence. . . .

"It is wicked and untrue to accuse Britain, your own country, of selling Czechoslovakia or deserting

Surrender To Justice

The Times (Independent):—

"Mr. Chamberlain has made a surrender, not to Herr Hitler but to justice—and that is not dishonorable. The allied diplomacy had neither the courage nor the foresight to set about rectifying their error until the champion of those races took up their cause, justice does not become an injustice because a dictator demands it.

"The British government has been criticized for making a sudden volte face. That charge at least is intelligible, for the suggestion in these columns that a solution might be found by secession was immediately disavowed by the foreign office.

"Any threat to the Czech and Slovak parts of Czechoslovakia would be an entirely different matter from the determination to regain its contiguous German areas for Germany.

"Mr. Chamberlain would only have had a divided country behind him if he had led it into war on an issue in which to all clear thinking people there was and is much to be said for the German case.

"Indeed the Czech reply makes it plainly incumbent upon Great Britain to stand by Czechoslovakia proper if any attempt should be made to lay military hands upon her."

A Tight Corner

The News-Chronicle (Lib.):—

"Deserted by France and Britain, the Czech general staff were still prepared to resist the might of Germany; but a possible attack from two other quarters where their frontiers were unfortified was too much for even so gallant a nation as the Czechs.

"In prestige, in military strength and in his hold upon Central European countries, Herr Hitler emerges from the crisis more powerful than before. The cause of liberty in Europe has had a disastrous setback."

Gale, Rain Lash Quebec East Ontario

MONTREAL, Sept. 22 (CP) — Raked by a fierce storm of rain and wind, Quebec province counted heavy toll in property damage and the loss of one life today as the gale blew off to the northward after a night of destruction.

From the Ontario border eastward to beyond Quebec City, the hurricane-paced wind cut a wide swath through city and town and countryside for several hours last night. The force of the gale was felt, too, in eastern Ontario, though with less strength.

Through Quebec, toppling power lines plunged many areas into darkness for hours. Telephone and telegraph communications were thrown into disorder as poles crashed under the wind's force, trees were uprooted, windows smashed and roofs torn away. Streams overflowed as they swelled with the heavy rain.

The rising Portneuf River threatened loss of life at Portneuf village, 35 miles west of Quebec City, and riverside families hurriedly fled from their homes as the crumbling banks undermined foundations of dwellings near where five persons of one family perished early this month when a flood carried their home downstream.

The single reported death was in Montreal, where 25-year-old Robert A. Darwin was struck by a falling high-tension power line.

Many sections of the city were without light from time to time during the night. Sewers overflowed in some districts, and one traffic tunnel on Park Avenue was inundated with four feet of water. Trapped when its motors short-circuited, a street car stalled in the tunnel and its passengers and motorman had to wade out through water up to their waists.

Matter of power development had been investigated fully by Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission engineers, he said. There was "no necessity to incur further expense of doing this work over again in order to delay the embarrassing necessity of stating your policy toward this province"

Recalling the province was "swamped" with a surplus of unuseable Quebec power when his government took office in 1934, Mr. Hepburn said Ontario now had a power surplus larger than it required as a reserve.

"This province is simply not interested in the production of any more power. To take any part in any negotiations which may lead to this end would be unwise and misleading. The only market for Canada's share of the power developed on the St. Lawrence is within the provinces of Quebec and Ontario or in the United States.

Surplus for Years

"Quebec and Ontario are suffering from a surplus of power which will continue for many years to come. It seems clear to me that the effect of the proposed treaty is to prepare a reserve of power on Canada's side which can quickly be brought into production when the need arises for sale to the United States. I do not think this province wishes this ultimate power resource to be made available in advance of Ontario needs or that it should be disposed of in this way.

"Moreover, I think it is extremely doubtful as to constitutional issue that the Dominion has the right to use Ontario waters in a project which, from the wording of the treaty and the accompanying documents, the great delay in the completion of the canals, the whole character of the work, is in reality a power project first and not a waterway."

Mr. Hepburn proposed instead that levels of the upper Great Lakes should be raised by diversions. He said if the Dominion government was "interested in supporting a constructive development policy for Ontario" he would be pleased to renew representations already made to Mr. Mackenzie King on this subject.

No Split In The Cabinet

The reported settlement of the Sudeten issue by the ceding of that area to Germany has met with mixed reception. It could not well be otherwise. Anthony Eden, former Foreign Secretary in the British government, says: "Continued retreat can only lead to ever-widening confusion." Maxim Litvinoff, Russian Foreign Commissar, states: "It is avoiding problematic war today to receive in return certain and large scale war tomorrow."

Despatches from London contain the significant statement that "Mr. Chamberlain obtained approval of the full cabinet for his proposals." No matter what others might think or say it is evident beyond doubt there was no split in the British cabinet on so momentous an issue. We take it the British cabinet would know much more about all the facts having a bearing on the situation than other people who are not so thoroughly informed.

Of more importance than what might be the feeling in the British cabinet is the fact that France agrees to the solution. The terms of the agreement must contain some definite assurance from Germany that there will be no more aggression and those assurances must be considered satisfactory and sufficient otherwise France would never agree to them. If there are two nations on the continent which distrust each other with an intensity which touches the maximum degree, then those two nations are France and Germany. When we find France becoming a party to any agreement dealing with Germany and subscribing to the terms, then it sponsors the belief that a sufficiently strong knot has been tied in the strings which bind the parties to the agreement.

If Czechoslovakia is the party which has actually paid the price for securing —or at least preserving—a degree of world peace, then it is just that the nations of the world should seriously consider dealing kindly and generously with that nation. It is not too much to suggest that recompense might well be made, and the recompense, whatever form it might take or whatever degree it might reach, would not nor could it approach the price which would have been exacted had wide-spread war broken upon the world.

On The Wrong Track

John Cobb, the English sportsman who drove his car 350 miles per hour on Utah's Salt Flats, is preparing to go home. He addressed a meeting in Detroit on his way out and said he was satisfied that next time he could make it 370, and ultimately the speed mark would go to 400 miles.

Capt. George Eyston, retired British army officer, says he can better his own record of 357.5 miles and would like to set it at 365 miles per hour where no one could touch it for a year at least. He has spent $250,000 winning the title and expects to be able to recoup himself for the expenditure. By what method he does not say but he appears to be satisfied it can be done.

There are problems in engineering which can be solved by these contests, but apart from that they are demonstrating nothing at all which should be made known to the automobile world at large. We are far more in need of some expert who will demonstrate how to make cars and drivers more fool proof than they are today; we could do more if some person were conducting contests which would show definitely who should and should not drive cars at all. We might well welcome some sort of rivalry which would produce the great result of showing that it pays to take a little more time when going between two given points.

Great drivers of great cars are both Eyston and Cobb, but we fear they are not showing to the world what the world should be learning. Cases in our courts every day in the week show that we know all too well how to drive a car too fast—but not too safely.

It Is Not Modern

"There is much of the city of Prague, capital of Czechoslovakia, which is comparatively modern. Its stores reflect that." We clipped those few words from an address which was delivered at a young people's gathering in one of our Ontario cities.

Prague could not be considered modern because age and antiquity is everywhere apparent. In many pictures which have been recently published there have been views of what is known as the western hill in the old town, and these are dominated always by the spires of St. Vitus.

In that same district and removed only by short distance, is a street the name of which reduced to English would be "the Street of Gold." As a street it does not amount to much; there is no space between the small houses. They are white or blue or buff. The guide tells one the traditional story:

"This is Tenth century. At that time the king gathered together the most skilled metallurgists and housed them along here, and the commission he gave to them was that they were to take base metals and find a method by which they could be turned into gold. And if they failed they were to be beheaded."

That is typical of Prague. Most of the people who live there are poor, but the city in which they live is rich in tradition and history which is measured in terms of centuries. No—it would be difficult indeed to concede that Prague is in any degree modern.

The Skoda Plant

A reader of the Examiner is unsettled regarding the course events are taking in Czechoslovakia, and writes: "It is not just that Hitler should be allowed to go ahead with plans which will eventually give him the Skoda works. The Czechs for years have been developing this place and if arms are to be made they have a right to Skoda just as Germany has to Krupps. The people there have as much right to have their Bren machine guns made in that plant as we have to be starting a factory to make them in Toronto."

It is hardly correct to say that Czechoslovakia has developed the Skoda works because that nation did not come into existence until after the passing of the Treaty of Versailles at the conclusion of the world war; it was not ratified until January 10, 1920. The Skoda works were started in 1859. It was for years in Austrian territory and bore the same relation to the Austro-Hungarian government as Krupps to the German.

At the moment and probably for some time past the Skoda works have been concentrating on business for Czechoslovakia, but munitions plants have never been known to be governed by rules of patriotism. It is quite likely Skoda has turned out equipment which if necessity arose would be turned against the Czechs themselves. Few people have ever seen the interior of the Skoda plant. In times of peace a formal visit might be arranged but little would be seen.

Skoda is located at Pilsen, covers 400 acres and is now employing 30,000 men, mostly Czechs, with a few Slovaks, but no Germans are allowed to work there. No small arms are made at Skoda, but before the World War the plant could furnish the complete equipment for two battleships and three cruisers in 30 months besides doing other work. During the World War there were 40,000 employed.

It is not correct to state that machine guns such as the Bren are made at the Skoda plant. If one can bear with a long name, the Ceskoslovenska Zbrojovka at Bruno turns out rifles and machine guns of the Bren pattern. And these guns are for world sale regardless of the people against whom they may be turned. As a rule commercial munitions plants are not regarded as a source of national security. They do provide employment in the locality but they do not reserve the power of destruction or defence which they create for the nation in which they are located. It is worth repeating that it is quite possible that if Czechoslovakia, now the home of Skoda, went to war, its soldiers might be killed by material made right in the Skoda plant which had been sold into the hands of her enemies.

They Could Argue In Public

Things have not been going entirely well in making plans for the holding of the fall fair at Leamington. The directors decided they could get more people to come if they had something unusual, so the plan was to have a marriage ceremony in front of the grandstand. There would be suitable monetary award for the young couple.

Rev. J. E. Griffith of Leamington took occasion in his Sunday sermon to say plainly that such a thing was wrong; it was using a sacred institution for monetary gain and publicity. The reply came from Merrick R. Nutting, who had arranged the fair day wedding, that as far as publicity goes the fair board could see no difference between such a wedding and a large church wedding which had been publicized for days in advance "and held in a church crowded to capacity with curiosity seekers."

Turning to the monetary gain side of the question, Mr. Nutting submits this question: "Is it not true that many churches go into various forms of the theatrical business such as minstrel shows, bazaars, pageants and plays to raise money?"

If the minister and the members of the fall fair board would get out in front of the grandstand and thresh that matter out we believe they would attract a crowd. It might draw just as well as the wedding ceremony itself, for that is a ceremony which is considerably cheapened by being staged as an attraction at a fall fair or any other such place.

The People Pay

We believe it is a fact that people the world over pay for war talk. Lloyd's of London announced several days ago increases in shipping rates and they were sharp. New rates for shipments to Canada and United States from Britain are one-half of one per cent. for the outward voyage and one per cent. for eastbound trips. For shipments to the same countries by way of the Pacific the outward rate is one-half of one per cent., and the homebound voyages are two per cent.

Previous rates on trips in either direction and by Atlantic or Pacific have been 1-40 of one per cent. So that is actually a vertical increase of such proportions that it might be regarded as formidable. And those rates became effective while negotiations to head off war were still progressing, and while vessels were still at liberty to come and go with no danger of attack.

Increases in insurance rates on cargoes which range from a former 1-40 of one per cent. to one-half, one, and even up to two per cent. are going to be passed on to the people who ultimately become the buyers of the goods in these cargoes. By the time these increases reach the consumer they will be larger than the increase charged by Lloyd's. Whether people know it or not they pay for war talk and for war scares just as they do for war itself.

NOTE AND COMMENT

"Too many youths in crime" reads a newspaper heading. We would say that one would be too many.

It's a tough old world. We notice where the editor of a Czech newspaper was arrested and no one suggested calling out the troops or going to war about it.

There has been a demand made on a woman in Sault Ste. Marie to hand over $5,000. We never knew any person in the Sault had that much.

If the Czechs have to let the Sudetens go it is interesting to recall that the British government considered it advisable to let go of a slice of Ireland.

Cleveland's city manager has been shot and wounded by a discharged street cleaner. There seem to be flaws in every position.

New Toronto is another municipality in which the relief appropriation will not last out the year. It is a situation that should give the governments more concern than it seems to be doing.

Two weeks after a London, Ont., man was fatally injured by a fall from a roof it was decided to hold an inquest. There may be good reasons but the fact remains that the man fell and was killed.

A story from Shanghai reports the Japanese as threatening the Chinese city of Macheng, so apparently the trouble in China has been going along without benefit of publicity.

A training school for officers in Manitoba penal institutions has been opened in Winnipeg. That is education that might be usefully employed by officials generally.

Capt. Eyston's great car went wrong just as he was entering his measured mile. It's often like that. Once we knew a piece all off by heart and when we stood up beside the Christmas tree not a word of it would come.

A teacher in the Windsor public schools is reported not in the least excited because he may inherit $55,000. Possibly he is a wise man and will reserve emotion until he actually possesses the cash.

Peterborough man secured two crops of potatoes this year. The first was planted early in April and ready for use on the 13th of June. As each hill was dug he planted more potatoes, and he is now using the second crop. Which is not so bad for a land once referred to as "Our Lady of the Snows."

Scores of Czechs have within recent years taken up land in East Lambton and 37 more arrived the other day for the same purpose. And we are moved to hope that included in the possessions they bring along with them is not the makings of an Ontario equivalent of the present Sudeten situation.

CONTAGIOUS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Some days when I start at my chores, I feel like one who always roars, and lands in stormy ports; when I get up I'm feeling wrong, I could not hum a little song, for I am out of sorts.

¶ On days like that I mark my chin, my razor whittles on my chin, my collar button's lost; there is no joy in me at all, I feel like days in chilly fall, when there's been heavy frost.

¶ I feel that I am getting stung, the coffee always burns my tongue, I wear a nasty scowl; when I start on my chores such days, I'm like some hound that growls and bays, I feel that I could howl.

¶ And when I'm in that nasty frame, I think that others are the same, for they all scowl at me; I feel they're sore and out of sorts, they also land in storm ports, as crabby as can be.

¶ I also find when days begin, when I start out with healthy grin, and face the world with glee; that when I face my fellow men, they all grin back at me again, as happy as can be.

¶ So many days I've found it so, when I start out to come and go, I know for sure it's true; when you've got smiles to give away, why other folks you meet that day—will feel the same as you.

Continue To Go On Farm Lands

(From the Bureau of Statistics)

THE EXPERIENCE of late in the Prairie Provinces is a reversal of what happened in older Canada. Whereas in the East people left the country and went to the city, in the West many people are leaving the city and going to the farm. The movement is so pronounced that there is no doubt about it.

During the five years prior to the Prairie Census of 1936, the number of country dwellers in Manitoba increased by 16,000, in Saskatchewan by 30,000 and in Alberta by the very large number of 34,000. Incidentally the rural inhabitants of these three provinces far exceed the urban dwellers, so that agriculture is a very real sense the basic industry.

Of course, underlying economic conditions should be kept in mind in interpreting the changes in population from southern Saskatchewan to the northern part of the arable belt in that province and a pronounced movement to the northern agricultural areas of Alberta. Alberta has shown the greatest population increase and the increase was largely rural.

Indeed in all three provinces the proportion of urban population has declined, due to the effect of the agricultural depression upon the commerce and industry of urban communities, while the rural population has increased, in spite of the conditions of hardship and privation experienced over some wide areas.

Probably the depressed condition of the basis agricultural industry in the Prairie Provinces during the five years prior to the latest census, accounts for the evident exodus of men from Manitoba and Saskatchewan. In these two provinces the increase of population in the five-year period has been accounted for by the increase of 18,000 males and 23,000 females. In all three provinces, while there was still an excess of males over females, the proportion of the sexes has been brought more nearly to a balance. There are about 677,000 men working on farms in these three provinces, that is, including members of the family who work on the land, including temporary help, and fewer than 26,000 women.

IN RECENT YEARS some districts of the Prairie Provinces have been hard hit by misfortune in the shape of drought rust and locusts. The wheat lands have suffered and overcome vicissitudes from the very beginning. The Selkirk settlers were the pioneers. Crofters from the old land, short of implements, worked over the prairie sod with a hoe, and their first harvests were endangered in the autumn by the birds of the air. Huge flocks of birds, including the now extinct Passenger Pigeon, settled in the fields and considerably diminished even such small crops as had been produced. However, after years of fighting nature and their fellow men, the pioneers of the West were able to establish farms. The population of the Red River Settlement in 1822 was 681. There were 128 horses. In that year they sowed 236 bushels of wheat, 143 of barley, 13 of Indian corn, 570 of potatoes and 18 bushels of peas. That was the beginning of the world's grahary. Today over two-thirds of the field-crop acreage of Canada is concentrated in these three provinces. Wheat is the predominant grain.

During the last few years these parts which have suffered from drought are still potential producers of great crops and the faith of the people has never faltered. It is exemplified by the issue of a newspaper called "The Prairie Optimist" by some young lads in south-western Saskatchewan which replaces what was formerly known as the "Dry Belt Weekly." Surely there could be no greater tribute to courage than that.

Apparently there is very real reason for optimism. Agricultural scientists have been busy in discovering cures for the evils that have struck the West. A rust-resistant wheat has been found. A tremendously fibrous-rooted forage plant has been created which will bind the soil that has been drifting. The plant is said to thrive on the minimum of moisture. Trees are being planted as windbreaks and for holding moisture.

Then there are the great irrigation schemes which are under way and being planned.

Altogether the prospects seem to justify the faith that was in the early settlers. The troubles of certain sections of the vast prairie lands are being overcome and large rural populations will continue to be built up.

It is a definite contrast, even now, with what happened in the rural districts of Eastern Canada years ago —a complete reversal.

PERFECTLY GOOD WOOD.

(Detroit Free Press)

A WOMAN in New York writes to her favorite newspaper to say that she doesn't like the word "purge."

She wonders why so many political writers in this country have "avidly seized upon it" and show a liking for "verbal expressions of a nation whose ideals and institutions are so at variance with ours."

Apparently she thinks that "purge" comes out of Germany or the Soviet Union or China, where the thing it stands for is known, but the word itself is not.

The French took it up and passed it on to the English.

The first use of the word in its present political sense appears to have been in connection with "Pride's Purge."

Gen. Thomas Pride was deputed by Cromwell in 1648 to "purge" the British House of Commons by ejecting from it all members who refused to vote as Cromwell wished them to.

With that distinguished pedigree behind it, why should anyone in this country object to the adoption of this very pat and pungent work into the American political vocabulary?

Germany's shortage of construction materials and labor is growing.

• Races Are Mixed In Many Lands

(Sault Ste. Marie Star)

THE ARGUMENT that it is quite impossible for the Czechs, Slovaks and Germans who make up the main groups in Czechoslovakia to become welded into a united state will hardly bear the test of history.

It is only necessary to look at the case of Switzerland with its German, French and Italian elements, or Belgium with its Flemings and Walloons and with French, Dutch and German thrown in for good measure, Great Britain with its Anglo-Saxon, Scottish and Welsh elements. Or on this continent, look at Canada, the development of unity among Anglo-Saxon and French elements, or at the United States, where the Anglo-Saxon of the original 13 colonies, the French of Louisiana and the Spanish of Florida and California have formed the background of a great nation.

And then there is the test of language. "Those," says the New York Herald-Tribune, "who persist in looking on the German-speaking population of Czechoslovakia as Germans who have been excluded from the German Reich against their will have confused language and historical nationality. The German-speaking population of Czechoslovakia has never been a part of modern Germany. In the early days it was part of the Kingdom of Bohemia. In the last few generations these people were citizens of Austria-Hungary. It is true that throughout all this time their native tongue was German. It is also true that many of them were blood kin to Germans across the German frontier.

"But if this test of language is to be the sole criterion, then the United States should become part of the British Empire—or, if you prefer, Canada should be part of the United States The fact that historically all three nations have long been separate should count for nothing. Rather should the determining factor be that many Americans and many Canadians have relatives in Great Britain. If, furthermore, language is to be the test of nationality, it would be clearly the duty of Signor Mussolini, who two days ago urged on President Benes the advisability of settling the Czechoslovakia question on a basis of 'nationality' as determined by language, to turn over the German-speaking population of Italian Tyrol to Mr. Hitler. It would also be the duty of the French-speaking population of Belgium to secede from that country and join France. Corsica would have to be given by France to Italy, and Switzerland would have to be divided between France, Italy and Germany. All the Latin-American countries except Brazil would have to be turned over to Spain, and Brazil to Portugal."

And strangely enough, in Czechoslovakia, travellers tell us, the fair hair and blue eyes which characterize the true "Nordic" type in Nazi propaganda, are to be found more among the Czech-speaking portion of the population than among the German-speaking portion. Just how do you account for that?

• Trying To Follow Chamberlain

TRYING TO

EDITOR Examiner: Sir,—I would not say the Examiner had accepted with entire complacency the thing which has been done in Europe, but you do seem to have placed a great deal of faith in the wisdom and understanding of Prime Minister Chamberlain.

I admit I have no easy time trying to make up my own mind. When it looked as though there was going to be trouble before when ships flying the British flag were bombed in Spanish waters, I wondered at the time why Chamberlain refused to become involved in the fuss that was then raised by his own people who were calling for direct action. His course became plain when later on he showed that these ships although under British register were not British ships at all but the property of foreigners who were making good money by taking a chance on running blockaded ports with war supplies. I must say that increased my confidence in the man Chamberlain.

My experience is that when a man proves himself to be right in making one decision he is likely not to be far out when he makes others, and for that reason I have tried to see the present situation as the British premier sees it. Right now we are living so close to the stage where history is being made that we fail to grasp the full meaning of a great deal of it. I admit I am trying to get straight in my mind which is the better of two opinions. I do not relish the idea of Czechoslovakia being carved as a peace offering, neither do I care to indulge in talk which would mean that we should at once be off to war. I could not go if I wanted to because I am too old and I could not bring myself to urge others to go while I stayed at home.

So in that state of muddlement I am trying to believe that Premier Chamberlain is right, and I will try to believe that until events prove that he is wrong.

AND the Spirit of God came upon Azariah the son of Oded:

And he went out to meet Asa, and said unto him, Hear ye me, Asa and all Judah and Benjamin; The Lord is with you, while ye be with him; and if ye seek him, he will be found of you; but if ye forsake him, he will forsake you.

Now for a long season Israel hath been without a teaching priest, and without law.

But when they in their trouble did turn unto the Lord God of Israel, and sought him, he was found of them....

And they entered into a covenant to seek the Lord God of their fathers with all their heart and with all their soul....And they sware unto the Lord with a loud voice, and with shouting, and with trumpets, and with cornets.

And all Judah rejoiced at the oath: for they had sworn with all their heart, and sought him with their whole desire; and he was found of them: and the Lord gave them rest round about.—II Chron. xv, 1-4, 12, 14, 15.

Cold Weather Hits Crowd Lakefield Fair

(By Staff Reporter.)

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 22. — A cold, biting wind kept attendance down a little at the 86th annual Lakefield Fair held on Tuesday and Wednesday on the Exhibition Grounds in the village, but exhibits and features exceeded any previous year and competition in the trotting races was keen.

Entries in the horse and cattle division were very encouraging and the roots and garden produce set a new high both in quality and quantity. There was an exceptionally large number of exhibitors showing their handiwork in the domestic science section and the work of the school children who competed for honors in poster drawing drew many favorable comments.

One slight change which resulted in less confusion was the erection of a drift fence round the area in which judging was done directly in front of the grand stand, and this arrangement permitted everyone to have a clear view of the stock, and also of the performers in the special events on a platform.

H. D. Coons, president of the Exhibition, had all arrangements well in hand and the officers who assisted in making the Fair a success were J. McKercher and A. E. Higgins, vice-presidents; H. W. Beavis, secretary-treasurer; and directors, J. W. Ridpath, W. Hawthorne, W. Tedford, R. H. Alford, Ed. Moloney, F. C. Paterson, H. Bullock, R. Darling, W. H. Peacock, T. Garvey, George Harrison, H. TOO OLD AT FIFTY?

There are far too many men and women in the forties and fifties who think they're "beyond" enjoying work or play. What a mistake! Just when you're old enough to know how to enjoy yourself, to give up because sluggishness and general unfitness make you feel "not up to it"!

Take a look at wealthier people. Do they give in to middle-age? Not likely! They try to keep themselves in the pink of condition until advanced old age; bodies young, minds alert.

How do they manage it? Many by taking the waters at famous Spas. But I can't afford to go to Spas, you'll say. You don't have to, now. Similar benefits of Spa waters can come to you! The combination of the elements of Sodium, Potassium and Lithium in Fynnon Salt gives you remedial effect similar to that which wealthy people go miles to get from Spa waters. "Salts of the Earth" break up the painfully pronged Uric Acid crystals—aid in removing poisons from your body—help stimulate the liver to do its job thoroughly again.

Your regular morning ½ teaspoonful of Fynnon Salt in a glassful of water will help drive Rheumatic pains from your joints. Feel fit at fifty. Large bottle of Fynnon Salt 75c at all druggists'.

BONARLAW

Annual harvest thanksgiving services were held in the parish of Rawdon on Sunday last at St. Thomas church, Eighth Line, at 2.30 p.m. and at St. Mark's church, Bonarlaw, at 7.30 p.m. Rev. R. E. Lemon of Norwood, taking both services. The churches were beautifully decorated with flowers, fruit, vegetables, etc., and were well attended.

Rally Day Service Held At Millbrook

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Sept. 22. — The fourth centenary of the use of the English Bible in the churches was observed on Sunday at the annual Rally Day service of St. Andrew's United Sunday School, the congregation meeting with the school at 10.30 a.m.

The superintendent, W. F. Fallis, and the pastor, Rev. A. L. Sisco, were jointly in charge of the service, the opening ritual being followed by four of the pupils, Cameron and Mathryn Elson, Betty Lunn and Fred Ridge, telling the story of how the Bible came to be placed in the hands of the common people. Bea McDowell recited "Holy Bible, Book Divine," as a fitting climax to this part of the service.

Mr. Sisco gave the address on "The Bible Chained and Free," emphasizing some ways in which we may keep the Bible chained today such as neglect, leaving it unopened on table or shelf; and failing to put into practice its teachings when studied, reading and then forgetting what has been learned. "Study God's Word, and then build your character on the solid rock of Jesus Christ."

The new carpet, which has been put down on the pulpit platform and steps, was in use for the first time on Sunday, and the new communion table will be used for the initial time on Sunday, September 25, when the holy sacrament will be observed. Mrs. H. W. Johnston presided at the organ on Sunday morning, in the absence of Miss E. L. Hetherington, the regular organist, and in his remarks, Mr. Fallis pointed out that the school attendance had increased during the past quarter by approximately thirty pupils per Sunday, and the offering by from 20 to 50 cents each week.

The offering which was a special appeal, will be credited to the M. and M. givings of the church as a whole.

COLLEGIATE GRIDDERS OPEN SEASON IN LINDSAY ON OCTOBER 1

H. L. Bamforth Elected Group Prexy

Lindsay returned to senior school football and entered a team at last night's C.O.S.S.A. Lakeshore group meeting. Five senior teams were entered, but subdivided into two groups, which will playoff at the end of their schedules. There will be three junior teams entered also. The season opens a week from next Saturday, with Peterborough seniors and juniors playing in Lindsay.

The senior school squads which signified intention of entry for this autumn last evening were P.C.I., Oshawa and Lindsay in one group, with Cobourg and Bowmanville in the other. The latter clubs have a double schedule, the winner then meeting the Peterborough-Oshawa-Lindsay victor. The junior teams will be Oshawa, Lindsay and P.C.I.

H. L. Bamforth of Peterborough was elected president of the Lakeshore group, with V. Chilcott of Oshawa the vice-president, and H. Moebus of Lindsay the secretary-treasurer. Coach Bamforth is handling the senior P.C.I. team—which won the Ontario title last year—again, while Coach David is in charge of the junior Peterborough school team.

BRISBANE, Australia—(CP). — Reuben Ruenalf broke a world endurance record here by punching a ball for 96 hours, 57 minutes, more than 12 hours longer than the mark set by Leslie Parsons early this year.

Accurate Shooter

They don't come with a keener eye on the basketball floor than that possessed by Noel MacDonald, ABOVE, captain of Edmonton Grads, world's perennial women's champions. In a recent game against the Canton Engravers, who were challenging for the Underwood international trophy, she scored field goals on nine successive shots at the basket! Her feat is believed to be a record for the women's cage game.

Rally By Berg Gives Her Round By One

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—(AP)—A miss and a matron, with contrasting personalities seemed destined today to turn the battle for the United States women's golf championship into a strictly two gal show.

They are Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, 31-year-old house-wife of Chapel Hill, N.C., defending champion, and her most feared challenger, Patty Berg of Minneapolis. Both displayed ability to meet any dangerous situation in winning their second and third rounds yesterday. Mrs. Page swept aside Helen Waterhouse of Warwick, R.I., two and one, and then turned in a four and three victory over Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex.

It remained for freckle-faced Miss Berg, outstanding woman golf figure of the year, with nine triumphs in 12 tournaments, to stage a dramatic rally that thrilled a gallery of hundreds. She conquered a 20-year-old blond co-ed of Massillon, Ohio, named Eva Shorb.

After advancing to the third round with a four and three victory over Jean Bauer of Providence, R.I., Patty encountered the slender Ohioan. At the end of nine holes Patty was four down. Then she discarded her rain golfing trousers in favor of a divided skirt, and with fiery determination began her driving finish.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

AFTER THREE BELLS in the morning and a motor jaunt of nearly 400 miles just completed—the last half of it in a driving rain storm—one does not feel right in the pink. Hardly in the mood to break out in a rash of adjectives. However, we can't help spilling a few chortles of glee after viewing the Falls falling before the Petes. Yep, the local ballsters copped a nifty 5-3 verdict over the Big Roar boys in Niagara Falls yesterday in the first game of their two-in-three O.B.A. playdown serial. Next one will be at three o'clock here Saturday aft and it ought to pack in close to 2,000 fans. The game yesterday warrants it, and the winner of this series should cop the Ontario senior flag without too much trouble. Absolutely.

* * * * * * *

SEEMS as though the long layoff waiting for a Toronto winner didn't hurtt he Murphymen much, nor did the 180-mile motor trip stiffen 'em up. They stepped out there and played airtight ball defensively, got good twirling, and hit the apple in the clutches. Played smarter ball all the way than their rivals. And the Cataracts have generally been rated as the team to lick for the laurels this year. They play good ball in the field, have two U.S. flingers who are pretty fair chuckers, and several solid clouters in the lineup. Especially this pro puckist, Kaminsky, who catches in fine fashion and belts the turnip around the patch—though he got but one safety last e'en. Wasser pitched pretty neat ball but the Petes bunched bingles when they counted, and his support shook in spots.

They Don't Like Hooks

RUSS KITCHEN tossed a lovely game till he left in the eighth. Just six hits and not all of 'em clean, as he struck out four and kept his sharp hook baffling the border city crew regularly. An error behind him put him on the spot, and Manager Murphy took no chances—injecting McNally into the fracas. Lefty found a flock of righthand hitters who loved fast balls facing him, and he had a job finishing it up, though he held a two-run lead nicely in the ninth. They're nearly all righthanders and we'd suggest a curve-ball tosser like Whitehill or Jakafby Saturday, though McNally might mow 'em down with his smoker—one never knows.

TWO GUYS RATE a lot of credit in this win, Kingdon and Cadd. The latter played a fine game at first and his triple in the seventh scored two runs. "He's a bad-ball hitter," they remarked in the press box early in the game when Cliff went after a couple of high and inside. But they were quite quiet when he blasted the three-bagger to right later in the struggle. Kingdon went in in the seventh and singled, later scoring. Then he booted one in the eghith and looked like the goat of the game when it resulted in two runs to knot the fray at 3-all. But he drove in the winning run next inning with his second straight hit, and later scored himself to become the hero. Bun deserves a spot i nthe infield Saturday and will likely get it. Calladine went fine too with two hits and neat fielding. Ditto with Doll. They all looked oke in this win, and it looks like the Petes' year to us.

Stopping With Friends

FOUR CARS of players and a few officers left here at 8.30 yesterday and, after several stops, hit the Cataract City two hours before game time. They stopped at the Clifton Inn, a good hotel near the railway station—and it is run by Ken Poole, formerly of this city. With Charlie Primeau, another Peterborough man, working there. A couple of cars of fans from here made the long trip and saw a sweet scrap. Half the squad left after eating supper but half of 'em stayed over to celebrate for a few hours by visiting the other side. They were a tickled team, all right.

OFFICERS of the Orfuns and Lou Brooks, as O.R.F.U. representative here, yesterday sent a wreath to Sarnia in token of sympathy for the sudden death of Orm Beach. We were shocked to hear of the untimely end of this great Sarnia player. A grid star of the first magnitude, he was also a real gentleman on and off the field—and will be missed in the football world. As for the locals, rain didn't stop their workout last p.m. and they'll probably be out again tonight. They are practicing hard nightly and on Saturday afternoon. Toby Westbye, former ace hoofer around here—who has been out of action a couple of years—has been out the last two nights and is again getting height and distance on his hefty hoofs. He might be the answer to the Orfuns' prayer. Other grid news may be available any day now.

Oh, Please, Mister Petes

A LOSS HERE tomorrow night will eliminate our lacrossers from further competition! That's how suddenly the scene shifts in playoff time. The classy Petes put up a grand battle late in the game down in Brooklin a few nights ago, but early-game lapses proved costly and they lost by one goal. They must win at home Friday eve to stick in there, forcing a third tussle. It will be a mighty battle by these bitter and well-matched rivals of the gutted-stick sport, and a record crowd is expected. Both clubs will be at full strength and ready to battle it out with heads bloody but unbowed to the bitter finish. And fans can be sure of a dustless field this time—with the recent rains—for the lacrosse epic.

KNOTTY LEE motored to the Falls from his home in Toronto yesterday to cheer the Petes on to victory. The ex-coach of the Petes is through baseball for the year, his Ogdensburg club (which won the 1937 title) finishing fourth this season and out of the finals. Knotty will be here Saturday. By the way, the Can.-Am. pro loop finals have been called off till spring by the league prexy. On account of rain postponed three playoff tilts in as many days. Cornwall had two wins and a loss against Amsterdam and needed but one more victory for the championship. However, rain interferred and some of the players were forced to return to winter jobs or college, so they called it off and will play it out before the schedule opens in the spring. Possibly finances had something to do with it, too, as it strikes us as slightly screwy to postpone a pro playoff series for months, just owing to rain.

DESE, DEM AND DOSE: Umpire (?) Colling, still smarting 'cause he was fired from the C.O.B.L. playoffs for poor work,—having neither the knowledge or nerve to rule on that interference play in Oshawa—says we weren't at that game....He is wrong as usual as we were present, but was he?....Lakeshore school grid meeting was on last eve with P.C.I. represented; dope is in elsewhere....Sarnia may go ahead with their game Sat'day in Ottawa, despite the death of Orm Beach....Argos and Beaches play Sat'day and it ought to be a neat rugby joust....Toronto Brights and Grads clash in ball tonight and a Brights' win would settle it; but a three-way tie is still a possibility in this T.A.B.A. farce....Umps Sheppard and Curzon of Toronto will call 'em here Saturday at Riverside....Our baseballers hope to have a workout on Friday night....The umpires in Niagara yesterday weren't bad; at least, they seemed to know the rules and weren't afraid to call 'em....It's gonna be a tight squeeze for the Oshawa juniors down in the Falls on Sat'day in O.B.A. playoffs....With a fervent wish that the rain keep up—and away up—we will toddle off and hit the hay.

Public School Soccer Teams Fail To Score In Game

After battling the full regulation time in a Public School soccer game on Wednesday afternoon, Queen Mary and Prince of Wales teams failed to register and divided the points in a league engagement.

First Half.

In the early stages, the teams failed to settle down to combination and indulged too freely in individual play that was lacking the touch of combination to get goals. Queen Mary attack was more aggressive around the goal, but always missed by inches. While at the other end, Saunders was right in front of goal with nobody but the custodian to beat. He skyed the ball over the bar. Just before the interval Saunders and Crowe broke in fast on the right to force a free kick outside the goal area. The inside right sending the ball past the upright. Queen Mary 0, Prince of Wales 0.

Second Half.

In the second half both teams travelled from end to end without any result being gained. The first note of interest arrived when Prince of Wales was awarded a penalty shot. Crowe was trusted with the kick. He sent a rising drive over the cross-bar. The Queen Mary forwards bombarded the Prince of Wales goal to find it termniate in scrimmages that resulted in Frape nipping the ball off the toe of Matthews as he was in the act of shooting. On the next visit, the same player worked his way towards goal and finished with a low grounder that rolled outside the upright. Batley and Detlor frustrated another siege by sending their centre into the Queen Mary territory where Saunders again shot the ball over the bar while standing in below. Queen Mary 0, Prince of Wales 0.

Prince of Wales—G. Beaty, goal; R. Nattress and J. Frappe, fullbacks; D. Batley, S. Detlor and L. Maudsley, halves; J. Saunders, R. Crowe, H. Henry, T. Smith and R. Doughty, forwards. Subs— L. Outram and S. French.

Queen Mary—E. Wand, goal; R. Blonden and L. McCartney, fullbacks; M. Dewart, W. Jones and F. Matthews, B. Kinmount, B. Wade Matthews ,B. Kinmount, B. Wade and A. Lester, forwards. Subs—J. Franks,

Referee—D. Buchan.

Oliver Harvester Finishes First

Close contestants in every heat of the 2.18 class at Lakefield Fair races Thursday were these two horses, seen striding to a finish in this picture. Winner in each heat was Jimmy Sutherland's Peterborough horse, Oliver Harvester, shown here crossing the finish line. Behind him is Ginger Direct, owned by Ed. Jones of Hastings, who finished second in each heat.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Sept. 22.—(CP).—Rulers of the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior series for so long the observers were crying "monopoly," Orillia Terriers seemed near the end of their reign today.

Only a single game and their courage stood between the Terriers and elimination as St. Catharines Athletics prepared to take over the throne room. If they do go out before the surging Athletics at Orillia to-morrow night, the Orillians will have closed a notable six-year chapter in which they have won three Dominion championships

St. Catharines shoved the titlists to the brink last night with an 18-7 defeat that left the Terriers tired and crippled. It gave the A's a two-to-one advantage in the best-of-five series.

When the series is resumed, and perhaps closed, to-morrow, the Terriers will be without Jerry Connell and George Coles, both stars. Coles has been out the entire series, while Connell suffered a broken right leg in last night's engagement.

Niagara Falls Here Saturday

At three o'clock Saturday afternoon in Riverside Park, the Petes tangle with Niagara Falls in the second game of their O.B.A. playdown series, probably the semi-finals. The Petes took a 5-3 win in the Falls yesterday and hope to rub the Niagara gang right out of competition here to-morrow. If the visitors win, a third game will be necessary—and may be run off in Toronto early next week. Besides the Western Ontario winners, the Toronto victor and the Petes-Falls' winner, there is a squad in Northern Ontario—all heading into Ontario senior playdowns shortly. A record crowd of city and district fans is expected here on Saturday as these teams play championship ball and appear evenly matched. It ought to be a swell struggle.

Manager Eddie Murphy is uncertain who to pitch in this tilt. McNally, Whitehill and Jakafby are all being considered, as Kitchen hurled most of the first game Wednesday. School-boy Mussel, a New York imported right-hander, is almost certain to toss for the Falls here. The admission is half a dollar for adults and 15 cents for children, owing to heavy travelling expenses and an O.B.A. cut on these gates. Grandstand is free. Aside from players' passes, season passes are not honored in playdowns.

Jerry Connell Out Of Game For Year

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Sept. 22.—(CP).—Jerry Connell, star centre of Orillia Terriers lacrosse team, will be lost for the season with a fractured leg bone, suffered in a play-off game here last night when he collided with Gus Madsen of St. Catharines Athletics, it was announced to-day.

Dr. W. J. Chapman, St. Catharines club physician, reported X-ray examination showed Connell suffered a fracture of the right fibula, three inches above the ankle. The break was cleancut, with no displacement of the bones and Connell's leg was set in a cast.

Lacrosse Team Meets Brooklin

The Petes face elimination in lacrosse here to-morrow (Friday) night when they clash with Brooklin in an O.L.A. senior "B" group play-off game at 8.15 in the George St. arena. It will be the second game of their two-in-three series, and Brooklin took the first at home by a 12-12 score last Tuesday evening. If they win here t-morrow, the Brooklin boys advance in playoffs while the Petes are through for the year. But a local victory would force a third tussle in this heated series. The contest to-morrow night should draw the bigest crowd of the year, if the weather is any way favorable at all. The Petes have a big local and district following and they deserve plenty of vocal and financial support at this time.

Brooklin and the Peterborough gutted stick warriors have been staging classics all season. Every game between these smart, bitter and well-matched rivals has been a first-rate encounter. The issue is always in doubt and it looks like a cinch for the winner of this series to go right through other opposition. Coach Frank Randle's gang will be at top strength for the crucial fray to-morrow, and the battling Brooklin bunch will also field a full team. The O.L.A. will select two of the better referees to handle the game.

Gate Still Open For London, Sarnia Teams

DETROIT, Sept. 22.—(CP).—The gate remained open to-day for admittance of London and Sarnia teams to the Michigan-Ontario Hockey League, but possibilities the two cities would enter this year were slim.

London has passed up a league berth on several occasions due to lack of talent, while the Sarnia team's rink at Point Edward burned down this summer. League President Fred Haner, Detroit, said today, however, he was confident application of the two clubs would be viewed with favor this year if entered before the league opening Nov. 7.

Muskegon, Mich., Reds, "weak-sisters" of the league last year, will be replaced by Stratford, Ont., team piloted by the veteran Dave Pinkney, Chicago, looked upon last spring as certain to ice a team this winter, will not be represented.

The Muskegon club withdrew from the league after planned improvements on an arena in that city failed to materialize. In addition, many of last year's players were unable to find employment during the summer and left.

Admittance of Stratford to the league has not been formally approved by league governors, Haner said, but the entry will be confirmed at the first regular meeting. League clubs—two in Detroit, and one each in Chatham and Windsor—favor the Stratford entry, Haner said. According to present plans, Stratford will play their home games Saturdays.

Olive Harvester Wins At Lakefield

(By Staff Reporter.)

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 22.—Jimmy Sutherland of Peterborough drove his horse, Oliver Harvester, into first place in the three heats of the 2.18 class at the Lakefield Fair yesterday to sweep the prize money, in a racing program that topped any at Lakefield in recent years. Ginger Direct of Hastings, owned by Eddie Jones, gave Sutherland's horse a battle in every heat but couldn't overtake the Peterborough pacer. In the 2.25 class H. Ingle's Infringer Grattan was the best winning two and taking second in the third heat for first money. Bennie Dunsford of Peterborough took second money with Billie Chicoot. Following are the results:

PETES GRAB OPENER FROM NIAGARA FALLS BY A 5 TO 3 SCORE

Two Runs Scored In Ninth To Give Petes First Game Kingdon Both Goat and Hero

Niagara Falls fell before the Petes, 5 to 3, yesterday in the Cataract City in a thrilling O.B.A. playdown game. About a thousand fans roared like the waterfall when the Bright's bunch scored twice in the eighth to tie the count at 3-all, but the Petes pushed over the winning counters in the ninth. Second game of the series is here Saturday.

It was an excellent display of senior baseball with both clubs showing a lot of class over the route and the issue always being in doubt till the windup. Each squad scored a run in the first frame and the count remained knotted then till the Petes broke loose for two tallies in the seventh. After being tied again in the eighth, the visitors showed their form by copping the nod in the final heat.

Bun Kingdon was goat and hero in the exciting eighth and ninth. Going in as a pinch-hitter in the seventh, Bun (who cut short a vacation visit to attend) singled and scored a run. Next frame he booted one at second, two unearned Falls' runs countering later. But Kingdon redeemed himself in a big way in the ninth when he singled in the winner and later scored himself.

Neat Hurling

Russ Kitchen pitched most of the fixture for the Murphyites and made a fine job of it. He limited the homesters to six hits, a couple of them scratchy, and fanned four before retiring in the eighth with two men aboard. His curve bothered the Big Roar boys all through. Lefty McNally relieved Russ but had trouble getting the side out in the eighth, two hits scoring the two runs. He went good in the ninth, despite a double against him, to hold his lead and earn the victory. Wasser went the distance for the losers and gave a good performance, but the Petes bunched hits off him to get four earned runs against one.

Despite their long layoff and their lengthy car trip, the Liftlockers turned in a sparkling defensive game and flashed plenty of pep and fight afield and at the plate. The Falls also looked good defensively, though they booted a couple. Catches by Cadd and Hilleshein were features. Kingdon led the hitters with two for two and Calladine got two for three. Cadd's long triple in the seventh scored two. Murphy had three sacrfices and a walk for no official times at bat. Lipka had a double and single for the Niagara gang, and Smith and Whitehead had two singles each.

Kearns Scores

Kearns opened the game with a single. Burton sacrificed him and he scored on Starr's single. Lipka evened it up when he singled, was shoved along on Hilleshein's bunt and scored on a single by Smith. Calladine got a single in the second for the Petes and Kitchen was safe in the third on an error but neither reached second. The homesters were turned back in order in the second and third. The Petes went down one-two-three in the fourth and a walk to Murphy next heat was wasted. Whitehead's single for the Falls in the fourth came to naught when he was out stealing. Lister walked in the fifth, was sacrificed by Stephenson and got to third on an out but died on that bag.

The Petes threatened in the sixth with one out. Burton drew a walk and, after Starr flied out, raced to third on a single by Doll. On an attempted double steal, Burton was tagged at the plate. With two of the Fallsters out in the sixth, Smith and Kaminsky singled but the next man popped to second. Calladine opened the seventh with a single and Murphy sacrificed him along. Kingdon beat out a hit and both scored on Cadd's hard triple to right, but the next two men went out to the infield. Hardison's hit for the other side was wasted in their half.

Tie Up Game

While the Petes went back in order in the eighth, the Falls' crew tied up the score. Lipka was hit by a pitched ball. Hilleshein grounded to second and Kingdon tried to scoop the ball for a double play but dropped it and both men were safe. Smith grounded out and both runners moved up a base. McNally replaced Kitchen and Kaminsty flied to right. Lipka scoring. Whitehead hit safely to score Hilleshein and Lister singled to advance his teammate to third, but Stephenson rolled out. In the ninth, Calladine drew a walk and was sacrificed by Murphy. Kingdon's hit scored Calladine. Cadd fanned but McNally singled to send Kingdon to third and he scored when Hilleshein dropped Kearns' fly to left. Burton grounded out to end it. In the Falls' half, Mussel and Castle went in as pinch-hitters but the former grounded out and the latter hit a pop fly to Starr. Lipka doubled to centre but Cherrie, a pinch-hitter, flied to Kearns.

This Trio Busy As Another World Series Draws Near

These three heads rule the baseball world and as world series time approaches they get together to formulate plans for the annual classic. At the LEFT is Ford Frick, who guides the destinies of what is sometimes called the "senior loop" and at others, "another minor league." What is meant is the National League where the teams always have to fight down to the wire to win the pennant. At the RIGHT, the boss of the "juior circuit," the American League, where more often than not it's a case of seven teams watching the Yankees coast in to take the flag. In the CENTRE is the unmistakable head of both leagues and all organized ball, Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis. The judge sometimes draws verbal blasts for some of his rulings, but he's recognized as a mighty power for the good of the game.

Golfers Rained Out In Their Marathon

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (A.P.). — The field of 275 crack golfers gathered for the rich 108-hole Westchester Tournament will have to wait until to-morrow to start pursuit of the $13,500 purse.

Torrential rains yesterday left puddles of water on the greens and in the traps and officials decided it would require at least a full day of sunshine to make the Fenway Club course playable for championship golf. The qualifying round field will be divided, one half playing 18 holes on Friday, the other playing 18 on Saturday.

Hayman Nurses Ace Trio On Injured List

(By The Canadian Press.)

The injury jinx hits some football team hard every season and coach Lew Hayman only hopes that this isn't the year it takes a toll on his Canadian champion Toronto Argonauts.

Haymen had his fingers crossed today, for two of his booting stars, Lanky Bob Isbister and Johnny Munro, and lineman Harry Booth will be out of action when Argos clash against Balmy Beach Saturday for the Toronto city championship. The injuries aren't serious but Hayman isn't taking any chance.

Isbister, Booth and Munro, former Queen's University star, did not practice with the team last night. Although two of Hayman's kickers will be out, the Argo coach still has another high-quality booter to step in and take their place. Earl Selkirk, who performed as understudy for Isbister last year, will kick against the Beaches.

Coach John Macdonald of Montreal's big four cubs was heartened by appearance at last night's practice of two Montrealer's who formerly played with University of Maine. They were 190-pound Frank Smith, whom Macdonald may groom as quarterback and Roddy Elliott, a running half.

Redmen Train In Mud

McGill Redmen of the intercollegiate union, who play the Cubs this Saturday in an exhibition game, were set through a brisk workout in the mud by coach Doug Kerr. Russ Merrifield, a classy backfielder of the Redmen last season, put in his first appearance. But while the Cubs and the Redmen practised in the rain, Montreal's other senior entry—the Nationals of the Ontario Rugby Football Union—remained indoors. The Nationals played basketball at a gymnasium and held a chalk talk.

Warren Stevens' University of Toronto boys split into two squads for a practice game. Stevens said that Cam Gray, the team's great placement kicker, would be out today. Gray went into hospital recently with a sore throat. Alex Ponton's Balmy Beaches concentrated on signals in their workout. Murray Hyslop, a husky middle formerly with Montreal's big four team, was on hand.

Tennis Stars Hope To Play On Friday

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Sept. 22 (A.P.). — The United States Lawn Tennis Association, with an eye on the weather man, will play off the remaining semi-final matches of the United States singles tournament to-morrow after five straight postponements, a record for the tourney.

Although the courts were covered, officials said five days of rain had so deeply penetrated the turf that it would take fully 24 hours of drying weather before the courts would be in condition for play.

The last match played was Saturday when Nancey Wynne of Australia won her way into the women's finals. Alice Marble and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan of Boston will meet in the other semi-final for the right to meet her for the title.

The men's semi-finalists are Don Budge and Sidney B. Wood, Jr., and Jack Bromwich of Australia and Gene Mako, Budge's doubles partner.

Grads Hold Cup In Sweep Over Canton

EDMONTON, Sept. 22.—(CP)—Edmonton Grads unparalleled record in women's basketball remained intact today but Coach J. Percy Page warned that the famous organization may be disbanded unless patronage improves at international series.

Grads completed the 44th successful defence of the Underwood International Challenge Trophy last night by defeating Canton Engravers of Ohio 68-32 to sweep the three-of-five series. Grads won the first game 75-25 and the second 79-52.

It was the 463rd victory in 479 games since the team was formed in 1915 and the 97th win in 101 Underwood games. This great record, ironically, might be the cause of the club's disbanding for fans stay away from the games because the Grads win so often. Financial receipts are not sufficient for continued operation.

"If the time has come when there are not enough people interested in the game to make it possible for us to continue, I am sure I am correct in saying that there will be no bitterness on the part of the girls and certainly none on mine," Page said.

Dean Shuts Out Bees 4-0 For Cards, Yanks Drop Their Sixth Kicking Away 5-2 Decision To Sox

By Sid Feder
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Pittsburgh Pirates seemed today to be the one ball team the current rains couldn't hurt.

Even if it kept raining the figurative 40 days and 40 nights until the National Baseball League season ends, the brig of Pie Traynor and his Pirates would bounce into the world series anyway.

All in all, you couldn't blame Traynor much if he just sat and prayed for rain to last until the Oct. 2 finale, and then continue right through the month after that. Because after the pennant chase is over, his boys—if they win—still have the Yankees coming up.

But the rain knocked huge holes in the hopes of Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds. Every game rained out in the first division this week—and there has been a record number of 14 of them—can be marked down in the Bucs' victory column, for if they don't play they can't lose.

When the second-place Cubs and third-place Reds, 3½ and five games back, respectively, are the victims, they can't win—and so have no chance to catch up with the Pirates. The Bucs had two of their toughest eastern games washed off the schedule entirely—with Brooklyn Dodgers, who have raised more hob with the pace-setters this season than any other outfit.

Can Still Drop Three

As matters now stand, the Pirates can play .500 ball in their 12 remaining games and still be fairly sure of grabbing the pennant, for in that case the Cubs would have to click for more than 800 per cent in 13 remaining starts. Even if the Cubs don't lose another game, the Bucs can still afford to drop three of 12. Here's the picture:

Club	W	L	PC	GB	TP
Pittsburgh	81	57	.387	—	12
Chicago	78	61	.561	3½	13
Cincinnati	76	62	.551	5	12
New York	75	64	.540	6¼	12

There has been only one national league tilt since Sunday, and that one saw Paul the daffy Dean, in his second comeback start for the Cardinals, pitch a seven-hitter to blank Boston Bees, 4-0, yesterday. Ducky Medwick drove in all the runs.

The Yankees, who have been more chumps than champs since they sewed up the American League pennant, stretched their losing streak to six games in kicking away a 5-2 decision to Chicago White Sox. Three errors gave the Sox their runs (all unearned).

Hank Greenberg remained three games in front of Babe Ruth's record 1927 home run pace by clouting his No. 54 for the year as the Tigers trounced the Athletics twice, 8-6 and 3-0. Jimmy Foxx's 47th four-bagger paced Boston Red Sox to an 8-4 margin over the Browns in the only other game that wasn't drowned out.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Hank Greenbergs and Poof Poffenberger, Tigers.—Greenberg hit homer and two singles, driving in six runs, in 8-6 opener win over Athletics; Poffenberger pitched three-hitter to take five-inning nightcap, 3-0.

Duckey Medwick and Paul Dean, Cardinals—Medwick's homer and two singles drove in all the runs while Dean pitched seven-hitter to blank Bees, 4-0.

Mike Kreevich, White Sox—Hit double and single, driving in two runs in 5-2 win over Yankees.

Jack Peacock, Red Sox—Banged out four hits and drove in two runs in 8-4 decision over Browns.

Don't Be Fooled About Constipation!

Many people, when constipation hits them, just reach for the medicine shelf, dose up with a physic, and try to forget it—till the trouble comes back. And come back it usually does—more and more often—till you get at its cause.

If you eat what most people do—just bread, meat, potatoes—chances are just this fact causes your trouble: lack of "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and aids elimination.

If that's the reason for your trouble, what you need is a good dish of crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains the "bulk" you need plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B1. Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and join the "regulars." Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

No More Stale Bread—It's Frozen

A problem that has long puzzled government officials, that of feeding the nation in wartime, is solved, as far as the staff of life is concerned, with the revelation that bread can be frozen and kept for months as fresh as when it was baked. The American Bakers' Association and the American Institute of Baking, conducted the experiments in freezing freshly baked loaves. Here you see bread being baked in the ordinary way, TOP, and made ready for the oven. Then, BELOW, to the other extreme. Dr. William Cathcart, of the A. I. B., inspects bread that has been kept in cold storage at seven below zero. It'll keep thus for nine months.

New Teaching Ideas Explained To Millbrook Ratepayers

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Sept. 22. — "I am here to give information that I hope will prove of value to the schools, and I am glad to see that you have such an interest in educational matters," was the opening remark of Colonel E. E. Snyder, the new Public School Inspector for this section of the county, addressing well-attended meeting of the ratepayers of Millbrook, Cavan, and Hope, held in the Town Hall at 8 p.m. on Monday. The teachers were also well represented.

Colonel Snyder was introduced by ex-Warden Percy Stinson, member of the local School Board, who expressed appreciation of the gesture on the part of the new Inspector in making this initial move to impart needed information to the trustees, teachers, and ratepayers, particularly in regard to the new course of study.

"There are three fundamentals in any community — the home, the church, and the school," the speaker have a contented life at home, and also at school. The teacher is the school, and the kind of teacher you have really makes or breaks the school. Inquisitiveness and activity are characteristics of child life, and in the new course of study these are given a chance for development, for the pupils find out for themselves mostly, and then they do things for themselves, giving opportunity to discover the child's natural bent, and bring out its initiative."

A Great Change.

"I used to go into the schools in my inspectorate and find the pupils in any given class doing the same thing at the same time. That is all changed in the new curriculum, for under it the child is allowed to do what he would like to do, and we must give them something to work with, mainly books, for this is the foundation of the new course of study. All trustees are asked to authorize the teacher to spend from twenty to fifty dollars in order to make a success of this new study venture."

The new grading, and the new headings under which the studies are listed, such as "social studies," geography, history and civics; mathematics, arithmetic, algebra, geometry, trigonometry, etc.; science, nature study, biology, botany, physics; English, literature, composition, spelling, etc., were all explained and the advantages made clear. "It is a fact," the speaker declared, dealing with the "health" heading, "that there is no medical inspection in any of the schools in my new inspectorate, and I think this is a matter of importance for the Women's Institutes or some other body of women to take up seriously. From my own experience I can prove that attendance is greatly increased and study records are better where the pupils have medical inspection.

"Music and art must be taught, while optional subjects are home economics, household science, agriculture, and manual training." Col. Snyder gave some examples of the practical value of the new course of study in schools he had visited, banking, storekeeping, picture-making, and books of travel, being among the things being actually done by the pupils with distinct advantage in helpful experience.

More Efficiency.

"There is no decrease in efficiency, but rather the reverse, when the pupils are allowed to choose to do the things they want to do; indeed, there is a great improvement on what we have had heretofore. The course is not permanent, but has been, and will be, modified each year as suggestion are sent in from teachers and others interested in the province."

The last part of the evening was entirely taken up with an explanation of the grants available for schools, the Government bulletin, "Instructions to School Inspectors," being placed in the hands of all present, and a full discussion encouraged. By means of blackboard and chart, Colonel Snyder showed how equalized assessment is figured out, how grants are based on salaries paid, and that many schools are losing money by not paying a high enough salary to obtain the grant the Government is ready to give them.

He also explained that at the annual school meetings reports are to be heard, but that legally no actual business, such as hiring a caretaker, buying fuel, etc., may be done—that lies only in the province of the School Board.

The vote of thanks to the speaker was voiced by R. I. Sutton and W. Elson, and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Chandos Couple Entertain Friends

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, Sept 22.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tanner of Chandos celebrated the 20th anniversary of their marriage by giving a dance at their home near Loon Lake last week. A very enjoyable time was spent in dancing the old-time dances, also some modern round dances. A dainty lunch was served at midnight by the hostess and her daughters, Mrs. Schelcher of Peterborough and Jean and Elsie Tanner.

Mr. and Mrs. Tanner were married at Wokingham, England, during the World War, and came to this country soon after the Armistice. She was the second war bride to come to the Apsley district. They have made their home in and near Apsley for most of that time. They received some beautiful gifts of china, etc., and many hearty wishes from their friends and neighbors.

C. Lacvorian, Mr. and Mrs. H. Schelcher were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. Tanner for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McColl and son Chesel and Miss Rosalie Smith spent the week-end at their cottage on Jack's Lake.

A wonderful service was held on Friday and two services on Sunday for thanksgiving at St. George's Church, Apsley. On Sunday at 8 a.m. Communion service was held and afterwards a breakfast was served in the Parish Hall to 21 communicants. Donald Hester was the evening soloist, the solo being "O Lord, How Manifold Are Thy Works." Communion service followed, closing a very successful harvest festival, with Rev. F. McMulkin, rector, officiating.

Thomas Stephens of Apsley died on Saturday in his 82nd year. The funeral at Apsley United Church was held on Monday afternoon.

Czechoslovak frontiers and to transfer populations.

5—Termination of the anti-Czech press campaign by German papers.

6—Economic and military guarantees for a new Czech state.

It generally was believed that only by such wide and important concessions from Hitler could Mr. Chamberlain hope to quell oppositionat home to the Czech surrender effected by the British and French Governments.

At the same time it was feared that Hitler, instead of being in a mood for concessions, would demand nothing less than an utter dismemberment of the Czech state.

The Hungary, Polish Demands?

There still was no indication of Mr. Chamberlain's view on demands by Hungary and Poland for a share in Czech territory. It was known, however, that both the Polish and Hungarian ministers in London expressed the view that they can be satisfied with nothing less for their minorities than Hitler secured for the Sudetens.

Foreign office sources strongly indicated insistent support by Hitler for the Polish and Hungarian demands might throw the entire discussion into deadlock.

On the other hand, some here believed Hitler would march if Mr. Chamberlain showed the slightest tendency to adopt a firm attitude now.

Mr. Chamberlain already is faced with outspoken opposition from labor and Liberal leaders, and what was perhaps more important, from two influential Conservatives, Anthony Eden and Winston Churchill.

The Liberal press paraded all its eloquence against Mr. Chamberlain, and even one of his staunchest supporters, the Daily Telegraph, said "the Czechoslovak settlement is going to prove anything but easy."

No More Illusions

The Yorkshire Post, which is close to Mr. Eden, stated:

"For years now the danger cloud that was growing on the horizon has been pointed to by experienced and qualified observers, but the warnings have been dismissed as 'prejudice and war mongering.' Now at least there must be no more illusions. We have to learn the material effects upon ourselves of palpable victory of aggression. But unless we find men of courage and vision to take action that is demanded of us, we shall not escape even more direct and immediate consequences to ourselves."

A delegation of labor leaders flew to Paris today to discuss a further common front with French labor to fight the Anglo-French plan.

The Liberal party "condemned the government for initiating without consulting parliament another surrender to force, in a reversal of the policy announced by the government two weeks ago at a time when a firm lead could have preserved peace with honor."

Muffitt Reunion Enjoyed At Coe Hill

(Examiner Correspondence.)

COE HILL, Sept. 22. — Saturday, and Sunday, September 10 and 11, the cottage of D. S. Muffitt, situated on Loon Lake, was the scene of a very happy re-union of the former's brothers and sisters, some of whom had not seen each other for over 28 years. The last of the guests arriving at six o'clock, they all sat down and partook of the delicious banquet which the ladies had provided. Toasts were drunk and all went down to the lake shore, where a huge bonfire was burning. Seated around the fire several hours were spent in songs, the shores echoing with many a good old melody. Repairing to the cosy cottage, the remainder of the evening was spent in a real old get-together, and many incidents of by-gone days were recalled. The only shadow was that their aged mother, who lives with her son Charles of Coe Hill, was unable to join her children at the lake. However, the next day was spent with her, and very happy indeed was she to see them all around her bedside. A brother Robert of Port Hope and a sister, Mrs. Fred Little, Port Hope, were unable to be present.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Muffitt, Buffalo, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Muffitt and son Albert, Lewiston, Mrs. Robert Dunk and daughter, Oshawa, Misses Verta and Blanche Muffitt, Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bennett, Campbellford, Mrs. George Grills, Campbellford, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Payton, Lewiston, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Muffitt, Coe Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Don Muffitt and son Gordon, Coe Hill.

Army in New Cabinet

The cabinet suggested to the resident that a new government be built on a basis which would provide the largest possible representation of nationality and perhaps include army officers.

The news was announced in a broadcast message by the mayor of Prague, Peter Zenkl, and carried through loud-speakers in most of the important places in the city.

Benes and his ministers continued discussions at 11:40 a.m. (6:40 a.m. EDT) considering formation of a new government.

It was announced that, to maintain order, athletic and religious organizations had summoned their members, who agreed to wear uniforms, to go into the streets and help the authorities.

It was a fearful, uncertain peace with which the Czechoslovaks yesterday bought peace for Europe with their territory.

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Acid Indigestion, Colds, Headaches, Bilious Attacks, Constipation OFTEN START THIS WAY

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight!

English Master Transferred Toronto Normal

Adrian Macdonald, master of English and Science of Education at the Peterborough Normal School since 1918 has been transferred to the staff of the Toronto School where he will teach the same subjects, and he has already assumed his duties in the Queen City.

Mr. Macdonald is generally regarded as one of the outstanding English teachers in the profession in Canada and has completed many tasks which required unusual ability and knowledge of English. He was honored some years ago when selected as the Canadian representative to the American Convention of English teachers at Cleveland where he was one of the speakers. He was examiner-in-chief in the composition department of matriculation examinations in Toronto, and has annotated matriculation text books for McMillan and Company.

Writer of Note

He has done considerable writing, one of his best works being a book "Canadian Portraits," and added to this he has written several of a series of history reference books for Ryerson Press. During his twenty years on the Normal School staff here he wrote many articles and some short stories for Canadian magazines.

He was intensely interested in drama and always directed plays which were staged by the Normal students. Two outstanding productions were successfully staged by the local students, namely, "The Rivals" and "Midsummer Night's Dream." He acted as adjudicator at drama contests and also took a prominent part in producing the Kinsmen Club plays.

Mr. Macdonald was much sought after as a lecturer, and had a style that was both highly entertaining and truly educational. He spoke at many teachers' conventions, and is a favorite with newspapermen, covering the affairs because of the fact that his talks were not only masterpieces of English but jammed with statements that marked him as a rugged individualist.

Charge Withdrawn Against Campbell

OTTAWA, Sept. 2.—(CP)—Magistrate Lester Clayton in county court today withdrew a charge against Lloyd Campbell of Toronto of being an accessory after the fact in connection with the $12,000 holdup of the Bank of Nova Scotia at Richmond last July 19.

Crown Attorney Raoul Mercier asked withdrawal because there was not sufficient evidence to make out a case against Campbell, whose brother, Oscar, is under a 12-year penitentiary sentence for the same holdup.

WHERE IS THE WAR?

Checker playing artists who frequent the weigh scales at the market and discuss everything from the price of eggs to the most important international problems are annoyed because the newspapers have forgotten all about the Spanish War and the Sino-Japanese struggle. Evidently a daily diet of Hitler versus the Czechs is not so interesting as the Spanish Revolutionary war or the battle between the Chinese and Japs.

NEON RAY CLOCKS

For the first time perhaps in the history of Ashburnham there is a public clock located in a spot where it will be much appreciated. Norm Edgar, service station owner on Hunter street east installed a neon ray clock in his window which is plainly visible twenty-four hours a day, and will be of much value to school children, Westclox employees and many others who pass the station daily. Mr. McPherson, proprietor of a service station at the intersection of Water street and Parkhill Road has also installed the same type of clock.

POTATOES AFFECTED

Several prominent gardeners are of the opinion the excessive rain of the past few days will cause rot in the potato crop, and this condition has been noted in some potatoes which have been taken out. Arthur Stenson, of the Port Hope highway, reported he had harvested his entire crop and failed to discover any damage because of the excessive amount of moisture, but his farm is on high ground. Many city people who have late varieties of potatoes planted are taking the precaution of digging a few hills to determine if they are safe.

CLOTHING IS NEEDED

In a courageous atetmpt to avoid relief this winter, a family of six—four of them young children—are leaving on Monday to cut wood in the bush. "We would rather do this than go on relief," the mother said yesterday. Faced with a lack of clothing for the children the parents are asking that generous Peterborough people send some to the Examiner office, from which they will be forwarded. There are two boys in the family, one aged 16, the other 8 years, and two girls, one nine years old, the other three. They need mittens, sweaters, underclothing, stockings—in fact, anything a child requires.

Camera Shots Taken At Lakefield Fall Fair

Three of the outstanding attractions at Lakefield Fair are seen in these pictures. At LEFT is pretty Jean Miller of Lakefield who won a step dancing contest over a large field. Youngest entrant in the event, and too bashful to come to the platform to be judged a winner was 4-year-old Mary McManus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McManus of Lakefield. She is seen at RIGHT. Three draws for mattresses captured the intense interest of the crowd. School children nabbed the best positions to wait for the lucky ticket to be drawn. They were snapped in UPPER CENTRE just as the fair's president, Henry Coons, shoved his hand into the barrel to draw out the ticket. Hundreds of spectators surrounded a truck platform to watch husky woodsmen race through a chore of sawing the thick elm log in LOWER CENTRE. Winners, in the remarkable time of 37 1-2 seconds, were the team of Stanley and Roy Garrett of R.R. No. 2, Lakefield. Second prize went to Harry Gill and Lawrence Charlton, who dug through the wood in 51 seconds.

Many Homes Are Found To Leak For First Time

A rainstorm which lashed the city and district for eighteen hours flooded many cellars in the districts, and many trees are reported to have been blown down by the force of the wind.

Minor difficulties were reported both to the Utilities Commission and to the Bell Telephone Company but repair crews had little trouble correcting them. In rural districts the damage was practically negligible.

At six thirty this morning after about eleven hours of continuous rain, 2.24 inches had fallen and by noon the total precipitation amounted to 2.93 bringing the total for the month up to 4.72 inches. The bulk of the trouble came to householders who discovered that the strong west wind had blown water under front doors, through shed roofs, and at points where frame buildings joined one another, and more than one housewife awoke this morning to find the table in the summer kitchen saturated.

One farmer reported that the rain had been forced through a brick wall on the west side of his house, something that had never happened before on his property.

At Lakefield electric service was interrupted for half an hour when a concert in the Town Hall was at its height with more than 250 people in attendance. It was raining so hard the merry makers did not want to go out, so coal oil lamps and candles were obtained and later the concert went merrily on.

In area around Rice Lake the rainfall was reported much less while north of the city it was reported as high as 4 inches.

Mayor Becomes Prince Charming

Mayor James Hamilton was the Prince Charming who officially opened the Kiwanis Dream House for inspection last night. Dozens of people walked over the newly completed home, admired it, and hoped they would hold lucky tickets. Not a single initial was carved on any of the beautiful furniture, said amazed Kiwanis officials.

Mayor Hamilton congratulated the club both on the beautiful home they have built and upon the contribution which they have made to the civic life of Peterborough through their activities, particularly through their work at the Jackson Park camp for underprivileged children.

He commended the Dream House as an object lesson to encourage building in the city, and hoped the club would realize sufficient money from it to carry on their work during the coming year. He assured members of the support of the City Council.

Jack Pettit, president of the club, thanked his worship and the City Council, through him, for their support and co-operation. He said that the unsolicited contributions from merchants and the demand for tickets was most encouraging to the club officers as showing how many friends Kiwanis has in Peterborough.

Secretary Jack McKone referred to a number of personal letters of thanks received from children who have attended the Jackson Park camp.

In spite of unfavorable weather, nearly a hundred people inspected the house. It will be open each evening from 7.30 to 10 o'clock. Only a stub of a ticket on the house is necessary to gain admittance.

Microphone Is Used By Children In Public Speaking Contests

The Rural School Fairs are following the modern trend in public speaking awards, according to Frank Paterson, agricultural representative.

No longer does the dimpled, golden haired doll snatch first prize merely because she looks "cute" on the stage and regardless of whether her elocution is good. Radio and the loud speaker have altered all that, said Mr. Paterson.

The need today among public speakers is not so much for a pleasing appearance as it is for a good voice, a voice that will carry through a loud speaker. Consequently all public school children in Peterborough county say their pieces into a home-made microphone that Leo Copp, public school inspector, fashioned.

Judges now stand not beside the reciting youngster, but at the edge of the crowd, and any who cannot be heard are not judged at all. All the coy ways of pretty young girls are doomed to go unheeded because the judges cannot see them. They must now put their coyness into their voice.

The new method of judging has completely altered results in many cases, said Mr. Paterson. While one youngster may have a good speaking voice on a platform, it may not come over the wires in anything like as good form. This method of judging may seem unfair at first, but the demand today is for ability to speak into microphones and if such competitions are to serve any useful purpose they must train youngsters practially, explained Mr. Paterson.

Mayor of Cathedral City Sends Three Books To Peterborough

Another link in the invisible chain of friendship between the citizens of Peterborough, England and this city has been completed with the arrival of three books from Mayor Howard of the English city to Mayor James Mamilton of Peterborough, Ontario. The books which are autographed were handed to Mayor Hamilton today by Mrs. Ed. Wand, Burnham street who has just returned from an extended visit to the Old Country. While visiting Peterborough, England, Mrs. Wand as an official goodwill messenger from Canada, extended greetings to the English Mayor from Mayor Hamilton.

Peterborough in England is known as the "Cathedral City" and has a population of 43,000 people. It is situated on the River Nene, over which a new bridge has recently been completed. The bridge in pictures resembles the Hunter street structure in this city, is of concrete and has three main arches.

Beautiful City Hall

The English city is ahead of its Canadian one in so much as a beautiful city hall has just been completed in the heart of the municipality and to make room for the building it was necessary to tear down many old buildings and widen the street. Mrs. Wand states that an extensive program of slum clearance is underway at the present time, many old buildings are being demolished, streets are being widened and clean, spacious modern dwellings are replacing the old structures. There is very little unemployment, said Mrs. Wand.

Mrs. Wand was born in the village of Sutton about seven miles from Peterborough city and when in England visited her cousin whose name is directly across from the home of Mayor N. E. Howard of Peterborough. She was entertained by His Worship and the town clerk in the Mayor's parlors of the city hall.

There is close supervision of beer parlors in the English city. They open each morning of the week, close at three, open again at 5.30 and are shut down for the evening at ten. Formerly the beer parlors were open from six in the morning until eleven at night.

The Rambling REPORTERS

KNEW HIS BAND

The audience and the band at Lakefield Fair on Wednesday afternoon were agreed that one young competitor in a step dancing contest was a wise young fellow, but they reached that conclusion by opposite reasoning.

When the little fellow climbed to the dancing platform beside the Toronto comedy band he told them he wanted only the violin to play for him. The orchestra leader turned to the audience and cracked, "This little boy knows his dancing." The audience was agreed that, on the contrary, the little boy knew his band.—P.

CHAMBERLAIN'S DOWNFALL

Peterborough's wiseacres are today fighting the Czechoslovakian war in place of England's youth, using strong words in place of guns, and many are forecasting the downfall of Chamberlain in the near future. Some claim he will be forced to retire practically as soon as he returns from his visit with Hitler. Others saw as significant the report that Earl Baldwin had paid a visit to King George just after Chamberlain left for Germany. Cynical youths in the city are claiming that the people who decry Chamberlain's peace are the very ones who prayed for that peace on Sunday. "They prayed for peace and now they're mad at Chamberlain because there isn't a war," one said. —P.

DEMANDS PROTECTION

Take Jimmy Conway's word for it, Hood and Cumming garage is over run with Bolsheviks, and a man is in constant danger if he happens to express radical views on the war situation. Today Jimmy, who is a well know figure in the repair shop had just won a heated argument on the Czech crisis in which he stoutly contended the Russians were letting their neighbors down and had stopped over to peer under the hood of a damaged car when a "bomb" exploded directly behind him. The mechanic jumped and the top of his head banged against the car, and when he turned around rubbing the tender spot on his nogging, the remains of a large red fire cracker were smouldering at his feet. Jimmy does not intend to seek special police protection but is doing a bit of private detective work to ferret out the dangerous "Bolshevik", himself. —McG.

Truck Driver Is Charged Failing To Stop

A recent accident on the Lindsay highway when a car driven by William Faulkner of Emily township and a truckload of cattle driven by Donald Acreman, employed by Melville Moncrief of Smith came into collision, was thoroughly aired in police court before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning when Acreman was charged with not bringing his truck to a full stop before entering a highway.

The accused pleaded not guilty. He was defended by T. J. Carley, K.C., while Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. prosecuted.

Three witnesses were called by the Crown. Faulkner himself gave his version of the accident, declaring that Acreman's truck was in motion coming on to the highway from a side road when he saw it and that it was impossible to have avoided the collision that followed. He could not say whether Acreman had stopped or not.

James Herron who was driving west along No. 7 Highway east of the scene of the accident testified that Acreman's truck was not stopped before entering the highway. George Head who was with Herron was unable to say whether Acreman had stopped or not. For the defence Acreman swore that he did bring his truck to a stop before entering the highway and that he had only proceeded because he thought he could safely do so before Faulkner's car would reach the intersection.

Robert McAdam who testified that he had been following the truck driven by Herron did not see the Acreman truck at all before it was on the highway and could not understand how it would be possible for Herron to see it.

The case is proceeding.

Nineteen Rinks Play In Tourney

(Examiner Correspondence.)

English Teacher Visits Former Pupils

Making his tenth trip to Canada in the last fourteen years, James Bartlett, veteran British pedagogue, who taught in England for forty years, thirty-four of them at one school had the biggest thrill of all visits to the Dominion here yesterday when he enjoyed a trip down George Street behind the dog team owned and piloted by "King" Gordon.

Mr. Bartlett whose home is a Wimborn, Dorsetshire, England, and who taught school at Warminster for thirty-four years has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. Maidment, 597 Bethune street and will sail for home on Saturday on the Empress of Britain from Quebec. To the Examiner he stated that he has a string of former pupils all over Canada and into the United States and since he retired on pension fourteen years ago has crossed the Atlantic ten times to visit these former scholars and some of his relatives on this side.

There were four of Mr. Bartlett's pupils living here at the present time, Mrs. Charles E. Coleman, Sidney Whatley, Charles Payne and Herb Croft while the Maidments while, not pupils of his school at Warminster, are old acquaintances.

The veteran teacher who says his frequent trips to Canada have widened his vision and given him a new lease of life, has twice been as far west as the Pacific Coast and he has twice visited the United States. One of his brightest pupils, he told the reporter, was a successful doctor at St. Louis.

Mr. Bartlett hopes to come back to Canada next year and to have a chance then to visit the Peace River district.

Rev. Dr. Barr Is Writing Book

Arrangements have been completed for the publication of another volume from the pen of the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr of St. Paul's Church, under the title "Can Youth Save the Day?" The volume embraces a series of religious essays on the general subject of the recovery of Christian civilization. The author analyses present conditions, and exposes the pagan elements in our present civilization, and then goes on to show how these may be overcome and how youth may make a real contribution to the saving of the situation by taking a stand for Christian standards. This attitude on the part of youth is constructive and superior to the challenge of a patriotism that may mean again the throwing of youth into the vortex of another war. It is expected that the volume will be on sale by the first of December.

Youth Hostel Conferences have met with marked success in Ireland this year.

Elm Log Is Cut Record Time Lakefield Fair

(By Staff Reporter)

LAKEFIELD, September 22. — A log sawing contest again provided one of the feature attractions at Lakefield Fair on Wednesday afternoon, with hundreds crowding about the woodsmen at their work.

Four teams of sawyers entered the competition ripped through 16-inch elm logs as though they were tissues. Winners were the team of Stanley and Roy Garrett, R.R. No. 2, Lakefield, who were through their task in 37½ seconds, a full twenty-two seconds faster than their nearest rivals, Percy Harris and Ross Montgomery of Buckhorn, who finished in 59½ seconds. Third prize winners were Ted Gill and Gordon Kidd of Smith township, who were clocked in one minute, 12¾ seconds. A fourth team failed to finish at all.

A dancing competition held on the platform before the grandstand attracted fully a dozen entrants from middle aged men to a four-year-old youngster who was so bashful she did not come forward to be judged a winner. First prize, by the crowd's applause, went to 12-year-old Jean Miller of Lakefield, and Lavine Mathews of Lakefield was second. All grown-up competitors withdrew from the contest to give the prizes to the youngsters. Best performers of the lot were two middle-aged men who went through every known step to provide the crowd with a real show.

Four teams were entered in the horseshoe pitching contest. Winners were H. W. Clements and M. H. Lonsberry of Warsay. Martin Coughlin and Fred Welsh of Douro, were second and William Fairburn and Leo Spencer of Lakefield finished third.

A tug of war between two teams of ten men each saw exhibitions of tremendous strength by men from Harvey and Smith townships. The Harvey men won two out of three pulls to claim the championship of the district. Members of the winning team were Stan Barcroft, Fred Clarkson, Bob Irwin, Bill Turner, Albert Chase, Percy Mooney, Howard Smith, Winston Northey, William Northey, Harry Pluard.

Holders of lucky tickets in three draws for mattresses were Ellis Simpson of Lakefield, Mrs. Rex Wilson of Selwyn, and George Graham of Lakefield. The draw was made by H. D. Coons, president of the fair board, just before a drizzling rain sent spectators hurrying from the grounds.

Tony Johnston's loud speaker system was spread throughout the grounds, kept entrants in various events posted, advertised for lost articles, told who were winners, generally made the show more acceptable to the audience. Announcer was Tony Johnston.

Homey Atmosphere Is Present In Kiwanis Dream Home

We're wondering—will Lady Luck choose wisely the occupants for that ideal little home, the Kiwanis Dream House? Will she favor the long-suffering dweller of a flat or apartment house, who for weary months has endured the noisy radio of the family upstairs, or their grown-up daughter's clicking heels? Will she solve the housing problem for some young engaged couple who are unable to manufacture from a slender salary a home of their own, or will she thoughtlessly let favor fall on some already comfortably housed Peterborough family? September 30 will tell the tale—and in the meantime, let's just wander through and pretend we really belong in this neat little home ourselves!

As we climb the front steps and open a paneled door into the front hall, we note with satisfaction its tiled floor, so easy to keep spotless, and the wall grill which is installed for cold air intake.

Homey Atmosphere

We step from the front hall directly into a charming living room with a cheerful, homey atmosphere. From a mellow-toned radio in one corner comes restful organ music, and our first impulse is to draw up a chair to the fireplace and relax. Curiosity, however, prods us to look around and analyze this comfortable feeling.

The soft, cream-tone of the walls, which, we are told, are of a wallboard that can be painted or tinted to match any color scheme, are finished with an architectural cornice of a simple scroll design. Honey-toned marquisette drapes are at the windows, and the rich maroon shade of the long, clean-cut chesterfield, with its large wing chair, and the smaller arm one that fits cleverly into that tired feeling in the middle of one's back, blends in perfect harmony with the walls ,and the gleaming, satin-finished hardwood floors.

Subdued Lighting Effects

Louvre fixtures, cream and gold, supply subdued lighting effects in the living room and dinette, and an Ies floor lamp has an attractive linen shade.

Over the fireplace, which is made of the same tiled brick as that used for the exterior of the house, is a beautiful water color of the Laurentian Mountain country, and on each side are exquisitely framed and tinted pictures of lovely Peterborough children. Other photographs, one a clever study of gladioli in living shades, add to the atmosphere and charm of the room.

Cosy Dinette

The far end of the room narrows to form a dinette. Charming and practical is the burled walnut set which furnishes it, and the four chairs have seats of crimson leather. The glassed-in interior of a china cabinet is lacquered in matching red.

And just a step—what a saving of energy—from that cosy little dinette is the kitchen. A modern workshop here, and oodles of cupboard space at each side and below a large sink, which is flanked with plenty of working space. Casement windows open over it, and another large window faces south-west. Ecru marquisette curtains with dots of red and black blend with a black and grey blocked linoleum. A folding ironing board is tucked away into a cupboard in the wall, and equipment includes an electric washing machine, refrigerator, and stove, all of sparkling white porcelain. A small kitchen radio is another interesting feature.

Large, Airy Basement

There is space for a children's playroom in the large, air basement, where a fine furnace is installed. Heat outlets are built right up to the attic, which has space for two additional bedrooms.

Of particular interest to the womenfolk is the large linen closet, and the roomy clothes closet in each bedroom.

The bathroom, equipped with the latest in porcelain and plumbing, is laid with a linoleum in a modern design of red, black and cream.

Attractive Bedrooms

Two bedrooms on each side of the bathroom are of generous proportions, and each has two windows. The front bedroom is furnished in polished walnut, with a bedroom chair of flower-sprigged pink diamask. Full, criss-cross curtains are of dotted marquisette, and a green lamp of frosted glass matches the tones in a chenille trimmed bedspread.

Light gumwood is used for the modern furniture in the back bedroom, and a peach satin spread tones in with the damask-covered dressing table bench.

There is only one thing that puzzles us—now that we have covered this comparatively small house from tip to toe—where did all the space come from? Clever planning is the answer.

And now—have you a ticket? After the delightful experience of peering into every corner and cupboard, we're sure you'll feel an irrisistible longing to start housekeeping at once!

Supplied House Furnishings

The living room was furnished by Comstock's; with pictures by the Roy Studio; dinette by McBride and Franks; kitchen range, Frigidaire and radio, Watson's; electric washing machine and living room radio, T. J. Cavanagh; front bedroom, C.D.S.; back bedroom, Belleghem's; lighting fixtures, Grant and Loucks.

To Make Further Demands On Czechoslovakia

Further complications were added to the solution of the German-Czech crisis, when Admiral Nicholas Horthy, Regent of Hungary, RIGHT, visited Germany to determine the fate of 690,000 Hungarians, now residing in Czechoslovakia. Reports were current that Horthy consulted Hermann Goering, CENTRE, with the view of having Hungary annex the territory inhabited by these Hungarians. Poland has also begun to agitate for the return of former Polish territory which is now incorporated with Czechoslovakia. President Ignace Moscicki of Poland, LEFT, may be the next to make demands on the Czech government.

3 Jail Sentences Given In Tweed

(Examiner Correspondence.)

Two Presentations Feature Y.P.S. Meet

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Sept. 22. — Rush Point Young People's Society held their regular meeting on Friday evening in Rush Point United church, being well attended with forty-five members present. Mr. L. E. Jones of Lanark, who has been pastor of the Rush Point-Victoria charge for the summer months and his recent bride were among those present.

The devotional portion of the meeting was conducted by Mr. Jones.

After a short business period, Miss Dorothy Smith of Havelock, took charge of the following program: Reading, Miss Mary Hoard; topic, Miss Verna Buchanan, on God's need, stressing the need of consecrated young people to-day in the Master's service. This was followed by a quintette, "God Will Take Care of You."

On the occasion of Mr. and Mrs. Jones' recent marriage and in appreciation of Mr. Jones' ministry, the young couple were then presented with a very lovely woollen blanket by Miss Retta Southward on behalf of the society, the Rush Point United church and the Havelock Gospel Mission. A very nice address also accompanied the presentation.

Miss Verna Buchanan, who is entering Toronto Bible College soon was then presented with a handsome clock by the Young People of Rush Point and the Havelock Gospel Mission. The presentation was made by Miss Mary Hoard and the address read by Miss Muriel Menzies.

The recipients of both gifts made very fitting replies, after which the meeting closed with prayer by Mr. Jones.

"Whadd'y'a think this is?"

he shouts, "This is no tea party! We gotta play ball to-day and win!" He's here, there and everywhere using vast amounts of energy. But it won't bother him. His mother buys her food supplies at

in whiter washing with safety

NOW—the laundry soap of tomorrow brought to you today! For High-Test OXYDOL contains a remarkable new soap ingredient that makes it wash clothes up to 15% whiter, as proved by scientific Tintometer tests. Not only far whiter than old Oxydol—but as much as 15% whiter than old-fashioned bar and package soaps.

In addition, you'll find that High-Test Oxydol makes up to TWICE THE SUDS, cup for cup, than less modern soaps. Richer, livelier suds that stand up 2 to3 times longer.

Saves Time—Saves Clothes

High-Test Oxydol is extremely rapid in action—soaks dirt loose in as little as 10 minutes, without scrubbing or boiling. Ends those hours of rubbing with old-fashioned soaps that shortens the life of your clothes. Clothes actually last 2 to 3 times as long from the standpoint of "washday wear and tear," compared to clothes washed by old-fashioned ways.

Colors Stay Fresh—Bright

But these things alone were not enough—women demanded utmost color safety, too. And this amazing High-Test Oxydol has passed every test for safety to washable colors. For instance—crisp, colored prints washed 175 consecutive times showed no perceptible sign of fading. Thus, wash after wash, you will find colored things stay fresh and bright... in hard wafer, even.

New High-Test Oxydol is now on sale at all dealers in the familiar orange and blue bull's-eye package. (No change in the box—the difference is in the soap.)

In your own interest—for whiter, brighter washes than you ever dreamed possible, with less modern soaps—try new High-Test OXYDOL. We guarantee that you'll be thrilled as you've never been thrilled with any soap before!... get a package today! Procter & Gamble.

20 Boys Enter Their Calves In Club Contest

(By Staff Reporter)

LAKEFIELD, September 22. — Gordon Stalker and Harold Donaldson topped all twenty competitors at the Peterborough County Calf Club achievement day held in conjunction with the Lakefield Fair on Wednesday afternoon. Stalker, already a veteran showman, won first award in the dairy cattle class while Donaldson took first honors in beef cattle.

Judging was done in the morning and twenty county youths lined up with their own calves in competition. It was the first time the event had been judged at Lakefield Fair, having been held previously at the Peterborough Exhibition.

One of the county's most thriving organizations, the club is supervised by the county agricultural representative, Frank Paterson, assisted by the live stock, agricultural societies, and agricultural representative branches of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and the Live Stock Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Objects of the club is to create greater interest among young people in caring for, feeding and developing cattle; to develop a better general knowledge of breed type and the judging and selection of cattle; to encourage the adoption of better feeding and management methods; to encourage the improvement of the type and quality of cattle in this district.

A total of $90 in prizes was given away to winners at the Lakefield Fair. The money was provided by the Ontario and Dominion Live Stock Branches and the Lakefield Agricultural Society.

Members of the club must feed and care for one calf for the duration of the club year of at least five months, must study recommended practices of feeding and management and keep records of the cost of production.

Yesterday's achievement day awards were made by several competitions. Four hundred of a total of 1,000 points were possible through the appearance of the boy's own calf. Another three hundred went in a judging competition, answers to questions and showmanship. Each competitor was required to judge at least one class composed of four cattle, and give reasons for his placing. Ten questions to be answered were based on club work and feeding and management of dairy or beef cattle. The condition of the animal and the manner in which the club member showed his entry in the ring were taken into consideration in awarding the points.

The other three hundred points were won in work that did not take place on that single day. Some points were given for care and feeding methods noted at the time periodic visits were made during the season. Others were given for regularity and accuracy in forwarding monthly reports. Others for attendance and interest shown at meetings and judging classes.

Dairy Cattle—1 Gordon Stalker, 2 Jim Moore, 3 Allan Drummond, 4 Doug. Armstrong, 5 Keith Manley, 6 Irwin McIntosh.

Beef Cattle—1 Harold Donaldson, 2 Jack Bolin, 3 Lorne Pimmet, 4 Keith Pimmet, 5 Allan Robinson, 6 Earl Robinson.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, September 23.

The astral operations for this day seem to point to rather perplexing or conflicting situations, with much of importance transpiring. They may result in promotion, expansion, and generally gratifying personal, professional or business experiences. However, there may be a death, bereavement, or illness to cope with, and there may be need of free expenditures or extravagances, possibly in connection with a secret obligation or indulgence. There may be some curious or subtle situations to intrigue or baffle.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year in which there may be some confusing, intriguing or perplexing situations to deal with. There are omens of bereavement, sudden change, peculiar or mysterious conditions, as well as change, personal outlay and some sort of institutional contact to be managed with tact, wisdom, and good grace as well as precaution.

A child born on this day may have many traits of a subtle or secretive character, probably due to a mystical, sensitive or subtle nature. However, it may have ambitions and social inclinations of a quiet order.

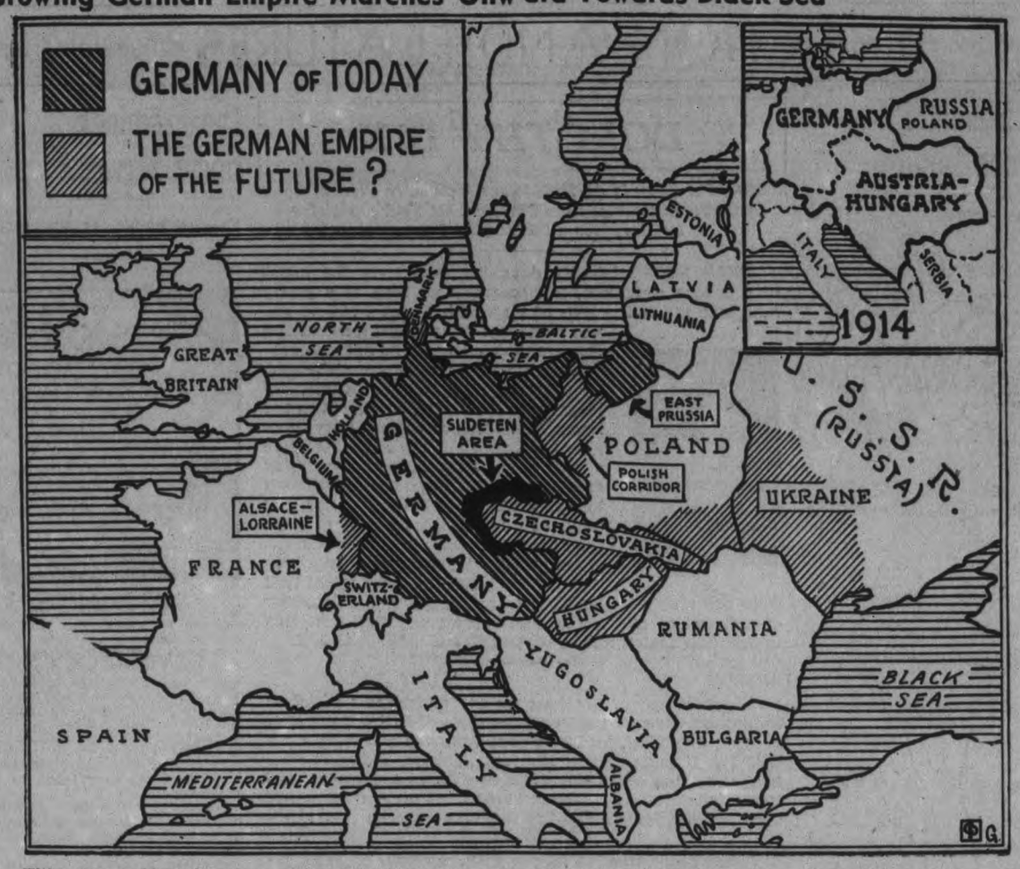
Growing German Empire Marches Onw ard Towards Black Sea



This map, self-explanatory, shows what may happen now that Fuehrer Adolf Hitler has acquired control of the Sudeten German area of Czechoslovakia as a result of the present crisis. With Czechoslovakia removed as a barrier to German expansion eastward, France's other little entente allies, Roumania and Yugoslavia, might break away quickly and seek the shelter of German domination, according to European observers. Under such circumstances, France and Britain would be confronted with a German streak extending from the Rhine to the Black Sea. Germany's expansion may include Hungary and the rich Ukraine region. In the west, Alsace-Lorraine, taken in the World War, and in the northeast, the Polish Corridor, bar to Germany's East Prussia are other coveted areas.

Zion Congregation In Seymour Mark Sixtieth Anniversary

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 22. — Zion United Church at Petherick's Corners celebrated its 60th anniversary on Sunday last when Rev. F. G. MacTavish, of Omemee, a former pastor, was the special speaker, assisted by the present incumbent, Rev. Dr. C. S. Reddick. With special music by the choir and a history of the church given by Thomas Fry, the celebration continued until Wednesday evening, when a fowl supper was served in the Orange Hall by the ladies of the congregation.

There were seven members present who had watched the building of the church and attended the dedication services in 1878. They were John Arnold, T. J. Petherick, William Atkinson, Daniel Petherick, Thomas Brunton, George Anderson and Mrs. John Simpson.

Three Communions United

According to the church history presented by Mr. Fry, three communions united to form the present congregation and build the Zion Church—the Bible Christians, whose place of worship was a small church between the 13th and 14th concessions, near Stanwood; the Methodist Episcopals, who also had a small edifice near what is now the location of Mr. D. Brown's blacksmith shop; and the Wesleyan Methodists, who met in the homes of the adherents.

The grounds on which the building, which was first known as the Methodist Church, was built were donated by one of the community's pioneers, William Petherick, and the actual building was made possible by the generous giving of both substance and time by many of those in the community who felt the need of a place for divine worship. The brick for the building was brought from West's brickyard, one mile west of Campbellford. William Runnells, of Campbellford, was the mason in charge and woodwork was in charge of the late James Benor. Erected during the pastorate of Rev. Mr. Dingman, it is interesting to note that following the dedication services a subscription was taken from among the members of the congregation and the entire indebtedness was liquidated.

TWO WORLDS

BY MAUD McCURDY WELCH

CHAPTER 43.

Julian explained that he had borrowed the motorcycle when, unexpectedly, he had picked up Nick Luigi's trail. With Noel riding in front, they soon reached a cross-road where there were two officers and Julian's car.

Julian made a brief explanation to the officers, then he and Noel were in his car. He told Noel that he had been watching Luigi every day since her disappearance. A squad of officers were helping him, but all of them had lost Luigi's trail time and time again. They probably never would have picked it up again had it not been for a blond young man who came up to where they were stationed on a corner near the city limits, and said that Luigi was headed toward New Orleans with the girl.

It was Ray Vincent, of course, Noel told herself. He had helped her again at a great risk. Some time she'd find him—she was sure she would.

Then Julian told her the other things that had happened leading up to her rescue. When she hadn't kept her appointment to bring the child, he had become anxious, had 'phoned the Garwoods with the same result, as before. She had not been called to the 'phone. The next morning he had forced his way into the Garwood house. And the minue he saw the woman supposed to be Fay Garwood, he knew she was an imposter. So he had called in the police to make investigations.

"And Betsy?" Noel asked eagerly.

"She's safe with friends and keeps asking for you."

"I'll go to her at once," Noel said. "She's the only person in the world who needs me. Or perhaps she doesn't now," she finished, undecidedly.

"So she's the only one who needs you, is she?" Julian asked, not looking at her. Then he added that he supposed she was anxious to hear more about the Garwood affair.

Noel told him what Nick had told her about the Garwoods, or rather supposed-to-be Garwoods. "Nick wasn't in on it," Noel went on, "but some of his friends were."

"It wasn't wise to let him go," Julian began.

"He saved my life at the risk of his own." Noel interrupted him. "Julian, I couldn't have done anything else."

"Of course, I understand," Julian replied. Then he told her that the police had had a full confession from the Japanese cook.

"Everything this man said," he went on, "made me realize why they were keeping you. You were valuable to them. The strang coincidence of your handwriting being identical with the real Fay Garwood's solved their problem of getting money from the bank. Then when you told this woman that you did not believe Betsy was her child, they suspected you of knowing more than you did. So you were abducted to keep you from talking." He stopped a minute, then resumed, "But whether or not they actually would have succeeded in their scheme to turn all the Garwood property into cash, with you to sign the deeds and papers, is problematical."

"It was a clever plot," Noel observed.

"And it might have succeeded if it hadn't been for you. I was sure something was seriously wrong when you didn't come with the child."

Noel told him that she was going down the back stairs with the child in her arms, and had just reached the yard when she had been abducted. Then she asked about Laurie and Jimmy.

"Planning to be married soon. Laurie thinks a miracle happened. She doesn't know yet why Jimmy's mother had a change of heart. But I have my own ideas about that."

Noel smiled. Then she said earnestly, "Julian, I've found out that there aren't any truly mean people in the world. All the hateful, selfish things they do is caused by their constant fear of the future. I believe people would always be kind and good if they didn't have to worry about getting money for their needs."

"You are right," Julian agreed thoughtfully. Then he told her that Laurie had sent Noel word that she could have the job at the De Luxe. "She seemed to think you'd want it," Julian finished.

Noel flushed. "Laurie is such a darling," she said warmly. "She has taught me so much. I'm going to see that she has a beautiful wedding with orchids and all the things she would want. She loves beauty so."

"Yes, I've noticed it," Julian agreed. Then there was a sudden poignant silence. Julian broke it at last by saying: "Do you suppose this conversation will ever get around to me?"

Noel drew a quick breath. "Oh, as for you," she began brightly, "you'll be married soon to your beautiful and highly efficient Miss Chester and will live happily ever afterward. And I hope—that all your children will be doctors and trained nurses."

"Noel," Julian's voice had a queer unsteady tone, "so you read that notice in the Scimitar?"

"Oh, yes," Noel came back, determined to be nonchalant, "even a person as shallow as myself sometimes has been known to scan the papers."

Julian shook his head hopelessly. "Once again I don't know whether to kiss you or spank you."

"If you dare kiss me now—" Noel's voice was low but in deadly earnest.

To her surprise Julian turned the car. "We're going to have this out right here," he said.

They were on a country road about a mile from the city. He stopped the car under a tall elm with gracefully low-hanging branches.

"Pretty spot," Noel said lightly, "but I don't see—"

She caught a glimpse of Julian's face, saw that he looked very serious. Then she was waiting for him to speak, her heart suddenly beginning to throb high in her throat.

"Ruth Chester went entirely too far when she—when that notice was put in the paper," Julian began. "She explained it by saying that a reporter friend had been teasing her and that somehow he took it for granted that there was an engagement between us."

Noel, being a woman, now understood that it was a ruse on the part of Ruth Chester. Ruth took a chance thinking that the notice might have two effects. First, it might cause Noel to go back to her own frivolous world, secondly, Julian might let it stand.

"I never asked Ruth Chester to be my wife," Julian said passionately. "I never intended marrying her for I never wanted any girl in the world except you."

Rapture sprang into Noel's eyes, but she remained very still as Julian went on: "There were times when I actually persuaded myself that I could get you out of my life and out of my heart. But all the time I knew it could never be done. Then at last I gave up trying. I new that even if a marriage between us might have but a slight chance for success. I had to have you. I couldn't go on without you," his voice broke. Then he added. "You remember I told you I had something to tell you?"

She nodded. "I remember you said it was something that would affect our friendship." Noel's voice was still slightly puzzled.

"It would have. We couldn't keep on trying merely to be friends when I wanted to marry you more than anything else on earth. It wasn't a very good idea, trying to be friends, you see."

"No, it wasn't," Noel admitted smiling.

"And so now, Noel, I'm asking you if you'll marry me. Humbly. Reverently. I would get down on my knees and kiss the hem of your dress—except I believe it isn't being done any more. But that's how I feel about you dear."

"I still have a disgusting lot of money," she reminded him tenderly.

"We won't bother about that any more," Julian said with a new confidence. Then he asked whimsically, "And now, are you going to scream for help if I kiss you?"

Julian took her into his arms then and kissed her warmly. "I've loved you always—always," he murmured. "Even when I told you I had no intention of falling in love with you. That was purely a defense mechanism, you see, and it didn't work at all."

"But you were right," Noel said, her face sweetly serious. "I had to earn your love first. Make myself into the kind of wife you needed."

"And you have succeeded," he answered warmly. "After all, the only thing necessary was for you to find your real self, which was hidden under the artificial life, you led. I sadly misjudged you."

She shook her head. "I was a completely selfish person. But I know now I could never go back to the old life—not even if I didn't have you."

Stalling For Time Is An Efficacious Method In Preventing An Undesirable Marriage On The Part Of Your Daughter—It Gives Her a Chance To Grow Cold

DEAR MISS DIX—My daughter, who is in the midst of a college education, has become very fond of a young man who is not the type of man with whom I believe she will be happy. My reasons for thinking this are that, although he has graduated from Harvard undergraduate school, he achieved no scholastic honors, belongs to no fraternity, graduated in the lower third of his class, has a very small group of friends of the same mediocre character as himself, is very slovenly in dress, has bad manners and, although he has been out of college a year, has acquired no job. I am a man of more than average means and I have thought of sending my daughter away on a long trip, but am afraid that she might find some one even worse on the trip, as happened to a daughter of a friend of mine. Can you suggest any way that this undesirable match can be broken off? C. J. S.

ANSWER:

The best way of breaking up any undesirable match is to play for time. If you can have the wedding put off long enough, anything short of a grand passion will wear itself out. For it takes love of the real, genuine, blown-in-the-bottle brand to stand the strain of a long engagement, and if a couple are "that-a-way" about each other no one, not even parents, have a right to interfere between them.

So my suggestion is that you withdraw your other objections to the young man except the proviso that they must not marry until he is able to support a wife. That is a reasonable stipulation that should appeal both to their reason and their pride, and it will have the merit of deferring the marriage quite a considerable time. Plenty long to give them leisure in which to take stock of their feelings and recover from any sporadic case of calf love.

I also heartily agree with your suggestion about sending the girl a-travelling. There is no love cure more efficacious than absence. Seeing new places, having new experiences, meeting new people has turned many a maiden's thoughts away from love to other interests and made the chap she left at home look so undesirable when she returned that she wondered what she ever saw in him that made her think she wanted him. Of course, there is a chance, as you say, that she may jump out of the frying pan into the fire, romantically speaking, but that is a risk you always have to take with a girl in a world full of men.

The list of the young man's disabilities that you cite do not seem enough to break off the match if nothing worse can be said against him, such as drunkenness or immorality or laziness. You must remember that your daughter's taste in men may not run with yours. She may not desire a brilliant scholar for a husband. She may not care for social graces nor for a man's ability to be a mixer. She may not even yearn for a husband who is the glass of fashion and the mold of form.

Some women don't. They like mediocrity in their husbands; somebody they don't have to live up to and who won't be attractive enough to be a prize for predatory women. And after all, you know, it is your daughter who has to live with the man she marries, not you, so it is more important that he suit her than it is that he suit you.

• • • • • •

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a bachelor of 42 and am thinking of getting married, but before I do it I would like to have your advice on how to pick a wife. VAL.

ANSWER:

Well, I think the most important thing in picking a wife is first to have a heart-to-heart session with yourself and try to find out what you want and need in a wife. You wouldn't buy a limousine, you know, if you needed a truck in your business, so at least show that much judgment in selecting a wife.

If you are a poor man you will need a wife who will be a working partner. Pick out some woman who is strong and healthy and who knows how to cook, wash, scrub and who is accustomed to doing housework and will think it no burden. Don't marry a frail little girl who has done nothing but curl her hair and manicure her nails and who isn't even on speaking terms with a gas range.

As you are 42 years old, pick out a wife in your own age class. Select one who is only a few years younger than you are who knows the same things that you know, who dances the same steps that you do and who is ready to settle down and go domestic. Don't marry some little flapper who is young enough to be your daughter, who will think you are as old as Methuselah and all of your ideas prehistoric, and who will want to go out to parties every night.

Pick out for a wife a girl who likes to do the same sort of things that you do, who has the same religion and the same taste in pie. The only happy couples are those who can yes-yes each other. The arguers always quarrel.

Pick out a girl who is good-natured and who can laugh things off instead of making tragedies of them. She will make jokes out of your faults instead of nagging you about them. She will make you a cheerful and happy home and keep you glad you married her.

Easy to Train a Dog in Short Lessons

Some people have a special knack for training dogs? Nonsense! You, too, can train your dog with the help of easy training rules.

To teach your dog to sit and stay down until called, hold the leash gently with your right hand and, with your left, press lightly on the dog's hind quarters. Say gently, but firmly, "Sit!" When he tries to rise, press him down again. When he has sat down, stayed down, then come at your call, reward him with a tidbit. Limit each lesson to 10 or 15 minutes.

Let no one else have a hand in your dog's training. And don't try to teach more than housebreaking during his first ten months.

Our 32-page booklet gives step-by-step training lessons. Pointers on feeding, grooming, treatment of distemper and other ailments, too.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of HOW TO CHOOSE AND CARE FOR YOUR DOG to Examiner. Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

All the Mother Goose people were crowded around the well when Knarf and Hanid came running up. Some of them were peering down into it. Jack Spratt was shouting down into it at the top of his voice: "Simple Simon! Are you down there? Come up again at once before you drown!"

"Get a rope, somebody!" Jack the Giant Killer interrupted. "We have to throw him a rope. We'll pull him out."

Little Bo-Peep said: "Can't we use the wooden crook I keep to tend my sheep? It's got a hook on the end of it."

All at once Mother Goose held up her hand. "Silence, all of you. This is very serious. We've got to save Simon. He's down in that well all right. Jack and Jill saw him fall in as they came down to fetch a pail of water. He was pulled in by a whale, perhaps, though I

They both climbed into the bucket.

"What is it?" everyone asked.

Who Will Go.

"Someone has to go down into that well and bring him up again. Simple Simon's very foolish if he thinks he can live at the bottom of a well. Who is going to go down after him?"

At this Knarf answered: "I'll go down after him!"

"So will I," said Hanid.

"Hooray for Knarf and Hanid!" shouted everybody. "They're going to save Simple Simon who was pulled into the well while fishing for a whale!"

Then they both climbed into the bucket and they were let slowly down into the well. Then the bucket went down into the water.

Knarf and Hanid didn't mind being in the water a bit. They didn't even get wet. They weren't real children, you know, but just the shadows of children. Shadows never get wet. Then all of a sudden there was a little bump.

And Knarf started calling as loudly as he could: "Simon! Where are you? Simon!"

CENTRETON

On Sunday afternoon St. John's Anglican church held their annual thanksgiving service. The altar was decorated with Autumn flowers, leaves, vegetables and fruit. The guest speaker was the Rev. Canon Plumptre, late rector of St. James Cathedral, Toronto. Rev. T. A. Nind, the home pastor, was also present. Several old friends from nearby towns were noticed in the congregation.

Bulldog Solos Taboo

DALLAS, Sept. 22 (AP) — The neighbors said they liked music but objected to young Mike's warbling. Mike, a bulldog, sang every day—playing his own accompaniment. Bracing himself on a piano bench, he would strike the keys with his forepaws. Then he'd lift his voice in a range somewhere between a high baritone and low tenor. When the neighbors complained Mrs. Henry Sorenson, Mike's owner, promised to keep the piano closed.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

Serving Meats Attractively Necessary for Good Meal

(By Mary Moore)

When you set out to select the meat for your dinner, then prepare it in some manner that you know will please the palate of your poppa, don't you think it deserves the best stage effect you can devise? I am a vegetable fiend, but do not you think with me that they often detract from the beauty and appeal of the meat? That is why I want you to serve your meat cut square in the centre of the warmed dinner plate—with nothing but its garnish or sauce or specific accompaniment to attract the eye from it. If meat thus served is ample and nice enough you need only a salad and roll to complete the course.

When the weather turned cool last week the chilling thought struck me that winter was on its way and I was back in my old habit of cooking vegetable and fruits, when my family still had the chance of eating them fresh and raw—the protective foods we pay so dearly for in the winter and need so much.

As a consequence I pinned a note to the kitchen bulletin board that we were to eat fresh uncooked fruits and vegetables whenever possible (I weakened a little on this when I thought of the grand Country Gentleman corn that was still on the market.) This resulted in much plain and fancy thinking that gave birth to

Canadian Goulash (A Company Dish —Not Hash)

Brown eight medium sized, peeled and quartered onions in butter or good dripping until they are a little transparent but not at all burned. Cut shoulder veal (or veal from the top of the round if you want to afford it) into 1-inch dice, and sear this meat in the pan with the onions, plus 1 tablespoon of mild paprika. You read that right—1 tablespoon paprika. This is best if you have some meat stock or canned consomme to add—however 2 cups boiling water do nicely, add 1 tablespoon finely chopped green pepper and cook for 1½ hours covered and slowly. Mix together 1 tablespoon flour with 1 cup sour cream, stir it into the goulash until it boils. Serve this goulash on hot plates (or platter) surrounded with heavy border of parsley—or if it is midwinter before you get around to making it surround it with a border of boiled noodles and serve cauliflower with cheese sauce or Hollandaise with it.

Sweetbreads In Popover Ring

It is probably disgraceful that our kitchen does not own such a thing as a popover pan—but we don't and life seems to keep going on so I won't lose any sleep over it because when I wanted popovers the other night I made them in my ring mould which I used as a border for creamed sweetbreads.

One pair of sweetbreads can be stretched quite a distance—we made ours serve five people. First parboil them in boiling water to which add 2 tablespoons vinegar, and let them simmer for 10 minutes, then immediately plunge them into cold water to firm them. Trim the skin from them and cut them into ½-inch cubes. Make a cream saurce by melting 3 tablespoons butter, adding 3 tablespoons flour, then stirring in 1 cup either milk or cream or half of both, until it thickens. Add ½ teaspoon salt, 1-16 teaspoon white pepper. In the meantime the popovers should be a-popping.

Popover Batter—One cup flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅞ cup milk, 2 eggs, ½ teaspoon melted butter. Mix the salt and flour; add milk gradually in order to obtain a smooth batter. Add eggs, beaten until very light, then beat 2 minutes using rotary beater. Have iron gem pans, buttered and hissing hot (or ring mould in this case) and pour in batter and bake about 30 minutes at 500 deg. For first half, 350 for second half baking time. When done turn out on round plate or platter and pour creamed sweetbreads in centre, garnish with sprigs of parsley or border of ripe olives at base.

Corned Beef Hash

Does the thought of this leave you cold? If so you better snap out of it for you are missing one of life's minor treasures.

Put cooked corned beef through the food chopper's coarsest knife. To each cup of corned beef ground add 2 cups hot freshly mashed potatoes (cold potatoes won't do for this dish), and moisten it all with cream and butter. Pour into buttered casserole, level it of, sprnkle with paprika, dot with butter and bake until crust forms. Serve with homemade true mayonnaise to which is added freshly grated horse radish. (Freshly grated horseradish added to mayonnaise is good with hot boiled tongue too.)

All our groceries for the weekend were in, but I couldn't resist a quick walk through the market place last Saturday afternoon, and a farmer caught me off guard and I bought a grand looking 4-lb. chicken for 85 cents because he wanted to get home.

So I hunted for a new chicken recipe and turned up

Chicken Au Normandie

One 4-lb. chicken (an obliging recipe), 1 cup salad oil (don't tend to stint on this), 1 clove garlic, ½-cup sliced fresh mushrooms, 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion, 3 cups canned or fresh tomatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ½ cup chopped green pepper. Cut the chicken into pieces for serving. Roll in flour and brown on all sides in the salad oil to which has been added the clove of garlic. Add remaining ingredients, cover and simmer gently for about 1 hour if the chicken is young—2 hours in the oven if it is a fowl. To make gravy remove the chicken to hot platter, and stir 3 tablespoons flour into the fat in pan, then add 3 cups hot milk and stir until it thickens. Pour over the chicken on hot plate or platter and garnish with apple jelly in small moulds or slices.

We served this with Roquefort stuffed celery and sliced head lettuce and tiny hot finger rolls with unsalted butter. Dessert was a melon ball and peach fruit cup sweetened with honey—it was a honey of a meal.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Suppose a neighbor should desire
To light a candle at your fire,
Would it deprive your flame of light
Because another profits by't?"
—Lloyd

Dear Friends:

Not long ago a woman was wailing over the fact that some other woman copied her, in her manner, her clothes, her furniture, and even her food I told here that "Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery," but it did not soothe her ruffled feathers.

Don't we all copy one another from the cradle to the grave? Are we not told over and over again to take someone for an example? Do we not copy our Fathers and our Mothers when we learn to talk, so that French parents teach French, and we teach them to talk English?

Only in ourselves are we individuals. Seldom can we get a hat or a coat, a piece of meat, a can of food or a pound of coffee without others getting exactly the same thing.

And does anyone hurt us if they take a light from our fire or pattern themselves on us. It is so unlikely that our friends will be in their house, or theirs in ours, so why all the fuss?

Not so long ago, a woman spent over an hour talking almost word for word, one of the articles I had written. Of course, she did not know I was Roberta, but instead of being peeved I was proud to think she liked it well enough to memorize it and pass it on.

I knew another woman who made an article of food which I liked very much, so I asked the recipe which she gave me. I tried it but it was a dismal failure. I tried it again with the same result.

Later on, another woman and I talked it over, and she put me wise. She told me this lady would not refuse the recipe, but always left out an important ingredient so that none of us could make this like she like she did.

So, we gave her a dose of her own medicine, but it didn't cure her. Now very few bother with her at all. She was afraid we would warm ourselves at her fire, and now her fire burns low.

We need other people's ideas, and they need ours. Only on that way can we improve. Why learn anything at all if you know it already. I remember when I was taking a course in domestic science and we had a little of this and a little of that, and I said "Let's take what we have, add a little more and combine them and see what we get."

And out of it we evolved the most gorgeous cake. We liked it so much that we wrote down all the bits and scraps of peel and fruit, shortening and spices, and now it is a standard recipe.

If you have learnt anything worthwhile, pass it on. You can't take it with you, and remember all the times you have been glad of the ideas of other people.

If they let you light your candle at their fire, they did not lose any heat, and neither will you if you do likewise. When you read what another has written, you get something. If they held it back, you would not get it.

There is always the individual touch you can give things to suit you better, a different icing on a cake, a different way of arranging furniture or hanging drapes, a different clip on a dress.

But don't be stingy or so affronted when someone wishes to copy you. Maybe their taste is not as good and they wish to improve it. Maybe their brain is not as alert, and they wish to bring themselves up to your level.

Only when we share do we get full value out of anything, so do your part. Then you won't be ashamed to warm yourself at another's fire.

Your friend, ROBERTA

Unrest Said Due To False Gods

ELGIN HOUSE, Sept. 22. (CP).—Existing unrest in the world is partially due to "the setting up of other gods," Ruth Rouce of Great Britain, newly elected President of the World's Council of the Young Women's Christian Association, told an American-Canadian conference of the Y.W.C.A. here to-day

"The underlying cause of the world's unrest is not merely an economic one," said Miss Rouce, addressing 40 delegates. "The condition is due as well to the setting up of other gods, the putting of the State, the race and the group in the place of God, which means farewell to freedom of thought, of education and of truth."

Discussing international relationships, Miss Rouce listed as on the brighter side of the picture the 1,000,000 members of the Y.W.C.A. in sixty-five countries who, she said, are united in a Christian fellowship, irrespective of creed or race.

Keene Nuptials

Mary Farnero Weds John Heffernan

Autumn flowers were used to decorate St. Peter's Cathedral for the marriage at eight o'clock Wednesday morning, September 21, of Mary Farnero, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. V. Farnero, 270 Reid street, to John Heffernan, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Heffernan, 56 Aylmer street. Rev. Masterson officiated, and Miss Loretta Jardino presided at the organ.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Andrew Farnero, and wore a gown of white satin which was cut on Princess lines, and swept into a lengthy train at the back. A row of tiny, covered buttons were used from neckline to waist at the back, and a graceful veil of net fell to the floor from a coronet of lily of the valley. Her bridal bouquet was of pink roses and fern tied with wide satin ribbon.

The bridesmaid, Miss Annie Micolli, wore a pink taffeta frock made with a bouffant skirt, and matching fitted jacket. A veil of pink net fell to her shoulders from a headdress of pink roses, and her bouquet was of matching roses and fern.

Mr. Edward Kearns was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Grant Heffernan, brother of the groom, and Mr. Albert Ashmore, who is a brother-in-law.

A reception followed at the home of the groom's mother, where Mrs. E. Collins, sister of the groom, received in a gown of printed black chiffon with matching hat, and corsage of white roses. The groom's mother wore navy lace, navy accessories, and a corsage of lily of the valley, and Mrs. William Heffernan, sister-in-law of the groom, who also received, was in navy chiffon with matching accessories and corsage of pink roses.

The wedding dinner was served at a table laid with white linen and decorated with pink and white streamers, and a centre bouquet of carnations, roses, and lily-of-the-valley.

Immediately after the dinner Mr. and Mrs. Heffernan left by train for Montreal, the bride wearing for travelling a frock of green wool, with grey coat and black accessories. On their return they will live at 56 Aylmer street.

Marion Wood Is Married in Blue

One of the loveliest of the Autumn weddings took place at seven o'clock Wednesday evening, September 21, when Marion Eleanor, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W A. Wood, 24 Stewart street, became the bride of Gerald Francis Grose of Belleville son of Mrs. E. Grose and the late Mr. Grose of Peterborough. Rev. F. W. Craik officiated.

Cosmos gladioli and ferns adorned the church, and the guest pews were marked with asters and streamers of tulle. Wedding music was played by Mr. Cecil Lapp, and during the signing of the register Mrs. R. C. Searles sang "Golden Day of Promises."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in powder blue chiffon over taffeta, with shirred bodice and tiny bolero jacket with shirred sleeves. Her blue net veil fell softly to her shoulders from a headdress of tiny rosebuds, she wore blue brocaded slippers, blue lace mittens, and carried a graceful bouquet of Bettertime roses and lily of the valley.

Miss Zoe McDonald was the only attendant. She wore a frock of tea-rose chiffon over taffeta, buttoned at the back with tiny, self-covered buttons, and fashioned with a small, shirred bolero jacket. Her shoulder-length French violet veil was caught with tiny purple asters. She wore French violet slippers, silver-trimmed, matching lace mittens, and carried a nosegay of tea-rose gladioli, tiny purple asters and mauve baby's breath.

Mr. Harold Grose, brother of the groom, was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Frank A. Wood, brother of the bride, and Mr. Earle Grose, brother of the groom.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. P. Aitchison, who wore dusky pink chiffon with black taffeta jacket, small black hat with tiny veil and a corsage of carnations and ferns. The bride's mother was gowned in navy triple sheer with matching hat, and a corsage of carnations and ferns.

For travelling the bride wore a grey crepe dress with wine taffeta-lined girdle, wine wool three-quarter length jacket, and wine accessories. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Grose will live in Belleville.

We Noticed

....A smart, roomy bag seen in a George street window would go nicely with any street costume. It is of smooth, black calf. The body of the bag and the flap are lined with one piece of leather, and a gold button makes the snug fastening.

❖ ❖ ❖

....And speaking of bags—fashion experts tell us that for day time, the box calf is still the favorite leather, but crocodile is also used, and black suede predominates for afternoon.

❖ ❖ ❖

....A very lovely picture gown designed to make you the "belle of the ball" is of black taffeta, its hoop skirt trimmed with velvet bands and light blue chiffon pleating. Jewelry to finish off this high-in-fashion costume should include an old fashioned locket and several heavy bracelets in old gold.

THORBURN, N.S.—In a letter to Richard Cholmondeley of the Thorburn citizens' committee, made public today, premier Angus L. Jessie Armstrong Honored by Friends

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Sept. 22.—Mrs. S. E. Eakins extended the hospitality of her home, on Monday evening, for a miscellaneous shower in honor of a bride-to-be of this month, Miss Jessie Armstrong, the Ladies' Aid Society of Grace Presbyterian church having the enjoyable gathering under its auspices.

The hostess, assisted by her daughter, Miss Mary, and the president of the Ladies' Aid, Mrs. J. R. Thompson, received the many guests, and when all had assembled Miss Armstrong was invited to a central seat amidst the company, and presented with a miscellaneous shower, Mary Eakins reading the accompanying address, Little Norma Ball, looking very dainty, came at the head of the group of friends who brought in the gifts, and gave the bride-to-be a beautiful arm sheaf of flowers; folowing her, Elizabeth Williams and Donald Thompson, an attractive little pair, came pushing a doll's carriage loaded with gift parcels; and finally, the two Margaret Armstrongs brought in a basket piled high with gifts, completing the shower. A color scheme of pink and white was used in decorating the carriage and the basket, the latter being provided by Mrs. Nathaniel Belch as her donation to the shower.

Many beautiful gifts were included in the nicely tied parcels, the opening of which, and the reading of the enclosed cards, following the expression of gratitude on the part of the guest of honor for the lovely remembrance; an invitation to attend the trousseau tea which the bride-to-be is giving at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Armstrong, Eigth Line, Cavan, on Wednesday of this week, was included in the "thank you" message.

Games and contests were thoroughly enjoyed, Miss Margaret Armstrong being in charge of this part of the program, with Miss Vanita Ingram assisting, an old-fashioned spelling match being an interesting feature. Community singing, with Mrs. Eakins at the piano, followed by the service of homemade candy, brought a very happy occasion to a close.

Seaman Slashed Fighting Insulter

TORONTO, Sept. 22—(CP).—Police today investigated the story of seaman Norman Hurdman of the Royal Canadian naval volunteer reserve that he suffered a slashed face in a battle with an unidentified man last night after the stranger muttered insulting remarks about his uniform.

Hurdman, 22, and a professional welterweight boxer, told police he was walking along King street west in the city's Parkdale district when a man walked from a car bearing United States license plates and muttered the remarks. Hurdman said he struck the man a stiff right-hand blow to the head. He said the man drew some weapon which he believed was a knife and slashed the right side of his face.

The sailor arrived late at naval headquarters and police were notified of his story. Hurdman did not require medical attention and joined in the naval drill.

"But we have each other now," he emphasized happily. "We can make all the necessary adjustments. We can share each other's lives."

"We can do better than that," she said softly. "We can merge our two worlds. I can have a real part in your work, for while you're giving medical treatment free to your charity patients and looking after their physicial needs, I'll be looking after their material needs, seeing that they have food and fresh air and decent clothing—all the things so important to their well-being and contentment."

Julian was so touched for a moment he could not speak. At last he said, "That is a beautiful thought, Noel. Nothing in the world could make me happier." Then he asked: "When will you marry me, my dear? I am selfish—I want it to be tomorrow."

"Then we'll make it—tomorrow," she whispered, lifting her ardent face to his.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

LOSE THE FIRST TRICK

EVEN WHEN you have both the ace and king of the suit led, your no trump game contract may depend upon allowing the defenders to win the very first trick. Offhand it would seem to make no difference whether you use the hold-up on the second trick, winning the first and third, or on the first one, winning the next two. On occasional hands, though, it means the difference between blocking the foes' suit and letting them run it.

The bidding on this deal was started by North with 1-Club. South responded with 1-No Trump, which North raised to 2-No Trump, and South went to 3-No Trump.

The spade 4 was led by West and South figured that with two stoppers in the suit it did not matter whether he won the first trick or held up until the second. He went right in with the A and led a club. East won and returned the spade 10 and when South did not cover with the K, West did with his J to play a third spade. Then when South attempted to drive out the high club, West cashed his remaining two spades.

A different situation results if South refuses the first spade trick. Then when he tries the clubs, if East wins he is unable to lead another spade and if West takes the first club trick, his suit has not yet been cleared.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

How should South play to make 4-Hearts after the lead of the diamond Q?

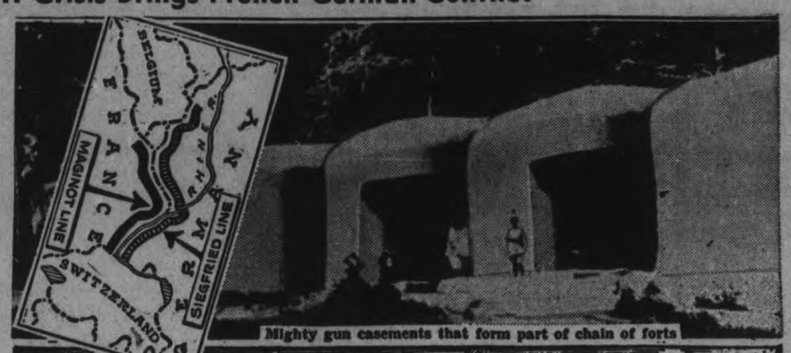
If Crisis Brings French-German Conflict



European war scares with possible French-German conflict resulting from the Czech minority-crisis focus popular attention on France's famed "Maginot Line." $150,000,000 string of fortifications and underground military city on which France depends to prevent invasion of her eastern frontier. CHAMBERLAIN BREAKS OFF CONFERENCE

France Will Stand By Prague

Invasion Means War Deputies Told; Troops On Alert

PARIS, Sept. 23 (CP-Havas) — Premier Edouard Daladier said tonight that France would stand by her mutual assistance pact with Czechoslovakia in the event of an unprovoked aggression.

In the event of such an attack France would immediately take the necessary measures to aid Czechoslovakia, he declared.

PARIS, Sept. 23—(AP).—Radical-Socialist deputies tonight quoted Premier Edouard Daladier as declaring that "if Germany enters Czechoslovakia France will face her engagements."

Deputy Louis Malvy, one of the leaders of the premier's own party, was one of those who quoted those words to newspapermen after a delegation of Radical-Socialists had called on the premier.

Malvy also said that Daladier declared he would call parliament immediately back into session "if the situation should become worse."

France is pledged to go to Czechoslovakia's aid should the latter be the victim of "unprovoked aggression."

The declarations attributed to the premier were reported by Malvy shortly before 6:30 p.m. (1:30 p.m. EDT).

They came after the British ambassador, Sir Eric Phipps, had had a surprise 20-minute conference with foreign minister Georges Bonnet.

The ambassador went to the foreign office amid disquieting reports of the hitch in the negotiations between prime minister Chamberlain and Chancellor Hitler at Godesberg on the Rhine.

Troops On Alert.

STRASBOURG, France, Sept. 23. —(AP). — Troops along France's Belgian and German frontiers were ordered to-day to assume "positions of alert," is was reported in sources close to the general staff.

Such an order, issued by the government, means the troops take up positions ready for an emergency.

At Thionville, near the German frontier, it was reported sections of army engineers had been sent right to the frontier, as well as detachments of mobile guards destined to be shock troops in event of conflict.

The order were expected to be applied to troops in the interior if the situation should become alarming.

Nearly 450 Dead In Hurricane New Floods Rise

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The northeastern corner of the United States counted nearly 450 dead today as the toll of Wednesdays savage hurricane while rescue workers tackled the double task of succoring the living and raising bulwarks against new flood terrors in the seven stricken states.

A dead trickle of reports, seeping through shattered communications systems, swelled the toll of victims until the disaster stood as the worst hurricane in the country since 1928 when a storm out of the Caribbean Sea, where this one originated, and scourged Florida with a loss of 2,000 lives.

In the afflicted states, a hundred years' history could not produce a catastrophe of equal extent. Even today, nearly 48 hours after wind and wave struck with paralyzing force, a coherent story of loss and damage could not be assembled.

Expected to rise still higher, the death list today was 435 in the United States and two in Canada, where the hurricane finally blew itself out in Quebec and Ontario. By states the list was: Rhode Island, 229; Massachusetts, 112; Connecticut, 40; New York, 37; New Hampshire, 13; New Jersey two and Vermont, two.

Famine, Disease Menace.

Even as rescue workers rallied under the impetus of direct orders from President Roosevelt that threw all government agencies into the fight against the post-hurricane menaces of famine and disease, rovers in New England, New York and New Jersey inched toward the devastating peak of the 1936 floods.

While these flooded streams were chewing at sand-bagged dikes, undermining houses, factories and highways and surging unimpeded through lowland areas, rescue workers began the jobs of salvage and succor in the territory battered by the hurricane's wind and waves.

They faced their greatest task in Rhode Island. The smallest state in the Union contributed the largest

Prague Stops Advance On Sudetens

Troops Fall Back After Advancing To Nazi Barricades

ASCH, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 23 (AP) — The threatened clash between a Sudeten German armed force and Czechoslovak soldiers was averted today when government troops halted their advance toward the Asch area, in Sudetenland near the German border.

The Sudeten Germans remained behind barricades on the main highway between Eger and Asch which they had been prepared to defend to prevent the Czechoslovaks from re-occupying Asch, home town of Konrad Henlein, Sudeten German party leader.

Members of Henlein's political cabinet said the German army would not intervene unless there were more bloodshed.

"We have faith Chamberlain will be able to persuade the Czech government to withdraw again," a spokesman said. "We are looking to Chamberlain as much as to Hitler to prevent serious consequences."

Asch authorities said they still were unable to clarify reports of mass killings last night. They said, however, it was certain wild shooting had taken place throughout the night. One Sudeten party messenger was caught and arrested.

Man Being Held On Hold-Up Count

WELLAND, Ont., Sept. 23 (CP) —City and Provincial Police today arrested Thomas Burch, 18, of Crowland and charged him with attempting to hold up Mrs. A. E. Munkittrick of Welland. The arrest was made 20 minutes after the woman registered a complaint.

Burch was scheduled to appear later in the day before a justice of the peace and officers said they would ask for a remand.

Police said Mrs. Munkittrick was driving along third street when Burch shouted she had a flat tire. She got out to look and found the tires in good condition. Suspicious of the youth's actions, she re-entered the car and got her purse which contained $45.

Officers said Burch jumped on to the car running board and said she quoted him as announcing "This is a stick up lady." Mrs. Munkittrick stepped on the accelerator and Burch was knocked from the speeding car.

Europe's Future Seen In Hands Of Chamberlain

By Guy Rhoades
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Sept. 23 (C.P. Cable). —The Times (Independent) editorially declared this morning the future of Europe depended upon the success or failure of Prime Minister Chamberlain's effort at his conference with Chancellor Hitler at Godesberg.

"Were it to fail, there cannot be doubt in anyone's mind in this country....that the British people would answer with instant, unhesitating, unified resolution any call that might be made upon them....

"The Prime Minister has set himself to get the work of a peace conference done before the next war, not after it."

Even if he failed, The Times said, "he has striven to the last, by all that one man's energy, resource and indifference to calumny could do, to uphold the reverse of that same fatalistic slither into the abyss . . . which carried agonized Europe helplessly away in the late July and early August, 1914."

Times Raps Critics.

The Times attacked Clement Attlee, Labor Leader, Sir Archibald Sinclair, Leader of the Liberal Party, and particularly Winston Churchill, Conservative "die hard," for their sharp criticism of Mr. Chamberlain's course. It declared the former Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Churchill) "preaches preventive war while the Prime Minister practises preventive diplomacy."

Other morning papers, noting increased public irritation at the government over the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia, continued to pour out editorials stressing their own viewpoints in the crisis.

The Daily Express (Independent) called attention to the groups wanting to fight now on the grounds that Britain would be forced to fight eventually. But it urged that no war be fought "on account of foreign boundaries."

Police quoted the 18-year-old girl as confessing she had thrown the Holloway girl into the Saskatchewan river at the outskirts of the city. Footprints were found on the river bank early today but no trace of the Holloway girl has yet been uncovered.

Don't Touch Czechs Poles Told

Russia Sends Warning Gets Snub Back; May Assist Prague

MOSCOW Sept. 23 (CP-Havas)—The Soviet government today threatened to denounce its non-aggression pact with Poland if Polish troops advance into Czechoslovakia.

Vladimir Potemkin, Soviet vice commissar of foreign affairs handed a note to the Polish charge d'affaires in which the Soviet government informed Poland that the non-aggression pact between the two countries would be abruptly terminated if Polish troops crossed the Czechoslovak frontier.

The note reminded Poland the pact became inoperative the moment either party was guilty of aggression against a third party.

The Soviet note was based upon reports stating Polish troops were being concentrated along the Czechoslovak border and upon an undenied rumor that these troops would soon get orders to march.

May Aid Czechs.

GENEVA, Sept. 23.—(AP).—Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Commissar of Foreign Affairs, told the League of Nations to-day that Soviet Russia might voluntarily go to the aid of Czechoslovakia "but no one can insist on this help as a duty."

In a surprise statement to the League Assembly's political committee, the Soviet Commissar declared his government had "a clear conscience and clean hands in the Czechoslovak crisis."

"The Soviet government," he said, "may come to the aid of Czechoslovakia only in virtue of a voluntary decision on its part or in virtue of a decision by the League but no one can insist on this help as a duty."

Litvinoff repeated his pledge that if France fights to protect Czechoslovakia against invasion, Russia will fulfill her obligations under the Soviet-Czechoslovak mutual assistance pact.

3 Youths Admit Cattle Rustling

MIDLAND Ont. Sept. 23 (CP)—Two hundred farmers who crowded into the court-room here yesterday heard Simcoe County's own modernized version of a wild west story retold.

They heard two of a group of five young French - Canadians from nearby Penetang admit they had "rustled" cattle from three tiny township farms and turned them over to a cattle buyer. By their statements in the preliminary hearing before Magistrate C. F. Bick, the youths implicated three others, and all five were committed for trial.

Called to the stand by Crown Attorney F. G. Evans, the young men contended that Charles Houden, who admitted buying nine head of cattle from them, had not known they were stolen. Houden was cleared of receiving charges by the magistrate.

Gerrard Legault, facing three charges of cattle theft and Edmund Desjardine, accused of two thefts, told of excursions after dark to pasture fields, where they "lifted" beef cattle and loaded them into a truck and later relivered them to Houden's pasture.

See Chamberlain At Limit Of Concessions

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Sept. 23—(CP).—Temporary abandonment of the Godesberg conversations between Prime Minister Chamberlain and Chancellor Hitler was interpreted here today as an indication that the leader of the British government had taken an uncompromising position.

It is understood Mr. Chamberlain adopted a "take it or leave it" position—Hitler could accept the Anglo-French plan in its entirety or could reject it, but it must be one or the other.

It is believed Mr. Chamberlain demanded an assurance from Hitler that German troops would not march into Czechoslovakia while the negotiations were proceeding—and backed up his demand by a declaration that there would be no more negotiations until Hitler made up his mind.

Meanwhile, there was a growing belief that Europe was facing the most critical weekend in the whole long crisis.

Some quarters predicted, however, that if war were not declared over the week-end, Europe may escape for the time being.

No Further Bowing

There was plenty of evidence that the public in Great Britain and France was determined there were to be no more concessions to Germany, that the Anglo-French plan was the limit beyond which it would be suicide to go.

This belief is supposed to lie at the bottom of Mr. Chamberlain's surprise move in sending a letter to Hitler this morning. Its purpose was to make Mr. Chamberlain's position abundantly clear—that the line had been drawn over which he would not be prepared to step.

Reuters News Agency dispatches from Godesberg did not take an excessively gloomy view of the latest developments. They said German opinion was that Mr. Chamberlain had made such a sound impression on Hitler both as a man of good will and as a negotiator, that the fuehrer would not likely allow a breakdown in the discussions.

A German spokesman was quoted as saying Mr. Chamberlain talked to Hitler "with perfect frankness of the difficulties which had to be met, but that is not by any means grounds for pessimism — it is far better that both sides should know just where they stand."

Urge Retention Of Finance Plan

TORONTO, Sept. 23.—(CP).—Retention of the unified plan of finance was recommended to the General Council of the United Church of Canada to-day by the special committee appointed to study the finances of the church.

The committee reported that it was thought that despite defects, the budget system was much more of an asset than a liability and that it was defensible as a fair and just plan.

In presenting the report, Rev. W. H. Sedgewick of Toronto, said he had been disturbed and disappointed to find in the newspapers a report to the effect that J. J. Gibson, finance committee chairman, had said "any business concern in the present position of the United Church would be considered hopelessy bankrupt."

Dr. Sedgewick said if the report was correct, "I feel it is not Mr. Gibson's considered judgment. We have a deficit in the missionary and maintenance fund but that is not the whole of the United church."

Possible Last Effort Talk Looms Tonight; German Troops Pour Toward Austria; Russia Notifies Paris Of Army She Will Field

LONDON, Sept. 23 (CP).—Reuter's News Agency reported tonight from Godesburg that Prime Minister Chamberlain had broken off his talks with Chancellor Hitler because Germany refused to give the guarantees and assurances demanded by Great Britain.

LONDON, Sept. 23 (AP).—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Godesberg quoted Sir Horace Wilson as saying Prime Minister Chamberlain would see Chancellor Hitler later tonight and under present arrangements would leave for London by plane early tomorrow morning.

PARIS, Sept. 23 (CP).—A Havas News Agency dispatch from Munich tonight said heavy troop movements had been taking place all day through Bavaria. The troops were moving in the direction of Austria, the dispatch said.

GENEVA, Sept. 23 (AP).—Soviet sources at the League of Nations said today Russia already had notified France of the exact number of planes, troops, guns and tanks she was ready to put into the field if war came over Czechoslovakia.

PARIS, Sept. 23 (CP-Havas).—According to information reaching Paris tonight from Godesberg, Germany, the difficulty which brought about the interruption of negotiations between Prime Minister Chamberlain and Chancellor Hitler today was a demand by the Fuehrer that the Sudeten German area be occupied first by German troops.

In return for this, it was reported, Hitler would agree that a definite new frontier for Czechoslovakia would later be demarcated by an international commission, in conformity with the Anglo-French plan.

Further Details Coming.

The note sent by Hitler to Mr. Chamberlain this afternoon, in reply to the Prime Minister's letter this morning asking for certain written specifications, is simply an interim message stating that a more substantial communication would be made by Hitler later in the day, it was said.

Hitler refused to make any decisions whatsoever concerning the remainder of the Sudeten problem until France and Great Britain had acceded to his demand.

The Fuehrer insisted the limits of the zone to be occupied by the German army would be decided upon by Germany, France and Great Britain.

Tension Mounts In Berlin As Parley Hangs

BERLIN Sept. 23 (CP-Havas)—Tension in Berlin mounted today with news that this morning's meeting between Chancellor Hitler and Prime Minister Chamberlain had been postponed.

Coincident with this announcement, and a vehement German press onslaught on the new Prague government of General Jan Syrovy, anti-aircraft defence measures in the capital were intensified.

General Syrovy has gone back on the former Czechoslovak government's agreement to cession of Sudetenland and is determined to resist, a Nazi spokesman charged.

Advices from the German-Czechoslovak frontier said a large number of Sudeten Germans were again fleeing over the border.

Berlin was extremely uneasy. The violent tone of the press — which claimed more than 50 deaths among Sudeten Germans in the last 24

Jam Sessions Made First Sax Buyer See Red, And Rue His Venture

MONTREAL, Sept. 23—(CP).—Swing orchestras and jam sessions just don't seem to fit in well with memories of concerts at the start of the present century, which may explain why the man who brought the first saxaphone to Canada wishes he hadn't.

Edmond Hardy is nearing his 84th birthday now. He has retired from orchestra work, and lives quietly in his suburban Montreal South home. But he still sees red when the boys get in the groove and cats and alligators alike go out of the world.

"If I had known what they were going to do with it, I would never have introduced the saxaphone to Canada," he avers with a bit of a shudder.

For sixty years after he had founded it, Hardy led the Harmonie Montreal, a band that performed at all kinds of important functions not only in Quebec, but throughout Eastern Canada and the United States. His bulky scrapbook is a chronology of social events for the half century from 1874 onward.

He made his last appearance as a band leader five years ago when he led 195 musicians from his own band, and the bands of the Grenadier Guards, Victoria Rifles, Black Watch, Royal Montreal Regiment and the Fusiliers de Montreal, at the funeral of Calixa Lavallee, composer of "O Canada."

But to get back to that first saxophone. Hardy had it made to his order in France and brought it back to Canada. He was conducting a music business in Montreal at the time, and sold the instrument a short time later. He imported more and sold them too, and soon built quite an addition to his trade.

But he still wishes he hadn't.

Cordova Mines, Sept. 23.

HEARING that bears were molesting sheep in the district, Les Youmans and Fred Bowen, two employees of the Cordova Mining Company set a trap on the property of Ed. Bowen.

A couple of days later returning to inspect the trap they found they had caught a good size cub and the mother had torn it to pieces. However, although they sighted the larger bear, they were unable to capture it.

Paris, Sept. 23 (CP-Havas)

MILLIONS of Parisians stood transfixed today when at 3:40 p.m. air raid alarm sirens suddenly began their paralyzing screeching.

The din lasted three minutes. Pedestrians ran for the subways. But thousands craned their necks from windows and roofs looking for the enemy raiders.

Coming at a time so critical as this, the population of the city felt certain war had actually begun.

Investigation revealed the source of the alarm. It was not an enemy air raid. It was a short circuit.

Cannery Overloaded Charges Jury In Fatal Port Hope Crash

PORT HOPE, Ont., Sept. 23. — (CP).—A coroner's jury returned a verdict last night that Thomas Boyace died Sept. 12 at Canadian Canners' plant here "by the collapse of the portion of the building in which he was employed," and found the collapse "was caused by overloading."

"We find that the company has been negligent in not having the building inspected by competent engineers," the verdict concluded.

Boyace was buried in the debris when the east wall of the plant collapsed on the morning of Sept. 12. Rescuers did not recover his body until that night.

Wallford Vick, plant manager, said weight of each case of canned goods was between 57 and 59 pounds. C. G. Gibson, Ontario Labor Department engineer, testified that at the time of his inspection he was informed all cases weighed 52 pounds. He said they were piled seven and nine feet high. Pat Sinnot told the jury cases were piled five and seven feet high.

Gibson testified pressure on each square foot of floor would be 280 pounds, and this was too great a weight for the building. He added the wall fell outward as a result, not as a cause of the collapse.

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 23 (CP)

ALLEGED to have left Windsor 10 days ago with $125, two Windsor youths were confined to police cells today facing four charges. The two are Robert Adair, 17, and Hugh O'Neil, 17, and they are charged with theft of $125, theft of an auto, theft of gasoline and breaking and entering.

Adair and O'Neil were arrested last night in a stolen car parked behind Essex County Sanatorium. The car was identified as having been stolen from Joseph Walters of Niagara Falls, Ont., two days ago.

Police were first asked to apprehend Adair and O'Neil by W. E. Phinney Windsor grocer, 11 days ago. Phinney said he had sent the two to the bank with $125 to deposit for him and that they failed to reach the bank. The youths had two cents in their pockets when arrested.

Guarantees Said Demanded Of No Mass Violence Against Czechoslovaks

Follows Reports Of New Nazi Troop Moves Premier Sends Car Back To Garage Pending Hitler's Reply—Stand Stiffens

GODESBERG, Germany, Sept. 23 (AP).—Prime Minister Chamberlain today suspended his talks with Chancellor Hitler with a letter in which he was believed to have demanded definite guarantees that there be no mass violence against the Czechoslovaks.

The announcement postponing the talks, at least until later in the day, was made from Mr. Chamberlain's hotel at Petersberg. Previously he and Hitler had been scheduled to meet at Godesberg, across the Rhine, this morning.

Persons in close touch with both sides expressed fear that developments foreshadowed a breakdown of the conversations, designed to prevent a European war through redrawing the map of Czechoslovakia.

There were no indications that Hitler was inclined to yield on any of his demands.

Authoritative sources said Mr. Chamberlain had made up his mind he could not go further in an attempt to appease Germany until he had assurances German troops and the Sudeten Free Corps would keep the peace.

News that the Free Corps and Czechoslovaks were drawn up in warlike lines on the Czechoslovak-German border gave urgency to Mr. Chamberlains letter.

Another Session Later?

"The prime minister has sent a letter to the German Chancellor this morning to which it is understood Herr Hitler is replying. The meeting which was to have been held this morning has consequently been postponed until later in the day."

The communique was issued about 11.30 a.m. (6.30 a.m. EDT), a half hour after Mr. Chamberlain's car had been sent back to the garage from in front of his hotel and the black-coated honor guards had been dismisesd.

Immediately after the unexpected developments, informed observers said they believed Mr. Chamberlain had made a truce in the Sudetenland and at least the partial demobilization of German reserves as conditions for the continuation of the conferences, which began Sept. 15 and were resumed here yesterday.

Even before the consultation was postponed today, there were clear indications that the Prime Minister's attitude toward Hitler's demands for the partition of Czechoslovakia had stiffened.

Calls For Order

This evidence was given last night when Mr. Chamberlain suddenly issued a statement appealing for order in Czechoslovakia, following a three and a quarter hour session with the Reichsfuehrer.

Quint Home Site Left Till Spring

TORONTO, Sept. 23—(CP).—Any decision concerning the site of a new home which would unite the Dionne family under one roof has been postponed until next spring and the quintuplets will remain in their present nursery-hospital until then, Premier Mitchell Hepburn announced today.

Mr. Hepburn issued his statement after a conference with Dr. Allan R. Dafoe, the Quints' physician, and Keith Munro, their business manager.

"I was disturbed and concerned as the result of the controversy regarding the removal of the Quints to a new home on a new site. I was not familiar with the situation since I had had no part in the discussions and all I knew was what I read in the newspapers," Mr. Hepburn said.

"Therefore I asked Dr. Dafoe and Mr. Munro to inform me what had been transpiring. After explaining the whole situation they ventured the opinion that their efforts to purchase the Trout Lake site had been halted by the exhorbitant prices demanded for proper sites. In view of this difficulty and because it would be too late to do much this fall, they intimated to me that nothing should be done until next spring."

(It was suggested recently the Quints might be reunited with other members of the Dionne family in a new home to be built either at nearby Trout Lake or on the shores of Lake Nipissing near Callander).

Facial Injuries Suffered In Fight

Claiming that he had been struck on the face by a local man, James "Scotty" Maguire reported at the police station Wednesday night suffering from facial injuries and was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he was examined by Dr. Murray Fraser. It was feared by police that Maguire might have sustained a fracture of the skull but examination disclosed the fact that he had suffered a depressed fracture of the cheek bone. The affair Maguire stated, happened in the beverage room of the Montgomery Hotel and his alleged assailant was arrested and released on bail. He will likely be charged with assault, occasioning serious bodily harm.

Chamberlain's Pilot Trained In Canada

LONDON, Sept. 23—(CP-Cable).—Commander Eric Robinson, who flew Prime Minister Chamberlain to Cologne today in a British Airways plane, got his first flying experience in Canada.

He was instructor at the Hamilton flying club after getting his license in 1927. Later he explored by air in Ungava for the government and also served in the forest fire patrol.

He married a Sault Ste. Marie girl and a son, Larry, was born in Canada six years ago.

Commander Robinson, a Cheshire man, has had more night flying experience than any other English pilot.

Counting Kernels

SARNIA, Ont., Sept. 23.—(CP)—There's a big search on among Lambton County corn growers for ears of corn containing the largest number of kernels. O. K. Milliken of Sarnia Township started all the fuss by reporting an ear with 900 kernels. Then J. J. Rainsberry, Moore Township, had one with more than 1,100 kernels. Next!

Montreal-Halifax Wire Is Routed Via Australia

Halifax, Sept. 23.

A HALIFAX RESIDENT received a telegraph message from Montreal by way of Australia today.

Wire trouble caused by the hurricane along the North Atlantic coast disrupted communication between Montreal and the Maritimes, so Imperial Cable Company operators sent the message around the storm to Australia and then back to Halifax.

New Army Rule Hailed By Czechs

PRAGUE, Sept. 23.— (AP). — Czechoslovak government sources reported to-day that eight persons were killed and many others wounded in frontier clashes last night between Sudeten German party members and armed Czechoslovak guards.

There Czechoslovak gendarmerie and Sudetens clashed. Four Czechs were killed and 12 wounded.

In another fight at Habakladrau three Sudeten party members were reported shot to death. This incident was said to have started when a crowd of civilians attacked armed Czechoslovak guards.

The government said, however, that all these frontier incidents had been "liquidated" and were under investigation by Czechoslovak authorities.

Czechoslovaks gave their acclaim to-day to the government of General Jan Syrovy, Great War hero who became premier to lead the nation through the critical period of ceding Sudeten frontier areas to Germany.

Benes' Appeal

President Benes in a message to the army said:

"In this day our nation is experiencing deep sorrow. Unfriendly elements are trying to use this sorrow to arouse a spirit of enmity toward the government, but you must remember that in this difficult time the uneasy people look to the army for security.

The communique defined the Syrovy government as one of "order, controlled strength and experience," and not for "expression of political parties, but of work for the republic."

During the war, he led thousands of Czech legionnaires to safety across Asiatic Russia. They had been cut off when revolution broke out in Russia in 1917, and reached safety by a 5,000-mile trek across Russia to the Pacific and around the world by boat.

hotel suit awaiting the reply.

There was no official information of what Mr. Chamberlain's letter said, but informed persons believed it outlined essential conditions for continuation of the talks.

One of Chamberlain's conditions was reported unofficially to be that Hitler help arrange a truce between the Sudeten Germans and Czechoslovaks who were reported drawn up against each other on the Sudetenland border.

Persons in close touch with both sides expressed fear to-day's developments might bring on a breakdown of the negotiations.

It was known Mr. Chamberlain received an urgent telephone call from Prague this afternoon.

6 Railway Lines Blocked

BERLIN, Sept. 23—(CP-Havas)—The official German news agency tonight in a dispatch from Dresden that traffic now is interrupted on six railway lines running between Czechoslovakia and Germany.

Bridges and highways have been destroyed since last night, mostly by Czechs, the agency said. It furnished no other details immediately.

Dresden is near the northern Czechoslovak border.

Poles Recruiting

WARSAW, Sept. 23—(AP).—Recruiting offices for a Polish "free corps"—similar to the Sudeten German "free corps"—were opened here today by the union of Silesian insurgents who demand that Poland annex the Polish-inhabited Teschen region of Czechoslovakia.

Other recruiting offices were opened in the Polish Teschen area, just across the border from Czechoslovakia. Numerous Polish refugees from Czechoslovakia have gone there.

ITALY WANTS SHARE

ROME, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini today reviewed 10,000 blackshirt troops in Rome's first big martial demonstration since the Czechoslovak crisis became acute.

The occasion was the dedication of the reconstructed Ara Pacis—altar of peace—the original of which was dedicated to the goddess of peace by the Emperor Augustus on his return from his Spanish and Gallic campaigns nearly 2,000 years ago.

Virginio Gayda, fascist editor, made a bid for Italian representation in the negotiations to solve the Czechoslovak issue.

France Will

Premier Edouard Daladier had agreed to submit the resignation of his Government as soon as the international crisis "takes a definite turn one way or the other."

The decision, made necessary by a split in the Cabinet over the policies of the Premier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet, followed reports that revolting Cabinet members forced from Daladier a promise that France would make no more concessions to Germany.

The Cabinet was said by some members of the Chamber of Deputies to be split nine to nine over Daladier's refusal to fulfil French obligations to Czechoslovakia.

The Premier was said to have made it a condition of the resignation that the revolting Cabinet members, to whom he promised no further French concessions, remain in the Government until Prime Minister Chamberlain finishes his negotiations with Chancellor Hitler.

That promise, coupled with patriotic pressure on the Ministers not to cause a crisis during the crucial talks between Premier Chamberlain and Chancellor Hitler at Godesberg, these sources said, prevented an immediate break in the French Government.

Fut Daladier "On the Spot"

Usually well-informed sources declared, however, that three of the Ministers left their resignations with Premier Daladier, not to be acted on until the outcome of the Godesberg conference is known.

These three, Paul Reynaud, Minister of Justice; Georges Mandel, Minister of Colonies, and Auguste Champetier de Ripes, Minister of Pensions, talked to Daladier yesterday in a "stormy" conference, informants said.

They were said to have reproached Daladier for having ignored his Cabinet and without their knowledge taken vital decisions, in agreeing with Great Britain to urge the cession of Czechoslovak Sudetenland to Germany.

There were increasing reports of opposition to the Daladier-Chamberlain plan even among members of Daladier's own radical Socialist party.

Representatives of the Popular Front majority agreed to meet again to-day to consider an immediate session of Parliament.

Only that Daladier until now had kept his own party in line has held the Leftist Coalition from forcing a parliamentary session. A majority petition is necessary, and the Radical Socialists are needed for that majority.

Many political observers held that Daladier at best had succeeded only in pitching his political fences for a few days.

Financial difficulties added to his worries, with the franc tumbling yesterday on news of heavy government borrowing and with large scale hoardings by persons who wanted to have a supply of cash on hand if war came.

reported to be that the fuehrer wanted to take precipitate action involving the Sudeten areas, while the prime minister favored an orderly proceeding whereby the cession to the Reich would be accomplished by an international commission.

In the negotiations Mr. Chamberlain represents not only Great Britain but France on a plan which has been approved by the Czech government. For that reason he is precluded from going beyond its terms. Furthermore public opinion is almost unanimous in agreeing it represents the limit of concessions.

Meanwhile it is stated officially that the French treaty with Czechoslovakia, by which France agreed to declare war against any nation invading the republic, still holds good. That is taken to mean that Great Britain's position is the same — if France were involved in war over Czechoslovakia, this country could not stand aloof.

Polish Envoy Calls

Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary, received Count Raczynski, the Polish ambassador, and the Russian charge d'affaires, S. B. Kagan. Previously he had a long conference with Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer; Home Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare, and Malcolm Macdonald, colonial secretary.

Sources close to the Polish embassy indicated Count Raczynski probably informed Lord Halifax Warsaw was determined to have the question of Czechoslovakia's Polish minority solved along with the Sudeten German issue.

They said if Great Britain insisted on her stand that the Sudeten German problem was enough for the moment, Poland might "have to do something about it."

(In Moscow, Russia warned Poland she would consider the Polish-Russian mutual non-aggression pact nullified if Polish armed forces entered Czechoslovakia.

A Polish embassy spokesman announced special "protective and restrictive" measures had been imposed on seven districts on the Polish side of the Czechoslovak border near the Polish-inhabited Teschen area of Czechoslovakia.

He said frontier police and guards had been strengthened and restrictions had been placed on travel across the frontier to Czechoslovakia.

London Prepares

There developed, meanwhile, a feeling of increasing displeasure here at the Berlin press which in inch-high headlines proclaimed "Away With Benes," President of Czechoslovakia.

The health ministry announced plans for evacuating hospital patients in war time, with buses converted to ambulances.

Some districts of London began the fitting of gas masks, with 14 fitting stations opening in the Westminster district. Twenty similar stations opened at Islington, North London suburbs, Monday. All are staffed by volunteers.

The transport ministry announced it had perfected plans for co-ordination of traffic control in "emergency."

Stocks Decline As War News Not So Bright

TORONTO, Sept. 23.— (CP).—Declines of 1 to 4 points were recorded by senior mines and industrials and 20 to 50 cents among secondary and junior golds in a mild selling rush to-day on the Toronto exchange as another wave of uneasiness over the European situation. Volume was surprisingly small—only about 800,000 shares changing hands —considering the war threats in circulation, but many traders appear to feel that the trouble in Czechoslovakia would be localized. Index losses for the day ranged from 2 to 5 points for the industrial and mining shares.

The market rallied in the fourth hour on an announcement that there was some uncertainty about the Germans having invaded Czechoslovakia as reported at noon. The rally did not get far. The close was a little above the low for the day.

Smelters Off Three Points.

Consolidated Mining and Smelting posted a decline of 3 points or more, Noranda dropped abut 2 points nad Hudson Bay and Nickel were down a little more than a point. Waite-Amulet touched 4.25 and closed around 4.40 for a net drop of 45 cents. Silver issues, including Eldorado, Nipissing and Mining Corporation weakened 10 to 20 cents.

Declines of 1½ to 2 points were posted by the big golds, Dome, McIntyre and Lake Shore and the close was down 20 to 40 cents for MacLeod-Cockshutt, Uchi, Bralorne, Little Long Lac, Macassa, O'Brien, Pamour, Teck Hughes, Wright-Hargreaves and Read-Authier.

National Steel Car led the steel group decline with a loss of 5 points or more. The big liquors, Walkers and Distillers-Seagrams fell 1 to 2 points and Brazilian, Ford A, C.P.R., Imperial Oil, International Petroleum and B.A. Oil declined ½ to a point. Abitibi Pfd, dropped 3 points, Massey-Harris Pfd. 4 and Cockshutt Plow 1.

On Wall Street.

Fear of a breakdown in the Hitler-Chamberlain negotiations on Czechoslovakia undermined Wall Street's confidence in peace prospects and led to renewed selling, depressing stocks for losses running to around three points.

With about half the gains of the week-end wiped out, the market steadied down in the afternoon and held slightly above the lows near the final hour.

Trading increased somewaht on the sell-off and proceeded at the rate of about 800,000 shares for the full session.

hours and accused General Syrovy of taking orders from Moscow—was regarded as an index of the situation.

Anti-aircraft guns were placed on central buildings in the capital and preparations were noted in various parts of the city for a black-out in case of air attack.

It was charged here that Czechoslovak troops which re-occupied the Sudeten areas they abandoned yesterday were "terrorizing" the German population.

"Cabinet of Criminals"

The Voelkischer Beobachter, Chancellor Hitler's mouthpiece, published a list of the new Prague ministers under the headline: "Cabinet of Criminals."

"The red military dictatorship at Prague is beginning by sanguinary crimes; a column of the Czechoslovak army is marching towards the frontiers," the newspaper said.

The Berliner Boersen-Zeitung declared: "Prague moves its army forward: the soldiery is unleashed; there are more than 50 deaths."

"Prague is entirely under Moscow's dictation," said the Berliner-Zeitung Am Mittag. "The Soviet legation is ordering acts of violence and terror."

"Enough!" said the Berlin Tageblatt. "Germany sounded the alarm before the danger of the desperate criminal acts of the Bolshevized Czechs. Time passed uselessly. Now it is over. What Europe should have prevented by a joint decision is now about to happen."

The 12-Uhr Blatt wrote: "At the moment Europe's peace seemed assured, the Czech soldiery made a half-turn. Yesterday afternoon the flags of liberation still floated over Sudeten territory. The injustice of 1919 was wiped out. With a cry of indignation the world now learns that Czechoslovakia doesnot plan to keep the word it gave to the western powers. The hussite spirit celebrates its alliance with the destructive spirit of bolshevism."

Final quotations were 2⅛ to 1¾ cents higher, with October at 64, November 64¼, December 63⅝ to ½, and May 66⅝ to ¾ cents. The gains in the last two days were more than three cents.

Kiwanis Karnival Set For Next Week

The Kiwanis Karnival will be on its scheduled dates, Thursday and Friday of next week, it was decided today when club members at their weekly luncheon voted down a proposed postponement for one week.

The draw for the club's Dream House will be held on the second night of the show, to be held at the Armouries. The proposal to postpone the date of the Karnival came as a result of the unfavorable weather of the past few days and the fact that the house was opened for inspection two days later than had been anticipated. Some members felt that the additional week would ensure complete sale of tickets still unpurchased. Most were confident, however, that the project will go over the top despite any setbacks.

Jack Richardson and President Pettit gave detailed reports on the recent Kiwanis District Convention at Kingston, to which they were official delegates from the Peterborough club. Both paid tribute to the newly elected District Governor, Bob Harris of Halifax.

Tweed Bush Fires Drop 75 Per Cent. Only 58 Occurring In Season

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Sept. 23.—Fifty-eight fires, approximately 25 per cent of the normal average, occurred in the Trent Forest district during the present season, according to Mr. H. W. Crosbie, district forester. This was a record for the eighteen years since the Ontario Forestry Branch headquarters was established at Tweed. Less than four hundred acres, a comparatively small area, was destroyed, in view of the fact that 3,200,000 acres of territory are under forest fire protection. There is, however, a total of seven million acres under the administration of this district office.

Mr. Crosbie attributes the decreased number of fires this year to the wet season, together with a more careful attitude on the part of campers, motorists and anglers frequenting bushlands.

"The constant aim of the Department has been to educate people to the dangers of outbreaks, with the consequent losses, and I believe it has had a decided effect," Mr. Crosbie state. "There was little carelessness this year and the incendiarism reported in previous season, was fortunately, absent."

The scarcity of fires permitted more time for the erection of new telephone lines, the repair of roads and the improvement of trails. "There was a much higher percentage of ranger time devoted to construction and improvement this year than for some time past," Mr. Crosbie notes.

The ranger season has now been closed, and most of the towermen have been removed although the staff is being maintained for other work in the local district.

"WHY, MY JOB DEPENDS ON THE AUTOMOTIVE PLANTS!"

"We railway workers owe a lot to the automotive plants. Last year those plants paid more than five and a half million dollars to Canadian railways and transportation companies. That money sure pays the wages of a lot of us railway men.

"The thousands of men employed making cars and parts and materials spend their wages in Canada too. Their money goes to the grocer, the butcher; the dentist and doctor; and to the men and women who make the shoes, clothing, furniture and all the needs and comforts of life.

"They tell me the automotive plants spent more money in Canada last year than they received for the cars they sold in this country. How could they do it? Simply because they exported more than a third of the cars they made. 68,133 cars were sent to all parts of the world—all made by good Canadian labor and shipped over our railways making more jobs for us."

For further information about the benefits of the automotive industry to Canada, write to Automotive Industries, 1006 Lumsden Building, Toronto.

We Have Too Much Butter

There are 61,028,000 pounds of Canadian butter in storage at the moment, and the prospects are that by the end of September that figure will be increased to a point which will show we have 14,000,000 more pounds of butter on hand than we had one year ago. The logical way to get rid of this too large surplus would be to export it, but exporters say the butter was made when butter fat prices were too high and therefore it cannot find its way to world markets.

There is no scarcity of butter in Britain and that is where we should sell our surplus. New Zealand and Australia will soon be shipping more because it is now approaching their period of summer. We cannot ship butter from Montreal or Quebec during the winter months because ocean shipping space is not available then. Right now we have a formidable surplus and it is increasing.

One suggestion coming from Montreal is that farmers should sell their butter fat at a loss for three or four weeks in order that a butter price might be created which would help diminish present excess of surplus butter. The claim is it would be better for the farmer to do in the hope that afterward prices would return to a normal winter level. If it is not done we are told butter fat prices will continue to recede.

Those who are in a position to know the situation locally say deliveries of material for creameries are too heavy and will continue that way on account of late pasture and an abundance of fodder in barns and silos. If a considerable portion of these deliveries is turned into butter then it is not going to be possible to profitably sell the butter.

Another way out of the difficulty was suggested to the Examiner by a gentleman whose opinion we value. Just this: "This situation has been in the making for months and the reason is there is too much material sent to creameries and not enough to the cheese factories which are operating to a lesser extent than they were a year ago. The cheese factory runs as a rule from May to October and there is still a chance to turn for even a brief period to the cheese factory. Canada can export and sell cheese against world competition and we cannot do that with butter. I consider it is more profitable for farmers to sell to the cheese factory because in that way they are doing two things, (1) turning their milk into a cash crop, and (2) preventing the butter market from becoming glutted with a surplus which will bring down the price of butter fat. From the cheese factory they also get their whey back and the food value in that for hogs is more highly regarded today than it ever was before. In short it is this way—we can sell cheese with no limits attached, but we cannot sell butter. That is the situation today. A far greater use of the cheese factory is the solution."

They Change Quickly

Strange it is, but the same situation can produce commendation and censure, bouquets and brickbats, and the turn from one to the other can be so sudden as to be classed as abrupt.

To come to the point: Letter writers in a number of papers have been turned against Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King in recent times because he had not sent forth a declaration stating that Canada was ready to stand squarely behind Britain if there were a European war. We have noticed in a number of papers where the writers of such letters had been in action. The expectation of these letter writers undoubtedly was that Premier Chamberlain was going to take a stand of defiance with Hitler; there was going to be a show down and they were anxious to have Canada saying officially that she stood with Chamberlain and the Empire.

But it did not work out that way. Chamberlain did not call out the troops and he made no request that Canada or other nations in the empire prepare for war. He went in the opposite direction and conducted negotiations with Hitler in which he was joined by France.

Already the letter writers have begun to change their ways and remodel the texture of their communications to the press. One such signing himself "Britisher" writes to a Toronto paper from Goderich commending Premier King for having had nothing to do with the present situation, and he concludes by saying:

"Britain is not fighting. Chamberlain, Hoare, Simon and Halifax are making Britain crawl...Mr. King does well to keep aloof from the humiliating exhibition the Chamberlain government is giving to the world."

In another paper we read a letter signed by "Patriot" from which we quote:

"I felt a week or so ago and said so in a former letter that Mr. King should be up and doing and giving us some leadership, but I am glad to say that he did the right thing in not supporting the weak-kneed nabobs in Britain."

So there you have it. A short distance back the letter writers were gauging the correct space for their bricks as they pelted them in the general direction of Ottawa. Since then events and circumstances have changed and now they tap on the door of our Prime Minister and leave a small floral offering. Strange people in the world.

Blames The Communists

Mrs. Bertha Lamb, so-called national president of the Housewives' Association of Canada, makes the announcement that the organization is through, dissolved, broken up, dismembered, and so on. Other ladies who are presidents of ward organizations in Toronto, say such cannot be the case, but Mrs. Lamb being the supreme in command ought to know.

The organization came into existence in Toronto and one of the first things was to start a campaign against the price of butter as it stood then—40 cents. The ladies paraded and carried signs and were determined they would have nothing to do with butter until it was down at 30 cents. (Truth is it would be better for us all if butter were again at the 40-cent mark).

The parade did not bring down the price of butter or anything else, but Mrs. Lamb says the presence of communists in the organization has caused the trouble. They refused to have anything to do with moves which were planned to benefit people because they wanted to make conditions just as bad as possible.

Mrs. Lamb may have been wrong at times, but in expressing that belief she is right. That is known and accepted policy of the communist. It is his desire to make people suffer under our form of government, the reason being that if they suffer sufficiently they will turn against our institutional government and demand that a change be made.

The average Canadian woman being a democratic person would want to take such steps as would make living conditions better, and if there were communists in the same movement then the deside of the communists would be to make conditions worse. The two cannot mix in the same organization. That is why we believe Mrs. Lamb may be close enough to the truth when she states the communists wrecked her association. If there were enough of them they could do it.

High Tariff And War

Secretary Cordell Hull of United States in a recent Washington address said the policy of his country would be to remove trade barriers "in order to remove pressure leading to military action."

Mr. Hull is not the first man to make that statement, and he would hardly have made it if he did not believe it was a fact—not by any means a pleasant fact but one which so many people do not understand. Neither do they believe it possibly because they have never taken the trouble to consider it.

We believe the operation of the excessive tariff arrangement to business and national life is fairly well marked.

Such tariffs or trade barriers produce friction.

Friction in turn produces hatred.

After which hatred produces war.

It may look like an involved process, but that is the actual process to which Cordell Hull was referring when he made his address at Washington.

Does "Accident" Cover It?

Harry Shein was seeking a ride to Wallaceburg and secured a lift with a driver who was going that way. Before reaching his destination there was a crash; Shein was killed and the finding of the jury called by the coroner was that Shein's death was due to an accident.

Looking through the evidence the situation was this: The car was being driven by a man who admitted having consumed a bottle and a half of beer some time before the accident, although the traffic officer said there was no sign of intoxication after the collision. He was driving between 40 and 45 miles an hour with his headlights on the short beam which would show him objects on the road only 35 feet ahead.

The accident happened when the car crashed into the rear of another going in the same direction at a speed said to have been about 25 miles an hour, and the driver of the car a lady, swore the tail light was burning because it had been checked only a short time before. We admit the story as reported may give an inadequate idea of all that was said in court, but enough is known to raise the question: Was that fatality the result of something which was actually an accident?

The dictionary gives the following:

Accident: 1. A happening; an event that takes place without one's foresight or expectation; an event which precedes from an unknown cause, or is an unusual effect of a known cause and therefore not expected; chance, casualty, contingency.

2. That which takes place or begins to exist without an efficient intelligent cause and without design.

That definition covers a wide range, and admittedly an accident has a large field in which to wander. But when a car going 40 to 45 miles an hour has for its guidance a light which is limited to 35 feet effectiveness cracks into the rear of a slower-moving car, does it actually come within the range of accident? Possibly the jury finds that the better way to make a decision, but it leaves the question unanswered as to whether the word "accident" is saying everything which should have been said.

By Way Of Suggestion

The General Council of the United Church of Canada, in session at Toronto, decided it was expedient to "Not commit the church to a definite policy either for or against the elimination of private control in the sale of liquor." It was felt there was a division of opinion and if a move were made in any specific direction it might split the temperance forces.

In the meantime we submit it might be advisable for the church to start on its own membership. That does not apply to the United Church in particular, but is inclusive enough to reach denominationalism in general. A church which had cleaned up on its own membership would indeed be in a happy position if it felt that duty called it toward pressing for reform elsewhere.

All too often there are ministers who when they feel the need of speaking plainly on moral issues or questions of the day know well enough they are not speaking for their entire membership. They realize there are weak brothers on the benches who may listen without inwardly approving. So if there is to be no definite policy enunciated on the liquor question the churches might well investigate the possibilities of a little home work as a starter.

NOTE AND COMMENT

If there are to be sacrifices for peace then we suggest Hitler might part with his Charlie Chaplin moustache.

An Iowa thief stole four suits of clothes, but they all belonged to the same man, a cripple who has one leg much shorter than the other. Our detective book says it will be dangerous for the thief to wear such clothing.

When one fairly robust gentleman in Peterborough read that Chamberlain had been alone with Hitler for three hours, he remarked in a highly significant way: "I'd like to have a chance like that."

A gathering of Nazis in Hungary said that 250,000 of them would not rest until a share of Czechoslovakian territory had been given to them. Our belief is they are due to do without their needed rest for a long time.

Folk in the United States who criticise the stand of Britain and France on the European situation should read again the story of the Treaty of Versailles. If they do they might get a new sense of obligation.

Ottawa has issued regulations permitting Canadian manufacturers of native wines to fortify their product to the extent of 40 per cent. proof spirits. That should make native wine the nearest thing to TNT sold in the form of a beverage.

The racing events at fall fairs produce their own brand of humor and some of it is good enough. At Lakefield one horse although doing his best was lagging far behind, when one of the spectators was heard to remark: "Well it looks as though he might get here in time for supper."

The Crown Attorney of Orangeville went to Brantford to cheer for his hometown team when playing lacrosse there. He came out with 7 teeth missing, a split lip and spattered with tomatoes. As the Englishman, the finest sport in the world, would say, "that's not cricket."

W. O. Warner of Richlands, Va., is blind and believe he can buy a human eye for grafting so he may have some sight. He advertised that fact and received 75 replies, saying people wanted a price ranging from $500 to $25,000 for one of their perfectly good eyes. The market price for self-mutilations shows as wide a range as any other commodity.

¶ And when the council slate is framed, Erastus John is never named, yet he's an honest guy; when there are offices to fill, about his chance the folk keep still, they sort of pass him by.

¶ Erastus John would not complain, he really does not seek for fame, nor does he crave for wealth; I heard him state his case one day, on how he likes the humble way, he told the thing himself.

¶ "I've lived here forty years or more, know well the folk who live next door, lots more across the street; I own this place, don't pay no rent, the coal's all paid for, every cent, I have enough to eat.

¶ "No person's ever crossed my mat, to see if I'd do this or that, I've never run for mayor; on no committee have I served, at meetings never said a word, perhaps it's not quite fair.

¶ "But when I look at other folks, and know they're wearing heavy yokes, and have financial chills; I reckon that my humble pace, has meant for me a happy place—where I don't owe no bills."

Girls Do Not Know Enough?

(Chatham News)

MODERN thought has turned from the equipping of boys to earn a livelihood for themselves, to the question of fitting girls to face the question of existence for themselves.

A writer in a recent issue of a Canadian magazine protests against sending girls into the industrial and commercial world without being properly trained and equipped.

If the self-supporting woman who has reached a position of comfort and success, is asked what will make or cripple the girl wage-earner in her endeavor to become self-supporting—after the girl has learned her special work—her answer will be that the final test is the girl's capacity to take care of her health and to spend her wages with good judgment. This is the point which means success or failure. And this is where, apparently, no one helps her. Each individual girl must find out for herself. Or she never finds out and she is always half-sick and half-poor.

The fact is that the girl—the woman—whether she is a wage-earner or a girl at home, is never taught the value of money. She is not taught how to spend money so that she may get back its value. In much the same way the girl is not taught what she ought to eat, how she ought to be dressed, or when she ought to rest. She finds these things out for herself, or she lives so much the less efficiently for not knowing them. It is a truism that girls are not taught how to feed babies, which is one of the chief causes for infant mortality. But the want of knowledge is wider than this. Girls are not taught what they ought to eat themselves.

They are not taught as householders what they should give their households to eat. These are sweeping assertions. They are made here because the want of common necessary knowledge is part of the problem of the girl wage-earner. The statement applies to all alike, factory girls, shop girls, and girls in offices. The girl wage-earner does not know how to take care of herself. She may find out after some years. But she does not know, except in rare instances, when she begins to work. Her lack of knowledge is a great loss to her. Sometimes it is an irretrievable loss.

To The Editor

AN ERROR ADMITTED

Editor Examiner.

Sir,—Re the report of the Board of Health meeting appearing in the Examiner. One must congratulate our Medical Officer of Health on the fact that having found himself in error in regard to a permanent Matron at the Isolation Hospital, he publicly admits his error, and now recommends the appointment of one as being in the best interests of the city.

This apparently vindicates former Medical Officers of Health in their policy towards this particular institution, but what about the nurses who lost their posts, and the former Matron of this hospital, who served this city very faithfully for about 15 years in this capacity at a salary that compared none too favorably with similar institutions, only to lose her position through the action of other public servants, who now state they were in error.

It seems to me the question must now be raised—did we play fair, or was the action taken at that time only a means to an end? Will somebody please page the chairman of the Board of Health who was and still is acting in that capacity.

Yours truly,
FAIR PLAY.

LET HITLER PAY.

(Letter in Ottawa Journal)

SIR:—Should Czechoslovakia decide to accept the decision of Great Britain and France the Czechs should accept accompanied by the demand that the Germans should pay an adequate sum, to be decided by arbitration, for the Sudeten territory, the immense sums she has expended on her vast frontier defences, public buildings, railways, highways, etc., all of which are in the present Sudeten territory. Such demand would put the matter squarely up to Hitler. It would only be fair and would appeal to the democracies of the world. Should Hitler refuse and war ensue the blame would be solely upon Hitler. There could be no further argument.

PENSION MISERY.

(Letter in Montreal Star)

SIR:—I hope you will allow me a small space in your paper to make a few comments regarding the treatment received by the small war pensioners in the City of Montreal. I have been reading of late a few letters referring to the Canadian Corps and Canadian Legion and money spent by them, also grants made to them by the Canadian Government. The cases to which I refer are those of the poor unfortunate soldier who, by no fault of his own, is unable, owing to age or wounds, to find employment; for instance, a man receiving $10 per month is allowed an extra allowance of $21.15, making a total of $31.15. He has to pay $12 rent, and after his light, gas and fuel is paid, that leaves him 47 cents a day to live on with his wife. Now this scale, I might say, does not apply to all of Canada, nor has Ottawa anything to do with the fixing of this amount. It is run and fixed by the Montreal office. Is it fair to have Montreal on one scale and the rest of Canada in another? Do the people think that this amount is sufficient to keep two people at the present cost of living? I might add that it is of no avail to try and get any change at Ottawa. But never mind. There will be an election soon, and maybe a change in all will do a lot of good.

• Roosevelt's a Regular 'Meanie'

(Ottawa Journal)

LAST WEEK the Toronto Globe-Mail called on Mr. King (and the poor man suffering from sciatica) to get up and say something that would make Hitler tremble. Mr. King failing to come across, the Globe-Mail on Monday quit the country altogether, and the British Empire, too, and called on Mr. Roosevelt. Poor Mr. Chamberlain is doing his best, flying all over Europe, and seeing Hitler, and what not, but the young publisher of the Globe-Mail, keeping an eye on the thing from his stables, is evidently dissatisfied with Chamberlain's work, wants to fire him for Roosevelt.

At any rate the Globe-Mail came out on Monday with a big piece on its front page called "An Appeal to Mr. Roosevelt." It said to the President that there was "but one man whom the world, if it could speak" (how some people get to know things!), would call on to settle this whole business, and that he (Mr. Roosevelt) was the man. Wouldn't he "ignore the ordinary diplomatic customs," tell Herr Hitler that he must "call a conference," and then he himself "in person," take off for it "by the first boat."

Well, we waited all day Monday and part of Tuesday for Mr. Roosevelt to say or do something, but, meanie that he must be, he did nothing. Didn't even answer. And it isn't that he didn't see the Globe-Mail's call to him, either. The Globe-Mail, knowing that Mr. Roosevelt wasn't among its subscribers, but that he did have the New York Times with his egg and coffee every morning, got its piece into the Times (it was right on the front page), so there's no excuse there. "F.D." just wouldn't answer. Wouldn't answer George, the rat!

And we know why; it was that suggestion that "F.D." "take a boat." Woodrow Wilson once "took a boat," and by the time he got back home again and old Henry Cabot Lodge and Hiram Johnson and a few others had finished with him, the poor man was out of a job. Mr. Roosevelt's not taking any boats. Not while "Jim" Farley's around.

The Globe-Mail, it is true, thought it was guarding against that; said to Mr. Roosevelt that his "isolationists" wouldn't mind his going, and that, anyway, "there could be no doubt about the support that would be his beyond America's borders." If "F. D." didn't spill his coffee over his coverlet when he read that, then we're a dunce. A nice place it would be to go looking for votes—"beyond America's borders"—when the elections come on this Fall, and Farley not even able to get them in Maryland and Georgia!

So there's no word from Washington. Nothing except that Ambassador Bullitt has been hauled over the coals by the State Department for having said in Paris (though he denies it) that the United States would stand with France; and that Senator "Bill" Borah says America "must keep its nose out of Europe!" We're just going to have to get along with Chamberlain.

• Writer Was Close to the Mark

POSSIBLY S. Fowler Wright will be in a position to claim he had some sort of prophetic vision when he wrote his book "War In the Air," in 1936, and said the battles of which he spoke would be fought two years hence.

The Book Review section of the New York Times of March 1, 1936, has been handed to the Examiner by a reader, and this is the review then given. Remember it was in 1936:

WAR IN THE AIR

The War of 1938. By S. Fowler Wright. 308 pp. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons. $2.50.

The war two years hence, graphically pictured in this novel, is fought entirely in and from the air, and sufficiently decisive in its single day's duration to gain the aggressor nation's immediate objective and end hostilities. The conflict breaks out over the strained relations long existent beween Nazi Germany and Czechoslovakia because of the latter's unsatisfying compliance with demands for surrender of exiled Communists, traitors and conspirators inimical to the welfare of the Reich. Involving the diplomats of friendly foreign nations stationed in Prague, the crisis rests most portentously upon the British Minister and his staff, these and two young English ladies of the circle providing the chief characters in the sanguinary events that follow.

As a demonstration of her armed might, Germany hurls a vast force of combat planes and night bombers across the Czech frontier, the squadrons, advancing upon inadequately defended Prague, virtually destroying the ancient city and killing thousands of civilians. The bombings, conflagrations and carnage in the city during the German assaults are intensely vivid and harrowing, but in no detail deviating from the plausible. We wish to emphasize that this book is no paltry concoction of pseudo-scientific warfare, fabulous intrigue and spy stuff purveyed in the average adventure thriller. It deals in a most compelling fashion with uncertain world realities, which may be now just over the way, presenting them without exaggerating the likelihood that they must plunge this afflicted earth again into the horrors of Armageddon.

• Holding Office In Bad Days

(Ottawa Journal)

HEYWOOD BROUN paused in his routine the other day to say a few words in the New York World-Telegram about how hard a job is that of the President of the United States. As a columnist Heywood Broun is more in favor of Franklin D. Roosevelt than against him, but it is what he says about the office rather than the man that at this time is more than worth saying. Said Broun:

"Yes, I know that Franklin D. Roosevelt smiles a lot in the newspaper pictures, and they say that more than any other man he loves the give and take of political conflict. But he isn't always fencing gaily with the reporters at press conferences or waving a cheerful greeting for the photographers. His shoulders are broad, but there is no living American who moves about with a heavier millstone chained around his neck. It just can't be fun. That isn't human nature.

"We have heard much of the scheme which the founding fathers drew up for checks and balances and divided powers. But they forgot one little thing. They neglected to divide the responsibility. When the state of the nation is gripped by gales the citizen does not cry aloud for Congress or the Supreme Court to do something. The man in the White House, whoever he may be, must take the rap. This has always been so. George Washington found that out, and, granting a lapse of time, so did Herbert Hoover."

TWO "DOG" DAYS.

(Calcutta Statesman)

AN EXPERIMENT in prohibition, the first of its kind in the city, has come into operation in Bombay on Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

No liquor, country or foreign, will be sold on these two "dry" days and all liquor shops will remain closed. Liquid will, however, be allowed to be served in hotels, railway restaurants and clubs, subject to certain conditions.

Government has found that consumption of toddy and country liquor in the mill area is heaviest on pay day and on the subsequent day. With a view to removing the temptation to spend money on these days, and thus save millhands from misery, Government has declared pay day and the day subsequent to it as "dry" days.

USED TO THEM.

(Detroit Free Press)

THE TYPHOON which struck the Tokyo area and caused a heavy loss of life and property was nothing compared to the earthquake, tidal wave and fire which virtually destroyed Tokyo on Sept. 1, 1923.

The property loss from the 1923 disaster was estimated at $2,500,000,000.

And the casualty list included 99,331 known dead, 43,476 missing and presumed to be dead, and 103,733 injured.

Japan is a group of volcanic islands, with an average of four slight earthquakes a day and a very serious one every six or seven years.

We may not like some aspects of their foreign policy, but we cannot help admiring the fortitude of the Japanese—some 70,000,000 of whom are crowded into an area, the tillable acreage of which is less than one-half of that of California—and their ability to take the worst nature can hand them and come up smiling.

AN OUT-OF-DATE BOAST

(Owen Sound Sun-Times)

It used to be—it still is with a few—the practice to boast about how fast the "boat" or "old bus" could travel. That was foolish; the sensible idea is to drive always so that the car is under control and let the surplus speed lie in reserve until emergency demands it.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

AWAKE, AWAKE; put on thy strength, O Zion; put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem, the holy city: for henceforth there shall no more come into thee the uncircumcised and the unclean.

Shake thyself from the dust; arise, and sit down, O Jerusalem; loose thyself from the bands of thy neck, O captive daughter of Zion.

For thus saith the Lord, Ye have sold yourselves for nought; and ye shall be redeemed without money.... Therefore they shall know in that day that I am he that doth speak: behold, it is I....

The Lord hath made bare his holy arm in the eyes of all the nations; and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God.—Isa lii, 1-3, 6, 9, 10.

WARNING WORD.

(New York Times)

POSSIBLY some husbands missed a recent news item stating that New York University is about to open a cooking course for men only. The conductor of that course, Miss Gladys Curry has for her slogan: "Every husband should cook dinner at least once a week."

"At least once a week" may be all right. But how long would it be before this meant Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays? Miss Curry's approach is diplomatic, but kind words butter no parsnips. She says that men have a "more scientific mind," more "natural mechanical ability" and "can turn out quite a palatable meal from a simple recipe." Yes, indeed. And possibly they can wash the dishes better and scrub the floors more neatly.

Husbands who know their rights will be on guard. If a man wants to be a chef, let him. All the best cooks are men, anyway. But it is not right that a wife should say to her husband, "I wish you could learn to bake the kind of bread that Father used to make."

TOUGH LUCK.

(Trenton Courier-Advocate)

A BIT OF BAD NEWS reached this town on Saturday that owing to financial difficulties, one of our main industries would have to cease operations and lay off its hands. The industry was in the midst of a busy season and was about half through with its work when the difficulties arose. Not only the employes of the company will suffer through the shortening of their earning season, but the farmers who had contracts with the company and who will now have a large quantity of stuff on their hands that will not find a market anywhere else and which is over and above their requirements for feed. A glutted market and small sale for the manufactured product, due to the possibility of war in Europe, has given this company a severe back-set, but it is to be hoped that the storm will be weathered successfully and that in another year everything will be all right again.

Public Blamed For Burden Of Taxes Today

BRANTFORD, Sept. 23 (Special). —While multiple Governments are increasing taxation tolls on business and individual enterprise to a degree that actually is intensifying unemployment and jeopardizing the pay envelopes of workers, the public rather than the politician is responsible, declared C. L. Burton, president of the Robert Simpson Company, in a keenly analytical and thoughtful review of existing taxation burdens before the Board of Trade banquet which last night climaxed the week of the "Made in Brantford" Exposition.

Mr. Burton was welcomed by Mayor R. J. Waterous and Board of Trade President George P. Cockshutt, and introduced by A. E. Cuthbertson. The Kirby House banquet hall was thronged with Board of Trade members and manufacturers and merchants who took part in the exposition.

"I would be leaving you with a false impression of my own profound convictions," said Mr. Burton, after careful, statistical breakdown of this generation's resultant inheritance of taxation, debt and unemployment, "if I did not say here and now that the fault lies with us as citizens. One body and then another is guilty of pressure upon public men for measures and expenditures which increase public debt and taxation. While it is true the politicians finally must enact the laws bringing extravagant measures into effect, in the last analysis the responsibility rests on the body of people, who are the ones really responsible for the final discouragement of enterprise and the impairment of the workers' pay envelopes."

Details Pyramided Taxes.

Not content to rest his case on generalties, Mr. Burton went on to dissect in fascinating factualism Federal income imposts on corporations as well as individuals—one of the most potent reasons, he said, for enterprise being destroyed—then the duplication of these levies by Provincial authority; the exactions from the consumer of sales and excise taxes—again pyramided in some cases by Provincial and municipal authority—and passed on to a review of the ecenomic effects of the Adolescent School Act, the fifteen-year exactions of which in one municipality, he showed, were sufficient to have retired the whole of that municipality's defaulted debt.

"The burden on the people as a whole is a staggering one," he summed up, in respect of the duplicated income taxation and sales tax. "And," he added, "I question very much if the benefits secured since 1930 by tariff have benefitted the manufacturers of Canada sufficiently to equal the loss in spending power of the individual resultant from the alternative taxes.

"Certain it is that the hundreds of millions which have been collected from consumers in this way have been removed from the fields of natural growth and enterprise.... It is my opinion that every dollar unnecessarily taken in taxation results in definite discouragement of individual enterprise, and means, perhaps, that ten times that dollar fails to find its way into the workers' pay envelope."

Hits Adolescent Act

He dealt for some time, and in impressive detail with the effects of the Adolescent School Act, which obliges children in the cities to remain at school until they are 16 years of age, and in the country until their fifteenth year. Characterizing that act as a very expensive and impractical luxury, he expressed the belief that its introduction in Ontario was largely responsible for municipal debt problems. And, instead of being a benefit to children, he held it to be harmful, inasmuch as it held the "non-academic" child in an atmosphere to which he did not belong and deprived him of apprenticeship training which, in after life, would have made for him the difference between a full pay envelope and an empty one.

"Let us look for a moment," he proceeded, "at one of our older cities in the Province of Ontario which has defaulted. Examine one item—school tax. In 1915 school tax in this particular city was eight mills on the dollar and amounted to less than $70,000. In 1922, after the introduction of the Adolescent School Act, the school tax rate reached thirteen mills and totalled $169,000. By 1925 the full effect of this act having been registered, the mill rate rose to 14.3 mills on the dollar and the tax collection was $212,000. Between 1915 and 1925 the school taxes of this one municipality jumped three times, while in the same period the increase in population was little more than 50 per cent. In a fifteen-year period the excess of apparently unnecessary expenditure for public and high school education in this municipality averaged $100,000 a year. Had this money been saved instead of spent, it would have been sufficient to retire the whole of their defaulted debt. In other words, there would have been no default.

Floods and Hurricane Inflict Heavy Damage

A tropical hurricane, sweeping up from the south over the New England States and parts of Quebec Province, has taken a toll of 162 lives and inflicted $90,000,000 worth of property damage. The death toll is expected to reach over 200, while the total damage was believed to exceed $200,000,000. Huge waves swept the New England coast and flooded towns and villages. An emergency squad of police is shown here as they carried a woman from her flooded home at Williston, Long Island. Hundreds of families were marooned by floods in the Long Island area following five days of continuous rain.

French Bandits Loot Train Of Gold Ore

MARSEILLE, France, Sept. 23 (AP) — Ten masked bandits ambushed a freight train between Marseille and Avignon today and made off with gold ore weighing 395 pounds after wounding a member of the train crew.

Officials said the ore, being shipped from the Belgian Congo to a smelting plant in Belgium, probably was worth several hundred thousand francs (100,000 francs is $2,700).

The train came to a halt when a member of the band, hidden aboard, applied the brakes. The band fired a fusillade at the train, wounding a guard when the crew descended to see what was wrong.

The robbers loaded the two crates of ore into an automobile and sped away.

Mrs. Brown Hostess To Roseneath W.A.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Sept. 23. — The regular meeting of the United Church W.A. was held on Wednesday afternoon in Mrs. Andrew Brown's home.

The topic for the devotional period was Temperance, and a short playlet appropriate to the topic was presented by Mrs. L. W. Scott, Mrs. M. Davey, Miss C. Payne and Mrs A. Nill. The title of the playlet was "Forethoughts or Afterthoughts?"

Mrs. W. Robins and Mrs. C. Sandercock read scripture lessons. Owing to the absence of the secretary Miss Irene Brown, this office was filled by Mrs. C. Sandercock. The president, Mrs. A. Nill, presided. It was decided to hold a bazaar early in December.

Following the business session a questionnaire, a contest and two readings were enjoyed. Miss C. Payne read, "Folks need a lot of lovin'"; and Mrs. C. Sandercock read "Just Between Us Women."

After the closing exercises the hostess served refreshments, and a social half-hour was enjoyed.

Calgary Fined $20

CALGARY, Sept. 23 — (CP). — Failure to supply relief to Louis Leitinger will cost the city of Calgary $20. This was the fine imposed by Magistrate D. C. The charge against the city was laid under the Bureau of Relief and Public Welfare Act.

Canadians Unneeded In Spain By New Years

BARCELONA, Sept. 23—(AP).—The Spanish Government army's Canadian and other foreign volunteers are expected to be out of the trenches and on their way home by the first of the new year.

It was estimated today that evacuation of all foreigners, in compliance with Premier Juan Negrin's announcement yesterday that they would be withdrawn, could be completed within three months.

His announcement at Geneva was the first public statement of a policy that has been in effect for many months. The foreign volunteers have served their purpose as shock troops while Spanish civilians were learning the rudiments of war and now, officials explained, the construction of an all-Spanish fighting machine is almost finished.

C.A.H.A. AND N.H.L. MEET TO DISCUSS HOCKEY REGULATIONS

Hockey's Moguls Get Together To Decide Rules

TORONTO, Sept. 23 (C.P.).—Representatives of the National Hockey League and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association meet to-day for what apparently is to be a peaceful rules discussion.

Relations with the C.A.H.A., broken off by the N.H.L. last winter, were repaired this fall with announcement the two organizations had reached an agreement on matters of common interest. Each body agreed to respect the suspensions of the other and restrictions were placed on the raiding of amateur clubs.

Under consideration to-day were to come proposals for changing the offside rules, the width of the blue line, the size of the goaltender's crease, and rules governing the penalty shot and icing the puck. Art Ross of Boston Bruins will suggest that separate duties be allotted to the two referees assigned to a game, one calling offences and the other offsides.

To-morrow the N.H.L. will hold its annual meeting here. Principal matter to be discussed is the system of playoffs to be employed next spring, now that only seven clubs remain in the league. In other years the league has been divided into two sections and the top three in each division have entered playoffs.

It is considered likely the league will consist this season of a single section and the top four will enter payoffs for the Stanley Cup.

At their last meeing in New York the N.H.L. moguls agreed to appoint an assistant to President Frank Calder. There is a possibility the appointment will be made at tomorrow's meeting.

Early Season Football Action

Cillick, outside left for Everton in the English League's First Division, was having his troubles in the game against Arsenal as Bryn Jones, the players the Gunners purchased from Wolverhampton Wanderers for $68,000, checks him near the goal crease. That hand on the shoulder isn't exactly part of the game, but it went unnoticed. Everton won, 2-1, for their fifth straight victory in the new season.

Match Is Ordered Halted But Promoter Defies Edict of P. J. Mulqueen

TORONTO, Sept. 23 (Special).—To-day the Ontario Athletic Commission will decide whether Promoter Jack Corcoran of the Queensbury Athletic Club did the wrong thing when he kept faith with 4,000 wrestling fans at Maple Leaf Gardens last night.

The Commission will decide because Matchmaker Corcoran, who found himself between the devil and the deep blue seea when P. J. Mulqueen, O.A.C. chairman, ordered him to cancel the match between the Masked Marvel and Mayes McLain, ignored the edict and went ahead with the last fall of the match with a non-commission referee as the third man in the ring.

"The show must stop," said Chairman Mulqueen after the Mark had won a fall to deadlock his titular bout with McLain at one fall apiece. "The show will go on," said the matchmaker after he consulted Vice-Chairman Lionel Conacher and Commissioner Ellerby Farr by telephone, and they urged him to keep faith with the public who paid to see a finish bout.

Crowd Boos Announcement.

It's entirely incidental that the Mask won the third fall and retained his title when you consider the hubbub and general confusion which followed Mulqueen's announcement. The Commissioner told the promoter, "This is enough. Some one is going to get hurt." He said that he would order police to stop the match if the matchmaker attempted to go ahead with it. Corcoran was on the spot. The customers greeted the postponement announcement with a deluge of boos. They demanded their money back. Mr. Mulqueen expressed himself as dissatisfied with the Mask's fall and that Referee Jack Forbes had been too hasty.

"There have been too many rolling falls," he said.

The matchmaker suggested the bout continue with a different referee, either Phil Lawson or Cliff Worthy, who were in the audience. But both Commissioner Mulqueen and O.A.C. Secretary Fitzgerald had left the building when Corcoran announced over the loudspeaker system the match would continue. Tommy McClure quickly volunteered to act as the third man, and his appearance was the signal for a resounding cheer from the pew holders desirous of seeing the rest of the match.

The People's Friend.

McClure made an ideal referee. With his sense of showmanship, he made a gesture as if to fight back at the Mask when the latter became too pugnacious, and then with the necessary dramatics he stopped the bout while removing the tape from the Mask's right hand. The Hooded Horror had been using this to draw across McLain's eyes. He was the hero of the night, sharing honors with the promoter. But he couldn't stop the Mask from winning after 8.05 of the resumption. A reverse body slam and spread did the trick.

For the first fall of the match McLain used a flying tackle to good advantage and followed up with a spread at 11.48. The Unknown evened matters at 5.20 with a reverse slam and then came the fireworks. Apparently the action of several fans in threatening the Mask's manager and several near-troublesome moments influenced the O.A.C. chairman in his unprecedented action. The fall, which he said was to hastily proclaimed by Referee Forbes, clinched matters in his mind. Forbes afterward denied it was a quick fall. He said it was a legitimate one and that was the only reason he called it for the Mask.

"—Inciting to Riot."

Speaking to the press by telephone after the match, Chairman Mulqueen said his reason for stopping the bout was "because the Mask was inciting the people to riot—and when that happens it ceases to be sport." Informed that the bout had gone on after he had left he made no comment, but inferred the matter would be settled at a meeting between the Commission and Corcoran to-day.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB. MARTIN

Now that the rain is over—we hope—we can resume our lawn bowling. No one felt like discussing bowling the last couple of days, so we skipped it also.

Referring to Wednesday tournaments:

At Port Hope.

15 mixed rinks played two games and then were rained out. Four riniks entered from our club, H. Freemank's rink taking fourth place.

At Hastings.

At Uxbridge.

All of our local games that were scheduled to play Wednesday or Thursday nights will be played on Monday evening.

To-night we will hold a mixed tournament at 7.30 p.m. Draw from the board. Fee 25c. This may be the last of the season, so make the best of it.

We are asked to announce that to-morrow afternoon, the regular Saturday night tournament will be held at 2 p.m. This will enable all games to be played during the day and sunlight.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

LACROSSE holds the sporting spotlight here this e'en, with the big battle on between Brooklin and the Petes. It's at 8.15 in the George St. arena, the second scrap in their senior "B" playoff series. A loss for the Petes will blast them right out of further competition till 1939 rolls around, so you can bet all the beer in Berlin that the locals will be staying in there tonight fighting so long as they can swing a stick. Those Brooklins are tough babies, but we have a hazy hunch the Petes will pin back their ears tonight—and unless two stern arbiters from the O.L.A. are handling the francas, the game is liable to get out of hand. The rival players (as fans here know from experience) love each other like the Czechs and Sudetens, or Hitler and the Hebrews! It ought to be a beaut of a battle.

AND A TIDY BALL TILT is lined up for Riverside Park at three tomorrow aft when Niagara Falls and the Petes resume their O.B.A. playdown serial. A win for the Petes will dam up the Falls for this year, whereas a Niagara victory will force a third tussle. The 5-3 win for the Petes in the Big Roar burg last Wednesday is a big help and we rather expect to see the Murphyites wind it up here tomorrow. It rates a record crowd as these teams are probably the pick of the Province in senior baseball. Schoolboy Mussel of N'Yawk will hurl for the visitors—who may arrive tonight—with Lefty McNally or Gunner Whitehill favored for the Petes. Toronto umps will handle this diamond classic.

His Name Is Murphy

MANAGER EDDIE MURPHY figures his gang can take the Falls' crew as easy as a hobo helping himself to a handout. He is confident that nothing can stop the Petes this season, and he is just about right. The club is clicking nicely now in all departments and is mighty tough to stop. Murphy, by the way, deserves much credit for the team's showing. He plays a lot of fine defensive ball himself and is a smart hitter. Plays for a run at a time and is a specialist at laying down sacrifices or pulling the hit-and-run. Four or five times this season, he ordered his hurlers to walk a man and load the sacks to get at a weaker willow-waver, and each time his judgment was perfect. A quiet chap, but a born battler, Eddie has the confidence of his crew and the club is really clicking.

LAKESHORE gal cagers organized the other p.m. in Cobourg, with Miss Kay Rogow of Peterborough named president. Clubs aboard the trolley are Orfuns and C.G.E. of this city, and Belleville and Cobourg. Top two teams playoff in two-out-of-three for the title. Cobourg club was notified by Toronto that it had to enter intermediate "A" competition, owing to its showing last year. The basketball belles open the first week with Orfuns in Cobourg and Belleville at C.G.E.; next week sees Cobourg at Orfuns and C.G.E. in Belleville. The Belleville beauties play at Cobourg the third week with Orfuns and C.G.E. here; fourth week has C.G.E. at Cobourg and Quinte colleens at Orfuns. First week of February calls for Orfuns to go to Belleville and Cobourg at C.G.E.; and second week finds Cobourg at Belleville and C.G.E. at Orfuns. Exact dates will be determined later.

Worry, Worry, Worry

COACH H. L. BAMFORTH, C.O.S.S.A. group prexy, has but a handful of last year's P.C.I. senior champs to build around this fall. Guys like Leether, Diplock, Johnston and Parnall. Maybe Les Ascott will be back, too. And Harle is a good newcomer. But the Garnet and Gray squad's mentor is hopeful of once more fielding a powerful crew in the senior setup. We will see how the '37 champs shape up when they open Oct. 1st in Lindsay. P.C.I.-ers are drilling daily at the Oval now, till Riverside is available.

WE FEEL utterly fascinated at the possibilities of the new 6-man rugby game, which may take hold in this district shortly. As a working observer of the gridiron game, two things always got us down—one being those huddles, which certainl ywouldn't be approved by Emily Post (as they not only turn their backs on company but actually whisper), and the simultaneous action of 12 gees on each team. It is much too much to expect a guy, wearing the regulation number of orbs, to catch all the action and angles in this mass movement. But with six guys only on a club and no huddles, we have high hopes of seeing a lot more football and not having that slighted feeling which comes when folks whisper in your company. Then, too, touchdowns are only three points so the final scores are not likely to resemble boxcar numbers, and anybody can take a forward pass — not just some chap who carries forward-pass-receiving references. We hope the game goes over with a batch of bangs.

Not Oshawa's Year

REMEMBER the Oshawa male softball squad that rubbed out our Westclox crew a few weeks back? Well, the Motor City gang lost a tough 11-10 O.S.A. playdown fray in Toronto the other eve in 11 frames to C.G.E.-ers of Toronto and it must have been a performance perfumed like lilies of the value. A sweet scrap. Bus Bower of the Electrics fanned 14 and hit two homers himself, while Preem Whitely struck out 15 of his rivals. Scribe Campbell's crew are up against opposition as tough as tax colectors, and they are liable to wind up back of the eight-ball Saturday in Oshawa. But we wish 'em well, if that helps any.

BILL GAYNON, veteran sports commentator of Niagara Falls, writes: "Nobody can deny Peterborough their victory but last evening's senior O.B.A. game showed the two most evenly matched nines to appear on a Falls' diamond this season, and Brights are by no means out of the running for further playdowns. True, the Liftlock City lads gained quite an edge by taking honors in game number one and will have a home gallery behind them Saturday but good clubs do their best when backed against the wall, and we do not hesitate in nominating the Falls among the good teams. Give Petes every bit of credit that their hard earned win earned them and figure them mighty hard to stop next time out, but remember that Brights have a youthful aggregation of fighters who will not admit defeat until the curtain falls."

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Sept. 23—(AP). — Whizzer White made a personal hit with the big town sports scribes... To-night we'll see what he looks like as a football player... Vera Hruba, the Czech skater, has cabled Jimmy Johnston, her American manager, for two tickets to get out of that threatened country . . . Johnston sent 'em. . . . Puerto Rico will guarantee the 1939 semi-pro baseball winners an all expense trip down there for a series with the island champs. . . Baseball is an all-year proposition in Puerto Rico, and Enrique Huyke, the commissioner, plans to start his tournament in January.

If Georgia doesn't have the fastest backfield combination in Dixie there will be some mistake. . . The wingback, Vassa Cate, is the Southeastern Conference 100-yard dash champion and one of the South's top hurdlers; Harry Stevens, tailback and triple threater, is a track team sprinter and does the 100 in 10 seconds; Jim Fordham, the fullback, can travel 100 in 10.5, and Bob Salisbury, who is trusted with the blocking can step that distance in the same time. . . Joe McCarthy was one fellow who didn't get excited about the Yankee slump. . . Cunnel Ruppert did, and since he is the pay-off guy you have to pay attention. . . It was good the Yanks were out on the road.

Chicago bettors cleaned up on the Yank slump. . . Odds now are heavier than ever against Hank Greenberg . . . Couldn't get Jack Doyle on the 'phone last night or would give you the actual figgers.

Yesterday we ran into one of the best exercise boys on the New York tracks. . . He said: "I roll out of bed at 4.30 a.m. . . . I am at the track by 5 . . . and by the time the average person is sitting down to work (around 9 o'clock) I have galloped or worked 15 horses and my day is half over . . . In the afternoon I go up to the farm and 'break' about six yearlings. . . By supper time I guess my mileage for the day on horseback will be about 45 miles"

Page and Berg Both Hit Semi-Finals

CHICAGO, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page of Chapel Hill, N.C., marching on to-day in defence of the women's golf championship of the United States, has set up one of the most remarkable records in the sport.

She never had gripped a golf club until five years ago. Since that time she has won the qualifying medal honors in the National twice, tied for it this year, and won the championship last yeear at Memphis, defeating Patty Berg, the 20-year-old gallery lure from Minneapolis.

To-day finds Mrs. Page, a 31-year-old housewife, in the semi-finals. And Miss Berg again the menace. Mrs. Page plays Peggy Graham, Hollywod's gift to the tournament, who defeated Mrs. E. R. Hury, Dallas, Texas, 5 and 3 yesterday. The Minneapolis miss engages Marion Miley, brunette of Lexington, Ky., who won 5 and 3 from Marion McDougall of Portland, Ore.

. . . And so hats off to Joe Serio, for most exercise boys average only about three horses a morning. . .

SIX-MAN RUGBY MAY BE ORGANIZED IN THE DISTRICT THIS FALL

Several Towns Interested In New Game

The new six-man rugby game, instituted by the O.R.F.U. this year, may be played to a considerable extent in this district during the present season. Efforts are being made to get the game properly organized and to form a district grouping. The idea appears so far to be taking hold more in the schools than in industrial circles.

Lakefield High School is a pioneer in the six-man game and is prepared to enter a club in a league with Norwood, Havelock and Hastings. These places have expressed interest but not a great deal has been done to date in organization work. It has been pointed out by Ontario Rugby Football Union officials and the press that this organization work wherever the new style of rugby is to be played must be done shortly or the season will be too far advanced.

Lindsay Collegiate is planning inter-form competition of the abbreviated gridiron game, and a similar project is planned in Cobourg. Local officers feel that these towns, with Peterborough, Lakefield, Norwood Hastings and Havelock—and possibly a few others—could organize and form a large and interesting grouping within the next week or two. Coach Bill Irwin of the Peterborough Orfuns in the senior O.R.F.U. setup, has been coaching lately at the Lakefield High School and he is a strong advocate for the new type of autumn sport.

Coach Boosts It

"Six-man football among the younger fellows," Coach Irwin said yesterday, "would provide an excellent sport for the players and would develop many future senior stars in blocking, passing and kicking. The game is a natural and deserves to be boosted in this district. It is an open style of play, eliminating much of the rugged body contact of the 12-man game, and it is also easy to outfit a team at low cost. Some of the manufacturers here should sponsor teams, as there are plenty of Peterborough boys anxious to try the game."

Mr. Irwin felt that some of the football officials of this district, or possibly some of the school coaches who are keenly interested in adopting the six-man style might take immediate steps to get the game organized, calling a meeting and discovering the interest apparent in this city and surrounding centres. He pointed out that the game is showing definite signs of catching on in a big way in other cities of the Province.

Free Rule Book

Secretary R. H. Bailey of the O.R.F.U. is a strong advocate also of the shorter game and is anxious to send out information and free rule books to anyone interested. His address is 12 Glen Manor Drive, Toronto. He is ably supported in his stand by President John DeGruchy of the Union. The rules have been set up by W. C. Foulds, chairman of the Interprovincial Union, and past president of the O.R.U.

Briefly, these rules call for six men to a team with four subs. Field is 80 yards long and 40 wide. Playing time is 48 minutes and split into 12-minute quarters with five minutes out between periods. Teams change ends after each quarter and the ball is always put into play at the start of the second, third and fourth quarters where it rested at the closing whistle of the last period. At least three men in possession must be on the scrimmage line and attacking players may interfere up to three yards in advance of the scrimmage line. On all carrying plays, the boy who gets the ball from the snapper must pass the ball to a teammate onside, and in the air, before crossing the line of scrimmage. But not on a kick or forward pass. All players are eligible to take a forward toss, and none may be thrown on a third down. No huddles are allowed. A touchdown counts three points.

Heads Havelock Club

The handsome individual here is Grey Kemp, newly elected president of the Havelock Badminton club. The organization is looking forward to one of the best years of its existence, hopes for many victories in competition under its popular new president.

Brooklin Here For Lacrosse

Brooklin lacrossers are coming here tonight to play the Petes at 8.15 o'clock in the George St. arena in the second game of their two-in-three O.L.A. senior "B" group playoff series. Brooklin took the first game by a 12-11 count, despite a strong late rally in the game by the locals. A win for Brooklin here this evening will eliminate the Petes, but a Peterborough victory would sew up the series and force a deciding game. The homesters will be fighting with their backs to the wall in this crucial contest, and it should be a grand battle before a huge crowd of fans.

These bitter rivals have been dishing up dandy scraps every meeting this season, and tonight's tussle should be the best yet. The clubs are well-matched and play classy rugged lacrosse with no quarter asked or given. They expect to be at full strength this time out and battle from bell to bell. Several times, games between Brooklin and the Petes have been marked by free-for-alls in which players and fans here and in Brooklin tangled hotly, but the O.A.L.A. will probably have two efficient refrees on deck tonight in an attempt to keep order. It is the season's tidbit in lacrosse.

ELECTRIFY CLOCKS

LONDON—(CP).—In modernizing the Houses of Parliament their 400 to 500 clocks will be electrified, but the dials will not be altered.

Tracy Shaw Is Named Coach Of Oshawa Team

OSHAWA, Sept. 22.—Tracy Shaw, well-known Toronto athlete who was appointed coach of the GM-men senior baseball team late this season, was today appointed coach for the coming season, President J. B. Highfield stated last night. Shaw will also be retained as coach of the General Motors Baseball Club for next season.

Will Have Complete Charge

Mr. Highfield stated that Shaw, who is well known here, would have complete charge as coach of Oshawa's Senior "A," Junior "A" and Junior "B" hockey teams. Donald (Doc) Rowden, perennial Oshawa star, who handled the teams last year and guided Oshawa Generals to the Memorial Cup finals, was forced to step down, it is understood, owing to the pressure of business. With a host of junior hockey players already in the city and three teams with championship aspirations, it was felt that a coach should be able to devote his entire time to the job.

Oshawa hope to receive at least two players of proven senior calibre from a major league hockey club, Mr. Highfield stated, when queried as to senior prospects. With Cliff Maundrell already available and at least one more forward practicaily assured, with two more high-class puck chasers, it is felt that the senior entry would be considerably strengthened over last season. Although Ab Barnes has left the city and rumor has it that Scotty McAlpine will retire, all other members of last year's team are available. In addition to imports, it is expected that Whip Short and Doc Dafoe of last year's good junior team should make the grade as senior players.

Junior Prospects Good

Oshawa's taste of Memorial Cup hockey last season makes Shaw's job far from a sinecure. He will face the task of moulding a flock of high class imports into Memorial Cup threats, and Oshawa's rabid hockey fans will demand a winner. At the present time the collection of age-limit puck chasers expected to line up include McManus, goaltender of Perth Blue Wings; Gerry Kinsella, right winger of Perth Blue Wings; Orval Smith, centre, St. Michael's College; Drummond and Ritchie, defensemen of Marlboros; Jud and Norm McAtee, Stratford, left wingers; Nick Knott, right winger of Kingston; and Joe Delmonte of Kirkland Lake, who starred on Oshawa's juvenile champions last season. In addition to the above array of talent, Bill Taylor, centre; Don Daniels, defense; Maxie Yourth, right winger and Scotty Reid, left winger, are available from last year's strong. Wally Wilson and several other members of last year's all Ontario juvenile champions are also expected to be keen candidates for positions on the "A" entry.

The junior "B" team will be composed mainly of last year's juvenile champions, augmented by candidates from the hundred odd players who perform in the Oshawa Minor Hockey League. Whether or not all members of last years juveniles will be available is problematical, as Tom Murphy and Andy McMullen are rumored to be considering moving to Penetang to play for Bill Hancock, their former coach, while Jake Jackson and Dutchie Turner are considering offers to move to Lindsay.

Only Four Players Belong To Over-50 Club

With all the interest that's left in the American League centered on the attempt of Hank Greenberg, Detroit firstbaseman, to set a new home run mark, it is interesting to note that when he passed the half century mark in circuit swats he joined a select circle. Including Hank, there have been just four major leaguers who have ever banged out more than 50 homers in a season. Tops, of course, is the incomparable Babe Ruth, LOWER CENTRE, who set the record that Hank is trying to beat when he sent 60 drives over the fence in 1927. Closest approach to this mark was the 58 hammered out by Jimmy Foxx, LEFT, in 1932 when with Philadelphia Athletics. There is just a chance that Jimmy may make it again this year. Third on the list is Hack Wilson, RIGHT, roly-poly outfielder who, when with Chicago Cubs in 1930 accounted for 56 four-baggers, the National League record. It was that year that he set the major mark for runs driven in as he sent 190 mates scampering over the plate. Now hammering Hank, TOP CENTRE, has joined the select group and has 54 to his credit so far. Ruth, of course, exceeded the mark more than once.

Bears Even Up By Beating Wings 7 to 1

NEWARK, N.J., Sept. 23—(CP)—Newark Bears, wonder team of Class AA Baseball, to-day were decidedly back in the fight for the Governor's Cup, the prize of the International League play-offs.

Trailing 3-1 in games in their semi-final series with Rochester Red Wings four days ago, the New York Yankees' farm team defeated the Wings last night 7-1 to the final game here with the winner going on to meet Buffalo Bisons who earlier eliminated Syracuse Chiefs and since have stood aside waiting for a break in the wet weather to allow Newark and Rochester to finish their set.

Athey Donald, Newark star hurler, limited Rochester to five hits and one run on a homer by Pinchhitter Frank Morehouse, who led off in the eighth inning.

Meanwhile the Bears, defending the Governor's Cup and pennant holders for two straight years, set in motion a 12-hit attack that blasted Si Johnson, once of St. Louis Cardinals, from the Rochester mound.

Injured Players Cup Final Saturday

Duffus' Injured Players' Cup final will be played on Saturday afternoon between the Canadian General and Brinton Athletic on King Edward Park. Kick-off at two-thirty prompt. Both managers have announced that their teams will be ready to start on time. Referee S. L. Hanlon is the official referee.

It is expected that the carpet boys will have their full eleven out so as to capture this new piece of silverware; while the Electrics anticipate another cup to their Father Phelan trophy and will have a full team out and it is most likely to be a good game. If there is a draw at the end of the regulation period another game will be played. If it is finished the same two teams will meet in the benefit match for St. John's Ambulance next Saturday.

Niagara Falls Here Tomorrow

Weather permitting, the Petes go into the baseball wars again on Saturday here when the Bright's team of Niagara Falls tackles the locals at three in Riverside Park. It will be the second game of their two-in-three O.B.A. playdown series and a local win will rub out the Falls. If the Big Roar boys cop the nod, a third tilt will be run off to settle the issue—probably in Toronto. The winner will likely step into the Ontario finals, though it may result in a semi-final series first. The biggest crowd of the year to see a baseball game in Peterborough is expected out Saturday to witness these classy squads battling it out in this important fixture.

Both teams are good. Both went across the line to bolster their clubs this year and the Petes appeared to have a slight advantage in their 5-3 win in the Falls last Wednesday. But Schoolboy Mussel, the N.Y. imported righthand twirler, is slated to toss for the cataracts here tomorrow and he is rated high in senior amateur pitching circles. However, the Petes have been hitting all kinds of pitching this year and have good fielding and fine hurling themselves. Gunner Whitehill or Lefty McNally will probably start on the home mound. It should be a grand ball game.

Montreal Cubs Feature Forward Pass

(By the Canadian Press.)

The way things look now the opposition are likely to get stiff necks looking up in the air at forward passes if Coach Johnny Macdonald's plans materialize for his Montreal Cubs of the Big Four.

In workouts Macdonald has concentrated on passing plays and sweeping end runs. The Big Four mentor figures it best because his Cubs, many of them youngsters and freshmen in the Big Four as Macdonald is himself, generally are lighter than players on the other three interprovincial union teams.

And just as if in answer to a prayer, Macdonald seems to have someone on hand who really can hurl a forward pass. Frank Smith, 190-lb. footballer from University of Maine, gladdened Macdonald's heart yesterday with a dazzling exhibition in practice.

Coach Doug Kerr of the Redmen took time out after the McGill workout last night to admit that his collegians look better than last year. The taciturn Kerr said, however, he was not satisfied with the timing of the team. Going well in the McGill drill was Herbie Westman, whose kicking Kerr is counting on much this season.

Chunky Charlie McLean, with Queen's University last year, displayed good form in the workout held by Montreal Nationals of the Ontario Rugby Football Union. McLean will be used at inside wing Saturday when the Nationals play an exhibition tilt against his former team. McLean was rated one of the best insides in the college league last season.

Bucs Close To Flag In Double Win While Giants, Cubs, Bees Imitate, Each Snatching Pair

By Sid Feder
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Between now and the time Pie Traynor figures out the Pittsburgh pitcher he'll throw at the Yankees to start the world series, there will be a lot of "sweet revenge" build up in Jim Tobin.

Of course, there's the sewing up the National League pennant still in front of Pie and his Pirates. But after knocking off Brooklyn twice, 6-0 and 11-6, yesterday, the Bucs are in a spot where they can drop three of their 10 remaining games and still win, even if the second-place Chicago Cubs sweep the 11 left on their schedule.

This "revenge is sweet" business pops up about every time the Yankees get into the series. Last season they sang that song about the Giants' stringbean Cliff Melton who, like Tobin, was a Yankee castoff. But everybody forgot all about it after Gehrig and Comany knocked Melton flat.

There are whispers Tobin is looking for a chance to go to work on them th'ar Yanks. The world champions obtained him from Oakland in '36 and in '37 sold him to the Bucs. The story now is that Jim figures the Yanks didn't give him enough of a tryout.

It won't be Jim's fault if the Bucs boot the pennant. He's been pretty much of the "bellcow" of the Pirates' pitching in recent weeks. Yesterday, his four-hit job in the opener took all the starch out of the Dodgers.

Still Hold Lead.

As a result of his tossing, along with Arky Vaughan's slick stickwork in the nightcap, the Bucs left for the West still boasting a 3½-game edge over the Cubs, who turned in a double-win over Philadelphia in the first full National League program in four days.

Bill Lee equalled a National League record with his fourth shutout, by a 4-0 count in the opener, and Clay Bryant came through 2-1 in the afterpiece. The Giants regained third place by beating Cincinnati Reds twice, 6-1 and 2-1.

Feature of the Giants' twin win was the gallant work of Hal Schumacher. Although his arm is so sore it aches on every pitch, Prince Hal tossed a six-hitter. In the nightcap, Harry Gumbert gave up only three hits.

The Yankees snapped out of their eight-year record six-game losing streak by overpowering Chicago White Sox 7-4. Red Rolfe and Joe Gordon hit homers in this lone game on the American League card.

Boston Bees, determined to hang on to fifth place in the National, nipped the Cardinals twice, 6-5 and 4-1.

Swing it out, Gerard!

"Let's continue to arm ourselves, bending every resource we possess to the task of equipping the nation with arms and munitions of war," the paper said.

Impossible Terms

The Daily Herald (Labor), examining the rumored possibility that Chancellor Hitler spurred by the success of his tactics, may demand destruction of the part of Czechoslovakia which would be left under the Franco-British plan, declared: "Britain can on no account, under whatever threats, agree to such terms."

Prime Minister Chamberlain should make such a reply and follow with "immediate, direct consultation with France, Soviet Russia and Czechoslovakia for immediate close collaboration of their governments and general staffs to face further menaces," the paper said.

The Daily Mail (Independent) urged the public to wait "patiently until the prime minister is able to tell the country the full facts" instead of criticizing Mr. Chamberlain.

It contended the settlement of the Czech-Sudeten problem is only a stepping stone to the prime minister's larger project of general understanding which is his "real objective."

The blunt assertion that Hitler might refuse to guarantee the integrity of rebuilt Czechoslovakia unless Poland and Hungary also get minority favors was made today.

Mr. Chamberlain's letter to Hitler came when there were reports of new and heavy German troops concentrations near the Czechoslovak frontier.

For that reason, it was assumed by many here, the Prime Minister sought definite assurances from Hitler that the German troops would not move eastward.

No Guarantees.

Neither Warsaw nor Budapest can be expected to guarantee the "Prague borders" if their nationality groups remain within them, said the influential Berlin tageblatt.

"Does anybody expect that Germany could extend its guarantees to a fragile state which still shows fundamental defects in construction?" the newspaper demanded.

A reliable source said yesterday's conversations were limited to the Czechoslovak-German situation and that concrete plans for the early annexation of the Sudeten areas to Germany were expected today.

The Tageblatt gave another clue to the direction of the talks, first of which was on Sept. 15, at Berchtesgaden, Germany.

The newspaper alleged that Bolshevism was gaining a foothold in Prague and said:

"Bolshevism must be liquidated immediately in the interest of peace."

Neutral Interpretations

The prime minister's appeal—"To insure that local conditions in Czechoslovakia are such as not in any way to interfere with the progress of the conversations"—was interpreted in neutral quarters as meaning:

1. Mr. Chamberlain feared the Anglo-French plan to save European peace by the partition of Czechoslovakia might not keep German troops from marching in if the Sudeten-Czech border disturbances continued.

2. Mr. Chamberlain might have asked Germany, Hungary and Poland to give these conversations in the Rhineland a chance to bring real peace to Europe.

The fact that the conferences were continued gave some hope that Mr. Chamberlain had not despaired of realizing a real peace pact, his goal ever since he took office in 1937.

There was some evidence that the appeal took the Germans by surprise. An unconfirmed report said Mr. Chamberlain asked Hitler to make a joint appeal to the same effect, but that the Reichsfuehrer refused.

Madoc Institute Plans For the Fair

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, Sept. 23. — At the September meeting of Madoc Women's Institute held on Friday at the home of Mrs. B. Tanner, an attendance of about forty-five was reported, Mrs. McCorey presiding.

Arrangements were made to hold a refreshment booth on Fair Day at the Institute stand, and all committees were arranged. Each member was asked to contribute two pies, and cakes. Sandwiches will be made by a committee volunteering for that purpose. Directors were named for the supervision of the Women's Department of fancy work, art, cooking, and children's work, also for flowers and domestic manufacture.

Current events of the past month were reviewed by Mrs. T. L. Nickle, and Mrs. L. McCarey gave a very enthusiastic account of the course on Buymanship to which she was appointed representative from Madoc. This course was begun during the month in Marmora, and will be continued in October and November.

Mrs. A. Smith was appointed as delegate to the area convention in Belleville, with Mrs. William Parks as alternate.

Mr. Sparks, field secretary for the Canadian Institute for the Blind, was the guest speaker for the day, and gave a very interesting address relating many instances of the excellent work done in educating blind persons to become self-supporting and able to live a life of normal confidence and to gain real happiness through useful tasks and real enjoyment through reading by the Braille system. Arrangements were completed for a tag day under Mr. Sparks' supervision to be held on Fair Day, October 4 and 5.

Roll-call was well answered and well conducted by the two leaders of the contest, and a real battle will be fought before either can be declared winner.

The National Anthem was succeeded by a very enjoyable afternoon tea served by the hostess and her assistants.

Norwood Enjoys Harvest Services

NORWOOD, Sept. 23.—Special thanksgiving service was held Sunday morning in Christ's Anglican church. The Rev. Canon Swayne of Bonarlaw, was the guest speaker and gave a harvest time message based on "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above and cometh from the Father." (James 1-17)

Special music was rendered by the choir and a solo "More Like The Master" by Mrs. Hill, added much to the service.

The church was tastefully decorated with flowers, fruit, vegetables and every product of the garden and field. Liberal thanksgiving contributions were realized.

Chamberlain Is Giving Away What We Fought For Declares 75-Year-Old Veteran

Pioneer Residents Of Burleigh Falls Are Wed Fifty Years

"Chamberlain is going to give away what we fought for," declared William Hicks, 75-year-old veteran of the Great War on his golden wedding anniversary yesterday. A pioneer resident of Burleigh Falls, he was visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Astles on Armour Road yesterday.

Mr. Hicks had only denunciation for Chamberlain's peace, said Great Britain and France should have "cleaned Hitler out." Ten years from now—or indeed much sooner—the young men of this country will have to fight a much worse war because of Chamberlain's "weak" attitude this week, was his opinion.

William Hicks was 52 years old when he joined up with the 93rd Battalion in 1915. "I was old but I was tough," the ex-lumberman said. "I never fell out of a march all the time I served."

He was born near Lakefield, came to Peterborough with his parents when he was eight years old. When he was 17 he took his first trip to Apsley, by stage. Starting at eight o'clock in the morning, he reached his destination at 9 o'clock at night. "We had to get out and walk up all the hills and through all the mudholes," he recounted. "We had lunch at Biddy Hill near Burleigh and changed horses." It was a long trip from Peterborough to Apsley in those days, and there wasn't a great deal to see when you got there, he said.

A lumberman all over Ontario off and on for thirty-five years, he bought land near Burleigh when he was married half a century ago. "We had to cut a hole in the woods to build our home," said Mrs. Hicks. "I was a trained nurse, and I didn't even know how to bake bread, but I learned," she said. "We always had a hard time to make ends meet, but we have had a good life."

From 1922 until 1933 Mr. Hicks was lockmaster on the Trent Canal at Burleigh. In those days and earlier there were ten times the number of boats locking through, he said, and laid the present drop-off to the increase in trucking through the district. "It used to be that dozens of boats passed through each day with lumber, supplies, and so on, but now it's a rare day you see a boat. There wasn't a big one all summer," he said.

READY TO "HOP" OUT

Todays alarmnig news on the looming war between Czechoslovakia and Germany brought a glimmer of humor from the lips of one young man.

Seen striding down George street, peering in all directions and obviously in search of someone, he was stopped by one of his friends and asked for whom he was searching.

"I'm looking for that trapper, King Taylor," came the repiy. "After reading the European news this morning, I think I'll hop aboard his Arctic sled and head for the Arctic on a one-way ticket."—P.

SHORT LIVED TRAGEDY

Near the corner of Hunter and Mark streets during the rain last evening, a modishly dressed eight-year-old girl strutted beneath a new style transparent umbrella, clad in smart green coat and matching hat. Her stately bearing and queently walk proved beyond doubt she hadn't a care in the world, and was acutely conscious of the elegance of her finery. Suddenly a sharp gust of wind turned the umbrella inside out. The scene changed instantly from dignity to confusion. Bewildered, the child ran screaming, first in one directon, then the other terrified at the thought that her new clothes might be ruined by the rain, and frightened because she had apparently broken the beautiful umbrella. Just as suddenly the wind flipped the umbrella back into normal position again. The girl stood stock still, stopped crying, looked once at the umbrella to satisfy herself that all was well, glanced around and noted that she had no audience, then started off down the street once more with the jaunty swagger and confident air of a well dressed composed woman. Once again she was a master of the situation and a queen in her own little world.

Young's Point Boy Has Passed Junior Matriculation At Home

Fifth Form at St. Peter's School here boasts a student who has never before attended a High School. He is 21-year-old George Booth of Young's Point, self-educated since he was graduated from Continuation School in 1932.

Since 1932 the plucky youngster, with no other means of continuing his education, has studied by himself, has completed his junior matriculation and part of his senior. His ambition is to complete Normal School education here and return to the teaching profession.

George Booth started to educate himself in 1933 with the assistance of Roy Tranter, then a teacher in the district. He pays great tribute to a former teacher, Miss Florence Tedford, who he says is responsible for instilling in him the conviction he could succeed without attendance in regular classes. She moved away from the district before he commenced studies and Mr. Tranter tutored him his first year. Since that time he has been on his own, has completed junior matriculation and part of his senior matriculation.

Because he felt the task is now becoming too great he has enrolled at St. Peter's School for instruction by teachers, and hopes to finish up this year. He is taking seven subjects.

Girl's Collar Bone Broken In Crash

Doreen Keliele, 149 Hart avenue, had her collar bone fractured and two cars were damaged Thursday night when automobiles driven by Charles W. Wright, 280 William street, and S. L. Keliele, Hart avenue, collided at the intersection of George and Simcoe streets.

Keliele was driving north on George street and Wright who had been proceeding east on Simcoe street, was about to turn north when the two machines collided. There were four persons in Keliele's car but the driver and Mrs. Keliele and Mrs. William Griffin escaped unhurt. Wright was alone. His car was damaged about the front.

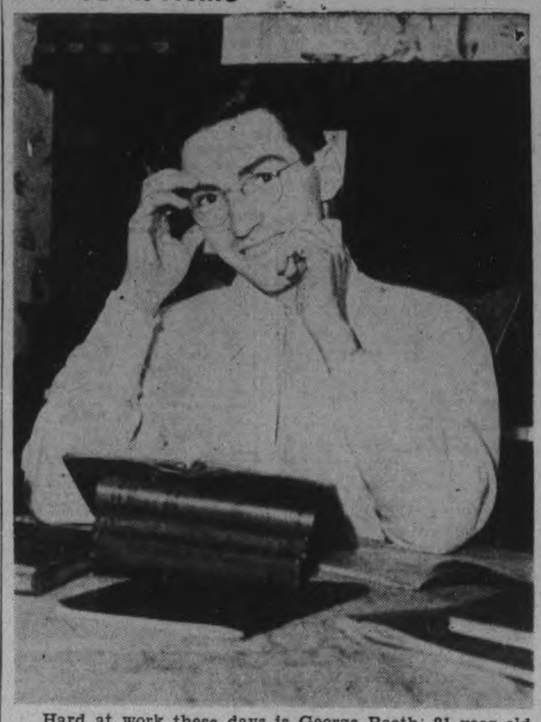
Ministry of Labor statistics just compiled show the popular age for marrying among women of Britain and Northern Ireland is 24.

Studied At Home



Hard at work these days is George Booth, 21-year-old youth from Young's Point, who is attending St. Peter's School here. In Fifth Form, this is the first year George has spent in a regular high school, having passed junior and part of senior matriculation by private study.

Ground Hog Tails Get a Bit High This Time Of Year

"SURE, we'll have a competition for the greatest number of groundhog tails to be collected by school children," said Frank Paterson, agricultural representative, this morning. "That is," he amended, "we will if you'll come out and look after the exhibit."

An Examiner reporter balked at the suggestion when the agricultural representative told him the exhibits would have to be placed in a separate building far removed from other exhibits, and hinted that a gas mask would be the proper equipment to carry into the building. "They get a little bit high at this time of year," explained Mr. Paterson. Some counties sponsor such contests at their Rural School Fairs and the reporter wanted to know why there were no groundhog tails at Peterborough county fairs.

Drunk Driving Charge Is Dismissed

A charge against Dennis Donaghue of drunken driving on September 7 was dismissed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning, after the two witnesses for the prosecution had been heard and without the accused being required to put in a defence.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., appeared for the defence and Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., prosecuted.

The first witness for the prosecution, Abraham Atkins, 612 Armour Road, took the Jewish oath. He testified that after his truck had stopped at the stop sign at Queen and Hunter streets a car driven by Donaghue had come along and bumped into it. Afterward he saw Donaghue standing by his car and the accused had asked him if he was looking for trouble.

"I told him he was not fit to drive home. I think he had a little in him, Atkins testified.

"How would you describe his condition" asked the Crown Attorney.

"I wouldn't say he was very sober." replied the witness.

"What were you doing that day?" asked Mr. Gordon in cross-examination.

"I was peddling."

"Have you a peddlers license?"

No Peddler's License.

"I have a junk dealer's license and a poultry license but no peddler's license," replied Atkins.

"That's just what the assistant city clerk has told me," replied defense counsel. "We are going to see that you get one."

"What is your real name?" he continued.

"Atkins," replied the witness.

"That isn't your proper name. Aren't you a Polish Jew?"

"No, I am a Russian Jew and Atkins was my name in the old country."

"Let me see you write that name out in Russian. I want to trace you a little further than this court," said Mr. Gordon.

Atkins said he could not write his name in Russian but would do so in Yiddish.

"All right," said defense counsel. Write it in Yiddish. I can read one about as well as the other."

Witness complied with the request and the signature was put in as an exhibit. "I don't see how it is going to help you," said Magistrate Langley smilingly.

Pressed as to Donaghu's condition Atkins finally said that it looked to him as if Donaghue had been drinking.

Unable To Say.

William Martin, driver of Atkins' truck, described the accident and was then asked about the driver of the other car.

"I couldn't say whether he was drunk or sober," he declared.

"No cross-examination," said Mr. Gordon and the Crown Attorney told the court that that concluded the prosecution's case."

"I move for dismissal," said Mr. Gordon and with a "dismissed" from the magistrate, the case was ended abruptly.

Jewish New Year Starts On Sunday

Peterborough Jewry will usher in the year 5699 on Sunday night with prayers that the coming year will bring a cessation of the tragedies that have befallen the race since the last Jewish New Year celebration.

The Hebrew "Rosh Hashonoh," literally the "beginning of the year" is the first of the Ten Days of Penitence, the most important religious season in the Jewish calendar. These days end with the Day of Atonement, Yom Kippur, on Tuesday, October 4.

The year 5698, now ending, will undoubtedly go down in Jewish history as one of the most tragic and ill-fated years of all their wandering existence. Germany Austria, and now Italy, will be names to inspire fear and hatred in the hearts of Jews for generations to come. Even Palestine is a haven no longer.

Company Would Give Employees Best Old Age Protection It Is Possible To Purchase

Employees Would Make Monthly Payments On Annuity Contracts

A contributory retirement annuity plan which aims to give to employees, the best old age protection that it is possible to purchase at the present time is under consideration by the Quaker Oats Company and may be introduced in the local factory.

Despite the fact that there is no legal obligation to pay pensions today, this company has for many years been paying pensions to retired employees, who have grown old in the employ of the Company and through the years have been faithful and loyal to their employer. At the present time more than 200 former employees get pension cheques every month.

It was learned unofficially today that for several months experts and advisors who have specialized in the pension field have been compiling data for the Company and have evolved the annunity plan. Under the plan employees make monthly payments which will be paid on annuity contracts with either the Dominion of Canada or the Canada Life Assurance Company.

Detailed Information Given

A letter handed yesterday to each employee along with a book giving detailed information on the plan, says in part: "The plan is a contributory retirement annuity plan, which means that each employee who joins is called upon to pay a part of the cost of his or her future service annuity; the balance of the cost, which in every case wil amount to more than half will be paid by the Company. In addition the Company expects to purchase as rapidly as good management permits annuities for present pensioners, for employees now eligible to retire and past service annuities for employees under retirement age." Completing the purchase of these annuities will entail the spending of a large sum of money.

The plan as set forth in the letter indicates clearly that the employees can't possibly lose by joining because if he retires under the plan, he receives for life an annuity for which he has paid only a fraction of the cost. If he will take a smaller annuity for himself he can provide an annuity for his wife who may survive him. If he leaves the service of the Company he has the benefits from his own contributions and if he has twenty years service and is fifty years of age, (women 45) the money the Company has contributed for his future service account will be used to purchase for him additional annuity. If he dies in service, his beneficiary receives his contributions with interest and finally if the Company ever finds it necessary to discontinue the plan, all payments which the Company has made will be vested in the members.

The plan if accepted will become effective on September 1st, 1938, and requires that 75 per cent. of the eligible employees join for the Future Service Retirement Annuities. The main plan deals with employees who have completed six months of service with the Company and for men who have attained their 30th birthday but not reached his 65th and for women who are over 25 and under 60.

The object of this plan is to provide a comfortable retirement income through regular contributions by both the employee and the Company and the normal retirement age is 65 for men and 60 for women. Each employee will contribute four per cent. of his earnings in each calendar year, and the company makes up the balance of the total cost of the total cost of the retirement annuities.

No medical examination is necessary and all information including questions and answers are listed in the booklet which each employee received this week.

New York, Sept. 23 (CP)

WILLIAM J. LANGFORD, the former Texas cowboy who became a yacht owner a few days ago when a complete stranger presented him with a yacht, was just a former Texas cowboy last night.

John S. Nairn, who said he was a San Francisco inventor, said the yacht cost $75,000 thirty-five years ago, but he didn't want her any longer and anyway he was working on new inventions.

Both masts were gone, the engine too was missing, but a yacht is a yacht and Langford happily planned a world cruise, thinking nothing but a hurricane would stop his trip.

Wednesday night there was a nasty, blustering hurricane and today the gift yacht—now kindling wood and junk—lay smashed forever on the beach of Gravesend Bay.

Charge Dismissed Against Girl

The vagrancy charge against Patricia Crawley, young Oshawa girl, who was arrested in the apartment of a local Chinese a few nights ago, was dismissed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning.

"I am not offering any evidence against this woman," Chief Newhall told the court, "if she will promise to stay away from Peterborough. We do not want her here."

The girl promised she would remain away from the city if she were given her freedom and Magistrate Langley dismissed the case.

10 Lost Tribes Are Traced Through History

R. J. Bolton, principal of Central Public School was the first speaker on the Fall series of meetings as the Kinsmen Club resumed their Thursday evening get-to-gethers last night at the Empress Hotel. He gave a discourse on the doctrine of British Israel which stimulated the imagination of his listeners and resulted in an impromptu discussion after the meeting had adjourned.

Mr. Bolton was introduced by Hal Leybourne and in his opening remarks he stated he was no fanatic on the subject merely one who had given it some study and would attempt to expound the informaion he had obtained in as brief a form as possible.

"British Israel is simply a belief held by many and said to be substantiated by the Bible that the British Commonwealth of Nations are the chosen people of God," he said.

Must Accept Bible

"If you don't accept the Bible as being the truth, and the Word of God, then you will not believe any of the statements which I will make. The Bible is a combination of two things, history and prophecy," he said. "When the world was made, God had a definite plan for it. The world progresed for a time then slowly gave way to wickedness and God sent the flood which destroyed all except Noah and his family. After that the world progressed again but the deteriorating period came once more and God chose the family of the Patriarch, Abraham and made a contract with him that the birthright should remain always in that family."

The speaker then traced the birthright down through succeeding generations to the twelve sons of Jacob, the second youngest of which was Joseph and he succeeded to the birthright. Following down through the centuries God renewed the promise or contract and the problem is to determine where the chosen people of Israel are to-day.

Mr. Bolton in his talk gave a sketch based on historical fact of the movements of the 12 tribes of Israel from the time when they fled from the bondage of Pharaoh in Egypt and wandered for forty years before reaching the Promised Land. He explained how the tribe of Zarra was the first to settle in what is now England, and in the course of his talk told of the Goths, the Huns, the Anglos, Saxons, Jutes Britons and many others, all of whom can be traced with reasonable certainty to the twelve tribes, although the twelve tribes were conquered and recorded by historians as having vanished. Then from Biblical to modern history he explained the movement of the European and Asiatic nations up to the Battle of Hastings in 1066 when Harold of Hardrada by his victory united many of the original Hebrew tribes to form the British Empire.

If Exponents Are Correct

"If all this is true and the exponents of British Israel are correct in all their deductions and interpretations of the Bible then Great Britain is the chosen people of God, and prophecy indicates that a time will come when there will be a terrible battle between the forces of right represented by the Children of Israel and the forces of wrong, in which the forces of right shall be victorious," he stated.

Mr. Bolton gave a description of the Great Pyramid and explained that every year many "fly by night" prophets read a little on the subject and then proceed to give their own theory on the pyramid, bewildering everyone with predictions that the world is near its end, and the Armageddon is upon us. He further stated that scientists and astronomers had made measurements and calculations at this pyramid that will be of great interest to people who take the trouble to study this subject. His talk also dealt with the English Royal line, Jeremiah's tomb in Ireland, the Iberian invasion and many other historical slants which all tied in together to make one of the most interesting talks ever given to the Kinsmen.

Don Loucks voiced a warm vote of thanks on behalf of the Club and Dr. Mark Crough, chairman, extended an invitation to the speaker to visit the Club again in the future after her had tendered the thanks of the members.

Dr. Crough stated that on Friday night a district meeting would be held at Cobourg starting at 7.30 standard time and was being called as a tribute to the newly elected national president, Dr. R. Richards Twelve or fifteen members of the local club are expected to make the trip.

Fire in New London Adds to Hurricane Horror

This aerial view of hurricane-swept New London, Conn., made from an Eastern Airlines plane, shows the still-burning buildings that added to the horror and confusion of the destructive storm that swept the Atlantic seaboard. The fires came at the height of the big blow, when firemen were hampered by failure of power and flooded streets. Note wind-wrecked buildings.

An Early Winter?

FORT ST, Ont, Sept. 23—(CP).—Button up your overcoat and take the current raw weather as a hint to keep the coal bin full. Wild ducks are becoming plentiful in this Lambton county district and some people regard their flight as a sign of an early winter.

Wise Or Pessimistic

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Sept. 23. —(CP).—An early winter appears certain to residents here. In addition to the usually reliable forecast provided by muskrats preparing their winter homes early, the clincher was in the action of the highways department dumping piles of crushed stone at various points to use on slippery winter roads.

Mildred Evans won the Eaton Trophy for the highest number of points of any pupil and second was Joan Shearer, with Mary Brealey placing third. All girls attend Otonabee S.S. No. 3. Boys placed well behind the girls in the number of points they amassed.

Help To Complicate Czech Situation

With the visit of Foreign Minister Koloman De Konya, of Hungary, LEFT, and Josef Lipski, Polish Ambassador to Germany, RIGHT, to the Bavarian chalet of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, the Czech situation is seen in danger of being further complicated—even though the Czech government has bowed to the demands of Germany for the cession of the Sudeten German areas. Hungary and Poland are now demanding a slice of Czech territory and the return of Polish and Hungarian minorities to their respective countries.

Old Millbrook Hotel, Shaw Building Sold To Telephone Company

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Sept. 23. — A real estate deal of importance which has just been put through in the village is the purchase of the white brick, two-story Shaw building, King street centre, by the Millbrook Telephone Company, with the probability that before the end of October the Central will be moved from its present location on the north side of King street, where it has been for some years past, in property belonging to Dr. H. A. Turner, to the new quarters.

The building is considerably larger than the Telephone Company will require for its needs, and one suggested change, which would undoubtedly meet with popular approval, is to move the Public Library to the room on the east side of the building just purchased, doing away with the climb up the rather steep stairs to its present quarters over Bentley's hardware store. This matter came up for discussion at the regular meeting of the Library Board last week, but no definite decision has yet been reached.

Another suggested improvement, which yet lacks ratification, is to have the municipality install a rest room and lavatory in the rooms available at the south side of the former Shaw building, using for this purpose the funds, amounting to something over four hundred dollars, which were a surplus after meeting all expenses in connection with the official opening of the paved streets here a few years ago, when W. T. Wood was Reeve and Warden of the United Counties. This fund is, at the discretion of the Reeve and Clerk, to be used for some civic improvement project.

Landmark For Years.

The Shaw building has been a landmark in local history for many years; it was formerly the Victoria hotel, and in the first instance was a small saloon, later being enlarged to its present dimensions. The first building was a frame structure, and as far as can be learned this was moved back and used as part of the stable built on the lot at the rear, and the white brick put up; the name Victoria Hotel can still be dimly seen on the west side of the building.

Some proprietors of this hotel, which flourished in the days of the open bar, were James Sloan, William Staples, and Alonza Fee. Dr. H. A. Turner has in his possession an invitation card for a ball being held in the Victoria Hotel, which reads as follows:

"New Year's Eve Ball, to be held in the Victoria Hotel, Millbrook, on the evening of Friday, 31st December, 1869.

Manager: A. Leach, Millbrook; H. Sutherland, Port Hope; R. Devell, Millbrook; C. Warmington, Port Hope.

Good music will be in attendance. Tickets $1.50.

W. M. C. Penton, Proprietor.

Already the frame part of the building on the east side, which has been used to house farm machinery, once offered for sale with the agent occupying the adjoining room as a shop, is being torn down, as the Telephone Company goes ahead with preparations to remove to its new location.

The original frame building was painted a dingy brown, its removal to the rear lot, and the erection of the present building taking place when Mrs. Fee, who carried on after her husband's death, was in charge of the former Victoria Hotel.

MISS NATALIE BIE, a Brooklyn stenographer on vacation, who arrived today aboard the steamer Granada, got her wish to "run into a hurricane." She made the wish, Captain Charles S. Hill said, while the ship was steaming through the peaceful Caribbean toward Philadelphia.

"She got one that she'll probably remember," the captain commented.

LINDSAY

Mark Sears Again Is Remanded

LINDSAY, Sept. 22.—Mark Sears Bexley township farmer, accused of shooting with intent to maim his brother, Thomas, almost a month ago was again remanded until next Monday when he appeared before Magistrated E. A. Gee in Police Court here yesterday.

Last week Sears elected trial before the next court of competent jurisdiction, but through his counsel, Lorne Jordan, asked permission to change his election to one of summary trial.

Crown Attorney J. E. Anderson declared the charge was a serious one and would not consent to a change of election. The magistrate agreed and Sears will appear for preliminary hearing next Monday.

Sears was arrested on Aug. 25 after police had scoured the woods of Bexley township for twenty-four hours following the shooting, said to have been formented by a quarrel over disposition of lands.

Over 2 Tons Marijuana Destroyed In Districts Around Bancroft

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Sept. 23.—Ray Whiteman of Queensboro, was arrested by Officers Hayes, Danford and Dymond and was charged with stealing an auto, the property of Mr. Delyea of Queensboro. Whiteman, it is alleged has been in possession of the vehicle since September 13. The officers were carrying out duties on No. 7 Highway when the arrest was made. Whiteman was placed in Hastings County jail at Belleville, and will appear at an early date before Magistrate Lloyd.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Ketcheson, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Elliott, and Mrs. Piero Rashotte, who was accompanying them to Kingston, had a narrow escape from serious injury when the car driven by Mr. Ketcheson, was involved in an accident on Highway No. 2, east of Napanee. It appears that the driver was about to pass a truck and as he turned out, the truck driver, allegedly without signalling, commenced to swing toward a side-road, leading to the north. Mr. Ketcheson, endeavoring to avoid an accident, attempted to go by him. However, his car was struck by the bumper of the truck, causing it to swerve into the ditch, partly turning over. Fortunately, the occupants escaped with only a shaking up and all were able to proceed on to Kingston.

Constables Palmateer and Wells destroyed over two tons of marijuana weed near the village of Bancroft, during the past week. All provincial police officers have been instructed to watch for it and as a result a considerable quantity has been located and destroyed.

The barn and crops of Wesley Crawford, Roslin, were a complete loss when fire suddenly broke out during threshing operations. The separator and other threshing mechanism, the property of Mr. Holgate were saved. The fire broke out and spread so rapidly that the entire barn was enveloped in flames before assistance could be provided. The barn and crops suffered loss, but fortunately the majority of Mr. Crawford's stock was in the pasture fields at the time. Some insurance was carried.

What is supposed to be a near record in onion production was seen today in two splendid specimens of the Spanish type that weighed two and one-half pounds each and measured fourteen and one-half inches in circumference.

The onions were grown in the garden of Russell Marsh, Sulphide, who planted seven hundred seed in the spring and recently harvested twelve bushels from this planting. Mr. Marsh has had plenty of experience in growing onions, having produced some fine specimens during the past three years.

Grandmother's Day Held By Institute

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, Sept. 23. — The September meeting of the Percy W. I. was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Peter Jones with a large attendance of members and visitors. A special feature of the meeting was entertaining the grandmothers of the society and district. Mrs. George Helson, the president, presided over the opening exercises and business period. Owing to illness of the secretary, Mrs. Percy Windover, Mrs. James Black was appointed for the day. Motto for the day, "She liveth long who liveth well," was given by Mrs. John Diamond. Mrs. Lorne Hutchinson in a few chosen words paid a beautiful tribute to our grandmothers.

Mrs. Eric Merrills, who was one of the leaders that accompanied the girls to the Toronto exhibition, gave a splendid report of their trip and exhibition work, after which the two girls, Miss Lillian McCleary and Miss Velma Peterson put on the demonstration, "Clothes closets up-to-date," which won for the first place in Toronto. This was much enjoyed by all present.

Mrs. W. Campbell and Mrs. J. Newman were convenors for the following program; A splendid paper, 'Joys of Being a Grandmother,' was given by Mrs. R. Nelson. The chorus, 'When You and I Were Young Maggie' was sung by all the grandmothers present. The vocal solos by Mrs. Will Grant and Mrs. Will Campbell were much enjoyed. Contests were enjoyed and an exhibit of antiques and hand work done by some of the grandmothers was indeed very fine.

Mrs. Fred Sweet won the prize for being the oldest grandmother present and Mrs. Oscar Laver the youngest grandmother.

A vote of thanks was tendered the hostess, after which lunch was served and a social time spent together.

AFRAID TO MARRY

CHAPTER 1

JUDY ROGERS' slim, browned hand was actually trembling as she dialed Craig Denby's telephone number. She looked at it in astonishment. It was ridiculous for her nerves to grow acrobatic just because she was telephoning a tall young man, with humorous blue eyes that could be very serious when he said, "I love you," and a profile that would have meant better business for Hollywood.

So Judy hung up.

She met her own reflection in the long mirror of her dressing table. No, she hadn't changed much since morning. No one, unless he looked deeply into her brown eyes, could tell that she wanted to cry. Wanted to cry dreadfully. The dark hair, that she wore in a long bob on her slender neck, curled just as it always had. Her tilted nose retained its seven freckles, donated by the summer's swimming, golfing and tennis.

Outwardly nothing about her had changed. Nothing at all! That was funny—your whole life could be upset and yet you looked the same. But inwardly. . . .

She clutched the telephone again, and sank back among the flowered cushions of the chaise lounge. This time her hand was steady on the dial.

She loved Craig. She had known it all summer. She had not realized how much until lately. Now she wished that she had told him so Thursday night when he had asked her, as he had been doing for so long now. Thursday night — that was four days ago—she and Craig had been dinner guests at the Bantrees, on Long Island. Late in the evening they had gone walking, along the terrace, and Craig, tall and handsome in white flannels and blue coat, had caught her hands with swift impatience.

"Judy, sweet, how many more times must I ask you to marry me before you'll say 'yes'? Or aren't you going to say it, my darling?"

She had worn a white chiffon dress whose ruffles were edged with silver, and there had been silver leaves in her black hair, silver slippers on her feet. The dress was new. . .

"The last new dress I'll have for a long, long time," she murmured now. For she would marry Craig because she loved him, but she would not let him buy her any dresses or shoes. Not even a powder puff! Not until he understood that she was coming to him because she wanted to, not because a headline in the paper had frightened her.

If only, only she had told him she loved him before!

While the telephone peeled in Craig's apartment far across the city, Judy remembered her answer to Craig on the moon-bright terrace, with a blue sea far below.

"I'm afraid, Craig. Haven't I told you before?"

She had been sweet and serious in the moonlight. "Forever is such a long word, Craig. And it doesn't stretch down the years. If love lasted—but it doesn't! My mother and my father were divorced when I was six. Aunt Polly's been married three times. Your own parents, too, Craig! And at boarding school there were so many of us from broken homes, we had a D.D. club—daughters of divorce. No, Craig, I'm afraid of marriage!"

"You've said all of this before, honey," Craig had reproved her. "Let's skip it. Here's the issue! Judy, do you love me?"

She did. But if she told him so, he would sweep all of her fears into the shining sea. So she hesitated, and in that moment someone joined them. Sooner or later, though, she knew she would marry Craig. Maybe love deceived you, but you couldn't hold out again it forever.

The bell was rining loudly in Craig's apartment, but he did not answer. She waited. He must, he must be there!

As he left her Thursday night he had said: "I'm going away for the week-end, Judy. I'll be back sometime about noon Monday. At the apartment, probably. I'll give you a ring."

"Well, he hadn't. So she was telephoning him.

"Hello!" That was Craig. But his voice sounded drowsy. Half asleep.

"Craig, it's Judy!"

"Judy! And what are you doing up at the crack of dawn, my sweet one?"

"It isn't the crack of dawn, young man. It's a quarter of 12, I thought you were just in from the country."

There was a pause, almost as though he wondered just how to pattern his next wkords.

He was speaking. "I came home late last night, Judy. Or early this morning, if you want to be literal. I threw my weary bones across the bed and forgot there was a world until the telephone rang."

She laughed. She couldn't stop. It was promoted by relief. So Craig had not heard the news. He didn't know that his father was bankrupt, wiped out, penniless.

"Craig darling—I want to see you."

"A ticket for speeding again?"

"Much more serious."

"You were impudent with the cop and it didn't go?"

It was such foolish chatter. Why didn't he drop it? Why prolong the banter

Or why couldn't she come right out and say: "Craig, I do love you. You asked me to let you know when I was ready. And my father's finances have nothing, nothing to do with that. Oh, please, believe me, Craig! To prove it I won't let you give me one thing. I won't mary until I have a job. Only keep loving me."

But she didn't say it. Maybe she wouldn't have anyway, but Craig interrupted before she could speak again.

"Judy, I have an important announcement. Listening?" Again a pause, so brief it almost didn't happen. Then: "Honey, I was married last night."

"Oh, Craig!" She hadn't heard him correctly, of course. Or he was teasing her. Craig was going to marry her, Judy Rogers! Hadn't he been asking her for years . . . three of them anyway. But she must answer him lightly—"With a book and a ring and a bride, Craig?" she asked, forcing her husky voice to follow a gay pattern.

"The prettiest bride you ever saw, Judy. We went to Greenwich. It was all so sudden, you see . . ."

"Yes, yes, of course." So he was married. Married to some strange person, or maybe not strange. She must find out.

"Whom did you marry, Craig? Do I know her?"

"I don't think so. I didn't either until I met her at the house party. She's Mary Banner, a southern girl, minister's daughter and all that, who's been doing bits on the radio."

A moment before the wire that carried Judy's voice to Craig had been a shinging, vibrant cord that drew them close. Now he was—somebody else's husband.

Because she had to breathe deeply before she could answer him, the man spoke quickly, concern in his deep tones.

"Judy, are you all right?"

"Of course, nut. It was a shock, that's all. When your favorite beau comes back from a week-end with a charming bride, you silly goof, a girl has a right to a few gasps. Here I was depending on your devotion until I was a nice old lady—"

He laughed, and she knew that he did not suspect that a crack was beginning in her heart, growing wider, just as a crevice started in the earth when there was to be a crater.

"Judy, you were right about everything. If you had ever intended to agree to my repeated request, you would have done it right off the bat. You had more sense than I did. Some day you'll meet a better guy who'll knock your fears into a jelly bean."

"I could make you a bet on it, Craig, but I'd win hands down," she heard her voice answering. Marry? Not ever! Craig was gone, and with him her last belief that maybe, just maybe, love could last. But she must talk, "But I haven't congratulated you at all. I do, with all my heart. Tell Mary Banner she has my favorite choice of husband, if I wanted one, and want to see her soon."

"You will. She went back to her own apartment last night to pack up. We're taking a short cruise, leaving this evening. We'll see you when we get back, Judy."

She hung up. The long room had not changed. Only she, Judy Rogers, was different. Craig was gone. The pain she experienced was so real, so cold, she jumped up and began to change her dress quickly.

Her father's money was gone, too. That thought gave her an idea. She picked up the telephone again and dialed another number.

She asked for her father's attorney.

"Is it important, Miss Rogers?" the man's secretary asked, and she discerned the pity that threaded the girl's tones. Pity, and yet secret joy that Judy Rogers, the most popular debutante of her season, three years before had slipped from her pedestal with the going of her father's fortune.

"I'm afraid so, Miss Martin. My father wanted Mr. Heaton to explain some of the intricacies of the —the financial upset to me. He's tied up in conferences, you see."

"Just a moment, please."

"Miss Rogers? Mr. Heaton is tied up in court today but he suggested I see you. This is Ronald Birrell. I joined the firm last month, you see. Suppose we make it a luncheon conference if you are free?"

Ronald Birrell—she had heard of him.

"Well, then, the Waldorf at 1?" she asked, naming a familiar lunching place.

She heard a long whistle over the telephone. "Listen, Judy Rogers, we dine at cafeterias, marble-topped restaurants, places you've never been. Lunch with me means Child's."

If she hadn't been so upset, Judy might have laughed. But she had been hurt cruelly a moment before, so she said:

"You're trying to tell me, I suppose, that I should get started in on the automats—now that I'm poor!"

"You're a mind reader, I always liked bright young women. Well, is it Childs' or not?"

Brides-to-Be Are Always Given Plenty of Advice In Advance, So Here the Tables Are Turned And The Prospective Bridegroom Gets Some Helpful Hints

WHEN a girl gets married her mother and her sisters, her cousins and her aunts load her down with advice about how to retain her husband's affections. Nobody, however, ever offers a word of counsel to the poor, ignorant, blundering bridegroom about how to keep his wife in love with him and glad she married him. Heaven knows he needs a few matrimonial tips more than she does, for a female infant is born knowing more about managing a husband than a man finds out about managing a wife in fifty years of marriage.

So here are a few hints about how to keep a wife eating out of his hand that I offer to the young man about to be married and which, faithfully followed, will keep his wife burning incense before him, prevent nagging, cure nerves, silence arguing, cut milliners' and dressmakers' bills in half and turn her into a good cook and penny-pincher. This valuable information consists in:

Not throwing away the bait with which you caught your fish. Keep up the technique of courtship. Don't quit showing her all the little attentions and gallantries that won her heart. Don't drop all love-making as soon as you are married. Comparatively few women are mind-readers and know that they are still IT with their husbands if they never tell them so.

Don't be stingy with your compliments. Don't begrudge your wife a few kind words. They will pay a bigger percentage on the dollar than anything else in which you can possibly invest.

Keep yourself easy on the eyes. If you had gone courting with a three days' stubble of beard on your face and had sat around in your stocking feet and your collar off of an evening, she would have had the trash man ease you out of the back door. If you want your wife to think of you as a Fairy Prince, you have to look the part.

Be chummy with her. She married to get a companion, not a dummy that would sit up all evening with a paper in its hand and that would only grunt when she tried to make it speak.

Do something to make her happy and contented. Don't act as if just being married to you and working her fingers to the bone to make a comfortable home for you was all the diversion that she could possibly desire. Take her out to places of amusement at least twice a week, and when you do act as if you were enjoying it instead of looking like an early Christian martyr. She gave up many dates with other men for a permanent date with you. Make it worth her while.

Show some appreciation of what she does for you. In the bright lexicon of matrimony there is no word so potent as "thanks." Keep it forever on your tongue and your wife will think it worth while to make a burnt offering of herself on the kitchen stove for you and squeeze every nickel until the buffalo howls in agony.

Give her a square deal on the money question. She put all she had into marriage, too, and she is entitled to her share of the profits, if any. Give her an allowance to run the house on and for her own use and don't ask what she does with her money. It's hers that she has earned by her labor a thousand times over.

Don't forget that the salve-spreader is mightier than the hammer in dealing with a woman. If you are always finding fault your wife will say, "what's the use" dnd slack down in her housekeeping and let herself go slovenly, but if you praise her cooking and her personal appearance she will break her neck to justify your flattery.

Don't expect your wife to be a miracle-worker and run a house on air, to look like a millionaire in a $10 dress, and to have her hair waved and her nails manicured after a hard day's scrubbing. If you can only afford a flivver, that's that. Don't reproach it for not being a Rolls Royce.

Do your part toward making a happy home. That is a two-handed job that no woman can pull off alone. She can't keep the hearthstone warm if you are off playing poker with the boys of an evening or philandering with another woman. Don't expect her to be any better in the role of wife than you are in that of husband.

Teach her to be the kind of wife you want. Take as much trouble in training her as you would a new stenographer. Make it a rule to tell her every day that you love her. If you'll do that, she will forgive you all the balance.

Our Favorite Poems Fit Every Mood

"O suns and skies and clouds of June,
And flowers of June together,
Ye cannot rival for one hour
October's bright blue weather."

How well this happy poem by Helen Hunt Jackson fits the lilting mood of October. We find among our favorite poems one to fit every mood. In an hour of loneliness, what could be more comforting than John Burroughs' verses:

"What matter if I stand alone?
I wait with joy the coming years;
My heart shall reap where it has sown,
And garner up its fruit of tears."

Oliver Wendell Holmes expresses our hope for the future in his lovely "Chambered Nautilus":

"Build thee more stately mansions,
O my soul,
As the swift seasons roll!
Leave thy low-vaulted past!"

Our 32-page booklet gives you—in full—these beloved poems you want to cherish. The most appealing verses of Field, Riley, Longfellow, Poe, Browning, Burns, Scott Wordsworth and others.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

Suddenly Knarf and Hanid, who were at the bottom of the well, gave a shout of joy. "There's Simple Simon! We've found him!"

Sure enough, sitting on a little moss-covered rock a short distance ahead of them, they saw their friend Simon. He was holding on to his fishing-rod as tightly as he could. Something seemed to be pulling at the other end, for the rod was bent over and the line was stretched.

He smiled gladly when he saw them.

"Simon! How did you get down here?" Hanid asked.

"You're at the bottom of the well, you know. You're under water. You're as wet as you can be," Knarf pointed out. "You'd better go right up. Everyone is waiting for you at the top of the well."

"I can go up right this minute," Simon answered. "Something is at the other end of my line. It must be a whale. Here! You hold on to him, Hanid."

He Gets Loose.

Just as Simon was about to give the line and rod to Hanid, the whale gave a tug and the rod went flying out of his hand.

"Oh! He's getting away! Oh!" "Quick! Get it!" Hanid cried. Then Knarf started dashing after it, with Hanid and Simple Simon following him. But all at once he saw the rod disappearing through a large crack in the side of the well.

"There it goes!" shouted Simon. "Oh, now we'll have to run!"

They all squeezed through the crack. To their surprise they found themselves in a great wide water-meadow. Long-stemmed green and purple plants rose high, high up through the bluish water.

"It's the ocean! We're in the ocean!" Knarf said.

Far, far off they could still see the rod and line being pulled away. But they couldn't get a glimpse of the whale at the other end. They had to catch up with him first.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, September 24.

A day of difficulties, delays, obstacles and much anxiety or perplexity is the augury based on the predominant mutual and lunar aspects. Withal, there may be sudden news of surprising action that may be considered constructive and decidedly stimulating. This may create much high tension, but be wise with speech, writings, and over-indulgence with funds, all of which seem to be imperiled.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves beset by certain delays, postponements, or setbacks during the year, although there are reassuring signs of sudden and surprising news that may greatly accelerate events and cause quick and drastic enterprise. But be cautious with speech, writings, and do not put funds in jeopardy by extravagance or indulgence.

A child born on this day may be nervous, high-strung, or erratic, although quite talented in original lines, possibly to the point of intellectual genius. It may find balance and stability in profound study or scientific research.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

I never work better than when I am inspired by anger. When I am angry I can write, pray and preach well; for then my whole temperament is quickened, my understanding sharpened, and all mundane vexations and temptations depart.
—Luther.

Dear Friends:

Well, Luther can have his anger for it does not work that way with me. I can work, write, and talk better when I am happy. I can inspire others to reach upward, to overcome obstacles ,to pray, each and everyone, when a little happiness comes my way.

But there is so little happiness compared with unhappiness, so little joy for all the pain that must be borne. When your body is not so strong, when every little effort takes all your will-power to accomplish, and life flows slow and sluggishly in your veins, it is hard indeed to inspire others to go out and lick the world.

When my blood-pressure falls way down and I go around feeling shivery and cannot get any heat in my body, all my thoughts seem taken up with my discomfort. When my heart acts up as it has been doing and my arm aches with pain, all I want to do is what you want to do also, go away and lie down and suffer in silence.

All pain is accentuated by unhappiness, but if a little happy thing come along to me, and I am up like a lark, all pain forgotten, and life seems good again, the sun takes on a brighter radiance, the stars glow more brightly, the sky has a lovelier blue to it, and I feel in tune with the universe and with my Maker.

I know that we need the rain and the snow, the cloudy days, the thunderstorms, but I never enjoy them. Anger annoys me, slows me in every way. Resentment which is blood cousin to anger hurts and depresses me intensely so I try to avoid both if I can, and if I can't I try to get rid of them as quickly as possible.

When we are young we have so much to look forward to. We can put up with long hours of work, with sickness in ourselves and in the ones we love, fighting for ourselves and for them too, for in our hearts we feel that life will make up to us for all we are suffering now.

But as the years slip on and we are beginning to feel the hand of age on us, and we see our dreams fade and fade until nothing is left but a succession of empty days, we feel cheated somehow, and as if life had let us down badly.

And if we have not enjoyed everything that came along, storing them up for the lean years, we are bereft indeed. Thank God I did just that, yet it seems as if these things are taken away from us while we are still capable of lots more of enjoyment.

I think there is nothing which is so ghastly as boredom and long hours of loneliness. The mind tends to feed on itself, so does the heart, and neither one was meant for that. Yet, what to do about it none can tell us.

We have been first, now we are second or last. We have led, now our leadership is not needed any more. We have gone forward, now we must sit back. We are not tired with the things we have done so much as we are tired about the things we long to do, but cannot.

Anger is not going to better that, nor is resentment going to help. What we must learn is patience, a new way of living, a more lonely way in life. And when we have realized that, we know that some where there is One who knows how we feel, and that He will send compensations to fill our empty days and empty hearts.

So, let us "lift up our hearts" knowing He will not cast them down. Let us keep our hands and our minds busy, so that we have no time to fret or think too much on the might have been. Cheerio.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Christmas Bale Knitting Planned

The 57th Regiment Chapter, I.O.D.E. held its first meeting of the season Thursday afternoon in the Armouries, with the regent, Mrs. R. E. Clark, in the chair.

After the opening devotions, one minute of silent praper for peace was held by the members, followed by the Lord's Prayer.

The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read, and a letter from the Provincial Secretary, which contained valuable information in connection with the plan of work for the coming year.

The regent expressed her appreciation of the work done by the Hospital Committee, under the convenorship of Mrs. W. Sharpe, who reported 262 calls made since May.

A donation was made to the Children's Aid Society, and a card party was planned for the afternoon of October 6, which will be held in the Armouries.

Mrs. C. E. Newman, Educational Secretary, read a letter of appreciation from the teacher of the Chapter's adopted school near Minden. Mrs. Newman stressed the need of a refill for the library, which was sent to this school two years ago. The Chapter also decided to knit mitts and scarfs, which will be sent to the pupils in the Christmas bale.

Two new members, Mrs. E. B. Merrett and Mrs. J. H. Duncan, were welcomed to the Chapter. The meeting closed with God Save the King. Tea was served by Mrs. W. Sharpe and her committee.

VIENNA—(CP).—While Austria is credited with the dirndl dress of full skirts, bright prints, shirrings and bodice, it is a costume that is equally at home in colder climates.

Four Generations

Do You Know?

Dirty tennis balls will come up beautifully clean if you rub them hard with a circular motion on the rough doormat? This is a grand method of making them clean and far better than wetting them, as it doesn't harm the rubber or impair the bounce.

If your canvas truck or suitcase locks a bit "off-color" you can give it a coat of paint? Choose a bright Chinese lacquer to add to the feeling of holiday gaiety or to match your travelling coat. Not only does this tip make old luggage look like new, but it is easy to pick out your own if it has a distinctive color.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 23 (CP)—Making a home in a mining town may seem like work to most people, but to Mrs. John Ferguson, visitor from Sachigo River, Ont., it is a "lot of fun." Mrs. Ferguson went to the mining centre as a bride in November. The frontier type of housekeeping doesn't bother Mrs. Ferguson. Although she misses the labor-saving devices that electricity makes possible, she doesn't mind a little extra work "in such pleasant surroundings."

With only three white women at Sachigo River during the winter, things might have been rather dull. "We knitted and visited and sometimes played bridge, so we were never bored," she explained. "There is a small library at the settlement and we read a great deal."

Living in the north is economical too, according to Mrs. Ferguson. "Spring hats? Why, we never even thought of them. I have only one hat there and I wear it when absolutely necessary. In the winter it is too cold, and in the summer I don't need one."

Mrs. Ferguson is a graduate of the University of Manitoba. She obtained her Master of Arts degree in 1935.

Reception For Bridal Couple

Following the Grose-Wood wedding in St. James United Church Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock, a reception was given for the bridal couple at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. P. Aitchison, 106 Lansdowne street.

Mrs. W. A. Wood, mother of the bride, received the guests, wearing a dusky pink chiffon gown of floral design with taffeta jacket, and black felt hat with tiny veil, and a corsage of pink carnations and ferns. Mrs. E. Grose, mother of the groom, also received, gowned in navy triple sheer with matching hat, and corsage of carnations and ferns.

Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald F. Grose (the bride was formerly Marion E. Wood) will live in Belleville.

Polish Miners Parade

VALENCIENNES, France, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Fifty Polish miners paraded through the town of Fresnes today demanding independence for the 200,000 Poles living in Northern France. Police dispersed them and seized Swastika (Nazi) flags the miners carried. Most of the 200,000 Poles are miners imported after the Great War to replace depleted French manpower.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

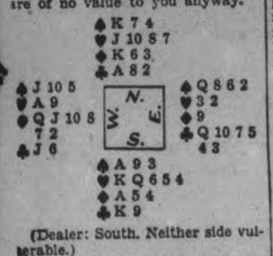
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T LOSE A WINNER

IF THE defenders are going to win a trick by ruffing, wouldn't you prefer to have it be a trick you would have lost anyway? Wouldn't that be better than having them take a trick you had expected to win? Then try to govern your moves accordingly, protecting your prospective winners and risking only the cards which are of no value to you anyway.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

This deal was played in a team-of-four game, and at both tables the contract was 4-Hearts by South. At one table it was made and it was defeated at the other.

The diamond Q was led in both instances. Where the trick was won with the A, declarer then led a heart. When West won with the A he led the diamond J, on which dummy's K was played and East ruffed. When a spade trick was lost the defenders captured another diamond.

At the other table the declarer won the first diamond trick with the K. Then when the heart A was driven out and West returned the diamond J, a low card was played from dummy and East ruffed, but South retained his diamond honor. As a result only two hearts and a spade were cashed against him.

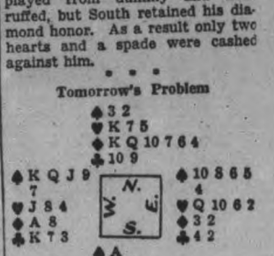
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

What is the best defense against South's contract of 5-Clubs?

Organize Lotteries

HULL, Que., Sept. 23—(CP)—The Quebec federation of chambers of commerce, in annual session here, today adopted a resolution urging that provincial governments be allowed to organize lotteries.

The motion, presented by the Jonquiere board of trade, said municipalities are called to pay their share for public charities and by organization of such lotteries provincial government's would be able to pay the entre amount.

Pot-Luck Supper Opens Havelock Y.P.L.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Sept. 23. — The Young People's League of the Havelock United church re-opened their meetings for the fall with a pot-luck supper and social evening on Monday. There were over thirty members present with the president, Miss Edna Haig, in the chair.

After supper, while the members were still seated at the table, a community sing-song was enjoyed. William Platt at this time also gave a reading.

Reports from the recent meeting of the Young People of the Peterborough Presbytery was presented by Miss Haig, who especially mentioned the forthcoming Young Peoples' Convention to be held at Perth on October 14th, 15th and 16th.

Miss Dorothy Davidson resigning as convenor of literary and social activities was replaced in this office by Miss Betty McLauchlin. Miss Laurabelle Wing was also appointed as pianist to take the place of Miss Winifred Chiles, now away from Havelock.

Following the short business period the remainder of the evening was spent playing carpet ball and other group games.

Anglican Y.P.A. Begins.

The Anglican Young People's Association of St. John's church holding their first meeting of the fall on Tuesday evening, elected their officers for the forthcoming season.

Miss Marojray Leng is the newly-elected president of the A.Y.P.A. while Miss Gena McNeely is vice-president. Miss Muriel Seabrooks was appointed to the office of recording secretary and Miss Iva Smith was re-appointed treasurer for the ensuing year.

During the business period ways and means of increasing the membership were discussed and it was decided to hold a social evening and pot luck supper at next week's regular meeting.

Knox W.M.S. Meets.

The Women's Missionary Society of Knox Presbyterian Church resuming their meetings for the fall, held their first assembly on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. P. Colquhoun, with their president, Miss Chase, in the chair.

Following the opening hymn and prayer, the Scripture reading was taken by Mrs. R. Buchanan. A chapter from the study book, "Doctors of the Desert," was read by Mrs. Wm. Martin and the Glad Tidings prayer given by the president. A very pretty solo, "In the Garden," was rendered as a vocal solo by Mrs. C. Jamieson.

During the business period, supplies for the annual bale were received and arrangements made for packing same.

The meeting concluded with the singing of a hymn and prayer by Mrs. A. S. Thompson.

The hostess served refreshments to the members and a very enjoyable social hour was spent.

Housewives Split Up Blame Communists

TORONTO, Sept. 23—(CP).—Attorney-General Conant of Ontario said today if Mrs. Bertha Lamb, president of the Housewives' Association of Canada had any evidence concerning activities of Communists in Toronto or Ontario he would investigate it. Mrs. Lamb last night announced dissolution of the organization because it was "systematically throttled by the forces of Communism."

"Whether another organization will be formed, I can't say," Mrs. Lamb said today. "There are still about eight of us loyal and we are trying to decide whether we will reorganize. If we do, it will certainly be along different lines than before."

Announcing the dissolution, Mrs. Lamb asked an Ontario government investigation and said Communist groups were pledged to arouse discontent in many national organizations.

Boy Meets Girl In Germany

The little lady at RIGHT seems all at sea as she observes a school-mate don his gas mask for the daily gas drill that now is part of the German child's education. Fearing that the "Drang Nagh Osten"—drive to the east—may backfire in the face of Reichs Fuehrer Hitler, Berlin is taking extraordinary precautions against the day of possible enemy air raids. School children are instructed in the use of the gas mask under actual gas conditions.

Fairmount Enjoys Rally Day Service

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FAIRMOUNT, Sept. 22. — Rally Day service was held Sunday at 2.30 with a good attendance, the superintendent, Mr. C. W. Seymour, and Rev. C. L. Brown taking charge of the opening exercises.

Mr. R. F. Downey of Peterborough was guest speaker, and Mr. Cruickshanks soloist.

This year is celebrated as the fourth centenary of the use of the English Bible in the churches, 1538-1938. King Henry VIII of England, ordered that a copy of the Bible in England be placed in each church so that people might come and read it. That was the beginning of popular use of the English Bible.

After four hundred years it is sold more widely than any other book in the English language. Allan Downes, Betty Allin, Mildred Ballantyne and Gordon Morrison each gave a reading on the beginning of the Bible and the advances made inside the four hundred years, while this year the new graded lessons are being introduced and prepared for us in our Sunday schools after Oct. 1st which are based upon the Bible and the truths it contains.

This was followed by a recitation by Betty Turner and solo by Mr. Cruickshanks.

Mr. Downey was then introduced by Rev. S. L. Brown and gave an illustrated talk of the young pure life being blighted by the habits of this age and the remedy to remove these black spots. He concluded by saying better far to keep that pure crystal character from the beginning without a blot or a blemish.

Mr. R. G. Johnston and his sister, Miss M. Johnston, of Port Perry, returned home on Friday after spending a short time with their brother, Mr. B. Johnston.

Miss Muriel Hooton of Peterborough, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hooton.

Mr. A. Johnston has completed the foundation for his barn and will be ready in another week for Mr. Faulkner and the carpenters.

Ontario's Apple Crop Up 11 Percent.

TORONTO, Sept. 23 — (CP) — Ontario fruit and vegetable statistics committee today estimated the province's apple production at 825,400 barrels, an increase of 11 per cent over 745,300 barrels last year. A gain of 37½ per cent in eastern Ontario's crop more than offset a decline of 23 per cent in anticipated production in the western part of the province.

Total plum production was estimated at 57,700 bushels, compared with 56,000 last year, the pear crop at 193,600, up four per cent. Grape production was figured at 30 per cent below 1937 because grapes had a one and two-bunch set compared with last year's two and three-bunch set. Also, slight mildew and leaf hopper injury was expected to affect development.

A five-per-cent boost in peach production, 552,000 bushels, was forecast. Grapes should gross 18,200 tons.

The committee said western Ontario's potato crop was of good quality but reduction would be lower than average. Tomato quality improved. In the east, potatoes are expected to yield above average with quality excellent. Onions, sweet corn, celery and carrots are good but the late cauliflower in the east are below average.

'PEACE UP TO PRAGUE'---CHAMBERLAIN

Czechs Mobilize 1,500,000 In General Call To Arms, Prague Prepares For Raids

First Line Reserves Hurry To The Colors; Military Trucks Rumble Endlessly Through Crooked Streets Of The Capital

PRAGUE, Sept. 24 (AP).—Czechoslovakia mobilized itself and an army estimated at 1,500,000 today.

Fears, excitement and war preparations gripped the republic. Six hours were given to bring the normal standing army of 180,000 to nearly 10 times that figure.

First line reserves and some second line reserves hurried to the colors. Military trucks rumbled, seemingly endlessly, through the crooked streets of this ancient capital.

Trains for Troops Only.

All trains were reserved for assembling soldiers. Excited enthusiasm burst forth as the nation sprang to arms upon announcement of the mobilization order at 10.26 p.m. last night (5.26 p.m. EDT Friday). President Edouard Benes ordered the preparations after Premier Jan Syrovy told his ministers, "The time has come for this republic to defend herself."

The nation was electrified by this announcement, broadcast after the Czech Anthem was played:

"The most important and devisive moment has arrived.

"Success depends on all of you. Expend all your powers and your fortunes in defence of the state.

"Do all the state demands of you. Be calm and firm. Tolerate no prophet of gloom. Suppress fickleness. Our battle is just.

"It is just to battle for our freedom and independence. Free Czechoslovak lives."

Millions of Czechoslovaks had awaited tensely for that statement and received it with an enthusiasm contrasting sharply with the dejection or anger they felt over former Premier Milan Hodzas' decision to surrender at Chancellor Hitler's demands the Sudeten German areas.

Cheers Echo Troops.

Men rushed from restaurants, leaving meals unfinished. Thousands of men, women and children hurried into the streets, where they stood for hours cheering the departing soldiers. The soldiers cheered as loudly as anybody.

Everybody wanted to do something. Taxis were commandeered to help the troop movements. Street cars were stopped or rerouted. Automobiles and buses were filled with hurrying soldiers.

Motor vehicles had blue lights as air raid precautions. Darkened streets emphasized the fear that such raids might come at any time. Electric signs were shut off. But there were no airplanes over Prague last night.

Hitler's Letter Said His Last Offer

BERLIN, Sept. 24—(AP)—A semi-official press release today observed that Hitler, in the memorandum, once more put Germany's demands in the most precise terms possible and in such a manner that it was apparent Germany did everything possible to bring about a peaceful solution.

Hitler's memorandum, the press release continued, contained suggestions for carrying out what already has been conceded to Germany by Great Britain and France and what was accepted by the Czechoslovak government of Milan Hodza before its resignation.

Hitler's memorandum, however, was said to be positively Germany's last offer to Czechoslovakia.

If the Czechoslovaks now decline, the press release said, they would carry the responsibility for all that might follow.

If the Czechs agree, peace would be preserved, it stated.

600 Czechs As Hostages

The official German news agency said the Sudeten German free corps arrested 600 Czechs as hostages at the frontier, threatening to shoot them if Sudeten towns were shelled.

The agency said the free corps troopers arrested the Czechs when they learned of the return of Czech troops to Rumburg, Warnsdorff and other places along the Silesian border. Czech artillery, it said, had trained cannons on these towns. The Sudetens warned the hostages would be shot if the towns were shelled.

Another dispatch from Neustadt, upper Silesia, said a group of Czechoslovak army engineers were arrested after crossing the frontier on a truck loaded with explosives.

Destroying Bridges.

The dispatch said the men had orders to destroy bridges on the

Hungary Closes Czech Border, Troops Called

BUDAPEST, Sept. 24.—(AP). — The British Legation in Budapest had a train ready to-day to evacuate British subjects in an emergency.

The United States Legation made similar preparations. The American train was ready to leave immediately for the coast. (Trieste, Italy, on the Adriatic sea is the nearest port).

The Hungarian-Czechoslovak border was closed. Farmers living near the frontier were barred from working in their fields.

The Czechoslovak army moved strong reinforcements into position at the border. Reports reaching Budapest said that at sunrise the entire frontier appeared to be a solid wall of barbed wire, steel and concrete.

The foreign office, in a statement issued 12 hours after Czechoslovakia mobilized her army, declared:

"The Hungarian government has not been frightened by Czechoslovak mobilization and will keep up its minority demands on Czechoslovakia."

Posters informed the public in Budapest that air defence manoeuvres would take place later today and to-night and that those not complying with regulations would be fined. Police, as last night during a black-out of the city, will be armed with rifles.

Munitions Move Up

Czechoslovak railroad tracks near the border were filled with freight cars which during the night brought artillery, munitions and other equipment to the augmented military force.

Machine-gun nests were said by Hungarian and Slovak refugees reaching Hungary to have been established in numerous farm houses, residents of which had fled leaving their livestock behind at the disposal of the army.

Roads leading across the frontier were barricaded with barbed wire

Rail Lines Cut, Asch Food Low

The Sudetens tried to cross the border into Germany. Czechs chased, captured and took them back into Czechoslovakia.

The Czechs fired rifles, witnesses related. The Sudeten volunteer troops replied. No one apparently was injured.

Railway traffic between Germany and this section of Czechoslovakia was stopped early to-day, causing concern for the food supply in the isolated Asch area which has a population of about 60,000, mostly Sudeten Germans.

The railways are operated by the German state railways into Czechoslovakia territory as far as Eger. Thus the last link between the Asch area and the rest of Czechoslovakia was cut.

Asch found itself between its own road barriers, which separate it from Eger, and the German customs wall.

Blocking of highways by Sudeten Germans meant that any food supplies must come in by rail. Merchants reported stocks of flour and other necessities were diminishing.

Rationing of gasoline began. Only two gallons for each automobile were sold at one time.

Paris Ready To Match Nazi Moves

Calls Another 300,000 Begins Clearing Out Border Towns

By John Lloyd
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

PARIS, Sept. 24 (AP) .— France today mobilized the vital covering troops that protect the country during general mobilization.

Evacuation of towns along the German frontier began.

Two full classes of reservists, numbering 300,000 men, were called to the colors in the partial mobilization, pushing the total of France's men under arms well over the 2,000,000 mark.

In moments of anxious tension all eyes were on Germany in fearful uncertainty as to whether Chancellor Hitler would wait for further developments in the Czechoslovak crisis or issue marching orders.

(The Havas News Agency said France has informed Germany it will meet every military move made by the Reich with a corresponding security measure).

Premier Daladier called the chief of staff, General Marie-Gustave Gamelin, to his office this morning, and the two were in conference as further events of the European drama were awaited.

It had been made plain that Daladier was ready to convert partial mobilization into general mobilization on a moment's notice.

No Call for Daladier.

Although a report circulated that Premier Daladier would fly to London to confer with Prime Minister Chamberlain, Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet said this afternoon that an invitation for such a trip had not yet been received.

At the German frontier, authorities first ordered evacuation of the 1,200 citizens of Bouzonville, five miles from the Saarland German frontier. The town was being turned over to the army as a base for one extension of the Maginot Line

Early in the afternoon big crowds of curious and relatives of departing soldiers massed around army headquarters in the Hotel des Invalides and the east railway station, where reservists were taking trains for the border.

Three Bandits Grow Bolder

HAMILTON ,Sept. 24 (C.P.). — Successful in eluding capture on Thursday night after beating and robbing Herbert White of Hamilton whom they ambushed on Thursday night on a mountain brow road above Fruitland, three bandits last night became bolder and operated close to the city limits, committing three robberies within two hours as they swooped down on motorists who had parked their machines.

"The robbers eluded us, but every member of this department is sticking to the job until they are brought in," declared W. T. Moore, District Inspector of Provincial Police today, when he revealed his men, aided by Hamilton and Brantford police had collaborated throughout the night on an extensive manhunt.

Berlin, Sept. 24 (AP)

A MAN who saw a copy of Chancellor Hitler's memorandum to Prime Minister Chamberlain said today it was most conciliatory in tone and gave a basis for peaceful solution.

This informant said Hitler in no way included Polish and Hungarian demands on Czechoslovakia in the memorandum, given to Mr. Chamberlain at Godesberg as Germany's final stand on the Czechoslovak question.

In fact, the informant stated, these demands were not discussed by Mr. Chamberlain and Hitler at the meeting.

Eight days, the informant said, are envisaged for peaceful handing over of the Sudeten territory to Germany.

The informant said he was pledged to oath not to give this correspondent direct quotations from the text of the memorandum.

Hitler's demands, he said, were even less than those made at the meeting of Hitler and Mr. Chamberlain at Berchesgaden Sept. 15.

Six-Day German Ultimatum Given Czechs Says Duce

Week For Prague To Regain Sanity, Italy Told As Mussolini Warns 'Be Ready For War'

PADUA, Italy, Sept. 24 (AP).—Premier Mussolini revealed today Germany had served a six-day ultimatum on Czechoslovakia, expiring October 1.

Mussolini in a speech here did not detail the terms of the German demand. Presumably they were for the outright surrender of Sudeten territory.

The Duce cautioned his Fascist followers to be ready for war.

It would be a "very grave error," he said, if the "patient attitude of Germany should be interpreted falsely," indicating Hitler could not be expected to take fright.

Mussolini declared Berlin had manifested "supreme moderation."

"Germany has sent requests to Prague and has given until October 1 for a reply," he said. "There are, therefore, exactly six days for the Prague Government to resume again a way of sanity, for it would be truly absurd and even criminal that Europe's millions should be hurled against one another, simply to maintain the feudal lordship of Benes (President of Czechoslovakia).

Settlement Due

"In the so-called totalitarian regime this shifting of responsibility is impossible. The problem now placed before the consciences of the peoples must be settled in integral and definitive manner.

"There is time for this solution," Mussolini continued, "and if the conflict must nevertheless break out there is a possibility of localizing it.

"But it happens in these days that more or less influential parties and tendencies in western countries contend that this is the opportune moment to take a stand and settle accounts with the totalitarian states.

"In this case these parties and tendencies will find themselves confronted by two countries but the two countries which will form a single bloc.

"And if in Italy there should be some of those whom I call men who stand perennially behind shutters—those whom I call morally bourgeois—I declare they immediately will be placed hors de combat."

"I know all of you are ready for any eventuality," he shouted in a speech before 300,000 Fascist Blackshirts.

When his legions roared back their approval, Mussolini concluded "this reply of yours, this oceanic cry, has been heard at this moment by the world."

Fleet Ordered To Sea Unexpectedly

LONDON, Sept. 24.— (AP). — Great Britain sent her largest fleet in 15 years into northern waters to-day as Prime Minister Chamberlain returned from his peace talks with Chancellor Hitler, declaring that upon peaceful solution of the Czechoslovak problem "turns the peace of Europe in our time."

Some 40 ships of the home fleet put to sea suddenly from Invergordon, as France ordered 300,000 more men to join her 2,000,000 already under arms.

Join the Home Fleet.

During the night and to-day two flotillas of destroyers joined the home fleet, which stretched for more than eight miles as it sailed away.

The fleet which joined so suddenly in the precautionary preparations, officers said, had arranged to attend the Highland games at Invergordon to-day. The massed bands of the fleet were ready to play when orders suddenly cancelled the program and the men were recalled to their stations.

Refugees Arrive.

The party of 19, including the families of British Legation officials, arrived aboard the Imperial Airways liner Hercules urgently summoned to Prague Thursday.

"There was no scare in Prague when we left," declared R. J. Stopford, member of Viscount Runciman's dissolved mediation mission, who returned on the plane.

"The British people who came back returned purely as a precautionary measure. Some are still there. The consulate has made arrangements for them to leave if necessary."

At the same time the Mediterranean fleet concentrated 33 warships at Alexandria, Egypt, ready to move at a moment's notice. Previously various units of this fleet had scattered through the Mediterranean on courtesy visits.

The navy cancelled all leaves. The army and the air force also were said to have taken "certain precautions."

Believed Wounded

TORONTO, Sept. 24. — (CP)— Police combed High Park district early today for two safebreakers who stole $10 from a west-end (Joy Oil) gasoline station. One of them was believed to have been wounded by a police bullet, fired as the pair escaped from the building.

A pick-axe, crowbar and sledge-hammer were found in the service station, and the top of the safe was broken.

Last Minute News Flashes

WARSAW—The Polish-Czechoslovak border was closed today. The Daily Prague-Warsaw airplane did not leave Prague. The afternoon train from Prague should have been at Warsaw at 1 p.m. but did not arrive. Two leading Polish newspapers insisted Poland was acting independently and without any basis of understanding with Germany in the Czechoslovak crisis.

Strain Of His Conferences Shows On Premier As He Lands In London

Joint Communique Issued With Hitler Adds Little Light To Situation; No German Promises Reported Made

By J. F. Sanderson (Canadian Press Writer.)

LONDON, Sept. 24—(CP Cable).—Peace or war in Europe now hangs in the balance while the Czech government considers Chancellor Hitler's latest proposals, which were handed to Prime Minister Chamberlain at Godesberg late last night.

The British Prime Minister arrived back in London this morning, looking grave and tired, a short time before the cabinet assembled to review Hitler's latest price to maintain peace.

There was nothing official here on the terms of Hitler's latest proposals, which have been handed on to the Czech government by Great Britain without advice as to whether they should be accepted or rejected.

It was understood, however, that Hitler insists on seizing the predominantly German sections of Sudetenland with his army. While immediate reaction was gloomy, it also was considered that the Fuehrer's terms might be used for further negotiations and that all is not lost yet.

If the Germans and the Czechs could be persuaded to call off their massed troops, Hitler's demands might be used as the basis for further negotiations. If the Czechs agreed to let him occupy the predominantly German areas he might be willing to negotiate the other points without resorting to war.

Two hundred persons greeted the Prime Minister at Heston airport. On his first mission to Germany Sept. 15 a vast throng cheered his departure.

First Move is Report to Cabinet.

The Prime Minister made this statement before a microphone:

"Our first duty now that I have come back is to report to the British and French governments the result of my mission, and until I have done that it will be difficult for me to say anything about it.

"I will only say this: I trust that all concerned will continue their efforts to solve the Czechoslovak problem peacefully, because on that turns the peace of Europe in our time."

Message Sent Prague.

GODESBERG, Germany, Sept. 24 (AP).—Prime Minister Chamberlain started homeward today from talks with Chancellor Hitler, whose new demands were understood to be already under way to Czechoslovakia.

As Mr. Chamberlain departed it was learned semi-officially, that the new German memorandum, nature of which was kept secret, was relayed to the Prague government during the morning.

Eight hours earlier, Mr. Chamberlain, after his final three-hour talk with Chancellor Hitler, announced he had agreed to place the memorandum before Czechoslovak officials, just as he previously put up to Prague the problem of finding a way to satisfy German demands and preserve European peace.

Mr. Chamberlain plainly showed the strain of the last two days as he stood in the bright mountain sunshine in front of his hotel before the departure and told a small crowd he was "exceedingly grateful" for his welcome.

Situation Up To Czechs.

In a statement, the Prime Minister said:

"The communique issued last night was, of course, an agreed communique.

"I am not in a position now to add to it. I am returning to London where I shall at once consult with my colleagues.

"During the next few days there is grave responsibility upon everyone concerned to consider very carefully the issues that are at stake.

"We must still make great efforts to save the peace of Europe."

"It is up to the Czechs; I cannot say it is hopeless," he said previously.

Darkening Warclouds Fail To Upset Calm of Britain's Millions

By Edwin Johnson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Sept. 24—(CP).—Even as ominous rumblings of war drew closer and louder in the homes of Britain's millions, the spirit of the average man on the street, which has undergone the severest strain in recent days, remained comparatively buoyant and hopeful today. He was fully cognizant, however, of the gravity of the situation.

Workers streaming by bus and underground to offices and factories buried themselves in their papers, which in bold type related the dramatic end of the Chamberlain-Hitler talks at Godesberg. They learned of the significant mobilization orders and increased troop concentration on the Czech frontiers, the emergency measures in their own country, and almost everywhere the dread word "war" stared them in the face.

Amid this gloom and suspense, however, the average citizen clung desperately to the hope that Prime Minister Chamberlain would yet succeed in his mission of peace. They were heartened by the prime minister's statement at the conclusion of last night's final meeting with Chancellor Hitler: "You cannot call this a complete breakdown: and again, as he left for London: "We must still make Great efforts to save the peace of Europe."

Noted Chemist And Wife Perish In 19-Storey Suicide Leap

NEW YORK, Sept. 24—(AP)—The 19-storey death plunge of Dr. Raemer Renshaw, 58, New York University chemistry professor, and his wife, 50, from their hotel apartment was listed today by police as double suicide. Police said the couple apparently had leaped hand-in-hand shortly before midnight.

Dr. Renshaw, noted in the field of chemical research, was fully dressed. His wife was unclothed. Police said no notes were found.

Dr. Renshaw's specialty was organic chemistry, in particular the chemical functioning of the blood and the endocrine glands of human beings. In September, 1937, he described to the American Chemical Society in Rochester a drug, acetylcholine, which, he said, might cause a whole army to faint by lowering the blood pressure of the soldiers.

During the brief period of unconsciousness after shells containing acetylcholine had burst the troops who were affected could be captured easily, Dr. Renshaw suggested. He thought his discovery might make war less barbarous.

Press Attitude Swings Against Hitler

By Guy Rhoades
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Sept. 24—(CP Cable)—The swift developments at Godesberg which left Prime Minister Chamberlain in possession of Chancellor Hitler's "final German position" to transmit to Prague also left most British papers without time to comment on the changed situation.

The Times (Independent) was among the exceptions. It noted: "An 11th hour agreement was still not to be reckoned a complete impossibility."

But, the newspaper added, if the controlled German press which is violently campaigning against Czechoslovakia "has faithfully stated German policy, here is an issue whereon every British citizen without exception knows where he stands."

The Daily Express (Independent) said:

"For Britain one thing is clear. The issue does not come before us in any event, whatever the outcome of negotiations with Germany, until France takes her decision. And we know where the issue would be determined on our account. The House of Commons is the proper place for grave decisions of national policy. In the House of Commons 24 years ago, a similar issue was put to the elected representatives of the people. If we should be put to the same test once more, we shall see a strange reversal of judgments. For among those who would speak of war we should find Liberals and Socialists. And speeches made against it, of course, would come from the right wing of British politics."

Just a Pretext?

The Daily Herald (Labor):

"Is this claim that the Sudetens must be united with the 'German motherland' a mere pretext, hiding the intention to try to smash, dismember and destroy the whole Czechoslovakian republic?

"If it should be, the whole attitude of the French and British governments must change. The chal-

Today's partial mobilization order, which completed France's vital covering troops that protect the country during general mobilization, applied to classes which were released from training last October and October, 1936. They may be recalled automatically by the army high command without the formality of ministerial decree.

Order Comes As Surprise.

Crowds of young men mixed with a few said-faced women began milling about the two by three feet notices which were plastered in twos and threes on official bulletin boards, and stopped to read.

Most men gave a little gasp when they saw the significant crossed tricolors at the top of the mobilization notices.

Those affected, for the most part, shrugged their shoulders and turned to go home for a quick visit and farewell before reporting for duty.

Women among the crowds, many carrying market baskets for early morning shopping, were most visibly affected. Their faces were white as they, too, turned homeward, many to break the news to sons and husbands.

At the same time Daladier announced requisition of trucks, automobiles, and horses, had begun in certain sections of France.

10 Divisions To the Front?

The communique stated frankly that today's mobilization was ordered because "evolution of the foreign situation has led the government to reinforce precautionary measures already taken to assure security of our northeastern frontiers."

A semi-official explanation said troops were being called up to bolster covering troops behind the frontiers, where troops already were under arms at battle posts.

Reports circulating in well-informed circles close to the government last night said 10 divisions had been ordered to the German frontier to reinforce troops already on duty in the Maginot line or border fortresses.

British Tars Get Call Off Leave

LONDON, Sept. 24—(CP Cable).—The Canadian Press learned today from a source close to the government that certain precautions have been taken by the admiralty, in addition to those already known, involving the recall of a certain number of men from leave to bring up a few ships to full complement.

Precautionary measures were also understood to have been ordered for the Royal Air Force.

A reporter for The Canadian Press last night met a group of uniformed sailors walking on a street in East Finchley with kit bags on their backs.

"So your leave has been cancelled, eh?" said the reporter.

"Yes—how the hell did you know?" shot back a petty officer.

Traffic Court Held In Campbellford

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 24 — A local youth found that driving without a permit was very poor policy. The boy pleaded guilty and was assessed $10 and costs by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. Only two other cases were heard, both for traffic violations. For driving with defective brakes a township resident paid $10 and costs and for failing to stop before entering a through street a Roseneath resident a similar fine.

DATE IS CHANGED

KITCHENER. — Public school athletes here will have their field day October 5 instead of the following day. The school board in this city where so many residents are of German descent learned Oct. 6 was a Jewish holiday and about 20 Jewish athletes could not compete. Rather than ban them, the board set the date forward a day so all could participate.

Army Occupation Said Main Hitler Demand

LONDON, Sept. 24 (C.P. Cable).—Peace or war in Europe now hangs in the balance while the Czech Government considers Chancellor Hitler's latest proposals, which were handed to Prime Minister Chamberlain at Godesberg late last night.

There is nothing official here on the terms of Hitler's latest proposals, but they are understood to include the following:

1—Immediate occupation by the German army of Sudeten areas which are predominantly German;

2—Withdrawal of the Czech army from enumerated Sudeten districts which are not so predominantly German and a plebiscite under an international commission by November 30 to determine their future sovereignty;

3—Czech demobilization;

4—Acceptance of all terms must be made within five days, with war the only alternative.

War With Germany Sure

There is a considerable element of the populace inclined to view war with Germany as inevitable some day and take the attitude that Hitler's intransigence at Godesberg has shown conclusively he is not concerned with Britain's friendship. They declare that if Hitler's ambitions for world hegemony have to be throttled, it is just as well to have a showdown now while Great Britain and France are able to meet the challenge.

But the average man on the street shrinks from the horrors of possible war and feels that while even the slimmest chance of ensuring peace with honor and justice remains, no efforts should be spared in that direction.

Most Britons remembered all too well the terrifying experiences of the last war. They had not forgotten the shriek of the air raid siren, the droning raider, the crash of bombs, the long casualty lists, and the departure of loved ones for active service.

Thousands Pray

And thousands have thronged churches throughout the land during days of trial to pray the country would be spared the anguish of warfare.

Many were inclined to take fatalistic view of the situation. "If war comes there is nothing we can do about it," they said, while a jobless man marching in a business street caused considerable amusement with the following placard: "War will solve the unemployment questions; join ARP" (air raids precautions organization).

Orderly parades have also been staged at several points in the metropolitan area in protest against the inadequacy of bomb shelters. Women in Islington last night marched through the streets carrying posters demanding immediate government action.

Other placards called for "A.R.P. shelters or R.I.P." "Dig or die," and "trenches and shelters threaten no one."

Over the week-end Labor organizations have arranged to hold nearly 3,000 meetings to demonstrate against "the shameful sacrifice of the Czechoslovakia people to Hitler's threat of war."

Today's press brought another flood of letters to editors on the crisis. The Yorkshire Post, however, carried the following note on the page usually devoted to reader correspondence: "In view of the serious developments in the situation in Europe, letters on the recent negotiations are today withheld from publication."

Sports Go On As Usual

Meanwhile, Britons were set for another weekend of suspense, but notwithstanding the gathering clouds they turned to the usual Saturday afternoon diversions. From all parts of the country came reports of record crowds streaming to football grounds and other sports fixtures.

Around Whitehall and Downing street anxious crowds gathered, although Downing street itself was barred to the public. Men and women paraded bearing anti-Hitler placards. Other paraders bore notices demanding the recall of parliament and handbills were distributed urging support of the Czechs.

The executive committee of the League of Nations union issued a statement declaring: "The German demand for dimemberment of Czechoslovakia is, we believe, part of a settled policy of domination of central Europe which will be carried out step by step unless peace-loving nations resolve it shall be stopped and return resolutely to the maintenance of law and resistance to force in the settlement of international disputes."

Collective Strength

Viscount Cecil, in a message to the Peace and Empire Congress in Glasgow, said: "Recent events show how vitally important it is that we should reestablish in full strength the collective system. Even the most sceptical must now admit that there is no other possible way by which peace can be preserved in dictator-ridden Europe."

Delegates were present from Canada, South Africa and India.

The city of Westminster opened special depots where residents could be fitted for gas masks.

In Croydon, official instructions asked all residents to go to the nearest schools Sunday for fittings. The instructions were displayed on movie screen and will be delivered from church pulpits tomorrow.

FORMER PRIMATE DEAD

WELLINGTON, N.Z. — (CP). — Rev. Dr. Churchill Julius, Anglican Archbishop and Primate of New Zealand from 1922 to 1925, died recently at 90.

"Upside-Down" Girl Grows Up

In New York to train for a dramatic career is Alyce Jane McHenry, who will be remembered as the girl with the "upside-down" stomach. Alyce, now 15 and quite a lovely young lady, as you can see, is staying with a friend in Newark, N.J.

MORE ABOUT—
Czechs Mobilize

War department officials worked at top speed to finish mobilization details within the specified six hours.

Fresh troops were dispatched to border regions to relieve soldiers tired after weeks of tense guard duty. Gendarmes and soldiers went to frontier cities such as Eger and Grasslitz where Sudeten German free corps members got control Thursday.

Sandbags were piled high around government buildings in Prague. Trenches were dug for ammunition for anti-aircraft guns. Prague, not far from the borders of four countries, fears air raids more than any other single form of attack.

Hospitals Marked.

Large red crosses were painted on hospital roofs. Refugees streamed into Prague fro mthe Sudeten German regions. Many Jews liquidated businesses here and hurried to get out of the country.

Martial law was invoked in Kapliz where tension mounted following the killing of an officer in disorders at nearby Brannau. Seventeen cities are now under military control.

A plane was chartered to take British subjects to Poland today.

The requisitioning of private planes, automobiles, horses and wagons for military use was authorized in the mobilization order, which was broadcast in Czech, Slovak, German, Hungarian, Ruthenian and Polish.

All civil aviation was halted. Censorship was clamped down on military information. The official bureau announced:

"Czech soldiers stand at every border stone during the whole frontier."

The number of refugees who had reached Germany from Sudeten towns increased to 127,800 last night.

Germany's crack air force unit, the Hermann Goering regiment, moved from Berlin, by way of Dresden, to some frontier station.

Many private German firms received orders to place automobiles or trucks and drivers at the disposition of military authorities.

CLERK ROBBED OF $9.20

WINDSOR.—Mike Chovan, 24, grocery store delivery boy, told police today he had been held up and robbed of $9.20 by three masked bandits, two of whom may have been armed.

"Two of them pressed what may have been guns, into my sides," Chovan reported. The men stopped him as he was returning from a fake call.

Lines Go Dead After Mobilization Order, Czechs Are Cut Off From World

London, Sept. 24 (AP)

CZECHOSLOVAKIA was cut off from telephone and cable and communication today as the crisis jammed the vast European communication network almost to the breaking point.

Cables to Prague have been unreliable, slow and under strict censorship all week, and just before midnight telephone lines were broken after the Czech mobilization order was issued. There was no indication when they would be restored.

The London-Prague telephone line has been overloaded several weeks with official calls. The Associated Press was forced to telephone from London to Berlin or London to Budapest for relay to Prague in 80 per cent of its calls.

Censorship was imposed in a curious manner. There was no way of knowing when censors were on the telephone lines or in which capital they were listening. Conversations in English were broken frequently or interrupted when words such as "mobilization," "Sudetens," "Nazis" or "fortifications" were spoken.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 24 (C.P.). — Threatening war clouds on the German-Czechoslvakia border and continued good Canadian wheat export sales caused Winnipeg wheat futures to close higher yesterday.

Final quotations were 2¼ to 1⅝ cents higher, with October at 64, November 64¼, December 63⅝ to ½, and May 66⅝ to ¾ cents. The gains in the last two days were more than three cents.

Reports there had been invasion of Czech territory brought short-covering waves to the pit to push prices up more than 3 cents earlier but when these reports were denied recessions occurred.

Sudden darkening of peace prospects in Europe whirled Chicago wheat values up also 1⅞ cents, but war fright lessened later, and extreme gans shrivelled by half.

Canadian export business placed at 1,000,000 bushels yesterday. United Kingdom was reported as the best customer.

Liverpool's final prices were about 3 cents higher than Thursday. The close was 1¼d-1⅝d higher. Buenos Aires jumped 2 cents at noon.

A moderate turnover for No. 2 Northern was reported in the cash pit at Winnipeg but other top grades were scarce. Spreads closed unchanged.

Toronto, Sept. 24.

H. P. M. DEWAN, Minister of Agriculture, yesterday warned that his department would not tolerate the holding of marriage ceremonies at Ontario fall fairs, and that any defiance of the edict will mean immediate withdrawal of the Provincial grant.

Mr. Dewan takes the stand that there should be no such "exploitation" of the marriage ceremony and home life.

The Leamington Fall Fair Association is said to have requested permission to stage a ceremony and to have been flatly turned down.

Rumors that a general mobilization had been ordered were denied officially. The cabinet was in session this morning, however, and reports persisted that mobilization orders would be issued.

Army authorities explained that the unusual number of men called to the colors was to fill "gaps" in the army units.

Two thousand Hungarian "free corps" men, similar to the Sudeten German organization active along the German-Czechoslovak frontier, already were quartered in villages along the border, opposite the Czechoslovak region occupied by 700,000 Magyars.

The Golden Text

Psalm 23:1—"The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want."

David: Triumphant Faith

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for September 25 is Psalms 23 and 27, the Golden Text being Psalm 23:1, "The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want.")

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

THE FAVORITE Bible chapter of most folk is doubtless Psalm 23, the "Shepherd Psalm", "the Nightingale of the Psalms", the sweetest song ever sung. Had David, the shepherd king done nothing but write this shepherd psalm he would have endeared himself to every age for the past 3,000 years. One Bible analyst has found in it three pictures of what God wants to see in everyone of us, his children, viz., "A Saviour Knowing Child of God," verse 1; "An Ever Growing Child of Grace," verses 2-4, and "An Overflowing Child of Gladness," verses 5, 6.

It Is So Personal.

It is so precious to us because it is so personal. In its six brief verses are 17 personal pronouns, in every one of which the believer may, if he will, write his own name by faith: "The Lord is MY shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: he leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul; he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness," etc. It is so personal I may make it my prayer to tell God what he means to me, or I may make it my creed to tell the world what the "Good Shepherd" of my soul is to me. Here is personal care and loving providence for me, food and sustenance for body and soul, forgiveness of sin in the past and preservation from temptation in the future: "restoreth my soul: he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness." Here is assurance of answer to our prayer, "Forgive us our trespasses, and lead us not into temptation." As Franklin's kite brought the lightning down from the heavens to the jar and the key, these personal pronouns bring the very essence of religion down from heaven to supply our deepest spiritual needs.

It Is So Precious.

This is our favorite chapter because that which it makes so personal is so precious. God's loving providence, his guidance, his forgiving grace and keeping power, his presence and comfort even in the experience of death, the defense of his rod, the grace of his staff, his hospitality in the life beyond death in "the house of the Lord," which the Good Shepherd himself has pictured as "my Father's house of many mansions and a place prepared" by him [illegible] of his table, the welcome of his anointing and the overflowing gladness of it all, these and much more are the precious promises made personal in the song: "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou are with me: thy rod (God's law) and thy staff (Christ's gospel) they comfort me. Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over. Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever." No better commentary on these precious promises can be made than that of the Good Shepherd in explaining heaven as the Father's house and his abiding fellowship with us there, "I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." To all of which our response may well be, "Even so, Come Lord Jesus."

A National Message

The heathen for thin inheritance ....The second promise....But there is yet another promise. We name it only for our space is gone. Neither is it necessary that we should upon it here; for we have written much about it in the past.

"Ask of Me; and I shall give thee ... the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession."

Fifty thousand miles of travel took me over some of the promised possessions during the year 1936. But I only "called" on five of these great heritages of the King of Kings. They were Britain, United States, Canada, New Zealand, and Australia.

These great possessions are but occupied in a preliminary way, as far as most of them are concerned. What they will be when fully developed, and fully occupied, only the Giver of them knows.

The proclamation was made and fulfilled three thousand years ago. The promise of the uttermost parts of the earth has been quite fully carried out.

The promise of the gift to Jesus the Son, of the non-Israel peoples as jewels for His Royal Diadem, and as component parts of His realm is yet to come, but the time is near.

So we look beyond the approaching tempest to the glorious landscape which comes out purified on the other side of it, in the sunshine and the peace that is to come.

The statesmen of today, at home and broad, get glimpses of the realization of God's ideal of the Kingdom. Many of our own statesmen have set that ideal before their eyes and are labouring toward it.

Many on the continent of Europe catch glimpses of such a possibility. For instance, M. Blum, Prime Minister of France says in his broadcast on the eve of the New Year.

Paris, Dec. 31st

Broadcasting at 7.30 this evening, M. Blum, the French Premier, tendered the Government's best wishes for 1937 to all Frenchmen, and French women, and wished to them and to Europe world peace.

"May 1937 remain peaceful," he said, "and lay the foundation of many year's peace. I believe ardently in peace—not through ignorance of the dangers which it runs, but in a determined resolution to surmount them.

"I think it is possible to establish the basis of a general settlement founded on the justice, equality and solidarity of States, giving all peoples a normal and certain existence and allowing them to concentrate little by little on useful and progressive work in the eneergy which all States today are obliged to apply to military defence."

Cathedral Musings

Most people think of eternal life as something to be attained in the future. They look upon this present existence as in some way a preparation for it. Although this latter is true, inasmuch as the present always determines the future and the actions of today are harvested tomorrow, yet this truth is only a part of the whole. We must bear in mind that eternity, being infinite duration, has neither beginning or end. That the past, present and future is all comprised in the eternal now and that we are as much in eternity now as we shall be after this life is over. Immortality is of God, not of man, hence Jesus could say: Before Moses was (manifest) I was, and the Divine Word in every man can say the same. From this point of view there is no such thing as time, as everything must exist simultaneously in the consciousness of God and of God in man. He is as much in the farthest flung island universe, many millions of light-years distant, as He is in our own solar sytsem, or as He is within the heart of the individual. It follows that both time and space are, from the spiritual point of view, nothing but illustrations, due to our conditioned incarnation here on earth. They are very real to our outer selves, but to the inner man, the child of God, they simply do not exist. Things are truly not what they seem because our ideas of our environment are altogether dependent upon the scope of our consciousness. One man may walk the earth in hell, another may walk with God and find that earth is heaven. One may be conscious of the outward appearances only, another may penetrate beneath the surface and in all things see the Glory of the Lord. So it is that the kingdom of Heaven is within us and is not a thing of time, space or location. It has nothing whatever to do with outward circumstance, or possessions, it is just a matter of whether we rest our lives in God, or whether we are based on the illusion of self. The dead self is the only stepping stone to God, for only when self is rooted out can the Christ arise within us.

Biblical Thoughts For the Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James, Toronto

WHAT DO I KNOW OF THE BIBLE THE PREPARATION FOR THE COMING OF THE LORD.

In those days come John the Baptist preaching in the wilderness and saying:—Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.—St. Matt. 3; 1.

From that time Jesus began to preach and say:—Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand. St. Matt. 4; 17.

You have often wondered why John the Baptist and our Lord preached from the same text:—"the kingdom of heaven," and not about personal salvation, as the modern evangelist does.

Between Malachi and John there was a prophetic silence of about four hundred years. Perhaps you think lightly of four hundred years.

In our national history it is the period from Shakespeare and Queen Elizabeth and our own time; perhaps the most moving, impressive and important years of our national existence.

Furthermore for practically six hundred years before the coming of Our Lord the Jewish people were subject to various victorious powers; Babylonian, Persian, Syrian, Greece and at the time of Our Lord's ministry, they were under the iron rule of Rome. During all those centuries, with the exception of a short period, they had paid tribute to a foreign king and were not a kingdom but a province of a foreign empire.

This fact tried the faith of the Jews terribly. The devout Jew found it hard to believe that Jehovah loved His people and yet permitted them to be ground down by a foreign power. As a result of this deep disappointment there arose during the two hundred years before Christ another type of prophet, called the Apocalyptists.

Apocalypse means that which is hidden. The writers never wrote in their own names but gave the names of the great teachers of Israel to their writings. Thus we find "The Book of Enoch," quoted by Jude. "The Assumption of Moses;" "The Ascension of Isaiah;" "The Psalms of Solomon," and many others. These prophets professed to lift the veil of the future, believing that God would redeem His people. We have to admire them in spite of their unthinkable expectations. These writings were the outward and visible signs of their faith that God would deliver His people. They poured out their souls' hopes and desires in these writings.

With more or less definiteness they taught that Jehovah would send His Messenger, "The Son of Man" to bring deliverance to His people; that a victorious monarch would sit on the throne of David and rule his people. Modern scholarship had discovered that these centuries before Christ were saturated with the thought of the coming of the Kingdom of God. Many such redeemers arose claiming to be "The Messiah," the Christ, "The Anointed of God." They led away multitudes who flung themselves fanatically at the solid Roman legions and were mercilessly wiped out. You remember the advice of Gamaliel drawing attention to one such rebellion: "He also perished and all as many as obeyed him, were dispersed,' Acts 4; 37.

The Nazi movement in Germany is extraordinarily similar to that period. Adolph Hitler is offering the German people deliverance from their enemies. "The coming of the Kingdom of Germany" is his text. "Germany over all" his ideal.

Do you need imagination to realise the sensation aroused by the preaching of John the Baptist. He made a tremendous appeal to the people. He attracted not only the multitudes, but "the higher ups" who come down to see for themselves. St. John tells us of such a deputation from the Jewish authorities. Hearken to the note of importance. "Who are thou? that we may be given an answer to them that sent us." His answer:—"I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness. There is one coming after me mightier than I."

His preaching of the coming of the Kingdom of God meant that the people must repent otherwise they would be destroyed. The time for repentance was short. He used a homely illustration. "The axe for repentance was short. He used a homely illustration. "The axe is laid at the root of the tree." It lies there ready for use when the husbandman returns. A picture every farmer understands.

In forty short years the time was fulfilled and the City, Temple and nation went down in fearful disaster. Rome, according to her political practice was thorough in dealing with a troublesome nation. Just as Carthage was mercilessly destroyed so "not one stone was left upon another" when Rome finished her work.

"THY KINGDOM COME."

United Church Plans Crusade

The morning service in St. Andrew's Church on next Sunday will be devoted to "The Quarter Million Fellowship Crusade" which will be launched in all our congregations early in October.

The crusade has a three-fold aspect, namely, to invite people to the fellowship of worship, of prayer and of giving. The members will be asked to attend the church regularly for ten Sundays, October 23rd to December 31st. A canvass will be made to reach those who have been frequently absent. The board of the church has issued a prayer manual for each day of the ten-week period. This manual has been carefully prepared after the pattern used in British churches, and shows the many-sided work of the church at home and abroad. The fellowship of giving will seek the regular use of the duplex envelope, and also provide special sets of envelopes for the remainder of the year. Cards for pledges to this three-fold program will be used in the crusade and may be signed in the church service or in the homes of the people as a result of a canvass by the workers.

The enrolment week is October 9th to 16th, and the official statement is as follows:

The "Quarter Million Fellowship Crusade" has a three-fold purpose:

First—To increase the attendances at the worship services on the Sundays from October 23rd to the end of the year.

Second—To enlist at least a quarter of a million members who will offer daily prayer for the work of the church.

Third—To enroll as contributors for the support of both the local church and the missionary and maintenance fund at least a quarter of a million members of the United Church of Canada. Abundant materials for the enrolment have been provided by the church offices in Toronto.

David: Triumphant Faith — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Psalms 23 and 27.

When Samuel the prophet was sent to anoint a new king to succeed King Saul he was directed to select David, son of Jesse a shepherd lad watching the flocks of his father.

David became not only a great king, but a poet and a writer of psalms, one of the most beautiful of which is "the Shepherd Psalm" beginning "The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want."

"He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; he leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul." Thus God's loving care, forgiveness and guidance are pictured in this sweet song.

We know the shepherd of this psalm is Jesus, "the Good Shepherd," who laid down his life for us, enabling us to say, "Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil."

They Resent It

There has been a good deal of indignation expressed in Canadian newspapers because United States writers refer to the attempted settlement of the Czech situation as one which marks the desertion of the little nations by the two democracies, Britain and France. It at once raises a pertinent question: Are France and Britain under any greater obligations to go to the rescue of Czechoslovakia than United States?

The feeling is probably well stated by one Canadian writer who says "The editors of the United States would be willing to sacrifice every English soldier and every French soldier, every English pound and every French franc in defending a country created by Woodrow Wilson and an act of parliament."

And it is an historic fact that the then president of United States had much to do with the creation of the nation which United States papers are urging should be defended to the last ditch by Britain and France.

Is There An Answer?

While the fate of European peace was hanging in the balance 800 Great War veterans from Germany were guests of the British Legion in London. When they were addressed in Westminster Hall by Sir Thomas Inskip who protested against the idea of another war the Germans cheered vigorously.

The official in charge of the visiting Germans spoke in much the same manner. To conclude the gathering in what was considered a fitting manner the 800 visiting Germans were made honorary members of the British Legion.

Meantime the most serious negotiations in years were pending between Britain and Germany.

It was plain that the 800 Germans and their British hosts were not inclined to fight. They had no desire to do any such thing. Just how to transfer the feelings of these people into the larger field of international diplomacy is one of the unanswered riddles of the age.

As Berlin Sees It

Whether one can believe in total or in part much of the material which is being printed today as the result of cabled despatches from Europe is a problem which we would answer by inserting a fair-sized question mark.

We have before us at the moment a story from Berlin saying it was France which "initially failed Czechoslovakia in the present crisis, creating a situation which superficially leaves the onus on British rather than on French shoulders."

When the situation first became acute France temporized with Prague and then sought to persuade Premier Chamberlain to intervene with Hitler because France knew her war strength was not sufficient to make a definite move should Germany take military action against Czechoslovakia.

So according to this report — and it comes from Berlin—the impression must prevail in Germany that Chamberlain did not make his historic trip with the idea of preserving peace, but rather because he had been urged to do so by France for the purpose of saving an unprepared France from going to the assistance of Czechoslovakia.

We much prefer to believe that Premier Chamberlain went on his trip to see Hitler motivated by the highest ideals in the world—the preservation of peace. But it is a stubborn fact that what we may think in this land may not be the interpretation placed upon the same mission by the people of Germany. The confusion of many voices brings about a muddled situation, and the lamentable feature is that if German propagandists care to interpret the Chamberlain mission to suit their own purposes there is nothing we can do to prevent it.

The Jewish New Year

Sunday is the Jewish New Year. Our own salutation on this occasion is generally a "Happy New Year" or something to that effect. Whether one could extend that greeting to the Jewish folk just now is something open to doubt. There is sadness for these people in many parts of the world. The fact that persecution runs like a deep line through their history does not make persecution easier to bear, nor does present persecution give birth to the gaiety of feeling with which folk generally are disposed to greet the coming of yet another year.

The dream of a national home for the Jews hangs somewhat in the balance; the Arabs are making the situation in Palestine uncertain if not precarious. Hitler sits in power in Germany and he hates the Jews with an intensity which could not humanely permit additional feeling of the same strain. More recently it has been Benito Mussolini in Italy; he too has produced evidence that he hates the Jews. Their lot in conquered Austria has been described by the Vienna correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor: "The Jew has been caught like a rat in a trap and neither killed nor set free but badgered incessantly." He longs to get away to some foreign land where he can be treated as as a human being but the door of the trap does not open to give release nor does some kindly finger point to a welcoming land.

So when it comes to the Jewish New Year on Sunday there will be that encroachment of sadness born of world conditions. We know of no other people who, being driven hither and thither, could have retained their distinctive identity as have the Jewish race the world over.

The Urge For Speed

Of streamlining there appears to be no end. The new street cars in Toronto are going that way. It has been heralded that these new type cars are going to be faster; experiments have shown that when they start from a street intersection they can make a quicker get-away than any automobile on the street. Fortunately there are newer and better brakes — four varieties of them to be exact.

But while these new street cars may start more rapidly and get along faster the streets on which they run and the traffic in which they operate will remain the same, the only change being that the density of the traffic will keep on increasing. The car drivers instead of being able to get ahead of the street car when it is making a start will be forced to drag along behind. Making a spectacular get-away may be a fine thing for the street car but its effect on traffic in general is not going to be helpful.

We seem to be caught up in the grip of a little more speed for everything we touch. Street cars in many places have passed out of the picture, and it may be that the street car with a tremendous jump when the starting bell rings will have a chance to function a while longer, but somehow we shiver a bit when thinking of anything which makes one of these tremendous jumps in the congested state of traffic found on city streets today.

This Strenuous Age

Using a cross-cut saw Stanley and Roy Garrett of R.R. No. 2, Lakefield, cut through a 16-inch elm log in 37 1-2 seconds. That was at the Lakefield fall fair, and one of our reporters states "they ripped through the logs as though they were tissues." Doing the trick in that time may have looked that way, but there is not anything like tissue in an elm log. It might possibly look that way to the spectator, but the men on the ends of the saw would probably think differently. We dare say the brothers Garrett were able to demolish that log in such time because they are hardened to it. The boy on the street with his easy parlance might possibly say "they've got what it takes."

We admit having a feeling not far removed from gratitude that this sort of split second cross-cut business never invaded the piece of bush land on Lot 4, Concession Ten. Nearly all the cutting there was done in the winter, and the decision to bring down a certain tree was often enough made on the assumption that sooner or later it would topple over on its own accord.

After the trimming had been done and the saw came into action there was even time taken off to so arrange things so there would be no "pinch" half way through. There was even a certain amount of deliberation each time the cord length scratch was put on the log, and that of course gave a fellow a chance to straighten up and stretch his back a little. It was quite all right to stop and look about a little if a jack rabbit came across the log and if the farm dog happened to be there it was also all right to see what sort of a job he could make at the chase. There did not seem to be any particular reason why there should be haste in the bush with the cross-cut saw any more than there was speed with the bucksaw later on. The idea or the advisability of going through a 16-inch elm log in 37 1-2 seconds never made its way into the bush, and seconds were not then cut into fractions. They were allowed to accumulate and form comfortable minutes and happy hours. We marvel at the speed with which an elm log can be cut, but a certain amount of calmness seems to come over one when he finds such things came to pass long after having ceased active interest in the handled end of a cross-cut saw. It is something like one must feel when making the discovery that a great calamity has been averted.

He Is Not In Danger

There has been a great deal written about war topics in recent weeks while as a matter of fact actual news has not been plentiful. In such a time it seems to be taken for granted by some of the writers that anything coming from Britain or the continent will be regarded as big news.

One writer discusses the view that Prime Minister Chamberlain is speaking for only a section of the British people, and that his own position is none too secure and he may find it necessary to appeal to the country shortly.

That might pass as news if it were so, but we doubt the truth of the claim. It is not an exaggeration to say that Chamberlain can remain as Prime Minister as long as he feels disposed to do so. The present government passes under the name of National. It gains its support from a few Liberals, and from a few Labor members, but the real force behind the government is composed of Conservatives. There are 615 members in the House of Commons and Prime Minister Chamberlain commands a majority of 247, so from the point of political support he is firmly in the saddle. Nominally the House will remain as it is until the election which should come late in 1940.

The manner in which Chamberlain has been attacked within recent months may have been taken as an indication that he was losing his grip. The attacks have come mostly from Liberal and Labor sources, but they have actually demonstrated the man's strength because they ultimately reflected the hard fact that the man is not readily disturbed, and also that he commands the confidence of the large majority which is back of him in the House. So when the search for news and still more news from Europe and Britain includes stories telling that the British Prime Minister is in danger of being unhorsed it is safe to put it down as something which might well be discarded. He can stay where he is until late in 1940 unless he chooses to resign.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Auto production in Detroit is showing an increase for the first time this year. That looks like good news for everyone except the pedestrian.

According to a Haileybury minister, the mining industry helps the church. We always understood that the nickle industry did.

Mr. Hepburn has declined Prime Minister King's offer for a parley on the seaway proposition. No truck or trade with Ottawa is evidently the provincial premier's motto.

Nazis in Denmark are to celebrate the Sudeten cession. It might be thought the fact they are permitted to live in Denmark would be a more fitting reason for rejoicing.

With so much being said about it St. Thomas public bodies ought to have a meeting and draw up a brief and acceptable explanation of why it was considered advisable to erect the new mental hospital so close to the city.

New Orleans man reported dead went to the city morgue to see the man reported to be himself. After an inspection he said, "That's not I." Without knowing very much of the case we would be inclined to take his word for it.

Ottawa City Council protests to the Ontario Milk Board because the winter price of milk there has been increased from 11 to 12 cents, but there was no protest when the positions of some 7,000 civil servants were so rearranged that they all got an increase.

We have both heard and read the suggestion that the democracies of Europe prefer to have a strong Germany in existence as a buffer state against the communism of Russia, indicating perhaps that there are forces behind the scenes which have not been entirely revealed.

The Clinton News-Record 25 years ago recorded the fact that Tom Craig of that town had been working as mechanician in a 500-mile auto race in Los Angeles. It was stated that as the race was run at the remarkable speed of about a mile a minute Tom was a busy man watching gasoline and tires. And one cannot but wonder if we are actually much better off by having raised the speed to six miles per minute.

GOOD PLACE

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When I lived on Concession Ten, I used to hear it spoken then, about the world outside; about success that waited there, where hours were short and nights were fair, folk told the tale with pride.

¶ I longed then for the time to come, when choring days for me were done, I'd think of it all day; I'd have no cause I thought to grieve, I'd pack my Sunday suit and leave, and then be on my way.

¶ But since I left Concession Ten, I've often wondered now and then, if all they said was true; the poor folks get shoved round a lot, while others add to what they've got, with kindly folk too few.

¶ The world outside now talks again, of calling all its fighting men, instead of having peace; and they've been talking that for years, and filling people full of fears, in fact they'll never cease.

¶ The Tenth was quieter I confess, perhaps because we heard much less, but folk were neighbors there; they used to help each other out, nor did they threaten much or shout, but everyone was square.

¶ Perhaps it's wrong to think that way, or have complaining words to say, I do it now and then; I wish the world was fashioned though, so folk could safely come and go—like on Concession Ten.

• When Disraeli Went to Berlin

(Toronto Star)

THE VISIT of Mr. Chamberlain to Germany has been likened to Disraeli's trip to the Berlin Congress in 1878 at which, it is asserted, he and his colleague, Lord Salisbury, obtained "peace with honor." International morality is at a low ebb today, but British people might take little pride now in the making of arrangements such as brought acclaim to "Dizzy."

In those days Russia was posing as the Christian protector of the Slavs in the Balkans who were being oppressed by the "Unspeakable Turk." The subject Balkan peoples fought for their independence and Russia went to their help. Britain, concerned about the freedom of the Dardanelles and the safety of India, was averse to Russia aggrandizing herself at the expense of defeated Turkey. British statesmen demanded that the peace treaty of San Stefano be submitted to revision by all the powers of Europe and Germany backed them in this policy. Britain made a secret deal with Russia before the conference was held whereby the great Bulgaria that was to be set up should be reduced in size. As a set off to the gain of Turkish territory by Russia, Britain was given the Turkish island of Cyprus.

Queen Victoria was more anti-Russian and belligerent than her ministers. Lord Derby, foreign secretary, favored peaceful policies and Salisbury was appointed in his stead. Bismarck, acting for Germany, objected to the reduction of the size of the new Bulgaria, but Disraeli threatened to take train for home and Bismarck climbed down. Austria-Hungary was induced to fall into line by a promise of the right to administer the Turkish provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The independent states of Montenegro, Serbia and Roumania were set up.

Bounds were set to the power of Russia by the treaty revisions. Bismarck, who presided over the congress and said his aim was that of "an honest broker," was outsmarted by Disraeli, who become more than ever Britain's national hero. Thereafter the Disraeli policies went astray.

• Asks Mr. Hepburn to Make Move

(Bowmanville Statesman)

THE TOWN of Bowmanville has been suffering from a steadily developing water shortage for several years and last year it became so acute that steps were taken by the Utilities to provide for a further supply.

The water has been found and all arrangements made to give the Town a sufficient supply. The cost is all provided for through the present and increased earnings and neither consumer nor taxpayer will be burdened with increased rate or taxes in order to retire either capital or interest.

The Municipal Improvements Assistance Act was introduced by Hon. Chas. A. Dunning, Minister of Finance, at the last session at Ottawa. This provided that the Dominion Government would loan to municipalities throughout Canada the funds for necessary self liquidating projects upon debentures of the municipality at 2% interest. To overcome obvious constitutional difficulties, it was also provided that each Province would pass upon the guarantee the debentures of their respective applicant municipalities.

The Town authorities very promptly applied to the Department of Finance at Ottawa for full particulars, and the necessary application under this act was completed in all its details, including a certificate from the Provincial Department of Health that the proposed increase in water supply was necessary and had been approved by it.

The application was then sent to Queen's Park for the necessary approval and promptly returned by Mr. C. S. Walters, Deputy Provincial Treasurer, with the statement that at present no authority has been set up by the Province of Ontario to consider these applications. Now, despite further enquiries to Mr. Walters as to when the situation will be remedied, the whole question is in midair and this Town and all other municipalities in this Province are not permitted to share in this scheme of the Dominion Government to assist them in securing funds at 2% which will enable them to undertake necessary and essential public works and which also assists the building trades and unemployment generally.

There is no reason for delay, the Dominion Government are prepared to acept, and have accepted from other Provinces, an order-in-council undertaking to guarantee the loans of the municipalities and pass legislation at the next session of the legislature to validate and ratify the guarantee.

If Mr. Hepburn is sincere in his assertion that everything must be done to assist the municipalities in relieving the taxpayer he has up to the present overlooked one of his best and most obvious opportunities. We are going to be very skeptical of the whole thing unless he takes action immediately.

• "Able to Work" Is A Privilege

By LAWRENCE BROWN

WORK looms up more as a bore than a privilege when one returns from a vacation in which there were no schedules to keep, no engagements pressing upon each other, no assignments to be completed—but days in which one was free indeed. With trees to bathe us in cool breezes, a river to watch, books to read, friends to chat with—the day passed with winged feet.

Yet, I suppose the average person feels such a life is not for him, nor would he want it all the time. He is born to work and in the depth of his heart he is glad of it.

Many people today are looking upon labor in a different way than they used to. Profitable toil is more difficult to secure. There is therefore less likelihood of as many being dissatisfied with their positions. If they are thy endeavor to keep them until a better opportunity presents itself. To be independent is a status in which most people delight. Hestod wrote, "Work is no reproach. The reproach is idleness and whatever be thy lot, that work is best."

All labor gives us opportunities for self-expression. A man may be proud of the ditch he digs, if it is straight, clean and the required depth. A garden can be expressive of one's artistic ability as well as provide for his table. Children portray so well the parents who train them. Love, care and patience are very evident. One can show his spirit best of all by the way he undertakes or refuses any kind of a job.

If one be spiritually minded he will rejoice in the privilege of co-operating with divine forces. Luther Burbank said he was not a wizard of horticulture as some said, "I simply work with the things of nature in nature's way."

David and all the House of Israel played before the Lord on all manner of instruments. Some were made of fir wood, others were harps, cymbals and psalteries. Together the instruments while playing different parts made music.

The Carpenter of Nazareth rejoiced in His labor. "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work."

THE WOOD BOYCOTT.

(Christian Science Monitor)

BACK IN 1880, Capt. Charles C. Boycott served as the manager of a large estate owned by the wealthy Lord Erne. Though the Irish peasants tended the crops well, Boycott pinched them unmercifully so that their share would be reduced and the share of the landlord correspondingly increased. Then the toiling farmers rebelled. When the crops matured, nobody harvested them. His servants deserted him. The tradesmen of the community absolutely refused to sell anything to him. These simple folk of County May contributed a new word to the English language.

CANADIAN LAWYERS.

(Kitchenr Record)

The last census showe dover 8,000 persons occupied as lawyers in Canada, with 544 justices and magistrates, not all of whom were necessarily graduates of law schools, but most of whom are likely to be placed as such. There is thus one lawyer for every 1,000, it would seem to appear that our bodily ills take more looking after than keeping us within the rules by which society governs its actions.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

AND IT CAME TO PASS, when he was in a certain city, behold, a man full of leprosy: who seeing Jesus fell on his face, and besought him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.

And he put forth his hand, and touched him, saying, I will: be thou clean. And immediately the leprosy departed from him.

And he charged him to tell no man: but go, and shew thyself to the priest, and offer for thy cleansing, according as Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them.

But so much the more went there a fame abroad of him: and great multitudes came together to hear, and to be healed by him of their infirmities.—Luke v, 12-15.

GERMANY HARD HIT.

(Farm News Letter, Montreal)

THE GERMAN FARMER is not allowed to hoard wealth, a bare living is all that is vouchsafed him. The feeding of oat and wheat grain to livestock is verboten, and half must be turned over to a government agency at a price fixed according to locality and the needs of the consuming centre.

Rye, and to a limited extent, barley, may be used for feed on the farm. The import of concentrates is restricted, and few farmers can avail themselves of these supplementary feeds. Consequently the feed problem is acute, and the circumstances account for the scarcity of fats in the form of butter, cream, etc.

Mr. Emslie was shown the records of a large poultry farm and noted a distinctly lower egg production this year, as compared with 1937. The reason is that no good grain is available for poultry feed this year, and a ground meal of inferior quality had to be substituted.

BAD NEWS.

(The New Yorker)

THIS is a moderately touching end-of-Summer story about a young couple of Westbury. Last Saturday the gentleman agreed to finish his tennis early and pick up his wife, who was coming out from town on a late-afternoon train. He arrived at the Westbury station just in time to see the train thundering through—or at least coming as near to thundering as a Long Island train can. Anyway, it didn't stop. The fellow saw his wife's agonized face in one of the windows and saw her toss a note at him. It was sucked under the wheels of the last car and he had to chase it about a hundred yards down the track, where it had finally lodged in a thicket. Panting and full of foreboding, he opened the note. It said, "Dear Tom, the train does not stop at Westbury."

TO LISTENERS-IN.

(Montreal Star)

IN TIMES of stress and national nervousness like the present, there is always a risk of false impressions and false hopes and fears being created by rash broadcasting. It would be as well for the general listener-in to refrain from jumping to too swift conclusions on the strength of broadcast opinions based upon brief news bulletins—and sometimes not even possessing that amount of justification.

To magnify a trivial incident is one of the most common faults in hours of emergency, as we have seen within the past 24 hours. Snap judgments have come far too much into common use since the advent of the radio, and war's alarums and excursions do not appear to have brought about any greater spirit of caution.

Gunman's Shield, Dancer Is Shot 2 Killed In Holdup Battle

CHICAGO, Sept. 24—(AP). — A young dancing teacher, shot down while being used as a gunman's shield, battled for her life to-day, the aftermath of a furious gun fight in which two men were slain and four persons wounded.

The girl, Lucille Summerfield, 18, was caught in a crossfire of bullets when three gunmen, trapped in a northside handbook establishment during a holdup, tried to shoot their way past policemen. She was critically wounded in the breast.

The gunmen carried pistols and a sawed-off shotgun when they entered the place late yesterday. The betting establishment was a small one-storey brick garage in an alley on North Halsted Street.

John Bazaula, 33, part owner of the handbook, was killed as he sat in the cashier's cage.

One of the hundred or more terrified patrons, many of them women, slipped out and called policemen. The officers shoved open the door and found William Wright, 25, holding a gun on the crowd of betors. He was yanked outside and disarmed.

Charles Lane, 28, a former convict, seized Miss Summerfield for a shield, and came out of the door shooting.

Miss Summerfield was pleading with her captor when she fell in the gunfire. Lane was critically wounded.

James Gilfoy, a third bandit, died in a hail of lead as he sought to escape through a locked door.

Claim Japs Poisoning China With Drugs

GENEVA, Sept. 24—(CP Cable).—Paul Martin, Canadian delegate, yesterday told the League of Nations commission on the traffic in opium that Japan alone was responsible for the "systematic poisoning" of the Chinese people with drugs.

He asked that a resolution be presented to the assembly flatly accusing the Japanese army of responsibility for the spread of the use of drugs in China.

The Japanese army, he declared, was deeply implicated in the situation which was "revolting, scandalous and a major danger to the whole world.

Legislation passed by Japanese military authorities in areas of China under their control were not being applied, he said, while Japan's denials and attempts to reassure the opium committee were "quite unsatisfactory."

Opium growing in areas under Japanese control had increased by 300 per cent, he said. He called the Manchurian opium monopoly "a highly lucrative enterprise."

The Stars Say . . .

For Sunday, September 25.

Sunday's horoscope is an excellent one for affairs of the church and state, as well as for all those activities that spell promotion, achievement and fulifilled desires of a social nature. Withal, there may be a rather sensational or unusual development in private or romantic associations, but generally matters should flourish and bring happiness.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a year of opportunity and advancement, with fortunes growing by some sudden speculative coup or by the intervention of a person of prestige and position.

A child born on this day may be well equipped for a happy and prosperous life, being cultured, ambitious and of fine social, moral and intellectual standing. It may rise to influential position in education, religion or politics.

For Monday, September 27.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a lively and enterprising day, although the high-pressure activity may lead into certain treacherous or malicious channels.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a lively and productive year, the success of which may incite venomous and envious attack of a subtle nature. It would be well to circumvent such possibility by worthiness, integrity of purpose, and soundness of objectives. Take precaution and particular care not leave weak spots in writings or documents, or other vulnerable points, being careful not to be involved in intrigues or plots.

A child born on this day may be inclined to be clever, shrewd, crafty, leaning toward intrigue, schemes and conspiracies. It may be very facile with its pen and probably speech as well. Nevertheless, it may be favored by its superiors.

AFRAID TO MARRY

By HELEN WELSHIMER

Written for and Released by CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Judy Rogers, New York heiress, is stunned when Craig Denby, the man she loves, tells her on the phone that he has married a girl he met at a week-end house party. Afraid of marriage, Judy reflects she put Craig off once too many times. Then she phones her father's lawyers to learn the details of his financial crash, just announced in the newspapers, and talks with Donald Birrett, a brilliant young attorney from Tennessee who has just joined the firm.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 2

"I WANT TO hear the facts in the case, and if I have to depend on you for them, I suppose it's Childs'," Judy answered the question of the young attorney who had said:

"Is it Childs' or not?"

"Good! The corned beef hash is excellent and there are those who have great fondness for their chicken croquettes with mashed potatoes."

"And hot butter cakes. I like them."

"Then you have been there!" He sounded almost glad.

"Sometimes for breakfast, after a party. I know their eggs, too."

It was foolish talk, something with which to pass away a few of the moments that stretched in a shadowy strain forever since Craig was gone. Craig—the name turned in her heart like something burning, quivering, beating, pulsing.

She would not have minded a subway, as a means of transportation to the office, on any other morning. But today the thought of the tall young man who was hurrying to meet his bride made her legs weak, stomach hurt, her head ached. She called the butler and asked him to have the town car ready and sat in one corner as the chauffeur threaded his way downtown. She smiled crookedly as she dismissed him. This probably was her last ride in the car. All servants would be leaving within a few days. But that did not matter. The fortune wasn't important. But Craig...

"If I only had not been so frightened at marriage, of love ending, he would never have married this other girl. He loved me, he loved me, he loved me!" The words went singing through her heart. Then a sharp contradiction almost interrupted: "But did he? Wasn't it habit? Maybe love doesn't last. You knew it didn't—that's why you refused him before—why be so upset when your theories prove true?"

It was such a hopeless problem that she finally pushed it away. She tried to think of young Ronald Birrell as she went up in the elevator to the well-known law offices where she had gone so many times, in former days, to pick up a check, or ask a favor when her father was abroad.

Miss Martin greeted her. Idly Judy noticed her blue eyes, her bands of honey-colored hair. Pretty. And a little contemptuous of the fallen debutante.

"Mr. Birrell is waiting for you," she said, and led Judy down the deeply-carpeted hall to a half open door.

Judy stepped inside. A tall young man, with wide shoulders, was standing at a window, his back turned to her. His hair was red—such a rebellious, rough vibrant red that she checked an impulse to laugh. So this was Ronald Birrell the mountain boy from Tennessee who had made such a name for himself during his two years of practice in a southern city that the famous law firm had offered him a place on its staff. In that moment before he saw her she remembered other things about him. He had been a football star, an All-American in fact, at Princeton. Then he had gone back home to begin the career which he was continuing in New York.

He turned. His eyes were gray and friendly. His face was lean and tanned. The hand that he extended was strong and forceful.

"Judy Rogers," he said, more than asked. "I'm glad you came."

"You didn't think I would?"

"I didn't know. I'm glad you decided my way."

"So am I." Judy smiled. Dimples flashed in her cheeks, the brown eyes quivered with small golden lights. The young man glanced at her quizzically. She flushed a little. Silly! Hadn't young men glanced at her that way often?

Across the room she glimpsed herself in a mirror. The yellow frock with its wide brown belt and brief brown jacket was stunning enough. So were the accessories, carefully assembled. She noted that Ronald Birrell's suit was a good tweed, in excellent taste. She wondered why she had expected that it wouldn't be.

He took her into a quiet restaurant near the office.

"But this wasn't in your promise," Judy exclaimed.

"I decided we needed a corner where we could talk. We've a lot to say to each other. First, let's order."

"You have a lot to say to me," Judy corrected. "I'd like tomato juice, an omelette and dry toast."

He shook his head. "No go. For the ordeals ahead of you, young lady, you should have beef stew with lots of vegetables. But—well, this time you may have the omelette."

This time . . . It was sheer idiocy to be glad he had said the two words which projected their acquaintanceship into the future, she told herself. She was, though. Being an honest person, she admitted the fact.

He leaned back in his chair. "We could have made it the Ritz, or the St. Regis, or Twenty-One—not on my expense account, either—but I thought you should grow accustomed to the lesser eating places."

"Thoughtful of you, Mr. Birrell. Know any nice lunch counters?"

"Dozens of them. I'll initiate you."

"Thanks. But I won't be here."

"Going away?"

She wondered if the concern in his eyes could be real.

"In a day or two. My father and stepmother are busy, and I'm in the way. My mother's in France and it's time to join her, anyway. She'll be cabling me a ticket and—" she shrugged. No reason to tell this straight-forward young man that she wanted the width of the ocean between her and a tall boy, with light hair and blue eyes, who had married another girl last night.

"Running away, eh?"

"Yes." Let him think what he would. "Call it that, if you wish."

"You look brave—and sturdy."

"I can't face it just yet," she said, and referred to something about which he knew nothing at all.

"I might have known," he murmured. "Hot house plants can't. I hoped you were different."

"Why?"

"I made up my mind to like you, when I first joined the firm. You were not approachable then. Now you are. And you turn out to be a disappointment."

"Anyway, now that you know, you can recover."

"I think you're worth saving."

"Nice of you."

"Not at all. You're most attractive—don't blush, it isn't news to you—you have an excellent mind, no doubt, if you polished it up, and you have a chance to make good. In what are you interested?"

"I like to design clothes," she heard her voice answering. "I always thought, if I had to earn my own living, I'd try to get in a shop or studio." It was strange that she should tell this to the boy across the table.

"Good! Then we must find you an opening."

"No, you must not find me an opening. I'm going away. To Paris, a city in a country across an ocean."

"Oh, yes, Paris. We'll skip that. You can go when you're famous. Maybe have a showing over there."

"I'm going now. Tomorrow. Day after. Whenever a boat sails."

It was an absurd thing to quarrel with a young man whom she had just met. It was ridiculous to grow upset over his criticism. These things Judy told herself. But she heard her voice answering more and more defiantly. At last, she said:

"Why should I care what you think?"

"Maybe you shouldn't—but you do," he answered, and smiled at her so merrily that she laughed.

Then he sobered: "You may do as you please, Judy Rogers. I was mistaken about you. Now we'll talk about the business matters for which you came. Then you catch your boat, and I'll see you in the rotogravures now and then."

Judy leaned across the narrow table, cheeks blazing with furious color.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

There they were—Hanid, Knarf, and Simple Simon—down at the bottom of the ocean!

Oh, you needn't be worried that they were getting wet, or felt at all uncomfortable being so deep under water. Hanid and Knarf were shadows, and shadows never get wet. As for Simple Simon, he was one of the Mother Goose people, and they are comfortable anywhere.

You see, Simon had been fishing for a whale in the well in his garden, and all of a sudden the whale had pulled him down, fishing-rod and all. Th two shadow children had gone down after him. And now they were at the bottom of the ocean, still trying to find—and perhaps catch—the whale.

"I think he's behind that big rock over there," Knarf suddenly said, pointing to a tall, moss-covered rock which lay half hidden among the swaying water plants.

So they started creeping softly up to the rock.

Sees Whale.

"Look! Simon cried, pointing down. "There he is! There's the whale!"

Then they got caught in a current.

To be sure, there was the whale, calmly sitting on his tail on the other side of the rock, picking his teeth with Simple Simon's fishing-rod!

"O-oh!....let's catch him!" Knarf shouted.

"Lets get down to him!" Hanid said.

Then they tried with all their might to get down again. But the harder they tried, the higher up they went. Then they got caught in a current—a current under-water is just like a strong wind on dry land—and in a minute or two they were swept far, far away from the whale.

In fact, I think they would be floating in that current yet if they hadn't met a——but I'll tell you whom they met on Monday.

Looking Back On This Date

Louis Joseph Papineau, the great Lower Canadian statesman, died on Sept. 24, 1870, at his manor at Montebello on the Ottawa river, to which he had retired after his abandonment of politics in 1854. Most English-speaking Canadians, especially those in Ontario, regard Papineau as having been in truth a Reformer. Late students of his character seem to doubt this view for the reason that when he returned to Canada after the amnesty to find responsible government inaugurated in the province of Canada, he did all in his power to obstruct and weaken LaFontaine and Baldwin in their working out of the new system.

It is amusing to note, how, after his return to Montreal, the man who had been the nominal leader of the rebellion in Lower Canada (nominal because the true leaders were others), was taken to the arms of the very men who in 1837 had denounced him and done their best to secure his capture so that he might "pay for this treason on the gallows."

The former rebel was the partner of the Orange-Tory leaders; he voted almost always with the Conservatives; he paid for the publication of newspapers which openly advocated annexation to the United States, and, taking advantage of his royal pardon, did all that lay in his power to wreck the very system of responsible government for which he provoked rebellion in 1837.

The fact is that when he came back from France he found "other times, other men," and since he could not have his own way sided with his former enemies to embarrass those who were building constitutional government in Canada. The Papineau up to his flight in 1837 was a popular idol; the Papineau of the years from 1846 to 1854 had lost his power. Only a minority of the people supported him. Like W. L. Mackenzie, he learned that nothing weakens public support as much as failure. The political folly of his late years outbalanced the undoubted work for reform in his early life.

Political unrest is handicapping business in Syria.

Are Gold-Diggers More Popular With Boys Because They Make Them Spend Money, Or Do Boys Prefer Girls Who Show An Economic Trend?

DEAR MISS DIX—Do you think the girl who is always trying to save a boy's pocketbook, even though she may not be going to marry him, is appreciated as much as the gold-digger who is for all she can get? I have always in mind the fact that a boy may not have a great deal of money and try to keep him from spending money upon me, but my friends say I am foolish not to take all I can get, and certainly, as far as I can see, I get no thanks from the boys. So where am I? MABEL.

ANSWER:

From the way boys complain about how the girls hold them up, and what it costs to take a Jane out for an evening's diversion, I should think that all the young men of your neighborhood would fall on your neck with loud cries of gratitude.

For the gold-diggers certainly are heartless robbers. They do on the assumption that every youth is a millionaire, although they work right at the next desk to him and are perfectly aware that his pay envelope has no more in it than theirs.

They may know that one dinner-dance will send him to a cheap lunch counter for a month; that a taxi takes the shoes off his feet, and a theatre strips the coat from his back, but so long as they are given a good time they should worry over what happens to the poor simp who lets them hold him up with a pair of blue eyes, and who hasn't enough backbone to say "No" to a female grafter if she has a peaches-and-cream complexion.

So one would think that the boys would simply mob the girl for dates who had enough heart and conscience to spare their pocketbooks; who would eat enough at home to stay her stomach until she got back, and who was willing to dance to a radio instead of demanding to be taken to a club where there was a twenty-piece jazz band.

But men are funny things and there is no understanding them when it comes to the question of women and money. Somehow, they always want to make a lordly gesture with their wallets before a girl. They may know that she knows to a penny how little is in it, but they make the grand flourish, anyway, as if they had the whole United States Treasury behind them.

The poorest boy is nearly always the one who grabs up the cheque and pays it, who sends a girl the longest-stemmed roses, who buys the most expensive seats at the theatre and who gives a dollar tip when a dime was all that was needed.

There are very few men who ever have the courage to tell a girl that they can't afford a thing, and it offends most of them for a girl to show that she knows that they can't afford it by suggesting doing something cheaper. So it is difficult for women to know what line to take with men. Perhaps the best way is never to suggest anything yourself but to fall in with the man's plan. Then if he spends more than he can afford the crime is at least on his own head. Though that won't save him from blaming the girl. But that is the chief pleasure men get out of women—making scapegoats of them.

• • • • • •

DEAR MISS DIX—What, oh, what is wrong with me? I can't take life in a happy way. And why? I am only 15, but I am so miserable I have been on the verge of committing suicide many times, yet I have nothing to be miserable about. Nothing interests me. Nothing seems worth while. And I see no use in going on living. Can you suggest any remedy for my trouble? WORRIED GIRL.

ANSWER:

Sure. Nothing easier. All that ails you is just being 15. All that you need to do is just to let nature take its course, and in a year or two you will outgrow the morbidness that is nearly always a feature of adolescence.

Besides, 15 is about the most uncomfortable age there is for a girl. It is a time of life when she doesn't fit in anywhere, when she is neither child nor woman, but an antagonistic blend of the two that keeps her own soul in a state of turmoil and confusion, and that makes her a terror to her family.

It is a time when it is hard for her to amuse herself, because she is too old to play with dolls and not old enough to have dates and when neither the children nor the grown-ups want her as a companion. So, unless her family is able and wise enough to send her off to school among other 15-year-olders, she is likely to be lonesome and bored, as you are. Yet the way to happiness and to make life worth while when you are 15 or 55 or any age is the same. It consists in thinking as little about yourself as possible and as much about other people as you can.

You can always find misery if you hunt for it. You can always borrow trouble if you ask for it. There is no man or woman so fortunately situated that he or she can't make himself or herself utterly wretched by dwelling on the disillusions and disappointments of life. On the contrary, there are none of us who cannot find something to make whoopee about if we would only count our blessings.

The real secret of happiness is to be found in unselfishness. If you will get busy trying to be a little ray of sunshine in your home and doing things for your mother and father and sisters and brothers you will find a meaning to life and no longer be miserable.

Gridiron Star Laid To Rest Sarnia Cemetery

SARNIA, Sept. 24. — Beneath the shade of a grove of trees in Lakeview Cemetery on Friday afternoon a solemn-faced group of rugged youths stood with bowed heads as a fighting team mate who had done much to write the name of the Sarnia Imperials large across the pages of Canadian football history was laid to rest.

Surrounding them, under the blue of an autumn sky, stood part of one of the largest crowds of Sarnia citizens ever to turn out in tribute to a departed townsman.

Old and young, prominent and humble, they stood with bowed heads as last rites were said over the broken body of Ormond Beach, who passed from the Canadian football scene with the vicious blast that shook this town early last Wednesday and hurled him to his death at the Imperial Oil Company's refinery.

Many there were among them who had cheered themselves hoarse in the crisp autumn air as their gridiron hero raced down the field to bring glory to their home town. But yesterday afternoon there was a stillness that hung like a blanket over the corner of Lakeview Cemetery, and an air that expressed a sense of bewilderment at the tragedy that so suddenly snuffed out such a young and vigorous life.

Streets Packed.

But the crowd that assembled in Lakeview Cemetery was only a fragment of the throng that packed the streets for blocks on all sides of Central Baptist Church as the public funeral service was being conducted by Rev. J. Louis Barley.

Hundreds of automobiles were packed tightly, bumper to bumper, on all streets in the immediate vicinity of the church. Inside, the auditorium was packed to the doors and scores of people were jammed in the foyer.

The church was filled long before the private service in the home of John W. Booth, father-in-law of Beach, had ended.

To those who waited outside, the sound of the hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," signalled that the service had commenced. Inside of the little church even members of the choir held handkerchiefs to wet eyes, because such was the popularity of this big- good-natured rugby star that residents almost to a man appeared to have experienced a sense of personal loss.

"We are gathered heer this afternoon to pay tribute to a prince of men," commenced Rev. Mr. Barley. "A sportsman of the highest calibre, an affectionate husband and a friend to all, and not only to pay tribute, but to endeavor to convey comfort to his widow, relatives, close friends and team mates.

"Much time could be spent on enlarging upon his athletic prowess, clean sportsmanship, the esteem and love in which he was held in the eyes of his colleagues and opponents alike; and his cheerful and good-natured fighting spirit.

"We are glad at least that before the tragic and untimely death there came into his hands the coveted O.R.F.U. Trophy. A cloud has enshrouded the rugby field to-day, has enshrouded the whole City of Sarnia, and in particular has descended like a pall upon his wide circle of friends in two countries, in Canada and in the land of his birth, our friendly neighbor to the south. Again I say, a prince of men has passed from us."

"Down beneath his massive physical strength and virile masculinity lay a side of his life known to his intimate friends, a warm heart that went out toward family, friends, children and the needy — a heart that responded to the love of God."

Anti-Aircraft Training Depot Planned

KINGSTON, Sept. 24. — The first unit in an elaborate system of anti-aircraft training buildings will be erected in Artillery Park opposite the Armouries at a cost of $24,576, it was learned here last night.

Official confirmation came from Ottawa in the form of an announcement which said the Frontenac Construction Company of Toronto had been awarded the contract by the Department of National Defence.

Eventually it it hoped to train hundreds of men in this work and other buildings will be erected within the next year at a total cost of about $150,000. When the project is completed, Kingston will become the chief centre for the Dominion in anti-aircraft training work.

Buildings in Artillery Park will be torn down to make way for the next structure. The park is a block in length from east to west and about half a block from north to south. The entire park will be used when the whole plan takes shape, it is learned.

Branch Notes

ST. LUKE'S BRANCH

The regular meeting of St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. was held on Thursday evening and was the first business meeting of the fall season, with the president in the chair. A presentation was made to one of the older members who is joining the ranks of the benedicts. After a few words by the president, Rev. Mr. Bousfield presented Roland Krant with a smoker's stand and a magazine rack. Rollie expressed his thanks in a few well chosen words.

The branch decided to purchase 36 new hymn and prayer books for the use of visitors to the church. Three teams have been formed to bowl, captained by Ralph Mason, Floyd Curtis and William Hepburn. The league opens on October 1.

The meetings in future will start at 8 p.m. sharp. Anyone coming in after 8.15 will be penalized one cent. The annual harvest festival services will be held next Thursday evening and the branch will have a harvest tea and social hour immediately afterwards. This was tried out last year and received favorable comment from all who attended.

Keep Thanksgiving Day, October 10, open as the branch intends to hold a picnic on that day. More about this later.

The monthly corporate communion will be Sunday morning. Please make an effort to be present.

There will be no meeting next week because of the Harvest Festival. Try and attend and if members care to help with the decorating of the church next week your services will be greatly appreciated.

ST. JOHN'S BRANCH

Wednesday was "Variety Night" at St. John's. Under the guidance of Fred Hooper and Wilf Gynane the club enjoyed a little bit of everything. The evening was opened by a short devotional service and then came the entertainment. There was a very good attendance and everyone had a good time.

They played a few games and sang a few songs and then adjourned to the parlor where Don Kennedy held the attention of all while he related some of his experiences during his recent visit to Germany and ended with a rendition of that old sailor son, "What Shall We Do With a Drunken Sailor."

Wilf Gynane then took the helm and when all was quiet and dark flashed movies on the screen. Next Wednesday brings the weiner roast. Everyone be on hand at the parish hall at 7 o'clock.

KING NOT KEENE

Rumors that the bank at Keene Village had zeen held up and robbed of $7,000 floated around this city Friday afternoon following the midday broadcast from Toronto. A checkup revealed the rumour had its origin in a broadcast telling of a bank robbery at King Ontario and several people believed the announcer had said Keene.

PLENTY OF SHOUTING.

Peterborough had some idea of the amount of noise that shouting cohorts of Nazi Leader Adolph Hitler must make when they hold their annual congress at Nuremberg, when Brooklin and Peterborough locrosse teams played here Friday night. The 1,500 spectators that jammed the lacrosse arena shouted so loud they could be heard quite plainly at the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club more than a mile away.

HARVESTING DIFFICULT

Farmers in several sections of the county report that the excessive rains of the past week has made it extremely difficult for harvesting of buckwheat, a great deal of which remains uncut still. The heavy storm of a month ago flattened much of this grain and this coupled with the excesive rain which made many fields quagmires indicates that many fields will be lost. Planting of fall wheat has been delayed somewhat and quite a number of farmers have not completed the sowing of this grain.

CHANCE TO HELP.

When H .R. Robertson of Stratford, was approaching Peterborough via No. 28 Highway Saturday morning he noticed a car standing at the side of the road a few miles from the city. Two women were at the side and one of them put up a hand so Mr. Robertson stopped. The car was from a district farm and the occupants were on their way to market but the car had gone wrong and the farmer was trying to make it right. Market time was at hand and the ladies had baskets of chickens. So the load was transferred to the car of the Startford man and he deposited it on the market in time for business. Mr. Robertson was a caller at the Examiner office, and was on his way to his home-town, Perth, which for a long time he has visited several times each year.

Oshawa Police Seek Nurse In Fraud Case

OSHAWA, Sept. 24.—Miss Elizabeth Symes of Port Perry, a graduate nurse, believed to be the victim of a case of alleged misrepresentation, is being sought by Oshawa police.

A man who gave his name as Dr. J. J. Hubbell of Timmins, and issued two worthless cheques before leaving with a new car obtained under fraudulent circumstances, is believed to have hired the pretty young nurse, who graduated from the Oshawa Hospital this spring.

Chief of Police Owen D. Friend last night stated since that time no trace has been found of her, and the fact that she may have left the city did not become known until the misrepresentation was divulged Thursday.

It is understood that the man, posing as a member of the medical profession from Timmins, approached a local doctor and succeeded in having a cheque cashed. Later the man visited a local motor-car dealer and purchased a new coupe. For the car he is reported to have tendered a cheque for approximately $500 and made arrangements to finance the balance.

This was on Monday of this week and the bold front allayed any suspicion until Thursday, when the cheques were returned marked no good. It is also understood there is no doctor of the name given operating in Timmins.

Friday afternoon, police learned, the man had contacted several parties, stating he wished to hire a graduate nurse for a private hospital he would open in Timmins. Information received from Chief Friend indicated that Miss Symes was approached and apparently left the city with the alleged doctor.

The man is described as being about 30 years of age, five foot six or seven inches tall and with fair hair and complexion. He was wearing a grey suit and coat and driving a grey Buick with license plate No. D-1841, when he left here. Circulars, under the signature of the Oshawa Police Chief, have been sent out.

Youths Caught Stealing Gas

Four local youths pleaded guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning to attempting to steal a quantity of gasoline from the car of J. S. Canon Friday night.

The boys were caught by Constable Clark as they were siphoning gas from Cann's car outside the lacrosse bowl, last night.

In explanation the accused said they had run out of gas as they reached the parking ground, had no money to buy any more and tried to take enough from Cann's car to move their machine away as it was blocking traffic there.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., told the court that the boys' story differed from his instructions as to what had acually happened. However, he said, the youths had never been in police court before or given the authorities any trouble he thought suspended sentence would meet the circumstances fairly.

The cases were adjourned until Monday morning when the parents of the four will be asked to go on a bond guaranteeing good behaviour on the part of the accused in future. Magistrate Langley intimating that sentences would be suspended.

Three months in jail was the sentence imposed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning upon John King, when the latter, as a third offender under the Liquor Control Act, pleaded guilty to being drunk in a public place on Friday.

King admitted two previous convictions in May and June of this year and said he had nothing to say to the court before sentence was passed.

Rev. E. Ralph Ayde To Preach In City

The Rev. E. Ralph Adye who will be visiting the city over the weekend is chairman of the Poppy Day Fund Committee for the Province of Ontario and a member of the dominion committee. With Armistice Day but six weeks off people and especially returned men are remembering the unreturning brave and the Poppy Day campaign looms large in the coming events. Mr. Adye will preach both morning and evening in All Saints Church on Sunday on the occasion of the Harvest Festival services.

Youth Training Program Is Reopened

Announcement of the reopening of the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training program was made today by Dan Douglas, superintendent of the Employment Service of Canada.

The project, by which youths are placed for instruction—and paid—in large industrial plants, met with instant success last year and is now being continued. Young men who want to take the course are requested to call at the Employment Service on King street and make application to Mr. Douglas.

Under the plan, young men must be paid at least $10 a week during their period of instruction, which last anywhere from one to three months, and the joint governments reimburse the companies to varying degrees.

Last year more than two dozen young Peterborough men were placed in the city's varied industries, many of them are permanently employed as a result. The hope is that at the end of the period of training the young man may be qualified sufficiently to take over positions in the plants.

All youths registering at the agency must have a definite idea of the kind of employment they would like, said Mr. Douglas. "Last year more than half of them had no idea what they would like to do; they just wanted work," he said. He stressed the importance of regular morning calls at the agency by those registered. Mr. Douglas will keep in constant contact with industrial heads in an effort to place as many apprentices as possible. There will be no outside supervisor this year.

Peterborough Man Is Held At Toronto

TORONTO, Sept. 24 — (CP). — Sought by the Chief Constable of Belleville for two weeks on a charge of fraudulently obtaining an auto, Kenneth Mitchell, 28, of Peterborough, was arrested by Constables Roy Haliburton and John Syme of No. 2 Station. Geraldine Hutchinson, also of Peterborough, who was in the car, was held on a charge of vagrancy.

Trailer To Accommodate Eight Persons Car Will Be Towed Behind

When Joe Elmhirst, noted California cattleman who was raised around Keene, makes up his mind to do a thing he does it on a big scale and lets nothing stand in his path.

A short time ago he told an Examiner reporter that he was dissatisfied with his luxury trailer, and that he intended to build a larger one. The new one would have an engine, would have much the same chassis as a transcontinental truck, and would haul a car behind it, he said. The idea of the car behind was that it could be used to travel in cities, in much the same fashion some yachts carry outboard motorboats.

Today Joe Elmhirst was in Peterborough and he told the same reporter that his projected trailer is fast becoming a reality. It is being built at Lansing, Michigan, now needs to be finished only in the interior. Its cost will be in the neighborhood of $15,000—probably the most expensive trailer ever made.

It will accommodate eight people with comfort, is 27 feet long and eight feet wide. An interior decorator will furnish it and it will have hot and cold running water, electric refrigeration, concealed lighting, and an air conditioning plant. Its cost would have been even greater except that the motor company manufacturing it hopes to realize some money from its advertising value, he said. On the car will be the old familiar crest of Joe Elmhirst's 15,000-acre ranch in California.

SHARP-SHOOTING CLEVELANDER BEATS YACK IN BIG FIGHT

Canadian Champion's Rally Fails To Overcome George Pace's Early Lead

TORONTO, Sept. 24. — George Pace, Cleveland bantam flash, beat Baby Yack, Canadian champion, at the Queensbury Club show at Maple Leaf Gardens last night and it was as good a fight as you could hope to see in any man's town.

Action! Hitting! And not clinching of the dying man's clutch variety! Those bantam gamecocks, twice as fast as any heavyweights, turned on the speed—and the heat. Pace won beyond any question, but he had to go through a torrid battle to gain the unanimous decision of Judges Fred Nobert and Dr. Les Black.

He won because he was the better boxer and the cleaner, harder hitter. Yack made it reasonably close because he is as courageous a fighter as the ring knows, a battler from the word go who doesn't know there is such a word as quit in or out of the dictionaries.

Pace, with solid, sharpshooting punches, piled up an early lead that would have disheartened most boxers, but it only made Yack fight twice as hard.

Yack the Aggressor.

Yack has to be given credit for making the fight. Pace was glad to let him do so for that was right down the colored boy's alley. Cleveland's boxing pride is at his best when he can shoot counter-punches against an opponent who is forcing the fighting and that's exactly how he beat Yack last night. Even had he wanted to do the leading, Yack wouldn't have let him take the play into his own hands. Yack wanted to be first. He couldn't be first with his punches, but he was first with his leading.

At the half-way mark it looked as though Yack was on his way to a bad beating. Pace had won the first, second, fourth and fifth rounds, with the third even. Any boxer not in superb physical condition would have wilted, no matter how great a heart he had. Yack's condition was well-night perfect and he kept up his ceaseless attack. The sixth was another losing round for him, but a couple of hard left hooks gave Pace due warning not to get careless.

Then the Baby started to do his stuff in real earnest. His boxing was neater and his aggressiveness unrelenting while Pace looked a bit tired. The result was that Yack won the seventh and eighth by good margins and had a shade in the ninth. Left hooks to the stomach hurt Pace but he produced a defense for them before repetition could add to the damage.

Entering the tenth round it still was questionable whether anything short of a series of knockdowns could win for Yack but the crowd, at fever pitch as they cheered his great rallies, wasn't worrying about the judge's score sheets. The fight of the year was going on and everybody knew it.

That tenth, Yack's forlorn hope round, did him no good. Pace called on his reserve strength, caught the Baby coming in and spun him half around with four or five short, jolting rights to the jaw. It clinched the verdict for Pace if any clinching was needed.

Pace's neatest punch throughout the bout was a darting left jab. The left also was used for a hard, hooking punch, but only occasionally. The punch with which he did the most damage, though, one which made Yacks knees buckle momentarily half a dozen times, was a short, straight right to the chin.

Most of Yack's punches were hooks, tossed at Pace as the Toronto boy bulled his way to close quarters. Pace, a master boxer, caught many of them on arms, shoulders and elbows and went through the bout with a minimum of punishment.

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, this has been the busiest week in local sport for some time what with the rugby team playing its first game, the lacrossers tangling with Brooklin in a all-important clash and Eddie Murphy's ball club finally getting into action in the O.B.A.A. playoffs.

Our footballers went to Cobourg last Saturday and the truth is, neighbors, while the team didn't cover itself with glory and was nearly beat by a intermediate outfit the game was important because it indicated where the weak spots was. Of course it didn't need no game to show that the Petes need a ace kicker but on top of that the Cobourg fracas, while hard to take, particularly the ribald remarks of the Cobourg spectators, showed that we gotta get more offensive strength. Personally up to now I can't see where much has been added in that dept. and it's there the outfit will have to be bolstered up to make a respectable showing in the fast company they're going to be in.

A Nice Start

Our ball team got theirselfs away to a nice start in the O.B.A.A. playoffs by beating Niagara Falls and incidentally that was the second time a Peterborough senior club has win a way-from-home battle in the senior fracas. The other time was in 1927 when the Toronto St. George's was licked at Maple Leaf stadium. Wed., Mac, the lads did not let a long car ride slow them up none and they went out and trimmed the Falls gang in a game in which they were never behind. Our Mister Kitchen pitched a smooth game of ball over most of the route, the boys fielded smartly and they had the punch to go out in the ninth and win the ball game after the enemy had tied the score the frame before. And it takes a game club to do that. By the time this gets out the 2nd game should be over and I don't see no reason why the Petes shouldn't repeat if they travel along at their usual gait.

The Lacrosse Fracas

Writing about lacrosse, with the Petes' chances hanging in the balance is kinda ticklish business. This is Fri. p.m. and tonite the boys tangle with Brooklin here and have to win to stay in there. I ain't backward about saying I think theyll come through all O.K. particularly if they remember to get started in the 1st coupla periods and not leave all their scoring raids to the last half. Up to Brooklin the other nite our gang couldn't seem to get untracked until the last 15 mins. and that aint early enough, although it nearly was, what with the boys coming through with 5 goals in a row.

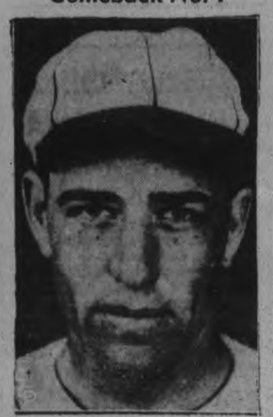
It looks like the Pittsburgh Pirates with old Jupe Pluvius doing the best pitching for them has about backed into the National League pennant, this knocking ½ of the Wisecracker pre-season prediction for a loop. About the world's serious? Everybody sez the Yanks but remember the St. Louis Browns just licked them babies 4 straight games. It can be done but somebody else can make the prophecy that the Pirates will do it.

That's the works, lads

Sportfully yours,

A WISE CRACKER.

Comeback No. 1



Right up near the top of the 1938 comeback list is Paul Dean, ABOVE, who was shipped to the Texas League by St. Louis Cardinals last year, made a temporary return, was sent down again, and now is back again hurling winning ball. In his first return engagement he turned back the league-leading Pirates, 6-4, and followed up with a 4-0 win over Boston Bees.

Budge Meets Mako In U.S. Finals

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Sept. 24 (A.P.). — There are some grand dramatic possibilities in the meeting to-day between those two old buddies, Don Budge and Gene Mako, for the United States men's tennis championship.

Together they have fought tennis battles as doubles partners for the last four years, with Budge the hero. Now defending champion Budge needs only a single victory—to-day's—to establish him unquestionably the world's reigning amateur and to set him up financially for life as a touring professional.

Should Budge lose, his value as a pro would drop out of sight. It would be a tremendous blow to him, and would be worth little to Mako, who plans to ease off on tennis. But Gene swore he was going to bear down every minute.

"If I can lick Don I certainly will," he declared after his sensational 6-3, 7-5, 6-4 victory over Jack Bromwich of Australia yesterday.

Budge hasn't lost a set and he never looked better than in squelching Sidney Wood, Jr., by 6-3, 6-3, 6-3 yesterday.

The women's final is between Alice Marble of Los Angeles and Nancye Wynne of Australia, who gained the final a week ago. Miss Marble entered the last round yesterday when she won off Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, 5-7, 7-5, 7-5.

Coaches from the bench, but he's in the game every minute in every way except physically. There's nothing better to carry into a game than "the old fight," but even that won't bring results unless you know what to do and when to do it. Lew will tell you how and when every day on the Examiner sports page.

Football Battles Preliminaries To Life's Important Struggles

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of articles on football instruction by Lew Hayman. One article will appear each day on the Examiner sport page.

By LEW HAYMAN

Coach of Toronto Argonauts, Canadian Rugby Champions

Football properly taught, makes the player of today a better citizen of tomorrow. The joys and worries of victory and defeat prepare a boy for the gains and set-backs he will receive in the more important game of life. The bumps and bruises the lad legitimately gives and takes tend to mould his character and strengthen his body, making for a happier, healthier young man.

Any team sport stresses the importance of co-operativeness and leadership. Rugby is a team sport, so what better place to instill in boys the qualities their parents are continually looking for in them.

So in looking for a balancer, to give you an outlet to your enthusiasm and energy, other than through study and work, I say PLAY FOOTBALL—you can't beat a sound body and a clear mind.

Now that we're to play the game let's play it properly. There is a right and a wrong way to do everything and it has been proven by actual experience over many years that by applying correct methods we can be more effective in attaining our goal more easily and with less chance of injury.

Fundamentals First

In my opinion too little attention is paid to the coaching of fundamentals in Canadian football. Particularly is this true in the instructing of juvenile, junior, intermediate and high school boys. To these coaches and players I am going to endeavor by diagrams and illustrations to show the proper way to prepare and exercise whatever talents you may possess in the most effective manner.

I shall assume that you have a working knowledge of the game. My intent will be to take the opening of any football season and carry the instruction to a point where the raw material has become the thoroughly trained player, who can put what ability he has to good use because he knows what should be done and the RIGHT WAY TO DO IT.

Individually and collectively I will take up each position offensively and defensively. After that we shall work on the units and then the complete team. No manoeuvre will be too small. I will set up by words, diagrams, and photographs the particular practice for each day. You do the practical application and I'm sure we'll give the opposition something to think about.

Everybody show up here again on Monday and we'll go over the season ahead, and map out a few general plans that will help as we move along.

Pirates Lead Cut Two Games

By Sid Feber

(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

So it can't happen here, eh? So no club could ever do what the Pirates of 1921 did—kick away a six-game lead in the closing days of a pennant fight? And no slugger, particularly a right-handed batsman, could come down the September stretch to equal Babe Ruth's 60-homers-a-season record of 1927.

The die-hards have been saying it for years, but now they're not so sure that history won't repeat.

Pittsburgh 17 years back was the team that was just about "in" with the pennant, then had the door slammed in their face. And remember the Babe in September '27. He waved that big wagon tongue for 17 homers in that 30-day stretch.

There's more than an outside chance that the Pirates of today, particularly after that 12-inning beating they absorbed from Cincinnati's Reds yesterday, will put dit-to marks in the record books. That defeat, coupled with the pair of decision the second-place Chicago Cubs took from the Phillies sliced the Bucs' lead to two games, and, what's more important, left the Pirates facing six games with the Reds and three with the Cubs.

Hit 56 Home Runs.

Then there's big Hank Greenberg, who clouted his 55th and 56th homers of the season yesterday, even though Detroit Tigers were handed a double whipping by Cleveland. That pair of Pokes put Big Hank three games up on the Bam's pace, and left him with nine more starts to reach the mark.

Yesterday's two wallops marked a total of nine in 12 days for the big fellow, and gave him sole possession of a major league record—that for having hit two homers in a game 10 times this season.

In Philadelphia, Augie Galan's eighth-inning homer gave the Cubs a 3-2 decision in the opener, and Rip Collins' two doubles and four runs batted in turned the trick 7-6 in the nightcap. Each time the Cubs came from behind.

In the lone American League larruping, the Indians took the Tigers 8-1 in the opener, with Bobby Feller tossing a six-hitter, fanning 10, and walking only one. Ken Keltner took some of the spotlight from Greenberg in the nightcap, driving in four runs in a 6-5 victory.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

IT IS POSSIBLE that the imaginary motto of the new C.G.E. Athletic Club is "increased production by contented employees," but at any rate this company is showing the way with its athletic organization for young and old of either sex. A most worthy club it is and will no doubt see some 500 members have a huge time this winter. Whether the project appeals to the plump as worthy in winged weight, to the leaner lads and ladies as a buildup tonic which requires no shaking or spoons, to the gayer guys as a cure-all for hangoveritis, or to the general membership as excellent exercise and social activity—it is a valuable venture. More such clubs in the city would make for more health, fun and sociability.

IN THE NEAR FUTURE, the C.G.E. Athletic Club will move its headquarters to the Armouries—holding forth at the moment in the gym at the rear of the Playmor Sports store. There are over 100 fencing members now, a good percentage of them girls. A big squad of boxers work out three nights a week under Bill Horrocks and a gang of rasslers will strut their stuff, too. Track, field, gym and other sports are on the list, and a rowing machine and gym equipment, as well as a collapsible ring will be installed. With lockers and probably showers later. Club has a dance at the Brock on Monday, a huge turnout being anticipated.

A good season for the over-the-hemp artists in this circuit was reported.

AGENT from the C.G.E. yesterday sent us a note stating that the Drafting Dept. and Switchgear softball teams of the shop league were settling their final series this aft at the Bowl. Sorry, but it arrove too late to catch the sports pages yesterday and we dunno if this note today will help, but here 'tis. The game at 1.15 was to be the fourth tilt in a three-in-five serial, and if a fifth fray was necessary it would be staged right afterward. Switchgear had a 2-1 lead in games till today. A number of puckists adorn the lineups—if adorn is the right word—of these two shop outfits, gees like Archie Weir, Honey Tompkins, Earl McNabb, Art Padgett, Holly Mowry and so on. But they can still play softball.

Like Rollin' Off a Log

SOME 1,500 FANS saw the Petes even up the lacrosse playoffs last eve here with a 12-4 win over Brooklin. Deciding joust will be at 8.30 in Lindsay Monday in the gloaming, and a raft of Peterborough folk will trek toward the town on the Scugog for it. It was a waltz for the locals last night and they earned the victory handily by playing good lacrosse. They were fine defensively and had their rivals ga-ga with a swelegant passing attack. Too much individual work ruined many of the Brooklin thrusts and it was just a matter of how many for Peterborough. We nominate Red Creighton and Chute as local stars in this struggle, but the whole gang played a dandy game. They can beat Brooklin Monday, too.

• • • • • •

FIGHTS threatened several times as the boys checked each other with abandon and bumped 'em around with malice aforethought. One neat scrap broke out in the fourth when Mick Magee and Ormiston traded punches—with the local towhead hanging three on Orm that had oodles of "umph" in 'em! Several other players tried to horn in but were pried apart, and the law jogged onto the field to subdue the outbreak. Brooklin officers didn't want the police to break through them and trouble threatened for a moment around the visitors' bench, but law and order prevailed. It is more than likely the belt will be off in the last half of Monday's fray in Lindsay and the losing team isn't going to forget the punches thrown its way by the other side all during the season—not if we know the huskies on these two teams.

Don't Get The Feet Wet

A GOOD MOVE has been made by the pro and amachoor puck moguls in drawing up a uniform code of hockey rules for this winter. Five major items were okayed yesterday by the powers that be in puckdom, and local fans will see them in use at the Brock St. palais d'ice late in December. One rule claims a player is not offside so long as his skates are onside; in other words, he can reach over the line and play the puck with his stick—and this ought to eliminate a lot of needless whistle-tooting. The blue line is to be 12 inches thick and must be blue, while other lines, like penalty-shot, goal crease and goal-line, will be red. Thicker blue line was tried out successfully in Toronto last spring and should help a lot—though the overhead on paint will be increased some 75 per cent.

• • • • • •

LESS PROTECTION for the goalie this winter, too, as the goal crease will be reduced from eight by five feet to seven across and only three feet deep. In the case of penalty shots, the puck will be placed now at centre ice and the player may skate over the penalty line after getting his shot away. When a team clears the puck down the ice, the rubber must travel across the rival squad's penalty-shot line before a faceoff is called, and then the referee must not blow his whistle too soon—in case the other team brings the disc back up to score. Among recommendations in connection with these rules, is one to limit players' number of the uniforms from No. 1 to No. 19, thus getting away from No. 53 and No. 77, etc. A penalty shot also is recommended against goalies who hold the rubber more than three seconds or drop it into their pads or toss the bootheel into the crowd. So youse puck followers can digest these changes while awaiting a freezeup, eh?

King Edward Boys' Team Defeats Central 3 to 1

Two old soccer favorites met on Friday afternoon, on King Edward Park before a good attendance of parents and school fans, when King Edward got the break over Central in their first scheduled game in the Public School League. King Edward trusted in combination to give them a three-one victory over the Central. It was a drawn game with five minutes to finish and the losers were caught up the field bombarding their opponents' goal.

Two Goals In Two Minutes

There was no choice in the selection of goals, King Edward taking the east goal; Central the west citadel. Langton set the ball rolling towards the Central goal where Kiff and Meiklejohn frustrated attack after attack of the fast moving wing men—Jamieson and Palmer. Their method of clearing proved costly to them through too much individuality thereby robbing their forwards of any progress; while King Edward relied on combination. Ken Anderson broke up a scrimmage in his own goal and carried the ball upfield where he punted into the Central goal. Langton trapped the ball nicely to give the custodian no chance to save. Within the next two minutes, Central equalized through the effort of Clark on a pass from Miller. On a raid upon the Central goal Jamieson broke away fast on the wing and slipped across a perfect pass where Murduff skied the ball. Just before the interval, Central hemmed the King Edward boys into their areas, Clark missing by inches. Half Time: Central 1, King Edward 1.

King Edward Took Lead

On resuming, the teams settled down to the long swinging style of play that opened up the game which brought out the tactics of the respective halves thereby giving the forwards ample opportunities in front of goal. Lawson and Lowe held the Central boys outside the goal area, in fact, the latter was outstanding with his positional play when Central combination looked promising. It was after Central had bombarded their opponents' goal MacGregor relieved the pressure by sending Jamieson along the wing. He sent the ball over the other wing, Palmer working around the defence to send it back to Jamieson, who met the ball outside the five yard line to connect with a first timer. Central again went back into the King Edward area to hammer away at goal but only got corner kicks that were fruitless. Then Anderson trapped the ball out to the left wing where that pair battled against stubborn full backs. Murduff shot into the goal-keeper's hands who failed to clear sufficiently and Reil put the game on a decisive basis by shooting into the far corner of net. King Edward 3 Central 1.

PETES SEW UP LACROSSE SERIES WITH 12-4 WIN OVER BROOKLIN

Neat Passing By Home Team Earns Victory In Second Game; Third To Be Played In Lindsay

Flashing lovely passing plays throughout the tilt, the Petes last night took a 12-4 victory over Brooklin to force a third game in their O.L.A. senior "B" group play-off series. The third fixture will be in Lindsay at 8.30 Monday night, neutral grounds being called for. A crowd of nearly 1500 home rooters cheered the locals to their well-earned win last evening.

There was no doubt about the contest this time, the Petes dominating play in every quarter. They overshadowed the visitors completely with combination plays while Brooklin tried too much individual work to come close. The homesters took a 3-0 lead in the first frame, made it 6-2 at halftime and had a 10-3 edge going into the third stanza. They coasted at times, holding the ball in possession, and made their rivals look bad.

Though not as exciting a tussle as usual between these bitter rivals, the game had its high spots and was featured by one hard fist fight between Magee and Ormiston in the fourth quarter which threatened for a minute to turn into a free-for-all. Appearance of three police officers on the field quelled the disturbance after Brooklin officials had tried to interfere. The big crowd made plenty of noise all through.

Hard Checking

The game was a speedy and hard-checking tilt with tempers frayed at times. Two referees handed out 19 penalties in an effort to keep the contest under control, the Petes drawing 10 of them. Referee Joe Murphy of Mimico proved quite unpopular in many of his rulings. Jack Westonfelt was hurt in the third period but returned to play late in the fourth. Worthy also received a shaking up but no damage was done. Beside the Magee-Ormiston major penalties, Jerry Creighton and Stevens drew five-minute penalties for roughing each other up.

Red Creighton and Rowan Chute were the local stars, both defensive players turning in a whale of an effort. The former stopped plenty of hot thrusts, especially in the first half, and took the heart out of the Brooklin bunch. Chute looked good offensively and defensively. The rest of the Petes also looked smart in this contest, playing first-class steady lacrosse in all departments. There was not a weak link in the local chain last night. The Vipond brothers, Kivell and Saunders looked the most effective for the losers, all of whom played good lacrosse but lacked system to their attack.

The teams:

Brooklin: Goal, Luke; defence, Grice and J. Cooper; centre, Kivell; wings, Lewis Vipond and Luther Vipond; rover W. Vipond; alternates, Stevens, Armour, G. Cooper, Saunders, Ormiston, Leroy and Cook.

Petes: Goal R. Creighton; defence, Westonfelt and G. Creighton; centre, Whitton; wings, King and Dallin; rover, Worthy; alternates, Miller, Magee, Reid, E. Creighton, Dundas and Crowe.

Bears Blank Rochester

NEWARK, Sept. 24. — The champion Newark Bears, who lost three out of their first four playoff games to Rochester, made it three in a row over the Red Wings on Friday night at Ruppert Stadium, Newark, as red-headed Johnny Haley blanked the Little Cardinals 9 to 0, to win the first round of the International League Governor's Cup series for the Junior Yankees.

Newark will start the final round against Buffalo this afternoon at Ruppert Sadium, with Marius Russo, Long Island southpaw, facing Ken Ash, veteran Bison right-hander. The series will be the best four out of seven, with the first two games played at Newark. The winners will represent the league in the Junior World Series.

Haley, the leading International League pitcher with seventeen wins against two defeats, who registered the first victory of the series for Newark after Rochester had won the first two, yielded seven hits, while the pennant winners collected 11 at the expense of Nubs Klinke, Bob Bowman, Ken Raffensberger, and Al Sherer, who went to the mound in that order.

St. Catharines Athletics Capture Ontario Crown By Beating Orillia

ORILLIA, Ont., Sept. 24—(CP).—St. Catharines Athletics, crowned Ontario lacrosse champions, today awaited the outcome of a series between Montreal and Cornwall for a crack at the eastern championship.

The Athletics advanced to the eastern finals last night when they eliminated Orillia Terriers, long a power in Canadian lacrosse channels, 16-10 in the fourth game of the best-of-five series. The Terriers, 1937 provincial titlists, won the first game 14-8. The Athletics, however, won the second 10-7 and the third 18-7.

Winners of the eastern title meet the western victors for possession of the Mann Cup, won last year by New Westminster Salmonbellies.

Bill Fitzgerald and Wandy McMahon paced the Athletics to victory over Orillia. Each scored three goals. Fitzgerald scored his first goal 40 seconds after the start of the game, giving St. Catharines a lead they never relinquished.

Hockey Moguls Adopt Uniform Rules

TORONTO, Sept. 24.—For the first time in the history of hockey in Canada a uniform code of rules has been agreed upon by professional and amateur bodies clear across Canada. This was accomplished on Friday when the National Hockey League moguls sat around a table in conference with Amateur Hockey Association regarding a uiform set of rules—and they didn't differ on any major point.

The five major items in Friday's argument around the round table were disposed of, as predicted by this writer a few days ago, as follows, subject to ratification by the N.H.L. at their semi-annual meeting this morning (and that's a foregone conclusion), are:

Offsides—A player will not be considered offside as long as all parts of his skates are onside. He can reach over the line and play the puck with his stick. It will be skates, not body, that count, and the actual blue line does not count in this figuring. The skates have to be over the offending side of the line before a penalty can be imposed.

Blue Line—Official adoption of the 12-inch blue line is indicated—and this is more important than it seems on the surface—the blue lines are to be BLUE in all rinks, and the penalty-shot line, the goal-crease line, the goal line and the framework of the goal cages are to be RED.

Goal Crease—Size of the goaler's marked crease is to be cut down from eight feet across and five feet deep to seven feet across and three feet deep.

Penalty Shot—Players can skate over the penalty shot line after having legally made a penalty shot. The puck is to be placed in the centre of the ice area, instead of at the opposing team's penalty zone, as heretofore.

Icing the Puck—When a team clears the puck out of its defense zone, the puck must travel across the penalty shot line in the other defense zone before a face-off will be called in the defense zone of the team that cleared the puck. However, the referee is not to rule on this play until assured that a goal will not be scored.

It also has been recommended that a minor penalty be imposed on any player, except the goaltender, who holds the puck against the boards unless he is being checked. This is not news, for it has been in the rules, lo these many years.

No High Numbers

It also has been recommended that players' numbers on their uniforms be restricted from No. 1 to No. 19. This is to get away from the No. 44's and 77's which have appeared in the N.H.L. during recent seasons. A penalty shot is recommended against goaltenders who hold the puck longer than three seconds or who drop the puck into their pads or throw it into the crowd.

Brights Capture T.A.B.A. Title With 5 to 3 Win

TORONTO, Sept. 24. — Roy Downing's Bright's A.C., champions of the West Toronto League, captured the T.A.B.A. senior championship last night at Viaduct Park, when they took a 5 to 3 decision over Hap Watson's G. and W. squad, last year's Ontario titleholders, in a seven-inning thriller that had the fans in an uproar.

Aided by the wildness of Normie Moffat, who weakened on the G. and W. mound in the last inning, and a mammoth single by Gordie Young, Brights came from behind in the seventh frame to count four runs, practically cinching the issue at that stage.

Moffat Goes to Pieces.

Moffat, after hurling a brilliant game for the first six innings, blew in the seventh, walking the first two men to face him and then allowing Spero a single to load the bases. Martin threw badly to Catcher Jeffers on Wilkinson's force at the plate and Cater scored. Then Moffat hit Enright giving the victors the tying run free of charge.

After that Irish Rasson was rushed to the mound and after retiring Holdenby via the strikeout route and nipping Spero at the plate himself, Gordie Young smashed out a lusty single to left field counting both Wilkinson and Enright.

Brights now enter the Ontario play-downs against the winner of the present Niagara Falls-Peterborough series, likely playing their first game on Wednesday night.

"The Authority on Authorities"

A TIME TO BE FANCY

WHEN indications are that straightaway tactics are likely to work out well for your side, don't be a Smart Aleck. Be conservative, safe and sound. But when it appears as if usual methods will not succeed, abandon them. Try to figure out something unorthodox, something fancy, if you please, ... holds forth some hope of

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

The bidding on this deal began with South calling 1-Club, which West overcalled with 1-Spade. North put in a bid of 2-Diamonds and East 2-Spades. South, with a free bid injected by his partner, decided to jump to 5-Clubs.

West's normal opening against the contract was the spade K but before attempting that he tried to figure out some way in which he could develop a setting trick. The club K and diamond A were counted as two winners, but one more was necessary to upset South's contract.

Figuring from the bidding that South had no spade losers and that East had very little besides spades for his raise, West selected the heart 4 for his original lead. Declarer won with the heart K and finessed the club 10, which lost to West's K. Another heart was returned and taken with the A, but when the diamond was tried, South had to lose to the A of that suit and a heart.

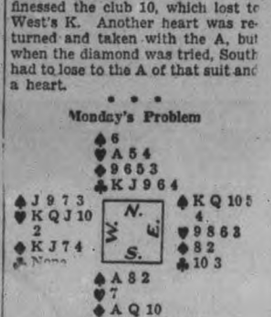
Monday's Problem



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

With the heart K led against South's 6-Club contract, what is his best method of play?

5 Of 500 Homes Left After Tidal Wave

Written for the Associated Press by William Cowley (Staff Reporter Westerly R. I. Sun.)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 24.—(AP)—I reached the outside world today after witnessing the scenes of horror and desolation that came in the hours after a tidal wave engulfed Westerly, R.I., my home town, two days ago.

I counted bodies, row upon row of them, stretched out in the old town high school after all the city's morgues were filled. When I left at four o'clock this morning, there were 74 dead and almost 100 missing.

At Misquamicut Beach, where people from all New England came to spend their summers, all that was left of a colony of almost 500 homes, stores and markets were the gaunt skeletons of five cottages. Only five left from 500.

At fashionable Watch Hill, palatial yachts were strewn helter-skelter along main street. There, too, at least 25 cottages on Fort Road, most exclusive street of that exclusive colony, were tossed into Narragansett Bay.

Guards Tramp Streets

National guardsmen tramped the darkened streets of Westerlys business district, called out when fear of looting spread. The city was a turmoil af police, Red Cross and volunteers sought to restore order from the chaos, handicapped by flood waters four feet deep and paralyzation of essential services. For two days they were unable to send out pleas for help.

I saw summer playgrounds of rich and working man alike turned into a shambles, and heard the cries of friends and neighbors struggling on the rooftops of homes swept out to sea. Some I later counted among the rows of dead. Others I never expect to see alive again.

There were heroes among those gone.

Alvin Mawson, one of my closest friends, dashed into the turbulent waters from safety on shore to reach his wife, trapped in their home on the ocean front. Alvin's body was found yesterday. His wife is still missing.

King Bank Looted 2nd Time In Year

KING, Ont., Sept. 24.—The Canadian Bank of Commerce branch was held up here Friday by two armed men who escaped with $750. King is 15 miles north of Toronto.

Bank employees said the robbers carried revolvers.

The same branch was robbed of $800 a year ago.

The robbers fled south and after reaching York township engaged in a gun fight with police there. Officers said the rear window of the bandit car was shot out but they made their escape.

Later police converged on the Islington area, northwest of Toronto, believing they had the fugitives trapped. Every artery leading to Toronto was closely guarded by police who had a description of the car.

"They entered shortly after 10 a.m." said G. A. Philipson, officer in charge. "Both men carried revolvers. One of them cried 'this is a stick-up' and the other vaulted the counter and entered the teller's cage.

"He took everything in sight, including silver, and then both men bolted for the door and made their get-away in a car."

The bank is a two-storey frame building, isolated from the village stores.

Seers Predicted Early Death In Brochu Case

ST. JOSEPH DE BEAUCE, Que., Sept. 24 — (CP). — Trial of Mrs. Achille Grondin on a charge of murdering her first husband resumed to-day after jurors had heard testimony her first husband had accused her of trying to poison him.

Mrs. Edmond Roy testified yesterday that Villemond Brochu had told his wife, "You and Grondin gave me a drink and I was terribly sick. You and Grondin tried to poison me but you didn't succeed." But the testimony was ordered deleted from the court record.

Police laid the charge almost a year after the body of Brochu had been exhumed and his widow had married Grondin, their former hired man. A re-opened inquest revealed the 44-year-old taxi-driver had died of poisoning and both his widow and her second husband were accused of killing him. Grondin's trial will open after that of his wife is completed.

Mrs. G. Doyon, a neighbor from the village of Ste. Method, told the court the death of Brochu had been foretold by a seer. Mrs. Doyon, herself an "amateur fortune-teller," testified Mrs. Grondin had come to her shortly before the death of Brochu to "have the cards read."

Not Long a Widow.

"I told her fortune, and then she said another fortune-teller at Magog had told her Brochu would die accidentally and she would not be a widow very long after.

"She told me she was fed up with doing the chores and cutting wood at home. And then she said the Magog fortune-teller had told her the day of her wedding to Brochu had not been complete with happiness and the future held death for her husbands."

Mrs. Roy said she had also been told of the fortune-telling episode, adding, "and then the fortune-teller informer Mrs. Brouchu she would marry a fair man before long. Mrs. Brochu told me Achille Grondin was fair. When the fortune-teller said Mrs. Brochu would wear mourning in a short time, she replied that instead of wearing black she would wear her red dress."

Mrs. Roy said that while Mrs. Brochu had been at Magog on a visit, her husband had gone there and pleaded with her to return. He had declared he would kill himself unless Mrs. Brochu would accompany him back home, she said.

"But Mrs. Brochu didn't take her husband seriously and she said if he would kill himself over a woman, she certainly wouldn't kill herelf over a man."

Adolphe Gilbert, 54-year-old farmer of the district, testified he had been intimate with Mrs. Brochu three weeks after the death of her husband, and that he and Grondin had discussed which of them would marry her.

Canada Tests Her New Anti-Aircraft G uns

Canada's new anti-aircraft guns were tested at Point Petre, Ont., as a lone R.C.A.F. pilot, flying at an altitude of 3,000 feet, offered himself as a target, while two big anti-aircraft guns hurled 16-pound shells in his direction. One of the guns is shown, ABOVE, mounted on a mobile platform made rigid by the use of jacks. The guns fire 16-pound, three-inch shells, RIGHT, capable of blasting an airplane from the sky at 22,000 feet.

lenge would then be thrown down which unless it were taken up would mean in fact that Hitler would be given a free hand to conduct a war of conquest which would not be ended until he held complete domination of Europe.

"He must be left in no doubt as to what would be Britain's attitude —and Britain's action—under such circumstances."

The News-Chronicle (Liberal):

"If Herr Hitler does not accept the Franco-British plan in its entirety, including a guarantee of what remains of Czechoslovakia — does not promise to refrain from violence while it is being carried out—this will be proof positive that the welfare of the Sudeten Germans is only a secondary consideration — only a decoy in fact—and that his real aim is European domination.

"If he does disclose his real aims in this manner, the whole world will be warned and this country will certainly not shrink from the challenge.

"It is for Herr Hitler to decide."

The Yorkshire Post (Conservative) said that if hopes of a thorough settlement on the basis of the Anglo-French plan, Czechoslovakia's sacrifice and British and French "humiliation" prove unfulfilled "the effect on public opinion...can need no emphasis."

A Mistake

The Manchester Guardian (Lib.):

"It has been the misfortune of our own policy that it has been so chilly towards Russia. The reason must have been that any sort of cooperation with her would have been unpalatable not only to Hitler but also to Mussolini who had adopted the 'Bolshevism' cry as camouflage, the result now to be seen is we have got nothing at all from out attempts to win the favor of dictators by cold-shouldering Russia."

The Cardiff Western Mail (Cons.):

"If the Fuehrer is determined to gain by ruthless force what already was offered him by diplomacy, he will arouse the indignation of mankind, marshall in line against him every nation that stands for civilization, freedom and honor."

The London Daily Mail (Independent):

"Whatever the outcome of the Godesberg talk, Mr. Chamberlain will emerge with his reputation as a realistic level-headed statesman enormously enhanced, with his policy overwhelmingly justified."

Centreville W.M.S. Plays Hostess To Millbrook, Bensfort

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CENTREVILLE, Sept. 24.—A delightful gathering was held in Centreville Presbyterian church on Wednesday, when the Women's Missionary Society was hostess to the missionary societies of Grace church, Millbrook, and the United church at Bensfort. It was the annual thankoffering meeting and a large number were present from the three societies.

Mrs. Dawson Rutherford, president of Centreville auxiliary, presided.

Following the singing of a hymn, and prayer by Rev. D. A. McKenzie, Mrs. Howson of Bensfort read Psalm 104 and gave an interpretation of its teaching.

Miss Eileen Hunter of Millbrook, gave a fine solo, "A Garden of Prayer." Mrs. John Storie, of Campbellford, secretary of the Presbyterial, gave a short address dealing with the essential factors of a successful society. She stressed the education of the boys and girls in missions and also the home helpers' department, as it brings all the members of the church into touch with the society.

The guest speaker was Mrs. Glen Thompson of Campbellford, president of the Peterborough Presbyterial. Her subject was "Christian Brotherhood." She emphasized the world torn by jealousy, hatred and need of Christian brotherhood in a war. She referred to the splendid work of the missionaries in China, India and Japan. Missions gave an understanding of the social and moral conditions of the people and would create a greater spirit of brotherhood and goodwill.

Following this splendid address, Mrs. Seaton of Millbrook, gave a reading and Mrs. Thompson of Millbrook, rendered a fine solo.

Before closing a vote of thanks to the speakers and those who helped with the program was moved and seconded by Mrs. Skitch and Mrs. Deyell.

At the conclusion of the program, the ladies were invited to the Sunday School hall, where dainty refreshments were served and all enjoyed a pleasant social hour. A vote of thanks was given the Centreville ladies for their hospitality.

Probe Adjourns For Check-up

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 24—(CP).—The Magone Commission stood adjourned Friday while the three investigators into conditions in Ontario's mental hospitals went over records and evidence taken during a week's sittings at the Ontario Hospital here. Session will be resumed at London on Tuesday morning.

The Commission has ruled against hospital employees giving their opinion regarding their superior officers, but yesterday's hearing was marked by testimony of one attendant who claimed to have been unfairly treated by Dr. G. H. Stevenson. Dr. Stevenson has been suspended as superintendent pending the outcome of the probe.

On the Commission are Chairman Clifford R. Magone of the Attorney-General's Department, Lionel Conacher, Liberal member of the Legislature for Toronto-Bracondale; and Dr. W. H. Avery, Toronto physician. They have power to hear complaints and investigate all Ontario mental institutions.

In seeking a ruling against opinions regarding Dr. Stevenson expressed by hospital employees, defence counsel, A. M. LeBel declared he was willing, if such evidence were allowed, to call every employee of the hospital and thus get a complete concensus.

Attendant Arthur Judge told the Commission that in July, 1938, he was suspended for a month without pay on recommendation of Dr. Stevenson on the grounds he struck two patients under his care. Judge said he denied the charge—made by the patients themselves—at the time and still denies it.

Throughout yesterday reports had been heard of heavy troop moyements in many parts of Germany and Czechoslovakia had ordered mobilization of an estimated 1,500,000 men.

The brief joint communique issued at the end of the meeting—that had been delayed all Friday—cast little light on the tense situation.

The midnight statement said merely that Chancellor Hitler had submitted a memorandum on his final attitude, that Mr. Chamberlain was to pass this on to Czechoslovakia, that he had visited the German Fuehrer to say goodbye, that the Nazi leader and Germany thanked Chamberlain for his efforts to bring about a peaceful solution and that the Premier was going home this morning.

There was not the slightest official intimation on the nature of the German demand.

No German Promises.

(The Havas News Agency reported the new demands included the immediate handing over to Germany of large areas of Czechoslovakia's Sudeten area without any German promises in return).

In unofficial but usually well informed quarters, however, it was said Hitler was demanding that Czechoslovakia cancel the national mobilization order issued late yesterday and let German troops or members of the Sudeten Free Corps —"volunteers" organized by Sudeten German Party Leader Konrad Henlein—occupy the borderland.

An Anglo-French peace plan, made last week after Chamberlain first conferred with Hitler at Berchtesgaden Sept. 15, contemplated awarding these territories to Germany. Prague had agreed unwillingly to this scheme but had sworn "invasion" would be resisted.

Tales Of Horror Pour In From Rhode Island

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Sept. 24.—(AP).—With Rhode Island's death toll from twin tidal waves and hurricane standing at 247, fresh tales of horror came today from Westerly where the Red Cross and police reported 74 dead.

Tales of tragedy came for the first time from the vicinity surrounding Westerly shortly after governor Robert Wuinn toured the devastated area of the state and estimated damage at $100,000,000.

Whole families lost their lives, relief workers said, under the smashing force of the hurricane, which the coast guard at Watch Hill reported reached a velocity of 120 miles an hour.

At Misquamicut 10 women attending a church social were killed when waves engulfed a cottage. Relief workers reported the narrow Charlestown sandpit completely wiped out and none of the 20 persons living along it have been found alive.

Mrs. Katharine Buchill of Westerly lost two children as the waves tipped over her cottage and swept it into a pond. She clung for a time to the dress of her four-month old baby but the infant was swept to death.

Gale Hits Apple Orchards Hard In East

TORONTO, Sept. 24—(CP)—Government officials today pondered reports of yesterday's wind and rain storm throughout Ontario and concluded that outside of extensive damage to the St. Lawrence basin apple crop the rain elsewhere was beneficial. Brunt of the storm was borne by the east.

Belleville apple exporters were hit heavily as much fruit ready for picking was blown from the trees. H. W. Graham agricultural representative for Dundas and West Stormont estimated between 50 and 75 per cent of orchards in the upper St. Lawrence valley were damaged.

Western Ontario had only a light wind compared with the east and the rain in the western part was not heavy enough to do damage except in isolated areas. Apple growers there needed sunshine to color apples and were pleased by today's bright sun.

The rain was welcomed in most districts for the moisture which aided fall ploughing and pastures. Many wells in central and western Ontario were replenished, much to the relief of stock raisers.

Most Rain Since 1919

The weather bureau here had no general preciptation figures for the whole province. It reported, however, Toronto's rainfall between Wednesday night and last night totalled 2.52 inches, highest since 1919 when a fall of 2.70 inches was recorded.

Meantime, government officials awaited anxiously detailed reports of the eastern fruit crop. In an estimate released yesterday, containing reports received prior to the storm, the fruit and vegetable statistics committee placed the province's apple production at 825,400 barrels, an increase of 11 per cent over last year. It figured a 37½-per-cent gain in eastern Ontario's crop more than offset a decline of 23 per cent in western Ontario's anticipated yield.

Henlein Leads Troops Over Border

Sudeten Chief Views His Forces, Orders No Clashes

By Melville Whiteleather
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

ASCH, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 26. oc—(AP).—Sudeten Leader Konard Henlein crossed back into Czechoslovakia, spent an hour inspecting his Sudeten Free Corps fighters' front line, then returned to-day to his party headquarters at Bayreuth, Germany.

He left 150 Free Corps legionnaires, who had accompanied him on his first survey of the line, to reinforce Asch volunteers. They had guns heavy enough to halt attack by armored cars or tanks.

The Sudeten leader ordered that clashes with Czechoslovak troops be avoided.

The Asch volunteers and Free Corps reinforcements — the latter said to be composed entirely of Sudetens who had fled to Germany —according to his order were to defend the Asch "free territory," which the Czechs have not tried to take. They were not, he said, to attack Franzenbad or Eger.

Henlein was greeted joyfully when he appeared unexpectedly, riding at the head of five bus loads of Free Corps fighters.

For the first time since he fled a Czech government treason charge last September 14, Henlein rode openly into the border town of Wildenau accompanied by his chief of staff Willy Brandner, and 150 of his legionnaires.

Henlein arrived at the first line held by his free corps troopers on the Asch-Eger highway at 9:25 a.m.

He led his legionnaires to within three-quarters of a mile of Czechoslovak soldiers stationed at Ober Lohma.

The Sudetens intended apparently to push on further toward the city of Eger. An Asch government official said "we would take the city of Eger, if we could."

The Sudetens on this line now outnumber Czech soldiers more than two to one, unless the Czechs have sent reinforcements within the last 24 hours.

First Open Invasion.

Although the return was Henlein's first made openly since he fled a Czech government charge of treason September 14, he has said he returned secretly in disguise since then. His arrival in Asch, Henlein's home town, completely surprised the population.

Shouts went up as Henlein was recognized. Everybody cried "Es geht los!"—"now it's going to start."

Prague Waiting Ready For Hitler

PRAGUE, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Tensé Czechoslovakia waited in the midst of defence preparations for Chancellor Hitlers new declaration following the Czechoslovak decision that his demands were unacceptable.

It was expected that from Hitler the nation might learn the final word in the Sudeten crisis.

An official government announcement assured the people military defence precautions virtually were completed with appointment of General Ludwig Krejci as commander-in-chief of the nation's armed forces.

Simultaneously measures to protect the population of Prague moves ahead.

A radio broadcast suggested that children living in Prague be taken outside the city if their parents could do so, thus reducing the danger from possible air attacks.

Young civilians, women and girls were assigned to various districts of the city to assist in keeping order and caring for wounded.

Canada Asked No Commitments; Massey Sees Chamberlain

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Sept. 26.—(CP Cable.)—It was stated officially to-day that Canada has not been asked for any commitments by the British government as a result of the crisis over Czechoslovakia.

Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner to London, with representatives of the other Dominions, were requested to-day to call at Prime Minister Chamberlain's official residence at 10 Downing Street, at 7 p.m., (1 p.m. E.S.T.)

This is the first time the Prime Mininster has found it necessary to consult with Dominion diplomatic representatives during the period of alarm over Germany's demands on Czechoslovakia.

No Ottawa Advice Asked.

Malcolm MacDonald, Colonial Secretary, who has been Acting Dominions Secretary while Lord Stanley was in Canada, has been keeping the Dominions informed on international affairs.

(Lord Stanley arrived in London yesterday by ambulance and was taken to a nursing home for treatment for a leg injury, which cut short his visit to Canada.)

Official Government sources informed The Canadian Press that Ottawa has been kept fully posted on the Czech crisis, but at no time has advice been sought.

Czechs Sparring With Her Poles Charge

WARSAW, Sept. 26.—(AP).— The Polish press to-day accused Czechoslovakia of sparring for time by spreading reports she was ready to come to terms with Poland over border revision.

At the same time, Polish newspapers accused Czechoslovaks of mistreating members of the Polish minority of 80,000 in the Teschen frontier district.

The Polish Telegraph Agency reported the Czech government had informed the secretary of the Polish Legation in Prague that it would consent "in principle" to a discussion of Poland's demand of Sept. 21, for cession of Polish inhabited areas.

The Czechoslovak reply, however, had not yet reached Warsaw.

"It is too late for misleading promises when Polish blood is shed," said the newspaper Jerjer Czerwony. It added Czechoslovaks were threatening to blow up factories and flood coal mines in Czechoslovak Silesia.

Wieczor Warszawski said barricade of wire covered with a poisonous substance were being used to halt the escape of Poles to Poland.

Reports in Warsaw said more than 50,000 men had volunteered for service in the Silesian "Free Corps" organized for the protection of the Polish minority in Czechoslovakia.

Japan will establish a free employment bureau for college students.

Our Last Territorial Demand But It Will Be Final Adolf Boasts To Germany

Nazis And Italians Will Stand Together In Solid Bloc Against All Says Fuehrer Lauding Mussolini

BERLIN, Sept. 26 (AP)—Adolf Hitler told an anxiously waiting world tonight that his claims on Czechoslovakia were "the last territorial claim I will make," but added ominously that it was a claim "which I will not give up."

Germany and Italy "will stand together and be able to defend themselves as a solid bloc if the worst comes to the worst," Hitler continued.

In the Sudeten issue, the Fuehrer declared to a cheering throng in the House Sportspalast: "We now stand confronted with the last and final problem, which has to be solved and will be solved."

This declarotion followed a review of his relations with the principal European Powers, in the course of which he voiced his dissatisfaction with the 1935 Naval Treaty with Great Britain, limiting Germany's naval power.

Earlier he had told his countrymen that Germany had "an armed force the like of which the world has never seen."

BERLIN, Sept. 26—(CP))—Adolf Hitler entered the huge Sportspalast at 8:05 p.m. tonight (2:05 p.m. EST) to make his anxiously awaited address "to the entire Reich." He was cheered thunderously by a great throng.

Hitler was greeted by National Anthems and the Badenweiler March.

Volleys of frenzied "sieg heils!" lasted for fully 10 minutes.

The Fuehrer was introduced by propaganda Mininster Paul Boebbels. Speaking choirs chanted:—

"One people! One Reich! One Fuehrer!"

Goebbels continued, addressing Hitler:—

"Just as the entire people rely upon you, so it stands as one man behind you. No threat or pressure can make you yield."

Hitler himself began speaking at 8.21 p.m. (2:21 p.m. EST).

Not The Fuehrer But the People Speaking

Hitler Began:—

"German fellow men and women:

"I addressed the Reichstag on Feb. 22 and again addressed the Reichsparty (the Nazi Party) Convention at Nuremberg, when I made clear to the world that no longer is a Fuehrer or a man speaking, but the German people."

Long applause greeted this introduction.

Hitler continued:—

"May other statesmen test whether there is such unity among their people as here.

"The question that moves us most deeply is known to everybody. It is not so much Czechoslovakia; it is the name of (President Eduard) Benes.

"In this name thus mentioned is all that which moves millions, which either causes them dejection or fills them with a fanatical will.

"I will briefly state my policy:

"We are not interested in oppressing other peoples We want to be happy in our own fashion.

"Our foreign aims are not unlimited or changeable or determined by chance.

"Their sole purpose is to be of service to the German people, to safeguard their existece.

"You know that weak Germany was cheated badly. The result was the Versailles Treaty with all its terrible consequences.

"Although Germany has now become strong and free, we feel no hatred of other nations.

"Only we object to international profiteers who stop at nothing to gain their ends.

"My first proposal was general disarmament to the last machine gun, provided other did the same.

"What did they do?

"They rejected it.

"My second proposal was to limit the army to 200,000 men with the same weapons as others had.

An Army Like None Seen Before

"That, too, was declined.

"Third, I offered to renounce tanks, heavy airplanes and other heavy engines of war.

"That was declined.

"I went further. I offered a 300,000-man army for all European Powers.

"It was rejected.

"They wanted to restrict out means of defence, but all in vain.

"To-day we have an armed force the like of which the world has never seen.

"I offered the world to do without armaments. But when they rejected, I decided to arm. If they do not want to be without arms, all right.

"German people! Now you carry them!

"I can tell you now I have spent billions right here for armaments.

"I saw to it the most modern army with the most modern weapons was established.

"I have created an air force that protects Germany against any and every attack.

"We have created an unparalleled air force and tank force in a constant effort, night and day, the past five years.

"I followed a practical policy of peace. I tackled all sorts of difficult problems even to the point of renouncing things dear to us.

A Man, Not Democracy, Saved Poland.

"The most difficult problem was the Germa-Polish question. There was danger of hysteria. I was determined to avoid this.

"I know I could never have succeeded had there been democracy instead of a man at the helm in Poland.

Il Duce Advises Leaving Czechs To Fate

VERONA, Italy, Sept. 26 (A.P.).—Premier Mussolini to-day advised France and Great Britain to save Europe from war by leaving Czechoslovakia to her fate.

He suggested in a speech before 47,000 Fascists that war might thus be entirely averted, since Czechoslovakia perhaps would recognize the futility of fighting Germany alone.

"The German memorandum does not deviate from the lines which was approved at the London meeting," he declared, referring to Chancellor Hitler's Godesberg memorandum and the Anglo-French proposals previously submitted to the Prague Government.

Directing his speech at Italy's "adversaries," he declared that "a new Europe" might be created this week. He said Italy stood for such a "new Europe" which would replace the "dying" one constructed at Versailles.

"It is useless for diplomats to try to save Versailles," he asserted. "The Europe which was constructed at Versailles—very often with colossal ignorance of geography and history —this Versailles is dying. Its fate will be decided this week.

London Calls Women From Berlin

Families Of Embassy Staffs Leave Germany Tonight

BERLIN, Sept. 26. — (AP) — Arrangements were made today for all women and children of the British Embassy and Consulate staffs here to leave Berlin at 11 p.m. (5 p.m. EST) tonight.

There were no indications of softening of Germany's attitude toward Czechoslovakia.

A semi-official source declared Chancellor Hitler's demands embodied in his memorandum of Sept. 23 were "final." This was a reaction to the tenor of the British and French press, which sources close to the government accused of siding with Prague "subterfuges toward rejection" of the German demands.

"The question of whether there is to be peace or war is to be decided now by Prague," it was said semi-officially.

A German Guarantee?

An inspired press commentary declared Germany was ready to guarantee any new frontiers of Czechoslovakia provided Poland and Hungary agreed to become co-guarantors.

Also, said the same commentary, Germany has no objections whatever to Czechoslovakias erecting new fortifications along her new frontiers.

In Berlin all Red Cross nurses were ordered to report to receive orders exactly where to take up their duties in the event of war.

The Frankfurter Zeitung, which has the largest foreign sale of any German daily and is often used for trail balloons, observed editorially:

"We Germans are waiting. We know that a Czech 'no' will mean a fateful decision, but nothing can stop Adolf Hitler from completing his work of liberation if it does not come about automatically according to the provisions of the German memorandum, namely by Oct. 1."

Troops Move To Border

News came from Rohrbach, upper Austria, that German troops had been moving up to the Czechoslovak frontier since yesterday morning. Halls, schools and other buildings in villages across from Czechoslovakia's southwest border were re-

Ex-Mayor Simpson Among 5 Dead In Weekend Traffic Toll

TORONTO, Sept. 26. — (CP)— Traffic accidents in Ontario over the weekend claimed the lives of five persons. Two of the victims walked into the path of passing vehicles while three were killed in collisions.

In Toronto, citizens mourned the death of James (Jimmy) Simpson, and prepared to bury tomorrow the man who was their mayor in 1935. The labor leader and former newspaperman was fatally injured Saturday when the automobile he was driving collided with a street car.

Robert T. Barton of Winnecoune, Wis., travelling companion of Mr. Simpson, also died as a result of the crash at a busy intersection.

The tragedy brought a sudden end to a family reunion of which Mr. Barton was the principal. He arrived in Toronto Tuesday after an absence of 40 years. A cousin of the former mayor, he was staying in Toronto at the home of his sister.

Three Women Victims

At Preston Hill, about eight miles from Kitchener, Mrs. Becky Vaculic, 42-year-old Preston hotel employee was killed instantly as she was struck by a car containing three Toronto persons near the driveway leading to her home.

Stepping from a bus into the path of an auto allegedly driven by Reid Marquess of Guelph, Mrs. Joseph Ruddy of Georgetown, was killed only a short distance from her home.

The fifth victim was Mrs. Gordon McKinney of Toronto who suffered a fractured skull when the car in which she was riding with her husband collided head-on with a truck.

Team Bolts, Drowns In Fenelon River

LINDSAY, Ont., Sept. 26.—(CP). —A team of black horses, valued by Owner Sidney Fairfield, of Verulam township at $400, was drowned in the Fenelon river Saturday.

Fairfield said the horses tried to stop when they reached the edge of the river, but the weight of the wagon pushed them into the fast moving water.

Britons Rush For Their Gas Masks Defence Measures Speeded

By Guy E. Rhoades
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Sept. 26—(CP Cable)—Europe's bristling war atmosphere sent thousand of Britons hurrying to Air Raid Protection depots Sunday to be fitted with gas masks, while other thousands demonstrated in the streets against Chancellor Hitler, against war and against Prime Minister Chamberlain.

The Labor party held numerous meetings urging a firm stand in defence of Czechoslovakia.

The Independent Labor party issued a declaration saying war under any pretext would be likely to help European capitalism at the worker's expense.

As defence measures were speeded up, sound trucks rolled through the street blaring announcements urging the people to go immediately to A.R.P. depots for the fitting of what are officially described as "civilian respirators."

Black and white posters urging the same thing were placed on buildings and billboards throughout London.

Day schools and Sunday schools were kept open all day and late into the night as parents brought children in for gas-mask fittings.

Care for Children.

Elaborate plans were announced for the evacuation of the city's vast school population. They would send children into the open country, where emergency schools would be established.

The largest demonstration of the crisis was staged in Whitehall Sunday, when a crowd police estimated at 20,000 raising clenched fists in the leftist salute, roared in unison: "Cession means war; save the Czechs; Chamberlain must go."

The entrance to Downing street, where the British and French ministers met in the Prime Minister's residence at No. 10 in an effort to keep Europe from toppling over the precipice, was blocked by hundreds of police, numerous minor scuffles broke out. The bobbies arrested several demonstrators.

Traffic in a Snarl.

At 11 o'clock last night police reinforcements were called and the crowd was driven back. Whitehall was blocked at both ends and the busses were re-routed.

A tremendous traffic snarl developed as the ousted demonstrators swarmed homeward vit the Embankment.

U. S. Refugees Find Czech Border Shut As Hull Extends Call For Peace

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)

CORDELL HULL, Secretary of State, extended today the scope of President Roosevelt's appeal for world peace to include Poland and Hungary.

Meantime, the state department reported the German frontier along Czechoslovakia is closed and United States citizens attempting to leave Czechoslovakia via Germany had to turn back and return to Prague.

Hull said instructions had been sent to the United States ambassador at Warsaw, and to the minister at Budapest, to deliver to those governments copies of the urgent plea for peace which President Roosevelt sent earlier today to Germany, Czechoslovakia, France and Great Britain.

Personal Message Follows 2-Day Consultation With Heads Of France

Envoy Also Believed Carrying Czech Note Rejecting German Demands; France, Britain Together On All Points

LONDON, Sept. 26 (CP Cable).—Prime Minister Chamberlain today sent a personal message to Chancellor Hitler.

Just before the full Cabinet was called into emergency session at noon a communique was issued from 10 Downing Street announcing that the Prime Minister had sent his Foreign Office adviser, Sir Horace Wilson, with a new note to the German Chancellor. The nature of the message was not disclosed at once.

The Prime Minister dispatched the message following two-day consultations with Premier Edouard Daladier of France, the French Foreign Minister, Georges Bonnet, and General Maurice Gamelin, chief of the general staff of the French defence forces. Immediately after their conversations today, the French officials left for home.

Powers Stand Together.

The Downing Street communique said:

"The Prime Minister has had further consultations with the French Ministers this morning.

"The Prime Minister, with full approval of the French Ministers, has decided to make a personal communication to the German Chancellor and Sir Horace Wilson has left this morning for Berlin for this purpose."

A second communique announced "full accord has been established on all points" discussed in the conversations with the French Ministers.

The second communique read:—

"A further meeting was held this morning between the French and British ministers, at which full accord was established on all points. General Gamelin, who had been called over for special consultation, also called on the prime minister and subsequently had an interview with the minister for the coordination of defence (Sir Thomas Inskip)."

The Czech Rejection?

It is understood that Sir Horace Wilson, who is Prime Minister Chamberlain's closest adviser on both foreign and home affairs, is carrying two vitally important documents to Chancellor Hitler.

One is the official Czech note which, it is understood, rejects Hitler's latest demands for cession of the Sudeten territories and the other is the new Anglo-French peace plan.

Details of the Anglo-French plan remain a deep secret, but it would not surprise British observers if it were couched in stiff terms.

The purpose of the latest peace move is to influence Hitler before he speaks to the German nation to-

Roosevelt Calls For Peace By Hitler, Benes

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (A.P.).—President Roosevelt, speaking in the name of 130,000,000 Americans, appealed to Chancellor Hitler of Germany and President Benes of Czechoslovakia to keep the peace.

His message despatched early today directly to Hitler and Benes through State Secretary Cordell Hull to Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain and Premier Deladier of France, earnestly asked them "not to break off negotiations looking to a peaceful, fair and constructive settlement of the questions at issue."

He told them war's consequences were "incalculable," that millions of men, women and children would lose their lives, the economic system of every country involved was "certain to be shattered" and their social structure "may well be completely wrecked."

The President and Mr. Hull spent most of Sunday morning on the message. Well after midnight, correspondents, American and foreign, were called to the State Department and handed copies of the telegram.

Th message thus was so timed as to be received by Hitler, Benes, Chamberlain, and Daladier when they rose this morning to look on a war-threatened Europe.

Daladier's telegram was sent to him care of the French Embassy in London, where he is conferring with Chamberlain.

U. S. Not Involved

Telling them that "the fabric of peace on the continent of Europe, if not throughout the rest of the world, is in immediate danger," the President declared:—

"It is my conviction that all people under the threat of war today pray that peace may be made before, rather than after, war."

Mr. Roosevelt carefully stated that "the United States has no political entanglements" and "is caught in no mesh of hatred."

He was believed thereby to be claiming for this country the privilege of appealing for peace because it had not declared for one side or the other.

"The supreme desire of the American people," he said, "is to live in peace. But in the event of a general war they face the fact that no nation can escape measure of the consequences of such a world catastrophe.

"The traditional policy of the United States has been the furtherance of the settlement of International disputes by-pacific means."

grenades but no heavy guns. No armored cars or tanks were seen.

Henlein found his front line considerably advanced after yesterday's manoeuvres. The Sudetens occupied about 16 miles along the Asch-Eger highway and controlled about 20 miles of Czechoslovakia's farthest western frontier.

Czechs Hold Highways.

Czech soldiers held main highway positions taken two days ago at Ober Lohma on the edge of Franzenbad. The lines were so shaped that the Czechs must withdraw if the Sudetens were to advance much further without actual conflict.

The lines roughly were drawn from a position southwest of the Muelbach frontier post, seized by Free Corps men operating from the German side on Saturday, through the hamlet of Reim, and crossing the main highway at Antonlen.

The Sudetens were becoming more careful about admitting strangers behind their lines as they worked on tactical manoeuvres. Special passes were issued to those with valid business in the area, but they were good only for a few hours.

Asch yesterday celebrated "freedom day." Youths with tin boxes collected money to support the Sudeten Germans along the frontier who fled their homes.

It appeared the Czechoslovak government did not now intend to challenge Asch's right to declare itself free from Czechoslovakia.

The district forms a narrow, bottle-neck area where the German army, should it come, easily could trap the Czechoslovoks, so their absention from entering the area likely was for technical reasons.

Prague Mystery City.

Censorship and delayed communications cloaked the events in Prague.

Alvin Steinkopf, Associated Press correspondent in Prague, through National Broadcasting Company facilities, Sunday night reported the city was blacked out completely in anti-aid raid precautions.

Streets were lighted with faint blue glimmer. Blue lanterns stood at some downtown street corners.

Despite the darkness many pedestrians groped through the streets. Czech optimism was high, and citizens of Prague expected no war at once.

Newsman Beats Barrier.

A Reuters News Agency correspondent ran a barbed wire entanglement and mines to reach Hungary to-day with his story of the Czechoslovak Government's mobilization.

Hungarian customs officials were astounded at his arrival at Komors Bridge, closed to traffic since yesterday morning.

"Prague was full of excitement," said the correspondent. "All Friday night there were demonstrations in the streets. Members of Sokols (athletic clubs) have taken over most of the police duties, and hundreds of reservists are arriving with a kit of food for two days.

"During the night there were two blackouts for periods of a quarter of an hour. Most of the people who appeared were carrying gas masks and small blue torches were fixed to street corners to light the way.

"Trenches were dug in one or two open spaces to serve as bomb shelters and all underground cafes and bars have notices "Gas Air Raid Shelter."

"All along the route to Brun we passed detachments of reservists with little bundles, and everywhere there was great evidence of military activity.

"The reservists were coming in large numbers to all chief towns, and the number of horses requisitioned struck one as particularly large."

Radio broadcasts denied in strong terms German reports of disorders in the Sudeten German areas. Announcers said there was calm and absolute silence since Czechoslovak troops took control of the region last week.

They also pointed significantly to reports that Yugoslavia and Rumania, allied with Czechoslovak in the Little Entente, had notified the Hungarian Government that in the event Hungarian forces attacked Czechoslovakia the military mutual assistance provision of the Entente would be invoked automatically.

New Europe This Week?

"It is during this week that a new Europe may rise up. This will be a Europe of justice for all peoples and of reconciliation among peoples."

He said Italy's "adversaries" were "gathered under the triangle (or Freemasonry) and the hammer and sickle (of Communism.)"

To-day's speech, was the eighth Mussolini had made since he reaffirmed the strength of the Rome-Berlin axis last Sunday at Trieste and declared Italy's place "is already chosen" in the event of European conflict.

He repeated his hopes that war might be averted.

"I still believe that Europe will not come to the point of subjecting itself to fire and sword, that it will not burn itself to cook the rotten eggs of Prague," he said. "Europe faces many needs, but certainly the least urgent of all is that of increasing the number of graveyards which spring up so frequently on the frontiers of nations."

Referring to the conferences between Prime Minister Chamberlain and Hitler, Mussolini said:

"We must recognize the efforts of the British Prime Minister to arrange a solution of the problems of the hour. At the same time we must recognize the good will shown by Germany."

Our Last Territorial Demand But It Will Be Final

"We are all convinced that agreement brings about constant appeasement. We recognize that 33,000,000 will always live and that Nation needs an outlet to the sea.

"It was a great deed for peace I did and this is more important than all the jabbering at Geneva.

"Other Nations, too, tried to bring about good, durable relations to ensure the inviolability of borders touching ours.

"More and more other Nations began looking at these problems in a practical, matter-of-fact way.

"I wanted to secure durable peace with Britain. But it will not do for one party to limit its fleet to 35 per cent and promise never again to have war and for the other to say it will make war when it pleases."

(Here the Fuehrer referred to the 1936 Anglo-German Naval Pact by which Germany agreed to limit her naval tonnage to 35 per cent of that of Great Britain.)

The Fuehrer declared that Germany and France could live peacefully side by side.

He saw no reason why it should be otherwise.

Then, turning to his relations with Italy, he declared, amid great cheers, "the Rome-Berlin axis has been built up into a friendship which is indissoluble."

"I told France after the return of the Saar region there was no difference between us any more. We want nothing from France, nothing whatever.

"The French and German peoples want to live together in peace and co-operate with each other."

Hitler said he now was confronted with "the last and final problem" which has to be solved and will be solved.

"It is the last territorial claim I will make and which I will not give up."

Hitler was speaking faster now.

After discussing relations with France, Hitler declared:

"If we relinquished Alsace-Lorraine we have certainly the right to take care of the fate of 10,000,000 Germans outside our borders—that is one quarter of France's population.

"The democracies regard a plebiscite as unnecessary and superfluous when it is likely the result will be not one they desire."

Began With A Lie

He said the Czechoslovak state began with a single lie and the father of this lie was Benes.

Benes, after the war, "said there was such a state as the Czechoslovak state,' Hitler declared.

This claim, he said, was not checked up by other foreign statesmen at Versailles.

Hitler said Czechoslovak was not a state capable of existing by itself and in it were included 3,500,000 Germans "in order to make it a complete state."

This, he declared, was clearly, against the principles of self-determination.

Hitler accused Benes of inventing "the lie of Czechoslovak nationality to bolster up the slender number of his own population.

He declared:

"This state was founded contrary to the right of self-determination of peoples.

"I feel deeply for Hungarians, Poles, Slovaks and Ruthenes, but most of all I am a speaker only for Germans."

A reference to Premier Mussolini as the "rare man whom the Italian people have the good fortune to possess" was answered with tumultuous applause.

"Our relationship has become a league of hearts," the Fuehrer said.

He was sharing with Mussolini credit for solving "still another problem" — German-Italian relations.

France Insists On Pledges From Hitler

PARIS, Sept. 26.—(AP).—France called more reservists to the colors to-day, swelling the army of approximately 2,000,000 men already under arms, while Premier Edouard Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain sought a last minute way to peace in London.

Although there was no further mobilization by classes, sources close to the government said many not affected by Saturday's order were being called up individually.

Most of these were believed to belong to classes, a greater part of which already had been mobilized before the two additional classes were given their orders Saturday.

Political sources said Daladier took with him to London a compromise plan, unanimously approved by the cabinet yesterday, providing for cession of Sudeten areas of Czechoslovakia to Germany "sooner than had been originally planned" and permitting the German army "symbolically to occupy a small frontier area outside the Czech line of fortifications."

Guarantee Essential.

But these sources said France would insist absolutely on a German agreement to International guarantees for the revised Czechoslovak State. They declared France and Great Britain were firmly agreed on that point.

Publication of Chancellor Hitler's Godesberg memorandum, demanding that predominantly German areas be handed over to German military occupation by Oct. 1 and arrangements be made for a plebiscite in many doubtful areas, caused a shocked outburst from French observers.

Many of them said it was the type of ultimatum that was handed only to a defeated power by a victorious one after conquest in war. Some said it was unthinkable that one nation should so treat another during the course of negotiations over the method of carrying out a previously accepted plan.

May Evacuate Paris

But while she explored the last road to peace, France neglected none of the precautions necessary should that road be blocked by Hitler's speech tonight.

quisitioned by the army. Rohrbach became headquarters for the quartermaster's department and the intelligence division.

Reports from Schinding, Germany, near the frontier, said shock troops of the Czechoslovak army also were entrenched along the entire length of the border. Barricades were being thrown up all along the line.

It was in the midst of these developments that the propaganda ministry announced Hitler's speech and urged every German to listen to it.

"If you cannot find a place in the sportspalast, gather in vast numbers for the fuehrer along the route to the sportspalast and give him a reception with the feelings which move us all in these historic hours," said the ministry's appeal.

"There must be no one in the entire Reich who will not be a witness to this historic demonstration through the radio."

Nazi leaders were instructed to make arrangements for reception in even the tiniest hamlets. Motion picture theatres announced they would interrupt their programs and admit listeners free to hear the fuehrer's broadcast.

Government circles were said to be greatly perturbed over reports abroad which said Hitler's demands in his Godesberg memorandum went beyond those he placed before Prime Minister Chamberlain in their first meeting at Berchtesgaden Sept. 15.

Informed sources said "these false assertions" were being made in an effort to fix the "possible question of war guilt" in advance.

More Czechs Called

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Sept. 26—(AP) The Czechoslovak Government has decreed immediate auxiliary war service for men and women betwen 17 and 60, said a dispatch from official Czechosvlovak News Agency today.

The Agency said all was "completely quiet and in order in Czechoslovakia, except in Brunthau and in Moravia where German speaking citizens fired from their homes on police and soldiers."

The report said that an evidence of complete order was that not a single death sentence had been passed by military authorities since general mobilization began.

We Noticed

....That tree-topped Peterborough hills are taking on the appearance of a crazy-quilt, a coat-of-many-colors. The lovely, ephemeral scarlets, golds and yellows have always the constant dark green of the firs, and the paler green of the spruce and cedar to set off their carnival garb.

....A grey pussy making up to her reflection in the oynx base of a main street cafe front. Arching her back and purring loudly, she gently put forth a tentative paw to touch the handsome stranger. The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, wore an ankle length gown of white Chantilly lace over white satin with short bolero jacket with puffed sleeves and an off the face veil with white hat. She carried a bouquet of Premier roses tied with a white ribbon. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Frederick Bush, who wore a yellow printed chiffon over taffeta and carried a bouquet of Talisman roses. Her accessories were white.

Mr. Thomas Collins, brother of the groom, was the best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where Mrs. Sarginson received wearing a wine sheer suit with matching accessories. Her corsage was white roses. Mrs. Collins chose a dark sheer with touches of white and matching accessories and corsage of white roses.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Collins left on a motor trip to Toronto, the bride wearing a navy sheer suit with white navy gloves and felt hat. On their return they will reside in Belleville.

McClary—Steenburgh

HAVELOCK, Sept. 26.— One of the loveliest of autumn weddings took place on the lawn, of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Steenburgh, Belmont, at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, when their daughter Beulah L., was united in marriage to James N. McClary, of London, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. McClary of London.

Rev. N. Bosko, of Marmora, officiated at the ceremony and Mrs. Harry Bowen orf Cordova played the wedding march.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a gown of white organza, with shoulder length veil held in place by a halo of orange blossoms. Her bridal bouquet was a Premier roses and maidenhead fern tied with white satin ribbon.

Miss Pauline Steenburgh, sister of the bride, acting as bridesmaid, wore a gown of pink organdy with blue satin sash and pink halo. She carried a bouquet of colonial roses. Wee Miss Patricia Burt, of London, niece of the bride acted as flower girl wearing pale green satin and halo of the same material.

Mr. Jack McClary, of London, brother of the groom was the best man.

A reception was afterwards held at the home of the bride's parents, her mother receiving in a gown of navy triple sheer and corsage of roses. Mrs. L. G. McClary, the groom's mother, assisted in a silk crepe frock, wearing also a corsage of roses and fern.

The bride travelled in a brown taffeta dress with purse, and hat to match and tan polo coat.

Following a motor trip to Ottawa, Quebec and points east, Mr. and Mrs. McClary will reside in London, Ontario, on their return.

September Bridal Couple

Mr. and Mrs. William Meagher, a bridal couple of the month, have returned after spending a honeymoon in Montreal and Quebec, and are pictured ABOVE on the lawn at the Kawartha Club, where a reception and wedding dinner was held following their marriage. Millbrook Bride Holds Reception

MILLBROOK, Sept. 26. — Mrs. W. R. Howard received for the first time since her marriage at her home, Anne street, on Thursday from three to six o'clock, the bride wearing her lovely wedding dress of panelled ivory lace and net over creamy-white satin, and being assisted in welcoming her many guests, including a number from Peterborough and other outside points, by her husband, Mr. W. R. Howard, M.A., and her mother, Mrs. (Dr.) J. A. Bannister, of Peterborough.

The door was attended by Miss Eleanor Bigelow, and in the wide hall meeting the incoming guests were the bride's sister, Miss Helen Bannister, of Peterborough, and Mrs. H. D. Bigelow, the latter ushering them into the living room where the bridal party received, and later inviting them into the tea room for refreshments.

Softly-shaded lights, and containers of lovely fall blossoms placed here and there throughout the large rooms, added to the attractiveness of the home, the cosy atmosphere within being in pleasant contrast to the cold wind and rain which prevailed out of doors all through the day.

The tea table was lovely with lace cloth, a crystal bowl of pink tea roses and baby's breath in lighter shade, on the central reflector, tall pink tapers burning in crystal holders, and, at either end, a service entirely of silver.

Pouring tea were Mrs. H. A. Kerr, and Miss Anne L. Kells, assistants in the tea room being Mrs. (Dr.) M. E. Hobbs, Mrs. W. W. Kennedy, Mrs. (Dr.) J W Wright and Miss Muriel Smith

Interesting Oshawa Wedding

Standards of vari-colored gladioli formed the background for the bridal party of Saturday, September 24, in St. Gregory's Roman Catholic church, Oshawa, Rev. C. E. Morrow officiating, when Miss Dorothy Effie Conlin, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Philip Conlin, Oshawa, and Mr. William Albert Giroux, Oshawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Giroux, Peterborough, were united in marriage.

Miss Mary McBrady played the wedding music, and the soloist was Miss Doorthy Williams.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Phillip Conlin, the bride wore a gown of Antoinette turquoise Alencon lace, fitted to the knees, and flaring into a bouffant skirt of net. Her turquoise Juliet cap held in place her shoulder-length veil, and she carried a shower of Briarcliff roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Miss Madeline Conlin was her sister's only attendant, wearing a frock of stained-glass wine sheer, made on flowing lines with touches of romance blue velvet ribbon.

Among the guests were: Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Giroux and Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Riley, of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Giroux of Montreal, and Mrs James H. Pelton, of Wilson, North Carolina.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.
A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. Quaker Co. Has a Plan

The Quaker Oats Company has issued a booklet describing in a plain and understandable way its retirement annuity plan for its employees in Canada. An envelope in which the booklet was distributed has on it a request that employees should read the details carefully. We can only hope that the suggestion has been followed because we believe that careful reading would bring a worker to the conclusion that the plan is fair and apart from its fairness it has evidence of generosity on the part of the company.

Those who have come into the employment of the company in recent times have opportunity to build up for their future retirement, and their annuities upon retirement will amount to at least double what their own contributions would have been able to purchase for them.

There is the other class, those who are not far removed from the age of retirement now—and that age is 65 for men and 60 years for women. Such employees, with what they would be able to contribute could not possibly make much headway toward providing a retiring allowance, and it is here the company steps in and suggests that as it is able it will undertake to build up the fund to make adequate credits to the employees in consideration for faithful service in past years. So that places all employees on a footing which is virtually the same.

The contribution to be made by an employee is equal to 4 per cent. of earnings, and the contribution to be made by the company, while not definitely reported yet, is regarded as being greater than that paid by the employee. No medical examination is required, and a fairly close reading of the provisions convinces one that it is a plan by which the employees cannot lose.

One example given works out this way: The employee starting on the plan works for 30 years and pays in say $50 per year, which amounts to $1,500 total payment. When retiring such employee would be eligible to receive annually 40 per cent. of this amount, or $600. One stipulation is that the employee cannot borrow or draw from the fund and that is right enough, as such practice would throw the whole basis of calculation out of joint.

The Quaker people have approached a problem which needs attention, and it is quite evident they have approached it knowing it is going to cost the company a good deal of money. It is more correct to say a great deal. It is the answer to a question which bothers a good many people today: How am I going to get along when I reach the age when I cannot do a day's work? It does seem that the Quaker plan provides the answer in such a way that a deal of worry and thinking should be removed. Another advantage is that such a system should ensure continuity of service with the company because length of service increases the period of contribution by the worker and by the company and causes greater credits to accumulate to the account of the individual. It requires 75 per cent. acceptance on the part of employees to cause the plan to become operative, and if the plan is thoroughly understood we have not the least doubt the 75 per cent. will be forthcoming.

As The Week Opens

The week opens none too well and new confusion centres in the claim from Prague that the terms of the settlement agreed upon by Hitler and Chamberlain at Berchtesgaden and tentatively accepted by Czechoslovakia have been so altered that they are now unacceptable to the Czechs. This in turn is denied by Berlin.

There are as usual too many statements which do not agree and which cannot possibly have foundation in fact. Prague claims it had the authority of France and Britain for the mobilization of its fighting forces, a claim which is patently inaccurate. Neither France nor britain have the authority to sanction the mobilization of troops in Czechoslovakia.

The focal point is that Prague has refused to accept the terms of settlement and Hitler's declaration, which has in it much the same fabric of which ultimatums are made, names October 1 as the limit of compliance.

Meanwhile President Roosevelt has made a direct appeal to Chancellor Hitler of Germany and to President Benes of Czechoslovakia. He sets forth the horror of war and the desire of his 130 million people for peace. Such a message will do no harm, neither will it serve the purpose of arresting war because it is known there is no military significance behind it. At the moment it looks as though the answer to peace or war rests in Prague and Prague is defiant.

We Trust Most People

The extent to which a number of decent and reliable people can be tricked when a plausible looking stranger starts on the rounds of trickery is well illustrated in a story coming from Oshawa. The stranger on reaching the city presented himself as a doctor from Timmins, and one of his first ports of call was on a medical man of Oshawa who gave him assistance in having a cheque cashed.

After that he purchased a car and it is reported that the down payment was $500 with the usual procedure observed for paying off the balance. The cheque would have to go through the regular channels, and it was several days before it was returned showing it to be worthless.

The report also says he made the claim that he was starting a hospital in Timmins and desired to engage a competent nurse. He succeeded in this, and is alleged to have taken a young lady from Port Perry, a graduate of the Oshawa Hospital, along with him.

It is quite likely people trusted this stranger when he came to Oshawa. The medical man on whom he called believed he was a doctor from Timmins just as he claimed to be; people who sell cars are not careless of the way in which they do business, and young ladies who have trained as nurses are not the type to pick up with a stranger in whom they have no confidence. Undoubtedly the stranger in Oshawa was able to go through with his plan because people there trusted him. Most of our business is carried on as the result of confidence. We are not inclined to believe that the stranger who went into Oshawa to work out his miserable plans should have been apprehended at once by some sharp individual or that Oshawa people were dull in not having done so. He could probably have done the same thing in several places for the very simple reason that in this country we trust most of the people we meet.

They Should Say "No"

When C. L. Burton of Toronto was speaking to the Brantford Board of Trade he reviewed the extent to which taxation and debt had increased, and concluded the people themselves were to blame for a great deal of it. Mr. Burton put it this way:

> "I would be leaving you with a false impression of my own profound convictions if I did not say here and now that the fault lies with us as citizens. One body and then another is guilty of pressure upon public men for measures and expenditures which increase public debt and taxation."

All of which is quite true, but it does not prove that the public is to blame for the amount of public money which is spent. There are men in parliament who are likely to favor the expenditure just as much as the people who come asking that it be made because they consider that the expenditure of public money in their riding is good material for the next campaign. It causes a good many people to come to the conclusion that the member carries weight in the government because he "can get things done."

Apart from that the business of government is not functioning on a high plane when such expenditures can be made just because people ask for them. The men whom we elect to seats in parliament sit collectively not far removed from the treasury. They know the extent and condition of our national revenue; they are aware of our national obligations. They are thus in an admirable position to be able to say that a proposed expenditure is something which cannot be considered. We believe it is as much the business of a good sound government to shake its head and disappoint people as it is to give an affirmative answer and please them. In fact we would feel safer with a majority of men in our government who would not be afraid to say a good loud NO.

He Made a Decision

There had been a fair share of controversy regarding the proposal to hold a wedding ceremony in front of the grand stand at the Leamington fall fair. There was some sort of financial gain for the young folk who were to be married and the fair board figured it would be a profitable business as people would come in numbers and buy more gate tickets.

The proposal found reflection in sermons from the pulpit and in newspaper comment, all of which was good enough publicity for the stunt marriage.

Then it was that Hon. P. M. Dewan, Minister of Agriculture, gave the plain warning that his department would not tolerate the holding of such a wedding at a fall fair, and if it was held then the provincial grant to such a fair would not be paid. And that was that.

Possibly the directors of the Leamington fall fair will not approve of the decision of Mr. Dewan, but we are certain the great majority of people will. The deep spiritual significance of such a ceremony would not find its proper atmosphere in front of a grand stand at a fall fair.

There is something more which we like about Mr. Dewan's method. It was simple and direct. He had a problem facing him; he had to make a decision and he did it. And there's something to be said for the man who can make decisions—particularly if they are good ones.

Is Hitler Well Off?

A correspondent asks this reasonable enough question: "Is Hitler well off personally?" If one were to ask that question of Hitler he would probably reply in a negative way.

But Hitler has a book which is about as good as the average gold mine. "Mein Kampf" is the title and it is large and formidable. We have seen it stated there have been something over four million copies sold and Hitler gets a royalty of one mark on each copy.

This year it is said the sales will amount to 900,000 copies and the royalties on that would mean about $300,000. It must have been 12 or 13 years ago since the book was first published, and it was something like a wash-out at the start and for some time after. The people had a chance to buy it in a cheap edition but did not seem inclined to do so.

But when Hitler became a power in the land he lugged his book to power along with him. It has to be read now by young and old; it is given a place in universities and schools, and when a couple get married it is customary to give them a copy of it. It may be obligatory for all we know. The person in Germany who has not read the book and taken the trouble to make certain what it is all about may some day find himself out of luck.

So there is a partial answer to the question as to whether Hitler is well off personally. If our correspondent had one source of income which in the year had produced $300,000 we don't suppose there would be much complaint about the family finances.

NOTE AND COMMENT

In this country folk often enough have hay fever; in Europe it's hate fever.

Not often do we enjoy reading stories of people who live to a great old age because so many of them attribute their length of years to hard work.

Not that the suggestion will probably be acted upon, but it would not be a bad idea to ask Wilhelm Hohenzollern of Doorn what he thinks of the situation.

Three brothers of Yorkton, Sask., go to prison with lashes for a year because they robbed a man of 81 years of his pension money. So that sentence seems right enough.

A North Bay contractor was fined for keeping a large amount of dynamite stored in his garage. We used to have a car like that too but never thought of using dynamite.

Upon hearing that a man in Philadelphia had built the instruments for a swing band out of wood, and that they were noiseless, the editor of the Chatham News penned a nice editorial about the world growing better.

These offers of aid in case of war are not always easy to interpret. It does look as though Moscow had offered to go to the aid of the Czechs if France would, but did so after learning that France was not going.

A New York mother inserted an announcement in the papers asking a hit-and-run driver to attend the funeral of her boy whom he had killed. That driver knew he killed the boy, knew there would be a funeral and knew he would not be present.

The safe of a Toronto service station was opened, and a pick axe, crow bar and a sledge hammer were used. Which is a rather awkward substitute for the trained and nimble fingers of the old safe-cracker who needed about ten minutes to spin the dial of any safe he encountered.

Bernard Baruch of New York has put up $10,000 to bring home 83 U.S. residents who were fighting for the government in Spain. Baruch explains: "They were willing to fight for something they believed in and I had the money to bring them home when they got hurt." But who will have the money to care for them after they get home?

MUSIC

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Alfalfa wants to train her voice, she got a teacher of her choice, and then she went to work; Alfalfa promised him she'd stay, she'd try for two full hours a day, nor would she stall or shirk.

¶ Alfalfa is a large-sized maid, she wears the biggest boots yet made, as strong as she can be; when she hits notes along the scale, they all looked weakened like and pale, it seems that way to me.

¶ Her teacher told her she must cease, must cultivate the ways of peace, so she'd sing soft and low; but when Alfalfa's under way, it sounds I hear the neighbors say, like motor bikes might go.

¶ And when she sings a lullaby, the children in the block will cry, they say they cannot sleep; they seem to be possessed with fears, they put their fingers in their ears, and after that they weep.

¶ Alfalfa's in the village choir, she sets the anthems nigh on fire, of vigor she's a lot; if all the rest should stay at home, Alfalfa would go through alone, she'd rather sing than not.

¶ Alfalfa's teacher's in despair, he pleads that she control her air, use dignity and poise; but when she whoops it hurts his pride, and he'd admitted he'll decide—she's glued fast to her noise.

Why Ask Britain If U.S. Refuses?

(Brantford Expositor)

DR. Jacob Gould Schurman, a distinguished product of the Maritime Provinces, who for twenty-five years was President of Cornell University, and subsequently Ambassador to Germany, after a trip to Europe has expressed opinion that the United States should maintain a position of isolation in regard to the Czechoslovakian dispute. "The battle over control of the Czech borderland," he declared, "is no concern of the United States, and ought not to involve us."

When an educationist of such high standing as Dr. Schurman, who was born in Canada, takes that view it is not surprising that so many of his fellow countrymen, born in the United States, ardently support the same policy. Perhaps no man in the country has a greater knowledge of history than Dr. Schurman, and he must know that the creation of the Republic of Czechoslovakia was largely due to the altruistic ideals of the late President Woodrow Wilson. He consented to the erection of this independent state in 1918 before the Armistice was signed, and fought persistently for it at the Congress of Versailles. The statesmen of other countries yielded reluctantly to his importunate demand, believing that it would bring the United States into the League of Nations as an active member for the prevention of war and the maintenance of peace.

If Dr. Schurman ignores all responsibility on the part of the United States to see that justice is done to Czechoslovakia, what business is it of Britain? The latter has taken only a humanitarian interest in the settlement of this bitter dispute in an effort to obtain the best terms for the Little Republic and to avert war, but political leaders and newspapers in the United States should be the last to reproach her for the stand that she has taken. When an enlightened and highly educated man like Dr. Schurman supports the policy of isolation, there is not much hope for its abandonment in the United States.

CHAMBERLAIN'S TRIP.

THE Christian Science Monitor has looked up a few precedents for Chamberlain's visit to Hitler, as follows:

1878—Prime Minister Disraeli personally attends Berlin Congress on Turco-Russian peace.

1928—President - Elect Hoover makes good-will tour of South America.

1929—Prime Minister MacDonald visits United States to sit on the "log of Rapidian" with President Hoover laying groundwork for London naval conference when naval arms race threatened.

1937—Mussolini visits Hitler in Germany.

May, 1938—Hitler repays Mussolini's visit.

September 15, 1938—Mr. Chamberlain flies to Germany.

MUSSOLINI READ IT.

(Winston Churchill, M.P.)

THE SEIZURE of Austria, which Mussolini was powerless to prevent, has brought Hitler's Greater Germany to Brenner. Even without any new act of aggression, German influence in Eastern Europe is bound to increase as a result of the Anschluss. Moreover, in the South Tyrol, in the land where Andreas Hofer fought and died, a quarter of a million Germans look to Germany for deliverance from the Italian yoke. Besides, the Mediterranean sparkles as a lure to ambitious German eyes. Even if Hitler keeps his word, he may have a successor who will claim to start free.

If Mussolini has reason to fear the growing might and new proximity of Germany, Germans do not forget the great Italian betrayal, as they regard it, of the Triple Alliance in the Great War. Quarrels there may be to divide France and Italy; but they bickered also before 1914. It was an Italian who wrote in that terrible autumn: "France, we have forgotten everything you contrived against our fleet two years ago! France, we love you!" That Italian was Mussolini. Finally, the German general staff have the poorest opinion of the quality of the Italian army. Nothing has wounded Mussolini more than the disparaging report presented early this year to Hitler by his generals, a copy of which found its way to Rome.

A COSTLY FOG.

(New York Post)

NO FOG was dense enough to subdue the glitter that tied up the Queen Mary for twelve hours on the very entrance to New York. She was bright with the gleam of gold and silver in the amount of $45,152,000; $45,000,000 was in gold, $152,000 was in silver.

If there is any question in your mind that the fog doesn't run into money, consider that the Cunard White Star Line had to pay overtime to the customs inspectors last night and that the extra food bill, according to Chief Steward E. B. Pimbly, amounted to $4,000!

The liner did not expect to serve breakfast as the Queen Mary was scheduled to dock so early; so first breakfast had to be served; then the boat was really trapped and luncheon was served and before the fog and tide came to terms, dinner was served.

All in all, 2,000 meals were served yesterday instead of 00.

A Bit of Nonsense

Candid.

He: "I'd rather sleep than eat, any day."

She: "I never knew you were as lazy as that."

"No, and I didn't know you were such a bad cook."

SUGGESTIVE

"I don't think our music is popular at the fete, sir. They've set a very long course for the Bandsmen's Race!"

—London Opinion.

• Puts Blame on President Benes

MUCH OF THE BLAME for the present situation is put by Lord Runciman on President Benes of Czechoslovakia, according to a copyright despatch by The New York Times from P. J. Philip. Cabling from Paris, Mr. Philip says:

There is no doubt here (in Paris) that the British Prime Minister will take the opportunity of reopening with Hitler the much-wider question of general settlement of European affairs and the establishment of this continent on the basis of agreement instead of the hate and the armament competition, of which the Sudeten issue has been only one feature.

Premier Chamberlain's first move was to read Lord Runciman's report which put an enormous burden of responsibility for the situation on President Benes. It was pointed out that from the time when the Czechoslovak Republic was founded, President Benes, sometimes with French approval and at other times despite their warning, had persistently refused to keep old promises and recognize the gravity of the Sudeten problem or meet the Sudetens' wishes.

He could, Lord Runciman is said to have insisted, have easily and finally settled the matter on May 20 this year when, as he admitted in his speech, Hitler accepted a rebuff from Prague backed by Paris and London.

But the Czech President did not seize the opportunity to deal generously. He fought every step and every proposal, while passions grew more and more violent.

To that report the French Ministers would make no reply, for their own experience fully confirmed it. They could not deny that Prague has repeatedly failed to keep promises made, and President Benes has, as Hitler described him in a recent interview, shown himself a politician only and not a statesman. Even when some time ago when it was still possible the French urged a plebiscite and Prague refused.

Mr. Chamberlain then asked them to consider the situation from the military viewpoint. If war should break out, he said, Britain could not do more than send two divisions to France, Russian aid was very doubtful both in quantity and quality. At best Czechoslovakia herself could resist for only a month, and all British reports gave even a shorter estimate owing to the defection of Sudeten soldiers. From the United States, President Roosevelt had made it clear that nothing could be expected except impotent emotionalism.

France would have to bear the brunt of the fighting, and he asked the French Ministers if their country were prepared to do so on the issue as it had been placed before them by the unskilful manoeuvring of President Benes.

Premier Daladier and M. Bonnet, looking back over the history of the past two years, when the agitation of those Communists and Socialists, who now want war has prevented proper armament equipment and sapped the energy of the people with repeated strikes and fomented discontent, could not answer boldly in the affirmative.

They knew that Paris and half the towns of France would be bombed day and night by the superior German Air Force for their own production of airplanes under the Left Administration in these recent years has left them far behind. And they could not count on any change in the national temper. Last week-end, while the crisis was at its worst, those Communists, Socalists, and labor leaders, who were clamoring for war against fascism called out all the men in the building trades, so that today even the road builders in the Paris district have downed tools. Germany might not be ready for war, but neither they had to admit, was France.

• Why Some People Get Fined

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

SUCCESS or a bit of good luck which brings happiness is reflected in the tempo of our actions. If a man has sudden cause for rejoicing he walks with a springy step until the first reaction wears off. It also seems to have effect on the foot that presses on the gas pedal. Some interesting illustrations were noted in British police courts on a recent Saturday.

Case No. 1 was that of a young woman who pleaded guilty to driving at 50 miles an hour in a city area where the speed limit was 30. Her excuse was that she felt "exuberant" as the date of her marriage approached. Her exuberance cost her $20, which was tough on a bride.

No. 2 was that of an Aberdeen man who was mulcted $10. "I was speeding," he said, "because it was the first day of my honeymoon." Even an Aberdeen man might feel it was worth $10.

No. 3 was a girl whose car obstructed a pedestrian crossing and she was excited because she was "on her way to a jeweller's to collect her engagement ring."

Then there was a man who stepped too hard on the gas because he had just been notified of a job. Ten dollars must come out of his first pay envelope.

A young officer was fined no less than $200 and $10 costs for driving dangerously while under the influence of liquor. Reason—Mr. Hore-Belisha, Minister for War, had been kind enough to give officers a raise of pay and he had been "celebrating."

Our sympathy goes out to the governor of a prison in Edinburgh who very nearly found himself occupying another position in his own jail but was fined $75 instead. He had been invited to sing at a social function and took a glass of whisky "to sustain myself for the effort." This man took a drink more to drown his misery than to celebrate happiness. But there is a certain affiliation between drinking for joy and drinking for sorrow.

Last but not least there was a truck driver who was stopped by a policeman at a crossing near Manchester because he was driving too fast. Said he to the officer: "I'm thankful you stopped me before I had an accident. I quite agree with you reporting me."

The court fined him $5. The court should have given him $5.

WHY DO THEY DO IT?

(Niagara Falls Review)

THERE is something in what was said by H. Glenn Hatfield, International President of the Kiwanis at Kingston. He suggests that many foreigners, now busily engaged in preaching communist and fascist doctrines in Canada and the United States would be spies in the event of war. Strange is it to find men who have found prosperity under our system preaching communism or fascism, either of which would put them out of business.

MUCH TOO MUCH.

(St. Catharines Standard)

CANADA lays on the line no less a sum than $122,000,000 in salaries for Dominion employes and pensions, $77,000,000 in salary and $45,000,000 in pensions. There are 65,000 people drawing down the money, $3,000 distributed throughout the country. The figures come from the deputy minister of finance. On top of this federal outlay, there are the provincial and municipal overhead expenditures all in the name of government. It is much too much.

A Bible Message For Today ....

FOR GOD, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

But we have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of us....

For all things are for your sakes, that the abundant grace might through the thanksgiving of many redound to the glory of God.

For which cause we faint not; but though our outward man perish, yet the inward man is renewed day by day.

For our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory.

While we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen. for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal.—II Cor. iv, 6, 7, 15-18.

To The Editor

DAYLIGHT TIME

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Now that we are through the daylight saving time for another season it is time to make the suggestion that we do one thing or the other about it. I have occasion to be on the road most of the time and it is a nuisance as we have it. I do not know how many hours in a season I waste by getting into the wrong places at the wrong time, and I have it all down before me in a book so I know in advance just what places are fast and slow time.

I call on a number of farmers and in villages, towns and cities, and the farmers and the villagers tell me if they had a chance to vote they would put it out of business, but in some of the towns and a good many of the cities they are all for daylight time. I am informed the government would never take a vote on the question because they would have to offend one or the other portion of the population by the result.

They do it differently in Europe and in United States where it is all regulated by the government and where all the people observe it on the same basis. We should do that here.

Note—What our correspondent says about Europe is correct and that includes Britain, but not United States Daylight saving time is a state movement in the republic and this year there were 17 states with 30,000,000 people on daylight time, while the rest of the population operated on standard time.—Ed. Oshawa Nurse Been Missing For One Week

OSHAWA, Sept. 26. — Police of two countries intensified their search over the week-end for a pseudo doctor, believed to be a dope addict, who is thought to hold the key to the disappearance of Elizabeth Symes, comely 22-year-old graduate nurse, who vanished from her Oshawa home last Monday and has not been heard of since.

While the girl's frantic parents in Port Perry vainly sought news of their daughter's whereabouts, police traced the bogus doctor, who posed as a Dr. J. J. Hubbell of Timmins, as far as Niagara Falls, N.Y., but there the trail was lost. Police throughout Ontario and the United States were notified, but as yet the missing doctor, who passed two worthless cheques in Oshawa, has not been apprehended.

Offered Job in Timmins.

With one cheque, drawn on a bank that has no branch in Timmins, Hubbell purchased a grey new car, in which he left Oshawa, apparently in company with the missing girl, whom he had promised a position as nurse in a private hospital at Timmins.

According to Mrs. L. Gassien, with whom Miss Symes lived in Oshawa, the girl first met Dr. Hubbell on Saturday afternoon, September 17, when he called at the house to offer her the position. She had appeared very enthusiastic over the offer, Mr. Gassien said, and left for Toronto on Monday morning with the doctor, to purchase new uniforms.

"When she returned from Toronto that afternoon she seemed to have lost her head completely," Mrs. Gassien declared. "Always a good, serious-minded, steady girl, she seemed flighty and not the same sensible person after that trip to Toronto. She seemed to have gone completely crazy. She was throwing her arms around and was all for marrying the doctor. She smelled strongly of ether or chloroform."

According to Mrs. Gassien, the girl refused to eat any supper on Monday evening. Hubbell told her they were leaving for Toronto, and that he "would take good care of her," she said.

The couple left in the supposed doctor's car about 7.30 on Monday evening, and Mrs. Gassien was surprised to discover soon after that the girl had departed without taking any clothes or her new uniforms with her.

When the girl did not return on Monday night nothing was thought of the matter, as it was thought she might have stayed with a sister, but as days passed without any word from the girl, Mrs. Gassien became alarmed, and on Friday teleponed an Oshawa doctor, who discovered that there was no "Dr. J. J. Hubbell" in Timmins.

Fear that the bogus medico was a dope addict was voiced when it was learned he had carried a hypodermic syringe and needles with him when he first called on the girl.

The girl's mother has been almost prostrate with grief and anxiety, and on Saturday her father, W. Symes of Port Perry, visited Toronto to enlist the aid of newspapers in locating her. The girl had not been home for two weeks, he said, but had written that she was working on a case. The first intimation that anything was wrong came on Friday by telephone, acquainting them of the disappearance.

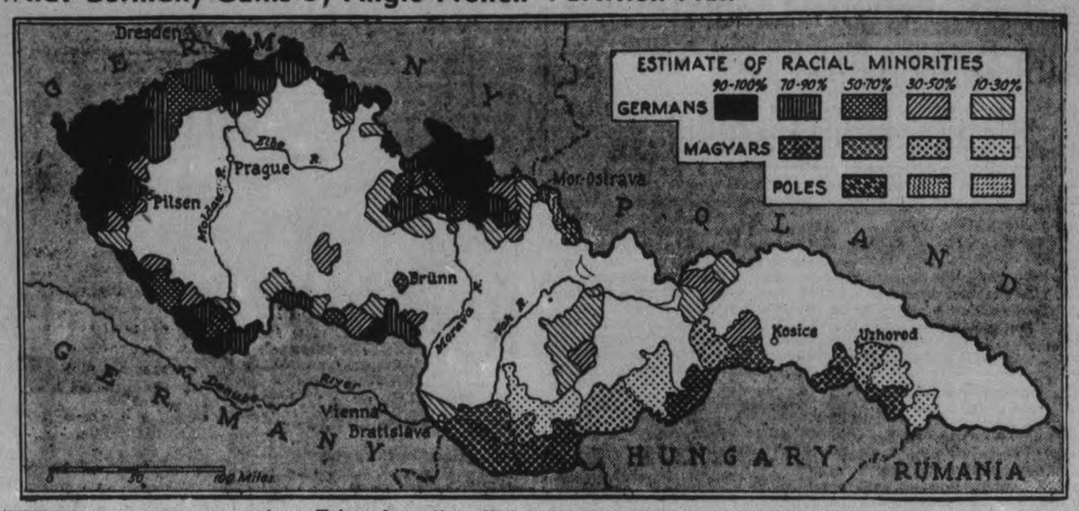
Cash For The Czechs

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(AP). — More than 20,000 persons contributed $7,079 to the Czechoslovakian Red Cross at a "Save Czechoslovakia" rally yesterday in Madison Square Garden. The crowd, including hundreds unable to enter the packed hall, cheered Thomas Mann, novelist, and German expatriate who denounced Chancellor Hitler's proposed dismemberment of Czechoslovakia. "Hitler must fall," Mann said. "There is no other way to peace."

B.C. Tory Leader

KAMLOOPS, B.C., Sept. 26 (C. P.). — The British Columbia Conservative Party elected R. L. Maitland, K.C., of Vancouver as Leader at a convention here on Saturday. He succeeds Dr. Frank Patterson of Vancouver who died last February.

What Germany Gains By Anglo-French Partition Plan



Taken from the official Czechoslovak chart, showing minorities according to the statistics of the Praha government, the ABOVE map shows the areas of Czechoslovakia which will be handed to the German Reich under the Anglo-French plan of partition. These areas are shown in three darkest shadings. Other Germanic elements, constituting less than 50 per cent. of the population apparently will not be ceded. The settlement plan is reported to provide for an exchange of population, and many Germans residing in these areas will have to move to areas controlled by the Reich. Similarly Czechs, living in areas to be ceded, will have to move to unceded areas. Poland and Hungary are also having a voice in the partitioning of Czechoslovakia by demanding that areas populated by Polish and Hungarian minorities be ceded to their respective countries. These areas are also shown on the map.

AFRAID TO MARRY

by HELEN WELSHIMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Judy Rogers, New York heiress, is stunned when Craig Denby, the man she loves, tells her on the phone that he has married a girl he met at a weekend house party. Afraid of marriage, Judge reflects she put Craig off once too many times. Then she phones her father's lawyers to learn the details of his financial crash, just announced in the newspapers, and talks with Ronald Birrell, a brilliant young attorney from Tennessee who has just joined the firm. Ronald both angers and fascinates Judy, doubting that she has the stamina to remain in New York and make her own way designing dresses which she says she likes to do:

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 3

At Ronald Birrell's remark that she did not have enough stamina to fight her way in New York, Judy's anger mounted. After all, this red-headed young man with the clear blue eyes and funny grin had no right to dictate to her.

She spoke swiftly: "I think you are the most impudent, brazen, unmannerly man I've ever met. I'll do what I choose to do. Mr. Heaton doesn't ask you to dictate to his clients as to how they shall live. Anyway, what business is it of yours what I do? If you want the truth, I loathe the social racket. But I'm sticking with it!"

Then she walked out of the restaurant, down the street. For a second or two she thought he might follow her. She almost wanted him to. But he didn't. She glanced over her shoulder a time or two but there was no hurrying figure, with a red head, coming to overtake her.

She walked—miles, it seemed. Her anger faded. The day grew warmer. She took off her hat and let the breeze stir her curls. She did not realize how far she had come until she saw the blue waters of the Battery in the distance.

Ships were setting out to sea. Craig would be going past the Statue of Liberty in a boat pretty soon. Craig and a girl named Mary Banner.

She wondered what the girl looked like. Was she a glittering blonde, a ravishing black-haired creature—or just a girl with brown hair and eyes, as she herself was?

Not that it mattered. She had captured Craig. Captured, Judy told herself, was the right word. Otherwise how could a young man, vowing eternal love to one girl, marry another in so short a time? Or—maybe he had captured Mary.

It didn't matter. The marriage was completed.

"I won't know about Mary for a long time," she said half aloud. "Not until it doesn't hurt to realize that Craig is hers. Maybe that time won't come. Maybe I'll always watch for him. Maybe he loves Mary terribly and I was a habit. Maybe—I'd better get a job!"

A newsboy stopped in front of her. "Paper, lady? Another big shot takes the gate."

"Who is it this time?" she asked, quite as though she didn't know. She wanted her mind distracted from the other problem.

"Rogers. A baron in the Street. Say—" the boy gave a whistle of surprise. "You look almost like the old man's daughter. See?" He showed Judy her own picture on page one. "Only not quite so pretty. That Rogers dame is a looker."

"Yes, she is," agreed Judy. Her pictured face was gay, happy, unworried. Her real fact was haggard and hurt and white, she knew.

"Keep the paper—its a present because you look like the girl. She'll have to hustle for a job now."

Judy stood quietly when the vendor had gone. Well, why not get a job? Once she had wanted to, believing she was rich. And now—

She glanced at the tall buildings that stood so austerely against the afternoon sky. There were girls in the offices, girls who were earning their own livings because they had to. Brave and fearless, even when they were a little frightened in the corner of their hearts. She would join them. She would show Ronald Birrell.

So she caught a subway train and went home. The penthouse apartment was quiet. She went into her own room and sat down at her desk. She would cable her mother that she was not coming, and take the passage money as a fund to help her live while she searched for a job. Maybe she could model—she was a perfect 14. From that, it would be just a step into designing, she hoped.

The maid had placed some letters on the silver tray. A yellow envelope topped them. A cable. She ripped it open.

"Planning winter in Egypt. Impossible have you join us. Sorry about everything."

It was signed "Edith Rolland."

So her mother didn't want her. She did not care enough to sign some maternal term to the message. Just "Edith Rolland," as though she were a person, and Judy was a person, and they never had meant anything to each other.

Well, there would be no passage money. She would tell her father, and he would loan her a little, a very little, if he had it.

But he did not have it, although he would have found it had she asked. It was after dinner that Judy intended to show him the cabled mesage. They were having coffee in the drawing room, for the September night had turned too cool for the terrace, when he said:

"Judy, Im glad your mother is taking you with her this winter. Our reverses need not interfere with your gaiety. As for me—I'd finance you here, if you prefer, if I had two coins to rattle together. But the banks empty."

He walked to the long windows that opened on the terrace, was silent for a moment, came back. His quick, brilliant smile was not for Judy, waiting hungrily for a word of affection. It was for his wife, but she did not return it. Instead Judy's stepmother shook her head.

"Bob, how did you make so many dumb mistakes?"

"I thought I was being bright. Dont worry about it. It will come out all right." Even now his eyes adored his wife.

Judy turned away her head. It wasn't fair. This stepmother had taken, taken, taken! She owed her husband sympathy and understanding, unspoken forgiveness of matters that were beyond her comprehension. But her father did not seem to mind—

Now Ronald Birrell would have been hot-headed and demanding. His wife would have to walk with him all the way. But it would be fun for her, if she loved him... Silly to think about that now. Also, it would be a brave girl who could love that tempestuous attorney.

The stepmother was speaking again. Her name was Sarita. She was beautiful and much younger than her husband. Now she smiled, and Judy's tight heart expanded.

"I'm sorry I'm such a brutally frank person, Bob. I'm standing by. Don't forget."

"I won't, promised the tall man with graying hair. He seemed to be a stranger now, as Judy looked at him. Not her father, Sarita's husband. She stirred restlessly. The movement attracted the man's attention. He finished his coffee, and put down the cup.

"How soon can you sail, Judy? The Normandie pulls out day after tomorrow."

No good to tell him that her mother didn't want her. It would add to his worries. He was in such a hurry to have her leave. Under the lavender chiffon flounces of her dinner frock she heard the yellow paper of the cablegram crackling. He would not know that she had this message.

"You see, Judy, I'm taking Sarita west with me to try to recover a venture. One woman is all I can manage this winter. In the spring...."

"Yes, of course, in the spring," she agreed, with a forced smile.

Sarita was saying her, speculatively. "Maybee Judy will want to marry. What about Craig?"

"Craig is married,'" she repeated steadily, because she had been saying the words, over and over, to herself all day.

"Married? When?"

"Last night. To Mary Banner, the radio entertainer. Craig and I never were serious. Mind if I excuse myself and go to my room? You must have lots of plans to make."

Lots of plans, and none of them would include her. But she didn't stay inside. She put on a white polo coat and went down the street to a newsstand. Maybee Craig's marriage was in the morning tabloids, already on sale.

A Lively Vocabulary Builds Up Your Charm

Good Talk Brings Good Times

What a little charmer Sally is! Her lively vocabulary fascinates Ted.

At the big game he loves to see her all agog about "the giddy mob," "the crowd's excited roar," "costumes the color of autumn leaves," "the drum major who struts like a pouter pigeon."

Sally's clever. She wasn't born with the right words for every occasion on the tip of her tongue. But she keeps her ears open, watches newspapers and magazines for vivid new ways of saying things.

And she weeds errors and trite, boring slang out of her vocabulary as quickly as she spots them. You'll never find her boring a date with tiresome expressions like "and how," "you're telling me," "no kidding?"

Or making a bad impression by saying "broadcasted" for broadcast, "dark-complected" for dark-complexioned, "dove" for dived, or "humans" for human beings.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

I DON'T know how long Hanid and Knarf and Simple Simon would have kept floating in the ocean current if they hadn't, fortunately, met the crab.

He was quite an old fellow, with long, spiky legs and lots of scratches on his back where he had been in fights with other crabs. He was resting on the leaf of an underwater tree when he saw the three visitors to his ocean go sailing by. He could see that they did not like the way they were going.

"Good day!" he greeted them pleasantly. "You seem to be in trouble. Can I offer my assistance?"

They didn't seem able to stop, so he sprang lightly off the leaf and paddled along with them.

"We're trying ..... we're trying .... to get down to the bottom!" Hanid finally managed to say.

How to Do It?

"How can we get to the bottom?" Knarf broke in. "We're trying to catch the whale. Simon caught him with a fishing line but he swam away. We saw him a few minutes ago hiding behind a rock. But when we tried to get to the rock we floated off .... just like this."

"Good day" he greeted them.

The crab chuckled. "I see that none of you knows much about my little ocean. Now do just as I say. Stop moving your arm and legs."

The three of them stopped at once. Then the crab spoke again.

"Do you see that underwater tree just ahead of you? You'll be able to catch hold of the top of it in a minute. There! Catch it!"

They all caught hold of the top of the underwater tree.

"And now," said the crab, chuckling more than ever, "just pull yourself down. You see, when you're under water it's much harder to climb a tree down, than to climb up."

Finally, they all got to the bottom. But they didn't dare move for fear of floating off again.

The Stars Say...

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, September 27.

Conflicting auguries are noted in this day's astrological forecast, with major planets under high influence, both adversely and beneficially. There may be sudden or surprising events, upsetting all previous calculations and plans, and perhaps demanding a complete change of environment and objectives. And while this may be confusing and perplexing, a very powerful friend may help with wise counsel and more substantial co-operation, and some place along the way romance and adventure loom. Be careful in handling funds.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of surprises and upsets, with adventure and romance of possibly devastating effect calling for an about-face in objectives and a rearrangement of established plans. In the dilemma, however, a sturdy friendship may be counted on to counsel and assist practically. It will be necessary to use funds carefully.

A child born on this day may have a career of adventure and romance, in which unusual talents and aspirations may lead to prominence. Its advancement may culminate natural ability in art, music, or poetry, or may swing to science or invention.

WHY DOES ANYBODY BORROW FROM A BANK?

★ ★

WHY does anybody borrow money?

Here is the answer: Usually to make a profit or to use the money for his advantage.

Be the borrower a farmer, marketing organization, lumberman, miner, fisherman, rancher, manufacturer —none ever borrows from a bank and pays interest except to gain a benefit outweighing the interest charges.

Every Canadian dollar represents tangible wealth already produced, or wages paid for services rendered.

Every Canadian dollar issued can be described accurately as to purpose, as a wealth-producing, wage-paying, profit-seeking dollar.

Occasionally some borrowed dollars become temporarily deadweight debt—perhaps you suffer a loss for a season through drought or other natural calamity. But with a better season, better prices and brighter business, the loser has a chance to recover his losses.

"I borrow $1,000 from the bank, paying interest because the bank is rendering me a service," one man instances. He goes on thus:

"Why do I borrow the $1,000?

"To use in a business deal and make a profit.

"My deal concluded successfully, I repay the bank and have a profit of say $100, which I put to my credit in the bank.

"The bank has back its $1,000 and interest, and I have $100 I didn't have before.

"Multiply that borrowing of mine, my use of the money, my repayment and my profit, by many borrowers, day after day, and you see what is happening as a continuous revolving process throughout the year in the business world."

A farmer borrows for seed, cultivation or harvesting; a fisherman borrows for bait, boat or wages; a manufacturer borrows against raw materials being fabricated, to pay wages to finish and market his goods—but none of these borrows except in the hope of profit to himself, in supplying the needs of others.

Banking is not mysterious.

A farmer's co-operative marketing organization uses bank credit so that the farmer may get cash for his crop at the elevator without waiting for it to reach Liverpool.

A merchant borrows from the bank and is enabled to pay his bills early, take advantage of discounts, and pass part of his saving on to his customers.

A small farmer with 20 hogs borrowed $50 for feed, paid $1.75 interest and was enabled to sell his hogs for $100 more than he would have got on an earlier market. His net profit was $48.75. That is an authentic case. Here is another:

A hog-raiser on a large scale paid $100 interest on a loan for feed. He writes us that he made a net profit of nearly $2,000.

These are instances of the kind of services bank credit, exchanged for individual credit, performs as an everyday routine, in Canada. Any community can supply scores of similar examples.

What is money?

Chartered banks now issue their notes up to a legal limit of 85 per cent of their paid-up capital. Yearly this is being reduced and the right of note-issue as steadily vested in the Bank of Canada.

A chartered bank's notes are the first charge on its assets. In case of trouble they must be paid off before a single cent can be paid on deposits or on any other debts owed by the bank. To make doubly sure that notes will be redeemed, each bank pays into a fund held by the Minister of Finance, an amount of cash equal to five per cent. of the average of its bank notes outstanding. This is called the "Bank Circulation Redemption Fund." The total of this fund is available for the purpose of redeeming the outstanding notes of any bank.

Notes of the Bank of Canada are money—legal tender—cash—that Bank's notes and deposits are backed (July 30, 1938) by 56.26 per cent. of gold and silver bullion and foreign exchange.

Notes of the chartered banks, too, are money—their promises to pay; every dollar backed by more than twenty dollars of assets. They are redeemable, on demand, in cash.

Your deposit in a chartered bank also is money—you can buy things with it. It arose from your labour, production and thrift. It is redeemable in cash. It is a measure of your real wealth. You may make payments by cheque upon it. When your cheque goes through the Clearing House system, it must be met by the bank on which it is drawn. Any balances as between banks have to be settled in cash daily.

Your Canadian dollars are useful factors in a system that produces wealth for all of Canada.

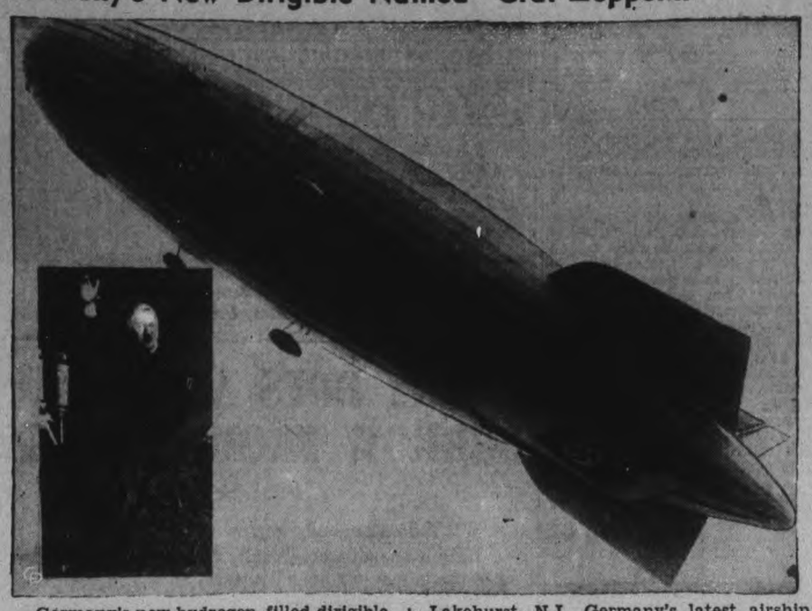
Germany's New Dirigible Named "Graf Zeppelin"



Germany's new hydrogen-filled dirigible is shown here as it took to the air on its initial flight following christening exercises at the Zeppelin field at Friedrichshaven. Built along the same lines as the Hindenburg, which exploded while being moored at Lakehurst, N.J., Germany's latest airship was christened Graf Zeppelin by Dr. Hugo Eckener, LEFT, commander of the original Graf Zeppelin. The new Graf Zeppelin could not be filled with helium because of the United States government's restricted use of the precious gas.

Farmers' Market Is Loaded With Autumn Produce Vegetables, Fruits Plentiful

While hundreds of shoppers and farmers bartered over farm produce and orchard fruits on the market Saturday morning each trying to drive the best bargain possible, a poorly clad urchin and a local gardener were the main actors in a little episode that sparkled with human interest and which by its conclusion proved beyond doubt that in this man at least the milk of human kindness is more than just a phrase.

The gardener was selling gladioli at 25 cents a dozen and was doing a brisk business while the small boy, about 10 years of age stood near the flower laden table, rather wistfully eyeing each beautiful bouquet as the customers purchased them. Finally during a lull the boy asked the price of the flowers and was told 25 cents a dozen.

"How many could you give me for a nickel", was the next question.

"I don't sell them that way" was the gruff answer, but at that moment the man, recalling perhaps some incident in his own youth said, "What do you want the flowers for."

Mother Is Sick.

Bewildered a little by the sudden question the youngster hesitated then said "My mummy is awful sick in bed at home, and I wanted to bring her some flowers."

There was no denying the honesty of the statement. It was one of those assertions that sets a person back on his heels, and for a moment the gardener eyed the rather dejected looking boy picturing perhaps in his mind the home from which the boy had come that morning searching for something that would gladden the heart of his sick mother. Without any further questions the gardener picked a beautiful bouquet of salmon colored glads from a vase, straightened one or two to improve the effect and handed them to the surprised boy. "Here I'll give you a bargain in these, the best bouquet in the bunch for the sum of five cents", and the curtain was rung down on one of life's little dramas that brought happiness to four people, the gardener, the boy, his sick mother and a reporter who was standing near enough to get the full impact of the human sidelight.

Gladioli which were not so plentiful as the week before ranged from 50 cents a bouquet down to a quarter while white daisies and asters were plentiful at 10 cents a bunch. Bittersweet was 25 and 35 cents for a generous sized bunch and zinnias sold at 25 cents a large bouquet.

Butter Scarce.

Staple food products showed little change, butter was scarce and steady at 25 cents a pound while eggs ranged in price from 38 cents for Grade A large down to 25 cents for small pullet eggs. 35 and 36 cents was the prevailing price for good sized eggs. One woman had a pair of dressed ducks and was asking 25 cents a pound and another asked 17 cents a pound for dressed hens. Chickens sold at 22 to 25 a pound.

Apples dominated the outside market but there were no Dutches and few Alexanders or Talman Sweets. The latter sold at 25 cents a peck. Wealthies, Pippins, and Baxters were one dollar a bushel with St. Lawrence variety selling 25 cents higher. There were plenty of the latter and of good quality, very few showing any sign of apple scabe or Codling moth worms. They were 40 cents a peck.

Bartlett pears were 35 cents a six-quart basket and jelly type crabapples were fairly plentiful at 25 cents for the same size basket.

Grapes 35 Cents Basket

One farmer had elderberries on the stems and soon got rid of them at thirty cents for an eleven-quart basket, while wild grapes brought 25 cents for the same quantity. The grapes were large and evidently are a good crop because of the excessive amount of rainfall during the past summer. Tame grapes were 35 cents for a six-quart basket.

A farmer with a truck load of canteloupes which he claimed was the last of his crop sold them at 10 cents each or 25 cents for four, while watermelons brought from 15 to 30 cents depending on the size. There were plenty of tomatoes to be had for forty cents a bushel, or 20 cents for an eleven-quart basket. Yellow tomatoes were 25 cents a basket and another woman was selling odd shaped vegetables which she called Italian tomatoes at 15 cents a small basket.

Potatoes were plentiful and of excellent quality and sold at 75 and 80 cents a bag for Dooleys and Cobblers with some farmers asking 90 for Green Mountain and White Stars.

Corn was still available and sold at 15 cents a dozen or two dozen for a quarter, with the dealers having little trouble finding customers. Cabbages, large and sound, sold for a nickel and good sized pumpkins brought 15 cents while squash sold at 15 and 20 cents and large marrows were a dime. Cauliflower was ten cents a head or two for fifteen.

In small baskets beets were 10 cents, onions, 20 cents, carrots, 10 and 12 cents, parsnips 20 cents and brocolli a quarter. Pickling onions were 10 cents a quart and red peppers sold at three for a dime.

Parsnips were 60 cents a bushel, onions one dollar for the same amount and fine looking carrots half a dollar for a bushel basket.

Butter beans were ten cents a quart and sage brought a nickel a bunch or three for a dime with little demand.

Honey in the comb was 25 cents and white clover honey in four-pound pails was 50 cents, and 60 cents for the five-pound. Amber honey was 45 cents for four-pound tins.

Eleven Dollars A Pair

Six weeks old pigs brought five dollars apiece and a few sold at eleven dollars a pair. There were only a few on the market and they went fast. One small boy had seven rabbits, six weeks old and was asking two bits each while another dealer had two "English Collie Pups" and wanted $2.50 each.

There was plenty of pastry to be had at all prices, fresh cream scones were 25 cents a dozen, cloverleaf buns made from milk and eggs and entirely different from bread buns sold at 20 cents a dozen. Pies, all kinds were 25 cents each, tarts, 20 cents a dozen, muffins 15 cents for twelve, and several women were selling home made bread at ten cents a loaf. One farmer had a large basketfull of puff balls which sold at from 5 to 15 cents each depending on the size.

Three three-year-old heifers sold by auction on the market brought $34, $28 and $33 respectively.

Text Of Hitler's Memorandum Delivered To Czechoslovakia

LONDON, Sept. 26.—(CP-Havas).—Following is the text of Chancellor Hitler's memorandum handed to Prime Minister Chamberlain at Godesberg for transmission to the Czechoslovak Government, as disclosed by authoritative sources in London:

Reports increasing in number from hour to hour regarding incidents in Sudetenland show the situation has become completely intolerable for the Sudeten German people and, in consequence, a danger to the peace of Europe.

Is therefore essential that the separation of Sudetenland agreed to by the Czechoslovak Government should be effected without any further delay.

On the attached may the Eudeten German area which is to be ceded is shaded in red. Areas in which a plebiscite is also to be held, over and above the areas to be occupied, are drawn in and shaded green.

The final delimitation of the frontier must correspond to the wishes to those concerned. In order to determine these wishes a certain period is necessary for preparation of the plebiscite during which disturbances must in all circumstances be prevented.

Parity Essential.

A situation of parity must be created. The area designated on the attached map as German area is to be occupied by German troops, without taking into account, whether in the plebiscite they may prove to be in this or that part of an area with a Czech majority.

On the other hand Czech territory is to be occupied by Czech troops without taking into account whether within this area there be large German-language islands in which in a plebiscite a majority will without doubt give expression to its German national feeling.

With a view to bringing about an immediate and final solution of the Sudeten German problem the following proposals are submitted by the German Government:

1. Withdrawal of the whole Czech armed force, police, gendarmerie, customs officials and frontier guards from the area to be evacuated as designated on the atached map. This area is to be handed over to Germany on Oct. 1.

2. The evacuated territory is to be handed over in its present condition—see further details in appendix. The German Government agrees that a plenipotentiary representative of the Czech Government and the Czech army should be attached to the headquarters of the German military forces to deal with details of modalities (means of making effective) of the evacuation.

3. The Czech Government to discharge at once all Sudeten Germans serving in the military forces or police anywhere in Czech State territory and permit them to return home.

4. The Czech Government to liberate all political prisoners of German race.

5. The German Government agrees to permit a plebiscite to take place in those areas—to be more definitely defined—before Nov. 25 at the latest.

Alterations in the new frontier arising out of the plebiscite will be settled by a German-Czechs or an international commission. The plebiscite itself will be carried out under control of an International Commission.

Simple Majority to Rule.

All persons who were residing in the areas in question on Oct. 28, 1918, or who were born in those parts prior to this date will be eligible to vote. A simple majority of all eligible male and female voters will determine the desire of the population to belong to either the German Reich or the Czech State.

During the plebiscite these parties will withdraw military forces out of the areas to be defined more precisely. The date and duration will be settled mutually by the German and Czech Governments.

6. The German Government proposes that an authoritative German-Czech Commission should be set up to settle all further details.

Appendix: The evacuated Sudeten German areas are to be handed over without destroying or rendering unusable in any way the military, economic or traffic establishments (plants.) These include the ground organization of the air service and wireless stations.

All economic and traffic material, especially rolling stock of the railway system in the designated areas to be handed over undamaged. The same applies to all utility service—gas works, power stations, etcetera, and finally, no foodstuffs, goods, cattle, raw materials etcetera are to be moved."

The presence here of General Gamelin is regarded as particularly significant. Official circles decline to speak on this angle but there seems to be no doubt he is discussing joint military plans with the British leaders.

General Gamelin flew from Paris this morning, at the call of Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Bonnet whof lew over Sunday. He landed at Croydon at 9 a.m. Leslie Hore-Belisha, British war minister, met him and they went directly to the French embassy.

Premier Daladier, Bonnet, the French ambassador to London, Charles Corbin, and other members of the French delegation accompanied General Gamelin to 10 Downing street.

Later the chief of the French general staff conferd with Viscount Gort, chief of theimperial general staff.

The National Administrative Council of the Independent Labor Party headed by James Maxton, M.P., approved a declaration stating the party opposes any support being given the Government for war. It said:

Lord Strabolgi, labor peer, speaking at Crayford, said Mr. Chamberlain apparently faced the alternatives of war or dishonor "and has chosen both."

He declared: "Hitler would be stopped now if we turned Chamberlain out, mobilized, stood by France, Russian and Czechoslovakia and said the limit had been reached."

Geoffrey Mander, Liberal M.P., in an address at Wolverhampton said Mr. Chamberlain's appeasement policy had bene tried and "failed disastrously."

Comittee Will Discuss Option On Point St. Charles Extension Of Shore Rip-Rapping

The city council's option on the Point St. Charles property, terminating early in October, will probably be discussed at one of the committee meetings this week or at the council meeting next Monday night.

Associated with the project, and actually a motiyating influence, is the Dominion government's proposal to extend the rip-rap on Crescent street from the end of Lake street around the Point to the George street wharf. An engineer of the Department of Public Works recently made a detailed survey of the water front and was expected to return to the city today.

Solid Ground

He has found that the east bank of the lake, fronting the McDonald estate, is solid ground suitable for facing with stone. In fact it is preferable to the Crescent street bank that has already been completed, which had included lengths of filling with ashes. The north shore of the property, from the Point to George street, is largely made up of sawdust filling to which Alderman Gordon has objected. According to old maps of the city there was a rather deep bay in indentation along that shore where the flow of the river had evidently washed out a curving hollow, subsequently filled with sawdust from the old mill.

Estimated Cost $8,000

It is understood that the proposed rip-rapping along that stretch of the water front would entail a considerable filling probably with field stones. Whether that would be an additional expense is not known as it has not been discussed by the council. Apparently all the facts are now available including an estimated expenditure by the government of nearly $8,000, most of which would be spent on labor. Alderman Gordon has denounced the plan in its entirety, describing the property as a swamp beyond reclaiming.

Some of the othsr members of the council are in favor of requesting the government to proceed with the rip-rapping for several reasons, completion of the stone facing from the cemetery to the George street wharf, municipal ownership of the point for possible use by the city if a bridge is ever needed across the narrows to Burnham's Point, and also for the temporary advantage of relief employment in the expenditure of the estimated $8,000, or thereabouts.

The option from Samuel Abbott offers the property to the city for $1,500, and although the question has been on the shelf for a month it is likely to be the subject of a lively debate when the council has to decide next week whether it will buy the lots he acquired from the Peterborough Lumber Company.

Presumbaly the council has received practically no public opinion on the proposed purchase and will have to make the decision in its own discretion and for the reasons that have already been broadly discussed at several of its meetings within the last few months.

Money Is Available

One of Alderman Gordon's criticisms to the effect that the government was unlikely to spend the money on the lake front need no longer be considered, another member of the council told the Examiner today. Mr. Duffus' earlier assurance that the money was available has received Department endorsement, and it is now simply a question whether the council wishes to take up its option, get the relief work under way as soon as possible, and acquire the property for any future uses the city may make of it.

A member of a Simcoe street family came barging into the living-room of his home last night from the kitchen firmly grasping a bread box under his arm, and exclaimed, "I've caught a mouse alive." His remark, instead of calling forth praise, sent the female members of the gathering scurrying to points of safety, and the man's wife immediately hopped to a standing position on a chair.

No person had sufficient courage to reach in and grasp the tiny frightened creature, so a pail filled with water was placed on the floor, and using great care so that the bread in the box would not be wasted, the mighty trapper pried the lid open sufficiently to allow the mouse to do a high dive into the water. Every one of the spectators, including the hunter, believed the career of the bread-eater was definitely at an end. They were amazed when the mouse made a perfect three-point dive, then swam rapidly to the edge of the pail, looped the loop to the floor, ran under the chair where the frightened housewife was huddled, almost sending her into hysterics, then vanished through the open kitchen door to safety in the back-yard.

The valiant hunter was given very definite instructions that in future he could forget all about his "bring 'em back alive" ideas, and if mice are to be caught, the common mouse-trap will do nicely.—McG.

Pop Corn Vendor's Family Is In Centre Of Troubled Area

Hitler is mad for power but it will be the beginning of the end for him if war breaks out between the Germans and the Czechs, Simon Kubinec, pop corn vendor and native Czech stated this morning.

The Czechs and the Slovaks get along fine together since the two were joined as one country after the war, and if Hitler invades every man in the country will fight to the end. The Czechs are not the kind of people who will throw up their hands just because Hitler gives the order, he added.

Kubinec came to Canada first in 1926, went home in 1929 and returned in 1930. Since that time he has been a familiar figure during the summer months on the city streets with his little pop corn wagon and friendly smile. He is a tall, stout man and typical of the country from whence he came.

Return If War Declared

"I like peace but in Europe everybody wants to fight, that's one reason why I came to Canada. If Hitler invades my country I would not hesitate to go back and fight for the Czechs," he stated.

His wife and 12 year old son and his 76 year old mother live in the troubled country, two hours walk from the Austrian border and so close that the factory whistles in the latter place may be heard. Every month he sends his family money, and when winter comes he obtains employment in the wood camps and sends back much more money then.

"I hope the trouble between the two countries can be settled without war, because if war comes the women and the children they will be bombed and slaughtered. It is always that way in Europe when there is war," the man said.

"My wife and child would be in the midst of it in a short time. I can't bring her to Canada because one must have $500 in the bank and a steady job. Selling the pop corn helps keep us alive but it is not enough, still times will change and then we will all be together."

No Doubts About Outcome

Kubinec has not doubts whatever on the outcome of a war between Hitler and the Czechs, because he is convinced that the Yugo-Slavs, the Rumanians, the French and the Russians would immediately take sides with his native countrymen and put an end to Hitler's ambitions.

He said that although Poland is friendly to Germany there is seven million Ukrainians in Poland who still regard Russia as their homeland and would immediately take up arms against Poland.

Those are the opinions of this stranger in a friendly country which he expressed on the street this morning as a reporter stopped to question him about the European crisis. Every day he scans the bulletin boards in the Examiner window seeking the news from Czechoslovakia, hoping against hope that war has been staved off and that his family is safe, and on through the months, he sticks at his routine, pop corn in the summer, wood cutting in the winter, trying to get enough money together so that his family may live in a country where there is peace.

Dummer Farmer Leaves Hospital

Apparently completely recovered, Edwin Moore, Dummer Township farmer who contracted sleeping sickness a few weeks ago, left St. Joseph's Hospital last night. Dr. J. C. Smith, of Lakefield, who made medical history by treating his patient with synthetic vitamin B.1., is continuing treatments for another month or so, but expects his patient will have no ill-effects from his ailment and that it will be a case of complete recovery.

TABLES TURNED

Peterborough citizens are turning the tables on Peterborough reporters these days. With interest in the European situation at highest pitch, all reporters' contacts — on whom they depend for many stories—are beating their friends to the gun with the question, "What's news today?"

TWO LUNGE IN TWO DAYS.

17 year old George Willshaw of Sophia street caught his first muskie of the season on Saturday afternoon when he captured a 10½ pounder and made it two in a row on Sunday when he hooked another weighing 13 pounds even. Both were taken from the Little Lake and on both occasions the boy was casting with a pikie minnow made by Williams.

Supreme Court Is Opened At Court House

One case of manslaughter and two of criminal negligence are set down for hearing at the Fall sitting of the Supreme Court of Ontario before Mr. Justice Urquhart here today and started in the court house at one o'clock. Crown Attorney N. J. McElderry, K. C. is crown prosecutor.

F. D. Kerr, K. C. in absence of president of the Peterborough Law Society and in his capacity as senior member of the Bar extended a warm welcome to Mr. Justice Urquhart on his first visit to the city as a judge. He referred t the wide experience of Judge Urquhart, as a commercial lawyer, as a Crown Attorney and he also remarked on his fine record as a soldier. "We should desire that your arduous duties may be accompanied by a robust health, and we tender you a warm welcome."

"I have always had a warm affection for Peterborough and the Stoney Lake district said Judge Urquhart in reply. I appreciate very must the words of Mr. Kerr who has always been a good friend." I regret that there are three criminal cases but the list is not heavy. In my last four assizes I have been presented with white gloves and I was hoping in this Midland County there would be no such cases."

Charge Jury.

In charging the Grand Jury, Justice Urquhart said there were two cases of criminal negligence and one of manslaughter. He defined manslaughter as unintentional but unlawful killing of another person. Jurors are inclined to shy away from these cases because of the harsh sound of the word, he said, and added that charges of manslaughter vary to a great degree to from somewhat trivial manslaughter to near murder and he cited illustrations.

Criminal negligence is where by careless operation of motor vehicle some person is grievously injured by the vehicle. There must be a disregard for life and limb of others to constitute criminal negligence.

Study Evidence.

The Grand Jury must study the evidence to determine if it warrants sending the accused person to trial. It is up to you to see if the Crown has a reasonable case against him.

If there is a case it is your duty to send the man before a petit jury for trial. You are allowed to examine all witnesses whose names appear on the indictment. No witnesses whose names are on the indictment may be examined by you without my written permission. You need not examine all witnesses, unless a "no bill" decision is reached. In that event all witnesses must have been examined. Only seven need agree, unanimity is not necessary. It is an important matter that all cases be fairly and fully considered. You can rely on the person getting a fair trial if a true bill is brought in. You are not trying the case, long heated arguments are not necessary, you hear only one side, you do not hear the defence, like the petit jury does.

"You must examine the jail and courthouse, see that the prisoners are comparatively comfortable, have good sanitation and good food. I am not crusading to make the jail a bed of roses but we must remember that men are often kept there while awaiting trial.

"Your courthouse is one of the most beautiful that I have even been in, and the accommodation for the judge is excellent. You must also inspect all other public buildings as required by law."

The personnel of the grand jury is as follows:

Douglas Carlisle (foreman), Walter Garbutt, Frank Jobbitt, H. Keefer, Cyril Lech, Robert Leeming, A. Meeks, Ernest Mitchell, B. Moore, Gordon Savigny, W. Stockdale, G. Taylor, Joseph Taylor.

FREAK POTATO.

E. J. Waterman, of 519 Romaine street, brought to the Examiner office a White Star potato which was at least an ambitious affair. This potato had gone in for multiple formation and had succeeded in producing four good sized tubers all joined togethear. Mr. Waterman said he had now and then found potatoes where they were grown together, but this was the first time any of his hills had produced a quartette.

YOUTHS HOLD CONFERENCE

An International Youth Hostel Conference was held recently in Lucerne and Baden bei Zurich, in Switzerland.

By an Examiner Reporter.

CASE ADJOURNED

A charge against Joseph O'Toole of driving an automobile while his driving licence was suspended was adjourned for a week when called before Magistrate Langley in police court this morning.

RETURNS TO CITY

Harold Robson, former Examiner reporter whose restless feet carried him across the ocean to England, returned to Peterborough over the week-end. He will represent a Toronto evening paper in this district.

COMMITTEE MEETINGS

City Clerk Armstrong reported today that meetings of committees of the Council are slated for this week —finance, board of works, and fire, water and light on Wednesday night; and manufacturers, property and parks on Thursday night.

R.C.A.F. PILOT

Pilot of a large seaplane that landed on Lake Chemong on Sunday was Corporal J. J. Cotter, of the Royal Canadian Air Force at Trenton. He paid a short visit to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mann and Mr. Garbutt Mann.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE

The four youths who pleaded guilty on Saturday to the attempted theft of gasoline from a car outside the lacrosse bowl Friday night, were allowed to go on suspended sentence this morning. The four mothers were present to go on the boys' bonds.

MILITARY STYLES.

Even children's clothes are taking on a military aspect. Today in some of the departmental stores, Royal Canadian Mounted Policemen's uniforms are the rage. In others are suits with chevrons on the sleeves, Sam Brown belts, even pistols in leather holders strapped at the waist.

THREE DELEGATES

Chief Constable Newhall, Sergt. Detective Wm. Meagher and Constable Gordon Puffer will be the delegates from the local department at the annual convention of the Police Association of Ontario in Toronto on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. Constable Puffer is a member of the executive of the association.

HALTS AT WOLFE ST.

The Board of Works' improvement of Stewart street, including the rounding of corners and laying of curb gutters, to be followed with a retread surface, will not be carried south of Wolfe street. Between Wolfe and Townsend street the subsoil is mainly of black muck and is not solid enough for permanent road work.

FACES ARE LONGER

Investors with long faces crowded Peterborough's brokers' offices all day today as the market swooped lower and lower in face of alarming war news from Europe. Every seat was taken in Biggar and Crawford's and standing room was at a premium most of the day. As the English market closed right on the bottom of the day's trading, faces grew even longer.

A NARROW ESCAPE

Only a couple of days intervened between a local man and a second offender charge under the Liquor Control Act, Chief Newhall told the magistrate this morning when the individual in question was charged with being drunk. It was just a couple of days over a year since he was similarly charged, the Chief Constable said. The man was fined $10 and costs, the latter amounting to $4.50.

PANS WINCHELL

Listeners to Walter Winchell Sunday night must have wondered what the Canadian branch of his sponsors thought of his anti-British opinions. One listener remarked this morning that the fast-talking New York columnist by his remarks on the British attitude towards the present crisis in Central Europe left a bad taste in the mouths of many Canadian listeners. A leading Jewish citizen made the statement that Winchell ought to be ashamed of himself.

"REALITY" WAS SUBJECT.

"Reality" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon for the First Church of Christ Scientist, Peterborough, on Sunday. The Golden Text was, "Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever; the sceptre of thy kingdom is a right sceptre." (Psalms 45:6). Selections from the Bible included the following from Isaiah 45:5, "I am the Lord, and there is none else, there is no God beside me; I girded thee, though thou hast not known me." Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, "The three great verities of Spirit, omnipotence, omnipresence, omniscience, Spirit possessin all power, filling all space, constituting all Science, contradict forever the belief that matter can be actual. These eternal verities reveal primeval existence as that radiant reality of God's creation, in which all that He has made is pronounced by His wisdom good."

Selling Charge Follows Raid On Nussey Home

As a result of a police raid Sunday evening by Constables W. A. Clark, John Rogers and Percy Sexsmith, Arnold Nussey, 82 McDonnel street found himself arraigned before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court this morning, charged with the illegal sale of liquor.

The swoop by police followed the arrest of two men by Constables Leo Murphy and Clair McGillen Saturday afternoon in the neighborhood of the Nussey residence.

This morning the police court was adorned with cases of beer and a number of empty liquor bottles that will probably bob up later as exhibits in the case.

Nussey, defended by W. J. Arthur Fair, pleaded not guilty to the charge and Crown Attorney McElderry, asked for a week's remand, bail being fixed at $600.

Roy Courneya, charged with illegal possession of liquor in connection with the same case also pleaded not guilty and his case was adjourned until Monday next.

Permitting Drunkenness

Constables W. A. Clark and John Rogers paid an unexpected visit Sunday afternoon to 139 Sherbrooke street and as a consequence of the police dropping in, Enos Meyette, tenant of the place, was charged before Magistrate O. A. Langley K.C. with permitting drunkenness on his premises.

Meyette pleaded not guilty and at the request of the crown the case was adjourned for a week.

Chief Newhall declared that the accused had been giving the autohrities trouble for some time but Meyette protested that such was not the case.

"You were here only six months ago", Chief Newhall retorted.

Stole Bicycle

Stating that he had been out of work for some time and after getting a job he had committed the theft in order to have a means to get to his work a 21-year-old youth pleaded guilty before Magistrate Langley of stealing a bicycle last June.

"If everybody who was out of work started stealing the courts would not be able to keep up with the cases" remarked Magistrate Langley.

Chief Newhall stated the young man had never been in trouble before and that he was the son of a widow who was dependent upon him for support.

"Under the circumstances, I think suspended sentence would be the best way to deal with the case," said the Chief Constable, adding that the accused once had a bicycle of his own but it had disappeared.

"Possibly it was stolen too" remarked the Magistrate. "Suspended sentences will not cure bicycle stealing."

"I know it is on the increase," Chief Newhall agreed, "but I am satisfied this boy has not been involved in that kind of thing before?"

The case was adjourned until Tuesday with the understanding that if the youth's mother appears then to go his bond, sentence will be suspended.

George Filion Will Be 100 Years Old In February

In 1840, three years after Queen Victoria ascended the British throne, George Filion was born in the little French Settlement of Baie St. Paul near Montreal and today he is still happy and healthy and spending his declining years at the House of Providence in this city. He will be one hundred years old next February.

Just as Queen Victoria's reign, comparatively speaking was a peaceful one, so was Filion's life free from trouble and the genial old man now with a twinkle in his eye intends this resulted from the fact that he remained a bachelor. "I never married because I was afraid of women. They made too much noise and never ceased talking," he said. Looking back down the years he believes now that perhaps if he had his life to live over again, he might have taken a wife, provided he was certain she could cook like a master chef, because he dearly loves his meals.

Eats Well

"Do you think a man should and immediately came the reply. "Just ask the Sisters, there is nothing left on my tray except the dishes when I am finished."

"Dou you think a man should beat his wife," asked the reporter. "Sure, sure, he could give her a clout now and then if she needed it," was the astounding answer from this friendly old fellow who had just admitted he was afraid of the weaker sex.

One of a family of nine children, seven boys and two girls, George began life on a farm at a time when Quebec was the centre of activity in Canada. At 17 he left home, determined to make his own way and obtained work in the woods. Later he worked at railroad building, then wandered down into the Maritimes and spent a few years at Halifax on construction work, and a year in Boston, Massachusetts making brick.

About seventy years ago he went to Haliburton and the northern part of Peterborough County to work in the shanty and lead the carefree life of a lumberjack and river driver.

GEORGE FILION

Operate Saw at Red Mill

Half a century ago he was a saw operator at the Red Mill at Nassau working from daylight until dark in the huge mill that turned out thousands of feet of lumber and square timbers. At one time he travelled on a raft of white pine square timbers from Buckhorn to Montreal steering the huge raft through the fast flowing chain of waters to Lake Ontario, where he hooked up to a boat and was towed down Lake Ontario and the Saint Lawrence to the thriving metropolis of Montreal. From that point the timbers were loaded on an ocean going boat and shipped to the Old Country.

About forty years ago he came to Lindsay and obtained work as caretaker of the church and school working for the late Monseignor Laurent. In recent years he worked for Monseignor McCall, formerly of this city. Three years ago he fell and fractured his hip bone and the doctors feared his course of life had run itself out. Old George surprised everyone by making a complete recovery and today is as fit as he was prior to the accident.

Has Birth Certificate

He is chubby, healthy looking and good humored and the Sisters at the House of Providence say he is no trouble at all, but obeys every order and never gets out of sorts. He certainly does not look his age but his birth certificate proves beyond doubt he is the oldest man in Peterborough County.

His formula for longevity is a contradiction of almost every established rule. George says one must work hard, that hard work helps rather than impairs one's health, but he adds he never kept regular hours and that he went to bed when he pleased and always get up early. He smoked all his life and took a drink of liquor whenever he could get it, and is confident that neither of these two habits had any ill effects.

He is a little hard of hearing now and his eye sight is failing rapidly but he retains his good humour and almost every day he may be seen sitting out on the south balcony with his rosary entwined in his fingers reciting his prayers. His mind is clear and his answers quite intelligent but he slips a little in the matter of recalling dates and the passing of the years seems to confuse him a little. Fifty years ago is but a few years back according to his recollections.

National League Pilots Jubilant As Flood Of Players Sets Record Of Reserves

TORONTO, Sept. 26 (C.P.). — Managers of National Hockey League clubs took steps to-day to pick the select players from a big group of reserves. The leftovers will crowd the minor leagues.

"There never were so many good players looking for work," Carson Cooper, chief scout of Detroit Red Wings, remarked.

Caused chiefly by the break-up of Montreal Maroons, the situation has been furthered by the number of young players entering the scene from N.H.L. schools. Right now Montreal Canadiens, New York Rangers, and Boston Bruins have more players than they know what to do with.

There was lack of the usual training action on Saturday at the Nation League's semi-annual meeting here. Manager Cecil Hart of the Canadiens didn't come for the sessions, while Lester Patrick of the Rangers and Art Ross of the Bruins said they were satisfied with present prospects. In recent weeks the Rangers have obtained waivers on five players, four of them from their farm club at Philadelphia.

What bartering there was resulted for the most part, in promises to minor league managers who sought reserve players. The N.H.L. took up some of the slack by ruling that a team may dress 15 players exclusive of goalies, rather than 14, for a single game.

Dutton Keeps Wiseman.

A major deal reported to have been on the fire apparently was blocked by the success of Manager Mervyn (Red) Dutton, manager of the New York Americans in holding Eddie Wiseman. The little American right wingman was said to be a main part of a projected three-way deal which would have involved Charlie Conacher of Toronto Maple Leafs and a Detroit defenceman.

Wiseman was said to have been wanted by the Leafs, who would have sent Conacher to Detroit. The Americans would have got a Detroit defenceman.

But Dutton was the least interested of the three managers involved. When the reported deal collapsed, it became known that Toronto might get a Detroit defenceman in a deal that would send Conacher to Detroit.

Waivers were asked on several players left over from the disbanded Montreal Maroon club, which has suspended operations for a year. Gus Marker and Allan Shields were not among those waived on, however, and it was believed likely the Maroon management had N.H.L. jobs in view for them.

Chief business of the meeting proper was the decision to run the league on a single-group basis this winter. Six of the seven teams will enter playoffs for the Stanley Cup, although the leading club will be declared National League champion and winner of the Prince of Wales Cup.

The league decided to designate one of two officials handling a game as referee, the other as linesman. The referee will call penalties, rule on disputed goals and be in charge of the game generally. The linesman will call offsides and offences of "icing" the puck.

Recommendations of the Rules Committee were adopted in full, the principal one stipulating offsides shall be determined by the position of a player's skates, and not that of his body.

A player taking a penalty shot will be allowed to cross the penalty line after shooting.

Seaweed is being gathered in Sakhalin to be sent to China as food.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 (A.P.). — You needn't pity the poor six-day bike riders....For instance, Torchy and Doug Peden, the Canadian riding stars from Victoria, B.C., clean up more than $30,000 a year between them....When you recall that there are not more than 15 races a year, you can see what kind of potatoes that is.

The cereal company's poll showed Charlie Gehringer was the most popular of all players selected for the all-star team....It's been three days now since we've had a new candidate for the job of managing the Brooklyn Dodgers....Francis Wallace, the football expert, says Stebbins of Pitt will be an even greater player this year than his all-America teammate, Marshall Goldberg.

Vic Turrou, one of George Washington's crack backfield prospects, is a son of Leon Turrou, the former "G" man who was prominent in rounding up German spies....Jack Doyle will quote you 13 to 5 against the Pirates and only 1 to 3 against the Yanks.

A few days ago we had a squib about an Iowa College team going to play the State's Prison team at football, which reminded a reader of the time a couple of years ago when an Ottumwa, Ia., semi-pro baseball club played the "Tripes."....One of the Ottumwa players slammed the pill over the prison wall and every guy on the prison team (as well as the spectators) yelled: "Let me go get it."....Needless to say, the warden said nothing doing.

Connie Mack never goes near the Athletic dugout in Philly until five minutes before the game starts, and Pie Traynor doesn't show on the Pirate bench until just before hostilities open....It's just an old superstition, boys.

Bombers, Bronks Grab Wins On Weekend

WINNIPEG, Sept. 26 — (CP). — Monday morning quarterbacks got their heads together again to-day and, after surveying Saturday's games in the Western Interprovincial Football Union, are convinced that, like the World Series winners, the Western champions will be the club with the best "pitchers."

They were referring to the boys who toss forward passes..

Reference was directed particularly at Calgary Bronks' narrow 5-2 win over Edmonton Eskimos and Winnipeg Blue Mombers' surprising 17-10 conquest of Regina Roughriders. In another Saturday engagement University of British Columbia defeated Knights of Columbus 8-3 in the Vancouver Big Four opener.

Bombers took to the air in handing Dean Griffing's Reginans their first setback of the season and along with some tricky thinking by Quarterback Art Stevenson, the air spelled the difference between victory and defeat.

Stevenson, calling for a forward pass on third down late in the first half, pulled one of the master moves of the year. Art rifled a 49-yard touchdown pass to end Jeff Nicklin, and the shot, coming from a fake kick formation which caught Regina entirely unawares, was the turning point of the game.

At Edmonton Calgary Bronks unfolded a fourth quarter passing attack that netted 39 yards on two plays and set the stage for a tie-breaking rouge when Keith Gibson brought down Harold Sutton behind the goal line.

After three scoreless quarters Rorvig kicked a field goal, but Sutton nullified the kick by scoring a 16-yard field goal. Rorvig added a kick to the deadline to Gibson's rouge to sew up the game.

Meet Winners Of South On Saturday

(Examiner Correspondence.)

KEENE, Sept. 26.—Keene journeyed to Collingwood Saturday to take the second game of the O.S.A. semi-finals 16 to 5 and advance to the finals in the Intermediate "C" playdowns. Keene now meet the winner of the Humberstone and Merlin series in Southern Ontario on Saturday, October 1st.

Keene played smart ball all the way and earned the verdict handily although good infielding and smart outfielding featured on both sides. Ibey and Whale were especially good for Keene while Fletcher and Wood also starred. Caesar at second and Butters and Oliver in the outfield played heads-up ball for Collingwood.

Keene opened with two in the first. They added four more in the second on three walks and four hits. They picked up one in fourth and went to town in the sixth to hammer out five hits with three walks and an error for seven runs. Whalen came through with a smashing homer to left with two on to crack the ball game wide open. They finished the scoring with two in the eighth on a walk, an error, a double and an outfield fly. Collingwood got one in the second and two in the seventh and eighth to make their total of five.

For Keene Whalen, Ibey, Hahn and D. McCarthy were the big hitters. Whalen with a homer and Hahn and D. McCarthy with two doubles each.

For Collingwood Kirby with three led the batters, while Caesar, Goodchild and Oliver had two each.

Don McCarthy on the mound for Keene kept Collingwoods ten hits well scattered in a good performance as he struck out seven. He was wild toward the end.

Dunne started for Collingwood and had difficulty finding the plate. He was blasted from the box in the sixth and Goodchild finished up in fine style.

Whitaker's Win Toronto Match

On Saturday Whitaker's played their postponed match against the Scarboro C.C. in Toronto — their last scheduled match. Following their successive wins over Kentish-Eglinton and Peterborough they made it four in a row by beating Scarboro in a low-scoring game by 51 to 32.

Scarboro batted first and were soon out against good bowling by Wild and Hamilton, the former being in great form, taking 7 wickets for 17 runs while Hamilton had 3 for 13. Slater stayed in a long while for 9. Fielding was featured by two good catches in the long field by B. Roberts. On Whitaker's going to bat they found runs hard to get and 7 wickets were down for 29. At that point Bailey joined Smith, who had gone in first and the pair won the match and took the total to 42, at which point Smith was out for a five innings of 21 which was mainly responsible for the win. Some good bowling by J. Wilton produced 8 wickets for 11 runs and the total reached 51. This concludes the local cricket season of which results and averages will be available later.

Cricket Notes

The Peterborough Club were again disappointed at the last moment by Oshawa's default on the match which should have been played in Oshawa on Saturday. A telephone message to Oshawa on Thursday evening produced a reply at noon on Friday that they could not get up a team, and both clubs have now completed their schedule.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

NO BLAME can be attached to the manager of the Petes' ball club in not using Gunner Whitehill and Joe Jakafby more during the season. On account of the team had a skimpy schedule and then the playoffs, whereas they had four twirlers. Now, no one can say Russ Kitchen and Lefty McNally aren't good senior hurlers, and they had to have enough mound work to keep them in shape. Hence, they were used frequently, and the other two sparingly. Yet, Whitehill and Jakafby are good enough pitchers to get by in any man's league — and they showed their ability when given a chance in playoffs. The Gunner against Oshawa, and Joe here last Saturday. It was just unfortunate that the local club was top-heavy with twirlers this season, that is, unfortunate for Jakafby and Whitehill.

* * * * * *

IN HIS PRE-GAME WARM-UP Saturday, Joe looked great and Eddie Starr, who was catching him, remarked it. So Joe was sent in against the Falls. What did he do? Well, he eliminated the cocky Niagara gang from further O.B.A. competition with a fine four-hit flinging performance, not walking a man as he struck out nine! He also batted in a run, having two sacrifices. He was applauded all through the tilt, and deserved it. We drove home from the Falls last Wednesday night with Jakafby, and he remarked in his quiet way to us—as he piloted the car through a blinding rainstorm—"I'd like to pitch against that team Saturday; I think my curve would stop them." He did and it did. Joe curved 'em to death. He was something of a forgotten flinger on the Petes' staff, and we are quite tickled he got his big chance Saturday and that he made the most of it.

* * * * * *

A Bucket Of Whitewash

IT WAS a nice ball game, that 3-0 contest. The Petes deserved it and looked superior all the way. Their errors didn't prove costly and they hit in timely style. And played smart ball. The Big Roar boys didn't appear as good as in the first fray, committing a lot of errors of omission and having a weak spot in left field. They didn't help their speedball twirler much, several hits off him being decidedly scratchy. At this writing, we dunno who the Petes will meet next—maybe Toronto in the Ontario semi-finals. The locals would welcome the Toronto series, as they feel they can lick any club now and they want no more long layoffs.

* * * * * *

MANAGER EDDIE MURPHY was the big gun for the gang Saturday. He blasted out two doubles and a single. Les Burton and Chuck Kearns came through with two singles each, and Bob Doll got a two-bagger. Aside from a few bad pegs to first, the players turned in a swell showing. Infield was kept pretty busy as only one fly went to the outfield all afternoon. If the boys keep on hustling and playing heads-up ball like this, getting good pitching and hits in the clutches, they should waltz through to a title this year. They have a good club and this is their big chance now.

* * * * * *

Revenge For That Puck Series

SOME OF THE REDHOT FANS here picked up a few shekels on this game. They were betting even money, or offering three-to-two on the Petes, with several Falls' followers peeling a few leafs off the roll to cover it. Manager Mickey Paige of the losers didn't like the elimination in two straight a bit. With two pro puckists and two imported hurlers, he felt his club would jog through all Provincial competition. He kept growling to his players: "Go on out there and paste that pitcher; he's got nothing but a dinky curve and he can't throw it all afternoon." But Joe did just that, and he can keep chucking that little bender in there from sunrise to sunset with his powerful physique. Niagara Falls may be honeymoon centre, but the ballsters from that burg don't appreciate curves, at all at all!

QUITE A CROWD from here will motor up No. 7 this evening to Lindsay to witness the deciding O.L.A. senior "B" game in the serial between Brooklin and the Petes. Each has won a number and the loser tonight is through for this year, so they'll be playing for keeps in the Scugog arena. Game starts at 8.30, the O.L.A. insisting that the deciding scrap be staged on neutral grounds. This is a break for the Lindsay fans, as these clubs are sure to put on a rip-snortin' struggle with no holds barred. On their showing here Friday, the squad coached by Frank Randle should blast the Brooklins out of the playoff picture and qualify for group finals. We hope.

Percy Bond Gets Around

PERCY BOND of Peterborough, past president of the O.H.A., is having quite a season of it following the hayburners around. We saw an item in last Friday's Journal of Columbus, Ohio, concerning a race at Beulah where Hamburger Jim won a close one. The item added: "J. P. Bond made the presentation of a silver cocktail set, donated by the Bismark Grill, to J. J. Brunnage, Brement, O., owner and trainer of Hamburger Jim. During his presenting talk, Mr. Bond lauded the horse as one of the most popular horses ever to race at Beulah Park." Zasu Pitts, movie actress, was to present the trophy to the owner of the winner at the next day's races at this track.

ORFUNS AND P.C.I. gridders will practice hard all week, the latter opening their school schedule in Lindsay next week-end and Orfuns maybe lining up an exhibition fray Saturday with Belleville—efforts with Trenton having failed. Senior O.R.F.U. teams won their games Saturday when Balmy Beach beat the champion Argos by a 7-2 score in Toronto, Sarnia Imps took a 13-9 triumph over Rough Riders in Ottawa, and Nationals did a 5-0 job on Queen's in Montreal. Looks good for the O.R.F.U. group, and means the Orfuns will have to be tough when the schedule opens. While the import deadline date is over, the locals have still a big territory to draw from and they may add a few more stars yet, who knows?

Get Into Good Physical Shape Before Starting To Practice

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of articles by Lew Hayman that will tell you all you have to know to play a game of football.

(Copyright, 1938, Central Press Canadian.)

Football, boys, is a strenuous game, so don't go into it without first building up your stamina and endurance.

Lew Hayman

Before the actual training starts engage in enough physical activity so as to get into reasonably good condition. Otherwise the strain of the strenuous work to follow may be too great and you will be prey to unwarranted injuries.

Specialty men—such as passers, kickers and runners—work on your individual duties. Perfect your style. At the same time you will be exercising those muscles that will be used most frequently as the season progresses. You men whose duties are mostly co-operative, concentrate on developing your wind and legs. Walking, running, playing tennis and baseball, all help to do this, and in addition, tend to produce fast starting, quick reaction and good co-ordination.

How to Go About It

Now lets go into your initial organized practice. For the next 10 or 12 days here are the things we will concentrate on, and with them I am listing the ways you can go about mastering these fundamentals.

1. To build up your wind and endurance: (a) Go down under kicks; (b) backs, linemen and outsides alternately take turns on short sprints; (c) outsides and backs run and receive passes from each other; (d) linemen go into a short three-yard charging drill, moving from goal post to goal post.

2. To perfect you cor-ordination: (a) Go into a three-man lateral passing drill; (b) catch kicks; (c) perform special exercises, using both hands and feet.

3. To harden your muscles: (a) Practice falling on the ball; (b) do plenty of tackling either a dummy or your teammates; (c) practice blocking. At first merely try stationary ones, later running ones; (d) do calisthencis requiring you to hit the ground...using your stomach particularly.

Go over and over the things I've just mentioned and then you'll be right in shape for actual football.

No chain is stronger than its weakest link, therefore we must concentrate on individual play before we begin to think in terms of the team. Each man must be able to do certain fundamental manoeuvres. His asignments during the game will be to carry out these manoeuvres and the success of the entire team's play will rest on how well each individual does his job.

I sincerely contend, and will probably repeat it many times in the articles to follow, that effective execution of football fundamentals will beat any team that has the plays but not the ground work.

After working on you one at a time, I am going to work you in pairs. This will probably take a week or so an dthen, when I believe you understand and can execute everything in theory fairly well, I will group you into the lines and backfield. Here we learn to function together, as one unit, as a team, NOT as individuals.

Early in the third week we will have unit scrimmages and in the latter part of the week a team scrimmage. Emphasis in these drills will be placed on timing and co-ordination. Intensity and speed will come later. I believe in two or three scrimmages a week until the first game, after which one a week should suffice.

Once the season is under way we will divide our practice somewhat like this:

Monday

Discuss last Saturday's game, pointing out errors and making corrections. Loosen up a bit with a few running drills and wind up by talking over the next game to be played.

Tuesday

A new play or two will be introduced and we will brush up on our blocking, tackling and running. A short signal drill will end the practice.

Wednesday

Today we scrimmage, using any new plays we may have. We must stress the defence to be used against our opponents in next Saturday's game.

Thursday

We stress our passing plays, kick formations and indivdual assignments.

Friday

Short signal drill...a few kick-off line-ups. . . then into the showers you go. The mental attitude of the players is important the day before a game. The urge, desire and will to win should be uppermost in everybody's mind.

Saturday

We'll assume the game is to be played Saturday. Keep off your feet as much as possible before game time. Rest, but do not sleep. Stay away from friends, relatives and any worshippers you may have. Eat at least three hours before the game starts. Get in the dressing room early so you can dress easily and be taped effectively. Loosen up your joints well before the opening whistle. From then on...good luck!

TOMORROW: We go into a huddle with our quarterback on generalship.

Critics Acclaim Regina Roughriders Greatest Team In Western Canada

Team Unscored On In Three Games So Far This Season

By Andy McDermott

(Central Press Canadian Correspondent)

REGINA, Sask., Sept. 26.—Sports fans throughout Canada have been hearing every year about the great rugby teams in the west, especially the Roughrider squads from the capital city of Saskatchewan. Probably by now they look a bit askance when another such story turns up.

But this is one time when the greatest of all the greats has been created on the bald prairie—the 1938 edition of the Regina Roughriders. The writer goes on record as saying that Regina has THE best team in Canada. It's a large order, and the scoffers in the east will probably mutter another "tch! tch!" and put it down to the unusual weather, or something.

This is one time when your correspondent feels he has the unanimous opinion of all western writers and ball followers, so he doesn't mind going a bit Hollywood. No fooling, this Regina outfit is stupendous and collosal!

Roughriders have always been known for their strong line. It generally stood up under any barrage. But the backfield was always a question mark. No punters, no pasers, no great line plungers in the superlative sense. Something has to be done about it and it looks like the doing was done this year. In Howard "Highpockets" Cleveland, specially imported from Kansas by ex-native Dean Griffing, playing coach of the "Ruffies," Regina has the finest all-round backfielder the west has yet seen, and in Leo Danaher, brought to town from St. Benedict college, Kansas, the greatest charging, plunging half in the western conference.

On top of that Regina has Jim Farasey a fleet, shifty ball carrier from Xavier college, Cincinnati; Jim Landers, interference runner and ball passer, who came up from Kansas two years ago, and a flock of homebrew stars to give them the best backfield in the club's history.

The western conference is already three games old and the Roughriders have never had a point scored on them, winning all three games to sit on top step of the western throne. And this year the Calgary Bronks and the Winnipeg Blue Bombers are rated the best teams those towns have turned out. Edmonton Eskimos, the new entry, were not expected to cut much of a figure this year and so far have been beaten by everyone.

So if there is an east-west final again—and last year's remarks indicated there might not be—although Roughriders will, if they win out, try to promote one just to return with extras the many lacings of other years. If there is one, Mr. Fan is going to see something for his sawbucks when the red and black jerseys take the field.

Regina paid dearly for her win over Winnipeg in their first meeting at the Manitoba capital when Dean Griffing, power-charging centre man and playing coach of the Riders, was injured and must sit on the sidelines for a month or more. However, Ted Lydiard, a Moose Jaw and Regina junior with considerable experience with the Roughriders, stepped into the breach and is expected to keep the line watertight. Coach Griffing did not miss any practices after the Winnipeg game, but arrived back on the job in a wheel chair.

Importers De Luxe

All in all, Regina now has 10 American players on the roster, counting five who arrived this year. Regina started this importing business in the west years ago and has kept it up since. It payed dividends in changing the style of play so that any western conference game is a crowd-pleaser from start to finish. All attendance records were broken for the Winnipeg-Regina football again, this time as bench coach.

Besides Danaher, Cleveland and Farasey, Regina this year gained Johnny O'Keefe for the line from Kansas and 220-pound Alec Shellogg from Notre Dame and Tulane varsities. Shellogg has been a standout on the line, especially in guessing and smearing plays.

Norm Nicklin arrived in Regina from Seattle, but the local boys don't quite consider him an American, as he was born in Vancouver, although he learned his football in American schools. The other Regina imports, now with two five clash...and the west is chuckling over a press report that the Quebec union has adopted the western rules. "It won't be long now!" quothe Al Ritchie, who is back in years' service in the red and black jerseys, include Coach Griffing, Landers, Lloyd Connelly, end, from Minnesota university, and burly Bob Walker, from North Dakota who is known as "the man who came back." He broke his back two years ago, walked around with it in a cast for a year, and came back tougher than ever.

Regina also has on its line Larry Hegan, Johnny Garuik and Jack Thompson, who have been battering them back for 10 years and are still doing it, to the amazement of the wiseacres. Jim Partridge is superb on the end, along with Bill Brokovski and Norm Beattie, up from the junior ranks.

Strangely enough, it is Griffing's injury that gives Connelly his chance to play end with the Roughriders this year. He was on the sidelines because of the rule only seven Americans can play on any westen team at a time.

Stury Reserves

Regina's second string is topnotch for a change. Jack Edmundson, Dick Bell, a "mountie," who played with Ottawa Rough Riders; Frank Stein, Jack Weibe, and the two Jack Martins, one from the juniors and one from British rugby, are all surefire linemen. Lindsay Holt, up from the junior Dales, has already proved his mettle in the half line along with Bert Nelson, field goal expert from Winnipeg's Native Sons; Harry Guest, sensational junior running star and highest point gatherer in the west; Pete Hawryluk, Chris Protopappas and Paul Patrick, all exjuniors.

Regina's backfield, right now, almost looks like a two-man affair because of the stellar doings of Danaher and Cleveland. The latter is the finest punter the west has yet had and a welcome addition after years of seeing the east lead in that department of the game.

This is the Roughriders' year, they believe. Early in December we should know if it really is.

Undefeated and unscored on in three western conference games, Regina Roughriders are already drawing superlatives from the scribes, grandstand critics and Monday morning quarterbacks. Here are some of the reasons. At the TOP, playing coach Dean Griffing prepares to snap the ball out to his adjective-attracting backfield, LEFT to RIGHT, Jim Farasey, Leo Danaher, Bert Nelson, Jim Landers and Howard (Highpockets) Cleveland. BELOW, the coach is in again, this time centering part of his powerful front line, LEFT to RIGHT, Bob Walker, Johnny Garuik, the boss, Larry Hegan and Jack Thompson.

PETES WHITEWASH NIAGARA FALLS 3-0 TO CAPTURE THE SERIES

Jakafby Hurls 4-Hit Ball In Fine Slab Performance To Earn O.B.A. Decision

Niagara Falls cascaded into O.B.A. oblivion here Saturday as the Petes won the second straight game of their playdown series by a 3-0 score before more than 1200 fans in Riverside Park. The Petes had taken the opener in the Cataract City by a 5-3 count, and now advance into the Ontario semi-finals.

Fine flinging by Joe Jakafby, who hurled four-hit ball, and some timely hitting by his teammates rubbed the Falls' crew out of the picture. The Petes looked the better club all the way, going good in the field—despite three errors which were not costly—and the visitors did not play the same brand of ball they showed in the first fixture. The homesters got a run in the third, another in the fourth and their last one in the sixth, always appearing like the winning team on the day's play. It was an excellent game for the local crowd.

Jakafby was something of a surprise choice on the home mound, but the big righthander hurled beautiful baseball. Giving four hits and no walks, he fanned nine and was complete master of the situation all through. He curved the Niagara batters to death, throwing hook after hook, and only three of his rivals got as far as second all afternoon, no one reaching third. Schoolboy Mussel on the other slab showed a lot of speed but couldn't get his sinker working till late in the game, fanning five in the last two heats. He was nicked for 10 hits, some of them scratchy, and one walk as he struck out nine. His support was not too good at times.

Murphy Leads

Manager Eddie Murphy led the locals at bat with two whistling doubles and a single in four times up. Burton and Kearns each got two hits, and Doll a double. None of the losers had more than one safety. There was plenty of snappy fielding shown, especially by the Petes' infield—the outfield having but one putout—but the only feature was a foul catch by Harrison of the Falls.

Jakafby fanned two and forced the other to pop up in the first frame as the Petes went back in order. The Falls didn't get a man to first in the next inning, and Murphy's double to right did no good for the local cause in their half. Stephenson was safe on an error in the third and was sacrificed but died on second. In the Petes' part, Cadd got to second when Hilleshein dropped his hard-hit fly to left centre. Cadd was sacrificed by Jakafby and raced home on a hit to left by Kearns. The latter got to second but was stranded there.

Only Threat

Niagara Falls threatened in the fourth when Hilleshine led off with a single through the box. Smith popped to the pitcher in an attempted sacrifice. Kaminsky forced Hilleshien at second, and he took second on a hit by Whitehead, but Quinlan grounded out. Doll doubled in the fourth for the home squad, took third on Calladine's sacrifice and scored on a single by Murphy. Burton also hit safely but no further scoring resulted. A hit by Hardison in the Falls' fifth was wasted, and Kearn's single and Doll's walk for the Petes came to naught.

After the visitors were downed one-two-three in the sixth, the Petes got their third run. Murphy led off with a double to left, taking third on a single by Burton and scoring on a squeeze play when Jakafby bunted to the pitcher—Joe then standing back to watch the play, and forgetting to run. Lister, batting for Hilleshein in the eighth got to second on a bad throw, but died there and an error let Whitehead on in the ninth but he got no further. Starr singled and Calladine got an infield hit in the seventh for the locals but they did not get around, and the Petes went out one-two-three on strikes in their last time at bat.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB. MARTIN

To the members of our club who, over the week-end, according to their custom, have been celebrating their New Year, may we extend to them "A Happy New Year"—but if this should not be the right way to express ourselves, we hope that they will understand that the sentiment is nevertheless well meant.

One week from to-night, Monday, October 3, the annual meeting of the men's section will be held in the club rooms at 8 o'clock. Keep the date in mind.

We understand that they had 12 mixed out on Saturday afternoon. Nice going.

And speaking about mixed rinks, we will hold another mixed tournament on Wednesday evening at 7.30—the draw from the board, fee 25c.

To-night will see the final game in the skips-vices competition. It will be played between G. Gimblett and K. Sloane. A number of games in both the club singles and novice singles will be played, and whether or not we finish the club doubles in time for the annual meeting, these other competitions must be finished this week. We hope that the boys who are still in these contests will please co-operate.

Dead in the Centre

Have you a backfielder around your home who shapes up as a good forward passer, but is a little off in his marksmanship. Well heres' the cure. Lou Little, coach at New York's Columbia University, rigged up this target and had his men toss the pigskin at it to sharpen up their throwing eye. Sid Luckman, whose name even made Canadian sport pages last year, is doing the throwing. Of all people to be practising!

Beaches Down Champ Argos By 7-0 While Underdog McGills Smother Montreal Cubs 14-3

By Sydney Gruson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

On the basis of performances in the first concerted intermingling of Eastern Canada's senior football forces, it appears likely that Toronto Balmy Beach and McGill Redmen will provide opposition of the stoutest character in the Senior Ontario and Intercollegiate Unions opening in two weeks.

Victories of Beaches and the Redmen proved the highlights of the week-end's exhibition games, in which nine of the section's 12 senior teams saw action. Only Hamilton Tigers, University of Toronto and Peterborough remained on the sidelines for the day.

Beaches received a superlative kicking performance from veteran Ab Box and defeated Toronto Argonauts, the national champions of 1937, 7-2 in the first game of a series for the Toronto city championship. McGill, underdogs of the college circut for several seasons, showed power on the ground and a versatile attack to smother Montreal Cubs of the Interprovincial Union, 14-3.

Imperials Step Out.

The perennial bulwarks of the O. R.F.U., Sarnia Imperials impressed with a 13-9 victory over Ottawa Rough Riders at Ottawa, while Montreal Nationals barely eked out a 5-0 triumph over Queen's University at Montreal. Bill Storen's galloping Mustangs from University of Western Ontario smothered Kingston's Royal Military College 38-0 at Kingston.

Beaches gave warning, in beating Argos' first start of the season, that they would challenge more seriously than ever Sarnia's bid for another league championship.

Smothering the Argo running attack with brilliant tackling, Beaches showed also flashes of passing and plunging offensives that shattered the Argo defences easily.

Box was the individual star, throwing seven completed passes for nearly 100 yards besides kicking six points. His punts ranged from 55 to 70 yards. Other outstanding Beachers on the day were Teddy Manorek, the former Hamilton Tiger who got off plunges of 40 and 35 yards, and a young running halfback, Shelley Lush.

Balmy will meet University of Toronto next Saturday for the City championship.

Dumping Counts

Given first-class kicking by Herbie Westman, something they have lacked for two seasons, McGill made use of terrific plunging by Andy Anton and Bob Kenny and accurate passing to roll over the Interprovincial Union Cubs with ease. Rarely in contention although leading 3-2 at halftime, Cubs got all their points from McGill fumbles. Once the Redmen got a sure grip on the ball, the Cubs didn't have a chance.

Imperials, in action for the first time since the death last Wednesday of Ormond Beach, their star halfback, were outplayed along the wingline, but they took advantage of every break and Hugh (Hummer) Stirling's fine kicking to offset the gains rolled up by Ottawa's ground tanks and Murray Griffin's forward passing.

Jimmy Shanks scored the only touchdown of the game for Sarnia, plunging over after an Imperial pass advanced them from the 17 to the one-yard line. Stirling and Tiny Herman each kicked two placements. Each was missed particularly on secdary defence.

Queen's go Defensive

Nationals and Queen's failed to show a concentrated offensive and deciding factor for the Montreal team's victory was Ray Mullins' kicking. The young halfback booted a placement and two singles in the third quarter and throughout kept the Collegians hemmed back. Typically tight defensive work marked Queen's play.

It was just a romp for Mustangs over the Intermediate Cadets from R. M. C. Clem Faust, the newest addition to the Mustang backfield, sparked the offensive that moved the yardsticks 20 times. He threw six passes all completed. Brian Casey raced 80 yards for one touchdown.

Brintons Win Duffus Cup From Electrics

The Brinton Athletic Soccer club added another trophy to its list, on Saturday afternoon, when it defeated the Canadian General in the final of the J. J. Duffus Injured Players' Cup by the score of 4 to 2.

After the tussle, the President of the Association presented the silverware to Captain Eric Jones of the Brinton team. While Ben McMaster complimented the winners on their fine play.

Keen Tactics Prevailed

Brinton won the toss and took advantage of the wind at their backs and the sun in their face. The first note of interest came on the extreme right of the C. G. E. where Keith broke through repeatedly to test Adams in goal, in fact, he made good use of the mis-kick by Asa Downer but Jones, at right full back, covered up the mistake quickly. Then the same performance occurred on the Brinton right wing where Downer worked two fruitless flag-kicks off the full backs. Clark, Brinton centre, rattled a hot drive against the upright. Within the next minute, the Brinton centre gathered up a loose ball to rattle it home into the rigging when the C.G.E. full backs misunderstood each others tactic. Thereafter the Electric did everything but score against Adams, in Brinton's goal. He gathered up a drop shot from McPhate from twenty yard range. The losers settled down more to their steady game but lacked their usual activity in the half-back division which resulted in the Brinton forwards getting too much soope around the goal. Brinton 1, Canadian General 0.

Brinton Dominated Play

On resuming, the winners broke into the cup style of play thereby compelling the Electrics to go on the defensive to offset the rushing method of Clark, at centre, who found pleasure in making use of the openings presented to him. On a break-away by George Downer into the corner-flag, he centred across the goal mouth where his pivot connected with an unsaveable drive that landed in below the cross-bar. Then C. G. E. reduced the lead through a penalty shot taken by Buchan against Eric Jones for handling inside the dreaded area. The Brintons immediately got that counter back when Richardson dribbled his way up the centre and then passed forward to his centre. Further scoring took place but the referee adjudged the goal offsides after consultation with the linesmen. Keith registered the Electric second counter after Adams' failed to clear. Just before the final whistle, Foster made the score read. Brinton Athletic 4, Canadian General 2.

Canadian General — J. Bolton, goal; W. MacKenzie and S. Murduff full backs; F. Earle, J. Buchan and T. McPhate halves; H. Keith, A. Ross, B. McMaster, J. Goodhue and W. Harris forwards. Sub—D. Whatman.

Brinton Athletic—H. Adams, goal; E. Jones and Asa Downer full backs; Art Downer, H. Castle and D. Leether halves; N. Downer, R. Richardson, S. Clark, T. Foster and G. Downer forwards.

Outlaws Win Town League Championship

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Sept. 26.—The Outlaws took the championship of the town softball league in three straight games when they wound up the playoffs with a 12 to 6 victory over Elgin in the third game Saturday evening. The Outlaws deserved their win as they have been playing good ball all through the playoffs.

Elgin opened the scoring in the first innings when G. Richardson, who had singled scored when R. Richardson was safe on an error. The Outlaws scored four times in their half of the first on four singles and Stickles' long triple. The Outlaws scored two more in the third on three bad errors by Elgin. Elgin got three back in the fourth when McKee, the Outlaws' pitcher, lost his control and walked three men that later scored on two singles.

Won In Fourth

The Outlaws put the game away in the last of the fourth with five more on three singles, a walk and doubles by Radford and Dit Clapper. Elgin completed their scoring in the sixth when they sent two across on a single, an error and R. Scott's double. The Outlaws scored the last run of the game in their half of the sixth when Stickles got his second triple of the game and scored when Puffer was safe on an error.

McKee, with the exception of the fourth innings pitched a bang-up game for the Outlaws. He allowed but eight hits while he fanned one and passed three batters. J. Richardson went the rout for Elgin and was touched for 12 hits. He had one strike out and issued but one free ticket to first.

Leading Hitters

Stickles, Outlaw third sacker, led the batters with two triples and a single in four times at bat. G. Richardson with three singles in four trips up was Elgin's heaviest clouter. The fielding feature of the game was the play that put the last Elgin men out. McKee took Grady's liner to double Richardson off first.

Giants and Reds Bow Out Of Race, Pirates 2 Up On Cubs 7 To Go; Greenberg Is Homerless Again

By Sid Feder
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

The Giants and Reds are out of the National League baseball race: Hank Greenbergs home run record chances are dying; the Yanks keep on looking more like chumps than champs, and old Sarge Gabby Street has his honorable discharge papers from the St. Louis Browns.

But all thats only incidental to the baseball picture because the Cubs and Pirates tangle tomorrow in the start of a three-game "sudden death" series—which will decide the National League pennant.

Even if the Cubs drop a decision to the Cardinals this afternoon, it won't make much difference. They'd still be only 2½ games back of Pittsburgh in that case, and they have to sweep the series to turn the trick anyway.

It looks as though Pie Traynor will have the pitching edge for the set. Pie only had to use Red Lucas to top the Reds 5-3 yesterday, while Gabby Hartnett led with one half of his pair of Chicago aces, Clay Bryant, in whipping the Cardinals 7-2. Thus, the Bucs will have their entire staff, headed by Jim Tobin, Bob Klinger, Cy Blanton and Russ Bauers, to work in that order, each with four or more days' rest.

Lee's Turn Today

But none of these elbowers shows a better than .500 average in the 10 wins the Bucs have scored over the Cubs in their 19 meetings to date. It's Bill Lee's turn to go against the Cards for the Cubs today, but Gabby may decide to hold him off to open against the Bucs. Lee has four wins over the Pirates this season without a loss. He's shut them out twice and has given them just 10 runs in 42 innings.

The race became a two-team affair yesterday when the Bucs bumped the Reds and Boston Bees nipped the Giants, 3-2 in 11 innings and 4-3 behind the five-hit elbowing of old Milt Shoffner. This made it mathematically impossible for either the Reds or the Giants to catch up and left the Pirates two games up on the Cubs, each with seven to go.

In the American League, the Yankees went winless again against Boston Red Sox, dropping a 5-3 opener in 10 innings and then fighting for a 2-2 draw, which will be played off today.

The St. Louis Browns surprised everyone—most of all themselves—by slipping the Chicago White Sox 7-2 and 8-4, with Buck Newsom posting win No. 19 in the opener. And the powers that be told old Sarge Street he was through as manager at the end of the season.

Hank Greenberg went homer-less again, although he and his Detroit mates mauled Cleveland Indians 7-5. Big Hank now has seven more games to collect four homers to equal Babe Ruth's record.

The Dodgers and Phillies split a pair of 5-1 decisions in the other National League barruping, and the Athletics, after topping Washington 6-5 in their 10-inning opener, dropped the afterpiece 5-4.

PETES WHITEWASH NIAGARA FALLS 3-0 TO CAPTURE THE SERIES

Jakafby Hurls 4-Hit Ball In Fine Slab Performance To Earn O.B.A. Decision

Niagara Falls cascaded into O.B.A. oblivion here Saturday as the Petes won the second straight game of their playdown series by a 3-0 score before more than 1200 fans in Riverside Park. The Petes had taken the opener in the Cataract City by a 5-3 count, and now advance into the Ontario semi-finals.

Fine flinging by Joe Jakafby, who hurled four-hit ball, and some timely hitting by his teammates rubbed the Falls' crew out of the picture. The Petes looked the better club all the way, going good in the field—despite three errors which were not costly—and the visitors did not play the same brand of ball they showed in the first fixture. The homesters got a run in the third, another in the fourth and their last one in the sixth, always appearing like the winning team on the day's play. It was an excellent game for the local crowd.

Jakafby was something of a surprise choice on the home mound, but the big righthander hurled beautiful baseball. Giving four hits and no walks, he fanned nine and was complete master of the situation all through. He curved the Niagara batters to death, throwing hook after hook, and only three of his rivals got as far as second all afternoon, no one reaching third. Schoolboy Mussel on the other slab showed a lot of speed but couldn't get his sinker working till late in the game, fanning five in the last two heats. He was nicked for 10 hits, some of them scratchy, and one walk as he struck out nine. His support was not too good at times.

Murphy Leads

Manager Eddie Murphy led the locals at bat with two whistling doubles and a single in four times up. Burton and Kearns each got two hits, and Doll a double. None of the losers had more than one safety. There was plenty of snappy fielding shown, especially by the Petes' infield—the outfield having but one putout—but the only feature was a foul catch by Harrison of the Falls.

Jakafby fanned two and forced the other to pop up in the first frame as the Petes went back in order. The Falls didn't get a man to first in the next inning, and Murphy's double to right did no good for the local cause in their half. Stephenson was safe on an error in the third and was sacrificed but died on second. In the Petes' part, Cadd got to second when Hilleshein dropped his hard-hit fly to left centre. Cadd was sacrificed by Jakafby and raced home on a hit to left by Kearns. The latter got to second but was stranded there.

Only Threat

Niagara Falls threatened in the fourth when Hilleshine led off with a single through the box. Smith popped to the pitcher in an attempted sacrifice. Kaminsky forced Hilleshien at second, and he took second on a hit by Whitehead, but Quinlan grounded out. Doll doubled in the fourth for the home squad, took third on Calladine's sacrifice and scored on a single by Murphy. Burton also hit safely but no further scoring resulted. A hit by Hardison in the Falls' fifth was wasted, and Kearn's single and Doll's walk for the Petes came to naught.

After the visitors were downed one-two-three in the sixth, the Petes got their third run. Murphy led off with a double to left, taking third on a single by Burton and scoring on a squeeze play when Jakafby bunted to the pitcher—Joe then standing back to watch the play, and forgetting to run. Lister, batting for Hilleshein in the eighth got to second on a bad throw, but died there and an error let Whitehead on in the ninth but he got no further. Starr singled and Calladine got an infield hit in the seventh for the locals but they did not get around, and the Petes went out one-two-three on strikes in their last time at bat.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB. MARTIN

To the members of our club who, over the week-end, according to their custom, have been celebrating their New Year, may we extend to them "A Happy New Year"—but if this should not be the right way to express ourselves, we hope that they will understand that the sentiment is nevertheless well meant.

One week from to-night, Monday, October 3, the annual meeting of the men's section will be held in the club rooms at 8 o'clock. Keep the date in mind.

We understand that they had 12 mixed out on Saturday afternoon. Nice going.

And speaking about mixed rinks, we will hold another mixed tournament on Wednesday evening at 7.30—the draw from the board, fee 25c.

To-night will see the final game in the skips-vices competition. It will be played between G. Gimblett and K. Sloane. A number of games in both the club singles and novice singles will be played, and whether or not we finish the club doubles in time for the annual meeting, these other competitions must be finished this week. We hope that the boys who are still in these contests will please co-operate.

Dead in the Centre

Have you a backfielder around your home who shapes up as a good forward passer, but is a little off in his marksmanship. Well heres' the cure. Lou Little, coach at New York's Columbia University, rigged up this target and had his men toss the pigskin at it to sharpen up their throwing eye. Sid Luckman, whose name even made Canadian sport pages last year, is doing the throwing. Of all people to be practising!

Beaches Down Champ Argos By 7-0 While Underdog McGills Smother Montreal Cubs 14-3

By Sydney Gruson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

On the basis of performances in the first concerted intermingling of Eastern Canada's senior football forces, it appears likely that Toronto Balmy Beach and McGill Redmen will provide opposition of the stoutest character in the Senior Ontario and Intercollegiate Unions opening in two weeks.

Victories of Beaches and the Redmen proved the highlights of the week-end's exhibition games, in which nine of the section's 12 senior teams saw action. Only Hamilton Tigers, University of Toronto and Peterborough remained on the sidelines for the day.

Beaches received a superlative kicking performance from veteran Ab Box and defeated Toronto Argonauts, the national champions of 1937, 7-2 in the first game of a series for the Toronto city championship. McGill, underdogs of the college circut for several seasons, showed power on the ground and a versatile attack to smother Montreal Cubs of the Interprovincial Union, 14-3.

Imperials Step Out.

The perennial bulwarks of the O. R.F.U., Sarnia Imperials impressed with a 13-9 victory over Ottawa Rough Riders at Ottawa, while Montreal Nationals barely eked out a 5-0 triumph over Queen's University at Montreal. Bill Storen's galloping Mustangs from University of Western Ontario smothered Kingston's Royal Military College 38-0 at Kingston.

Beaches gave warning, in beating Argos' first start of the season, that they would challenge more seriously than ever Sarnia's bid for another league championship.

Smothering the Argo running attack with brilliant tackling, Beaches showed also flashes of passing and plunging offensives that shattered the Argo defences easily.

Box was the individual star, throwing seven completed passes for nearly 100 yards besides kicking six points. His punts ranged from 55 to 70 yards. Other outstanding Beachers on the day were Teddy Manorek, the former Hamilton Tiger who got off plunges of 40 and 35 yards, and a young running halfback, Shelley Lush.

Balmy will meet University of Toronto next Saturday for the City championship.

Dumping Counts

Given first-class kicking by Herbie Westman, something they have lacked for two seasons, McGill made use of terrific plunging by Andy Anton and Bob Kenny and accurate passing to roll over the Interprovincial Union Cubs with ease. Rarely in contention although leading 3-2 at halftime, Cubs got all their points from McGill fumbles. Once the Redmen got a sure grip on the ball, the Cubs didn't have a chance.

Imperials, in action for the first time since the death last Wednesday of Ormond Beach, their star halfback, were outplayed along the wingline, but they took advantage of every break and Hugh (Hummer) Stirling's fine kicking to offset the gains rolled up by Ottawa's ground tanks and Murray Griffin's forward passing.

Jimmy Shanks scored the only touchdown of the game for Sarnia, plunging over after an Imperial pass advanced them from the 17 to the one-yard line. Stirling and Tiny Herman each kicked two placements. Each was missed particularly on secdary defence.

Queen's go Defensive

Nationals and Queen's failed to show a concentrated offensive and deciding factor for the Montreal team's victory was Ray Mullins' kicking. The young halfback booted a placement and two singles in the third quarter and throughout kept the Collegians hemmed back. Typically tight defensive work marked Queen's play.

It was just a romp for Mustangs over the Intermediate Cadets from R. M. C. Clem Faust, the newest addition to the Mustang backfield, sparked the offensive that moved the yardsticks 20 times. He threw six passes all completed. Brian Casey raced 80 yards for one touchdown.

Brintons Win Duffus Cup From Electrics

The Brinton Athletic Soccer club added another trophy to its list, on Saturday afternoon, when it defeated the Canadian General in the final of the J. J. Duffus Injured Players' Cup by the score of 4 to 2.

After the tussle, the President of the Association presented the silverware to Captain Eric Jones of the Brinton team. While Ben McMaster complimented the winners on their fine play.

Keen Tactics Prevailed

Brinton won the toss and took advantage of the wind at their backs and the sun in their face. The first note of interest came on the extreme right of the C. G. E. where Keith broke through repeatedly to test Adams in goal, in fact, he made good use of the mis-kick by Asa Downer but Jones, at right full back, covered up the mistake quickly. Then the same performance occurred on the Brinton right wing where Downer worked two fruitless flag-kicks off the full backs. Clark, Brinton centre, rattled a hot drive against the upright. Within the next minute, the Brinton centre gathered up a loose ball to rattle it home into the rigging when the C.G.E. full backs misunderstood each others tactic. Thereafter the Electric did everything but score against Adams, in Brinton's goal. He gathered up a drop shot from McPhate from twenty yard range. The losers settled down more to their steady game but lacked their usual activity in the half-back division which resulted in the Brinton forwards getting too much soope around the goal. Brinton 1, Canadian General 0.

Brinton Dominated Play

On resuming, the winners broke into the cup style of play thereby compelling the Electrics to go on the defensive to offset the rushing method of Clark, at centre, who found pleasure in making use of the openings presented to him. On a break-away by George Downer into the corner-flag, he centred across the goal mouth where his pivot connected with an unsaveable drive that landed in below the cross-bar. Then C. G. E. reduced the lead through a penalty shot taken by Buchan against Eric Jones for handling inside the dreaded area. The Brintons immediately got that counter back when Richardson dribbled his way up the centre and then passed forward to his centre. Further scoring took place but the referee adjudged the goal offsides after consultation with the linesmen. Keith registered the Electric second counter after Adams' failed to clear. Just before the final whistle, Foster made the score read. Brinton Athletic 4. Canadian General 2.

Canadian General — J. Bolton, goal; W. MacKenzie and S. Murduff full backs; F. Earle, J. Buchan and T. McPhate halves; H. Keith, A. Ross, B. McMaster, J. Goodhue and W. Harris forwards. Sub—D. Whatman.

Outlaws Win Town League Championship

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Sept. 26.—The Outlaws took the championship of the town softball league in three straight games when they wound up the playoffs with a 12 to 6 victory over Elgin in the third game Saturday evening. The Outlaws deserved their win as they have been playing good ball all through the playoffs.

Elgin opened the scoring in the first innings when G. Richardson, who had singled scored when R. Richardson was safe on an error. The Outlaws scored four times in their half of the first on four singles and Stickles' long triple. The Outlaws scored two more in the third on three bad errors by Elgin. Elgin got three back in the fourth when McKee, the Outlaws' pitcher, lost his control and walked three men that later scored on two singles.

Won In Fourth

The Outlaws put the game away in the last of the fourth with five more on three singles, a walk and doubles by Radford and Dit Clapper. Elgin completed their scoring in the sixth when they sent two across on a single, an error and R. Scott's double. The Outlaws scored the last run of the game in their half of the sixth when Stickles got his second triple of the game and scored when Puffer was safe on an error.

McKee, with the exception of the fourth innings pitched a bang-up game for the Outlaws. He allowed but eight hits while he fanned one and passed three batters. J. Richardson went the rout for Elgin and was touched for 12 hits. He had one strike out and issued but one free ticket to first.

Leading Hitters

Stickles, Outlaw third sacker, led the batters with two triples and a single in four times at bat. G. Richardson with three singles in four trips up was Elgin's heaviest clouter. The fielding feature of the game was the play that put the last Elgin men out. McKee took Grady's liner to double Richardson off first.

The teams:

Elgin—E. Preston, 2b; G. Richardson, 3b; Fleming, lf; Richardson, ss; Grady, rf; J. Preston, c; R. Scott, cf; J. Richardson, p; M. Scott, 1b; Metcalfe, 1b.

Outlaws—Radford, cf; Walsh, 2b; McKee, p; Stickles, 3b; Clapper, 1b; Bonds, c; Puffer lf; Phillips ss; Petticrew, rf.

Score by innings:

Elgin ..... 100 302 0— 6 8 5
Outlaws ..... 402 501 x—12 12 3

Giants and Reds Bow Out Of Race, Pirates 2 Up On Cubs 7 To Go; Greenberg Is Homerless Again

By Sid Feder
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

The Giants and Reds are out of the National League baseball race; Hank Greenbergs home run record chances are dying; the Yanks keep on looking more like chumps than champs, and old Sarge Gabby Street has his honorable discharge papers from the St. Louis Browns.

But all thats only incidental to the baseball picture because the Cubs and Pirates tangle tomorrow in the start of a three-game "sudden death" series—which will decide the National League pennant.

Even if the Cubs drop a decision to the Cardinals this afternoon, it won't make much difference. They'd still be only 2½ games back of Pittsburgh in that case, and they have to sweep the series to turn the trick anyway.

It looks as though Pie Traynor will have the pitching edge for the set. Pie only had to use Red Lucas to top the Reds 5-3 yesterday, while Gabby Hartnett led with one half of his pair of Chicago aces, Clay Bryant, in whipping the Cardinals 7-2. Thus, the Bucs will have their entire staff, headed by Jim Tobin, Bob Klinger, Cy Blanton and Russ Bauers, to work in that order, each with four or more days' rest.

Lee's Turn Today

But none of these elbowers shows a better than .500 average in the 10 wins the Bucs have scored over the Cubs in their 19 meetings to date. It's Bill Lee's turn to go against the Cards for the Cubs today, but Gabby may decide to hold him off to open against the Bucs. Lee has four wins over the Pirates this season without a loss. He's shut them out twice and has given them just 10 runs in 42 innings.

The race became a two-team affair yesterday when the Bucs bumped the Reds and Boston Bees nipped the Giants, 3-2 in 11 innings and 4-3 behind the five-hit elbowing of old Milt Shoffner. This made it mathematically impossible for either the Reds or the Giants to catch up and left the Pirates two games up on the Cubs, each with seven to go.

In the American League, the Yankees went winless again against Boston Red Sox, dropping a 5-3 opener in 10 innings and then fighting for a 2-2 draw, which will be played off today.

The St. Louis Browns surprised everyone—most of all themselves—by slipping the Chicago White Sox 7-2 and 8-4, with Buck Newsom posting win No. 19 in the opener. And the powers that be told old Sarge Street he was through as manager at the end of the season.

Hank Greenberg went homer-less again, although he and his Detroit mates mauled Cleveland Indians 7-5. Big Hank now has seven more games to collect four homers to equal Babe Ruth's record.

The Dodgers and Phillies split a pair of 5-1 decisions in the other National League larruping, and the Athletics, after topping Washington 6-5 in their 10-inning opener, dropped the afterpiece 5-4.

Men Never Seem Satisfied With The Girls They Marry; It Is Their Own Fault, Because They Never Express Any Preference

WHAT every woman desires to know more than anything else in the world is what men really want in women. What type of woman do they prefer? What qualities must a woman have to come up to their ideals? What should a woman do to please them? What do they expect of a woman as sweetheart and wife?

No matter what sort of a bluff the advanced of our sex may put up, in our hearts we know that the chief end of woman is to please man. For not only does her ability to get a husband depend upon her doing it, but also does her success in business. Virtually all of the pleasures and perquisites in life come to a woman through the favor of men, and so women would be glad enough to make themselves as men want them to be if they only knew what was expected of them.

But they don't know. With all their prying and probing, they have never been able even to get a glimpse of men's dream girl and hence are unable to copy her. All that they can do is to guess at what she is like, and mostly they seem to guess wrong.

So we have the pathetic spectacle of multitudes of women struggling blindly to come up to some man's heart's desire and failing because they have not the faintest notion of what he is yearning for. They don't even know what he wants them to look like, or what he wants them to do. Does he like 'em thick or thin, wild or tame, highbrow or lowbrow? It is the riddle no woman can unriddle.

Of late years, for instance, it has been the feminine conviction that so far as pulchritude went, men were committed to the living skeleton school of beauty and that the more a girl looked as if she were a tubercular case, the more she caught the masculine eye. But is this true? Do men really like angles better than luscious curves? Do they prefer an anemic, undernourished-looking girl to a girl who is strong and vigorous and corn fed?

Again, no woman knows, but on the offchance that men do admire bones more than fat, women are going through agonies of starvation that qualify them for a martyr's crown and—grotesque thought—perhaps their sufferings are all in vain and men like a plump armful better than a doctor's bill after all.

Then there is the matter of a girl's personality. Girls aren't petters or prudes, gay girls or Mamma's little helpers, quiet or vivacious because they were born that way. No, indeed. They are trying to be what they think men want them to be, and here again they are stumbling along in the dark. They don't know whether men like girls who can drink them under the table, or those who keep themselves on a pedestal.

They don't even know whether men prefer the girl who is quiet and restful, or the one who runs them off of their feet; or whether they want a girl to be all tongue or all ears. There is evidence both ways because while the girl whose lips are a free lunch counter for every Tom, Dick and Harry gets more dates, the girl who saves her kisses for the ONLY man is more likely to get a husband whom she doesn't have to divorce in a couple of years.

The question of what men really like in women is even more unsoluble after marriage than before. The reason that many a husband is disappointed in his wife is because she doesn't know what he expects of her. She notices, perhaps, that he is always talking about what a beautiful gown some girl had on, or how well-groomed some woman is. Fine, she thinks, he wants me to look like an illustration from a fashion magazine, but when she buys a lot of fine and expensive clothes she finds out that that wasn't the big idea at all; that it is the bargain counter addict and not the wife with the specialty shop complex that he prefers.

Or perhaps it is the wife who goes domestic, who pinches pennies and sets before her lord Lucullian feasts, thinking that is the way to please his fancy, and who finds out that that was her mistake when he leaves her to stay with the children while he steps out with platinum blondes. And, vice versa, the playgirl finds out, like as not, that what her husband yearns for is a fireside companion.

Men are always complaining about being disappointed in women. It is their own fault because we have never found out what they want us to be. If we knew, we would be it, for we strive to please.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

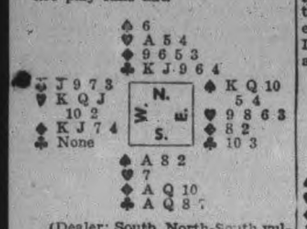
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

CLEARING THE STAGE

SOME deals are a good deal like a theatrical performance which necessitates clearing the stage before the scenery can be put in position for the next act. Ruffing out the small cards of a couple of suits, to get ready for a lead-throwing end play, is greatly similar to disposing of the first two acts before staging the third. If the acts are not presented in their proper order, the entire play falls flat.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South opened with 1-Club on this deal, West called 1-Heart, North 3-Clubs, East 3-Hearts, South 4-No Trump and North 6-Clubs.

The heart K was led and won with dummy's A. The clubs K and Q were cashed, followed by the spade A and a spade ruff. Then the diamond finesse was tried and the 10 lost to West's J. A heart was returned and declarer had to lose another diamond trick.

He had an opportunity to make his contract by clearing the hands of both spades and hearts before attempting the diamond finesse. With trumps remaining in both hands and voids in both spades and hearts, when West won the first diamond trick, he would have been forced to return a diamond to South or else return either a spade or heart. If the latter, South would have been able to ruff and discard a diamond.

What is the best defense against South's contract of 3-No Trump?

Church Marks Its 75th Anniversary

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Sept. 26. — Anniversary events in connection with the 75th anniversary of Trinity United church, were continued during the past week.

On Monday evening, Sept. 19th, a Sunday School and Young People's Rally was held at 8 p.m. in the church, when a very large attendance of young people were present, including reresentatives from the three Protestant churches of the village and the United Young People's societies from Norwood, Dartford, and Roseneath.

Mrs. F. W. Newell, president, presided and Miss Helen Collins gave the address of welcome. Music by very talented young people included solos by Mrs. Harold Buchanan of Toronto and Miss Gwendolyn Varcoe of Norwood and a duet by Misses Margaret and Clarice Atkinson of Dartford. Miss Jessie Whitrad of St. Andrew's Y.P.S. gave a reading.

The guest speaker was Rev. A. C. Hie of Toronto, a former pastor of the church, who gave a challenging address on "The Call to Youth." Rev. Wm. Stocks of St. George's Anglican church pronounced the benediction.

The Tuesday Rally

Tuesday was historical and reception day from 2.30 to 6.00 p.m. and ladies from the community were given a hearty reception by the members of the W.A. The Sunday School rooms were gay with autumn flowers, and the anniversary table was a picture of loveliness centered with the four-story anniversary cake, decorated with the figures "75" in silver and topped with a floral ornament. On either side were placed gleaming silver services and candles in silver holders. Mrs. Wm. Tate and Mrs. W. J. Warner poured tea while an efficient committee served dainty refreshments and a piece of the anniversary cake to the guests.

Miss C. Doxsee and Mrs. H. Edwards looked after the registration and the autograph names for a quilt and Mrs. A. M. Brooks and Mrs. D. E. Scriver received the guests.

Mrs. C. Hoard and Miss F. German had charge of the large collection of antiques. Among the oldest were a cane made of wood taken from the door post of a temple in Santiago, Cuba, in 1740. This cane was an heirloom of the McGinnis family of Kingston and is now owned by Mrs. James Knight; a book entitled "A Call to the Unconverted" was published in 1657, owned by Mr. R. C. Doxsee; a Bible owned by Mrs. George Richardson, 150 years old; a school reader of 1844, was owned by the late John Brooks who quit school in 1844. It had within its pages a report of the Stewards' finance of the Seymour West Mission of May 30, 1888.

Other interesting antiques were homemade shawls, night dresses, 75 years old; candle makers, 75 years old; butter trays and spoon carved from a black birch knot in 1855; spinning wheels, hoops and bustles; pictures and dishes.

Tuesday Evening

At 8 p.m. the Rev. C. W. Barrett, pastor from (1908-1911) and now of Woodbridge, was the guest speaker. After expressing his pleasure on being present he recalled the events of 30 years ago and congratulated the congregation on the improvements in the past 30 years. He gave a soul-stirring and thought-provoking address on "The Church of Tomorrow".

Rev. D. K. Perrie of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church extended greetings. Mr. W. W. Knight sang "Jesus is All the World to Me" and the choir rendered the anthem "Peace be Within Thy Walls."

Mr. R. C. Doxsee, recording steward for over 30 years, gave remarks in his humorous manner and told some interesting facts of church life in the past.

Mr. R. Collins, secretary treasurer of the trustee board, then read the following account which he had prepared:

"In looking over our church record, first called the Wesleyan Methodist church in Canada, which at that time was in connection with the English Conference; I find the following interesting items in connection with the church during the past seventy-five years. In all these years there have been just three secretary-treasurers on the trustee board of our church, namely: Andrew Hucke, from 1867 to 1903; B. F. Doxsee, 1903-1924 and in July 1924, R. Collins was appointed and still holds this position.

"I find that the land on which our church was built was purchased from Henry Fowlds on the 10th of November, 1863, for the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars; and the following names as trustees of the first board: Andrew Shearer, James Fleming, David Pilbeam, Andrew Huycke, Robert Collins, Adam Beavis, Harry Morton, John Miller, Jonathan Fuller, Richard Waters, were signed on the deed.

The church was 36 by 48 feet when first built and the contractors names were: for stone and brick work, William Code, and for carpenter work, George Nelson.

The trustee board had $590.00 in cash to meet the above $2,200 contract and the balance was divided in five notes to be paid yearly so much to Mr. Code and to Mr. Nelson.

The first parsonage in the village was the home now owned by Mr. L. M. Kelley, it was sold in April, 1884 to Mr. T. Learmouth for the sum of $600 and a lot purchased from Tim Coughlan for $150.00, on which to build the residence of our ministers, now occupied by Rev. Mr. F. W. Newell.

Action In April 1909

In April, 1909, during the pastorate of Rev. C. W. Barrett, a church trustee board meeting was called for the consideration of church extension and to take the necessary action to have it done. The members present were J. Beavis, H. Collins, Dr. Edmison, N. Beavis, W. Warner, B. F. Doxsee; others present were J. E. Wilcox, H. A. Wilson and R. C. Doxsee, Rev. C. Barrett was in the chair.

The result of this meeting in due time, was the letting of the contract to R. J. Graham of Havelock, for the extension of the church and putting a new front on, level with the street, making it the size and shape the church is today. This work was done at cost of $2,200.

At a trustee board meeting held on Aug. 25, 1920, it was decided to purchase a pipe organ and have it installed; this was done when the Rev. M. S. Hinton was pastor. The expenses at this time were: organ, $300; motor and blower $285; work on alcove, about $900.

SCIATICA

Sufferer plays baseball 3 Weeks after beginning Fynnon Salt!

Undergoing treatment one month; fit to play baseball the next. Read what Mr. R. A. himself says about Fynnon Salt.

"I want to thank you for putting me on my feet", he writes. "For months I suffered with a severe attack of Sciatica and tried many kinds of treatments. All to no effect. Then I read of Fynnon Salt and tried it. In less than three weeks I was up and out, even having a game of baseball."

Fynnon Salt is doing as much for sufferers all over the country, as the constant stream of testimonials show. This treatment for Sciatica and other Rheumatic troubles is similar to a Spa treatment at Home! A ½ teaspoonful of the sparkling crystals in a glassful of water every morning gives you the relief-giving Spa elements of Sodium, Potassium and Lithium, which gradually remove from your system Uric Acid and health-destroying waste. With the cause of the trouble removed, and liver and kidneys working properly once more, you are soon fit again. At all druggists, 75c a large bottle. 29

Hurricane Damage In New England States

With a death toll well over 500, authorities toiled night and day to care for thousands of refugees made homeless by the hurricane which swept the New England states, doing damage estimated at $200,000,000. One of the victims is shown, TOP, as he walks disconsolately through the splintered wreckage that marked Westhampton, L.I., after the hurricane had passed. An aerial view of the waterfront of New London, Conn., which bore the brunt of the storm, shows a chaos of shattered boats and other wreckage, BOTTOM. A series of fires in New London added to the terror of the storm, firemen being hampered by flood and failure of power.

Havelock Doctor Is Injured By Passing Car

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Sept. 26.—Dr. A. S. Thompson, elderly Havelock physician, sustained very severe cuts on his head and minor bruises on the lower portion of his body, when he was struck down, about 11.30 a.m. Sunday on No. 7 highway in this village, by a car driven by Johnson Blakely of Cottesloe. Dr. Thompson, C.P.R. doctor and M.O.H. of Belmont, was crossing the highway at a point just opposite the C.P.R. stattion, when he was apparently struck by the left front fender of Blakely's car which was approaching from the west.

Skid marks on the pavement showed that Blakely was well over on the right side of the highway when the accident occurred. He had applied his brakes and turned out past the curb in an effort to avoid the doctor who was about two-thirds the distance across the street.

Investgations were made by Traffic Officers Hatch of Marmora, and Broughton of Peterborough, and Constable Akins, of Havelock.

The injured man was attended by Dr. H. Crawford and Miss Grace Crawford, R.N., of Marmora, after being removed to his home. His injuries although serious are not considered to be critical, there being no skull fracture. The doctor never lost consciousness and last evening was reported to be resting quite well.

In the afternoon at Holy Trinity, other important considerations on the subject of missions were ably dealt with. Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell was in charge of the services in the parish of Kitley.

THIS IS AN ABC PAPER!

WHAT DOES THAT MEAN TO THE ADVERTISER?

The A.B.C. of Circulation:

How much? Where? How Secured?

TO knowing advertisers, an A.B.C. paper means a publication whose advertising value can be authentically gauged through audited circulation reports . . . complete, concise A.B.C. reports.

Issued at regular intervals by auditors controlled and paid by the Audit Bureau of Circulations, A.B.C. reports reveal and analyze NET PAID CIRCULATION—the true measure of advertising value.

A.B.C. reports answer the three vital circulation questions: how much is there? Where is it? How was it secured?

Before you buy space in this or any other publication, do two things. Make sure the publication is an A.B.C. member. (Space bought in a publication not a member of A.B.C. is at best a speculation.) Then, study the A.B.C. report. See how the extent and nature of the circulation meet your requirements. Now, you can buy—knowing that you are making a sound advertising investment.

We will be glad to send you a copy of our latest A.B.C. report. It gives you the facts about the circulation you buy in this paper.

This paper has long been an A.B.C. member because we believe in selling known value. Canadian publishers helped establish the A.B.C. in 1914.

Berlin Leaders Discredit Three-Power Bloc Backing Czechoslovaks

Chamberlain's Envoy Visits Hitler Again Has Half-Hour Talk And Departs; Offer Believed New Way Out Of Impasse

BERLIN, Sept. 27—(AP)Responsible political quarters today underscored Chancellor Hitler's demands for Sudetenland before Oct. 1 by discrediting the British-French-Russian stand supporting Czechoslovakia.

These circles declared a London statement that Great Britain and Russia would join France to help Czechoslovakia in case of German invasion did not come "from authoritative, official circles."

"If France feels obliged to come to the aid of Czechoslovakia on the occasion of a German attempt to force Czechoslovakia to live up to its promise, then this obligation is dissolved through the Czech breach of faith," they said, referring to Czechoslovakia's earlier promise to cede certain Sudeten areas to Germany.

Resembling in make-up the days of 1914 before Great War, German newspapers today uniformly charged to President Benes of Czechoslovakia the blame for whatever may be Europe's fate.

Chancellor Hitler's own mouth piece, the Voelkisher Beobachter, in heavy red type bannered "we are resolved!"

An editorial titled "The last word" drew the conclusion "the Fuehrer's speech actually was the last word spoken by Germany in this conflict."

"Heute schluss machen! Heute Schluss machen!"—"Settle it to-day! Settle it to-day!"—25,000 loyal Nazis cried out as Hitler expressed his determination to settle the Sudeten issue once and for all, called President Benes a liar, and shouted: "I have made an offer to Mr. Benes. It is nothing else than realization of what he himself has already conceded. He now holds in his hand peace or war."

Envoy's Visit Raises New Peace Hopes

BERLIN, Sept. 27—(AP)—Another visit by Sir Horace Wilson to Chancellor Hitler today raised new hope of a peaceful solution of Germany's demands on Czechoslovakia.

The meeting was the second between Hitler and Prime Minister Chamberlain's emissary in two days. It was believed Sir Horace had something concrete and constructive to talk about in the half hour he spent with the Fuehrer.

That was Mr. Chamberlain's conciliatory statement on Hitler's speech of yesterday and, particularly, his offer Great Britain would guarantee that Czechoslovakia carry out her part of the Sudetenland agreement provided Germany refrain from force.

Sir Horace took off by airplane for London from Templehof Airdrome at 1:45 p.m. (7:15 a.m. E.S.T.) after seeing Hitler, and arrived at Heston Airdrome at 5 p.m. (11 a.m. E.S.T.)

The British Emissary was reported to have pleaded that where such a far-reaching agreement in principle has already been reached over the Sudetenland, the world should not be plunged into war merely because of differences over putting it into effect.

Lord Tweedsmuir Is Received By King George

London, Sept. 27 (CP Cable)

THE KING yesterday received Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada, at Buckingham Palace.

His Excellency has been on leave of absence in the British Isles for some months. It is expected he will return to Ottawa soon, although the date has not yet been announced.

On Aug. 26, Lord Tweedsmuir observed his sixty-third birthday anniversary. The Governor-General has had no official engagements since his arrival in England. He has been taking a complete rest.

Hitler Shares Roosevelt's War Concern

BERLIN, Sept. 27. — (AP).—Chancellor Hitler to-day replied to President Roosevelt's appeal for European peace with the assertion that "I completely and in every way share your views concerning the immeasurable consequences of a European war."

"Be assured that I thoroughly appreciate the high-minded intentions underlying your argument," the Fuehrer telegraphed in response to the message Mr. Roosevelt sent yesterday to the leaders of Germany, Czechoslovakia, Great Britain and France.

Mr. Roosevelt appealed for continuance of peaceful negotiations in an effort to solve the Czechoslovak crisis and avoid war.

"For that very reason," said the Chancellor after his reference to the "immeasurabe consequences" of such a conflct, "I can and must decline every responsibility of the German people and its leadership if, contrary to all my efforts to date, further developments should actually lead to an outbreak of hostilities."

Back To The Origin.

"In order to form correct judgment concerning the Sudetic problem now under discussion, it is indispensable to direct thoughts to events in which, in the last analysis, the origin of these problems and their dangers are rooted.

"The German people in the year 1918 put down their arms in the faith that the conclusion of peace with the opponents at that time would bring a realization of the principles and ideals which were solemnly proclaimed by President Wilson and just as solemnly by all the powers at war as binding upon them.

"Never in history has the faith of the people been more disgracefully betrayed than what happened then and the conditions of peace forced upon the vanquished nations in the suburbs of Paris (Versailles) have fulfilled none of the promises given.

"On the contrary they created a political regime in Europe that reduced the vanquished nations to pariahs, stripped of all rights, and that was recognized from the beginning by all judicious persons as untenable.

"One of the points which most clearly revealed the character of the dictates of 1919 was the founding of the Czechoslovak state and the fixing of its boundaries without in any way taking into account history and nationality.

Hungary Lauds Hitler's Stand

BUDAPEST, Sept. 27 — (AP) — Hungarian newspaers exressed enthusiasm today for Chancellor Hitler's address on Czechoslovakia "because Hitler also appealed to the world for 1,000,000 suffering Magyars in Czechoslovakia."

Yugoslavia seemed mildly pleased by Hitler's speech yesterday, when the Fuehrer declared the Sudeten areas must be given over to him before Oct. 1. The comment was heard in Belgrade that "the last hour of peace, expected in Europe yesterday, was thereby postponed for days, if not for years."

The Rumanian newspaper "Timpul" was one of several Balkan publications which said the world was "fully united behind President Roosevelt in the opinion that peace must be preserved."

The Yugoslav semi-official paper, Politika, observed Hitler could no longer demand additional territory in Europe.

The newspaper expressed the fear, however, that Soviet Russia might not be included in Hitler's statement that he would have no further territorial demands in Europe, besides Sudetenland.

King Declares Case Of Emergency, Orders All British Air Forces Called; Premier Brands Hitler's Final Demands Unreasonable; Litvinoff Would Flaunt Might Of Three Powers Before Nazi Dictator

Urges Flight Of Bombers To City Of Prague Massing Of Troops On Border To Let Germany See Aid Czechs Will Get

LONDON, Sept. 27—(AP)—The official Gazette today published an order signed by the King declaring "a case of emergency exists" and authorizing the calling up of auxiliary air forces for defence.

An order-in-council authorizing the calling up of defence units in the air force was issued yesterday, but the full order declaring the existence of a state of emergency was not disclosed until its publication in the official Gazette.

The order in council said:

"Now, therefore, his Majesty by and with the advice of his Privy Council doth hereby declare that a case of emergency exists and doth order the Right Honorable Sir Kingsley Wood, one of his Majesty's principal secretaries of state, to give and when to revoke or vary such directions as may deem necessary or proper for calling out to serve within the British Islands in defence of the British Islands against actual or apprehended attack all or any of the officers and men of the auxiliary air force who in pursuance of the act are liable to be called to serve as aforesaid."

The order was published as Viscount Gort, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, and Air Chief Marshal Sir Cyril Newall, Chief of Air Staff, conferred with Prime Minister Chamberlain.

The military leaders went to 10 Downing Street just after Mr. Chamberlain received reports from his personal Emissary to Chancellor Hitler, strengthening the belief that Hitler was obdurate in his "final" demands on Czechoslovakia.

Russia Would Show Hitler Some Arms

GENEVA, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—Authoritative sources reported to-da ythat Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Foreign Commissar, had proposed a mighty, three-Power military demonstration to ensure peace by a show of force.

This plan, said to have been suggested to London and Paris by the Russian diplomat, would call for a display of British, French, and Russian naval, army and air force power as the only possible answer to Chancellor Hitler of Germany.

Litvinoff's Geneva staff was busy with telephone calls to Paris and London and short wave wireless talks to Moscow from the moment Hitler concluded last night the address in which he expressed his determination to annex Sudetenland and set Saturday as the deadline for Czechoslovakia to give in to him.

British, French ,and Russian delegations kept in close contact with envoys of Turkey, Rumania, Yugoslavia, and other potential Allies.

Test Bomber Flight To Czech Capital

Sources close to the Russian delegation to the League of Nations declared Litvinoff's "peace through force" plan embraced military measures which would leave no doubt of an intention to fight if Hitler tried to take the Sudeten German part of Czechoslovakia by force.

Suggested measures included. A demonstration flight of Russian and French bombers to Prague to show Hitler how quickly Czechoslovakia could get aid from the air; massing of large Russian forces on the Rumanian border where they would have to enter that country to reach Prague, and concentration of the British Home Fleet and the French Atlantic Fleet in the North Sea.

The general feeling in Geneva was that Hitler would consider any attempt at further negotiations as a surrender.

Ottawa Cabinet Considers War Crisis

OTTAWA, Sept. 27 (CP). — The Canadian Cabinet convened in special session here today at 11.15 a.m., E.S.T., to consider the European crisis. Prime Minister Mackenzie King was present and about 10 Ministers. The meeting was held in the Cabinet Council room in the east block.

The Cabinet meeting might last throughout the afternoon. Mr. Mackenzie King looked fit and well and almost completely recovered from a sciatica attack which confined him for almost a month at his home.

Before entering the Council chamber, he said he was not sure when he would be in a position to issue a statement but indicated he would have something to say later in the day.

Defence Minister Mackenzie was first of the Ministers to reach the chamber. He was followed closely by the veteran Senator Raoul Dandurand, Minister without portfolio and frequent representative for Canada at League of Nations meetings.

Trade Minister Euler and Transport Minister Howe arrived together, followed by Fisheries Minister Michaud, Resources Minister Crerar who is senior member of the Privy Council, Revenue Minister Ilsley, Agriculture Minister Gardiner, Labor Minister Rogers and Works Minister Cardin.

Justice Minister Lapointe is in Geneva as head of Canada's delegation to the League of Nations, and State Secretary Rinfret is in Europe on departmental business.

London Altering Her Subways

LONDON, Sept. 27.—(AP)—London today prepared for the possible arrival of enemy airplanes by designating the citys two deepest underground railway stations for immediate transformation into air raid shelters.

The two stations, at Charing Cross, almost exactly in the centre of London, were ordered closed at 8 p.m. tonight (2 p.m. EST) by the London Transport Board for "urgent structural works."

The nature of the work was not officially disclosed but it was stated the closing order would remain in effect "until further notice."

Authoritative quarters indicated that vast underground shelters against air bombers would be built, part of the greatest defence preparations in history.

Cannot Involve Empire Through Sympathy, Must Be On Bigger Issue Than That Says Premier Still Hopeful For Peace

LONDON, Sept. 27 (A.P.). — Prime Minister Chamberlain declared to-night he would not hesitate to take a third trip to Germany if he thought it would do any good, but at the moment "I can see nothing further that I can usefully do in the way of mediation."

"If I were convinced that any nation had made up its mind to dominate the world by force I should not hesitate to resist it," the Prime Minister declared in a broadcast from 10 Downing Street.

"But I shall not give up my hope for a peaceful solution.

He declared "we can not undertake to involve the whole of the British Empire in war however much we may sympathize with a small nation—if we have to fight it must be on larger issues than that."

Mr. Chamberlain spoke only about six minutes. After he had finished his speech was broadcast in German.

Speaking from the Cabinet Room of famed 10 Downing Street, the Prime Minister began his address at 8 p.m. (2 p.m. EST).

He said:

"To-morrow Parliament is going to meet, and I shall be making a first statement on the events which have led up to the present critical situation. An earlier statement would have been impossible while I was flying backwards and forwards across Europe and the position was changing from hour to hour.

"But today there is a lull for a brief time and I want to say a few words to you men and women of Britain and perhaps to others as well.

Done Everything Possible To Halt War

"I have done all that one man could do to halt this war. . . . "To-morrow I shall be making a full statement of events which led up to the anxious present situation," Mr. Chamberlain said.

"I thank those who have written to my wife and myself.

"It has been heartbreaking to me when they thought too soon that the danger of war was past.

"How horribly incredible that we should be digging trenches and trying on gas masks because of a quarrel which is taking place in a far-away country.

"It seems still more impossible that a quarrel that is already settled in principle should be a subject of war.

"I can well understand the reasons why the Czech Government have felt unable to accept the terms which have put to them in the German memorandum.

"Yet I believe, after my talks with Herr Hitler, that it ought to be possible to arrange for transferring the territory that the Czech Government has agreed to give to Germany by agreement under conditions which would ensure fair treatment to the population concerned."

Europe Starts Scramble For Food With Happy Eye On Americas

LONDON, Sept. 27—(AP).—European nations looked hungrily toward the Americas to-day in a scramble to fill their cupboards for war and prevent the starvation that stalked the last conflict.

With the possible exception of Russia no major European nation grows enough to feed itself. Without the wheat fields and cattle lands of North and South America, they face starvation.

For the past two years the principal European nations have taken some steps to store up for a rainy day. Now they are setting up organizations to do so in earnest.

Great Britain is said to have enough food stocks, together with normal production of the British Isles, to feed the country for one year without a single ship coming in. It was announced April 26 that large stocks of wheat, whale oil and sugar had been stored.

Meat Stocked Up.

Britain imports at least 50 per cent of her beef, mutton and pork and three-fourths of her wheat.

Emergency measures for wartime distribution of meat supplies were discussed at a meeting of the Nation Federation of Meat Traders at Birmingham yesterday.

A brief announcement from the closed session said: "A very large

Queen Launches New "Elizabeth" To Cheers Of 300,000

GLASGOW, Sept. 27 (AP)—Queen Elizabeth, with a message from the King calling on the people to "keep cool heads and brave hearts," today launched the new 85,000-ton liner bearing her name.

Nearly 300,000 persons watched the giant vessel, sister ship of the Queen Mary, glide down the slipways into the Clyde.

"I have a message from the King," the Queen told the huge crowd. "He bids the people of this country to be of good cheer in spite of the dark clouds hanging over them, and, indeed, over the whole world.

"He knows well that, as ever before in critical times, they will keep cool heads and brave hearts.

"He knows, too, they will place their entire confidence in their leaders, who under God's providence are striving their utmost to find a just and peaceful solution of the grave problem which confronts them."

The Queen Forgets.

The Queen was so excited when she cut the tap releasing the bottle of champagne which crashed against the liner's bow that she forgot to exclaim in the traditional manner:

"I name thee Queen Elizabeth."

The King had been scheduled to take part in the ceremonies but was kept in London by the international crisis. The Queen decided after launching the Queen Elizabeth to Spontaneous combustion is believed to have been the cause of the fire.

Over Million Bushels of Grain For Europe Pass Welland Canal In 24 Hours

St. Catharines, Ont., Sept. 27.

WELLAND ship canal officers reported today 1,450,000 bushels of grain passed through the locks within 24 hours, the largest single movement from the lakehead this year and equalling possibly record shipments of peak years.

Movement of grain through the canal has been particularly heavy in the past two days and most of the wheat and barley is destined to the Atlantic seaboard for transshipment to Europe. Shipments of coal and ore also are heavy.

An estimated 1,300,000 bushels of wheat entered the canal downbound from the lakehead and from elevators yesterday and early today. The steamship Lemoyne, biggest ship on the lakes, carried 497,000 bushels for the Kingston elevators while the vessel Emperor had 400,000 bushels. Barley moved through the canal totalled 150,000 bushels.

Driver Suicides As Jury Frees Him Of Blame In Fatal Crash

WINNIPEG, Sept. 27 (C.P.). — William W. Hutchison is cleared of all blame in the traffic killing of Leslie Willson, 51, but Hutchison died before he knew he was exonerated.

A coroner's jury last night reached a verdict exonerating Hutchison, driver of the automobile which struck Willson a week ago, but before the verdict was read to the court, Coroner Dr. H. M. Speechly announced Hutchison's body was found earlier in the day at his home in Carberry, Man. The 26-year-old bank teller had shot himself.

Willson died in hospital last Thursday of injuries suffered four days earlier when stuck by Hutchison's car as he and his wife were crossing a Winnipeg street.

Testimony was that Hutchison had admitted drinking three bottles of beer prior to the accident, but Dr. J. H. Conklin told the jury he had examined Hutchison at the Police Station immediately afterward and found he was in a fit condition to drive.

Kentuckian Would End Neutrality Act Offer Britain Everything But Men

Washington, Sept. 27 (AP)

SENATOR LOGAN (Dem.-Kentucky) advocated outright repeal of the United States neutrality act today and a policy of making available to Great Britain and France "all the material they need, except manpower" if they become involved in war.

The Kentucky senator has been a consistent supporter of the administration in the senate. He is a member of the military affairs committee.

Logan said he favored repeal of the neutrality statute because "there can be no neutrality in war." The law, when evoked, bans shipment of munitions to belligerents and limits the scope of trading in other commodities.

Some other senators said the neutrality act undoubtedly would be the subject of controversy in the next congress.

Czechs Refuse To Accept Demands Made By Hitler

LONDON, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—The Czechoslovak Government announced to-day it refused to accept Chancellor Hitler's demands on Sudetenland, as Prime Minister Chamberland planned to broadcast a plea for peace to-night.

The Czechoslovak announcement, made to-day from the Legation here through Czechoslovak Minister Jan Masaryk, was containd in a note given the Foreign Secretary, Viscount Halifax, last Sunday.

The note stated: "My Government wished me to declare in all solemnity that Hitler's demands in their present form are absolutely and unconditionally unacceptable to my Government."

"Against these new cruel demands my Government feel bound to make their utmost resistance, and we shall do so, God helping us."

The note added that Czechoslovakia expected France and Great Britain to assist her.

The Prime Minister's address was scheduled for 8 p.m. (2 p.m. EST). He chose for his rostrum the Cabinet Room of 10 Downing Street—an indication he planned to make a speech of unusual importance, for Government officials usually broadcast from the British Broadcasting Commission Station.

Chamberlain Stands by Original Plan.

The note was made public after Great Britain had brought France and Russia into a new triple entente and had dispatched a new plea for peace to Hitler.

Mr. Chamberlain issued the latest appeal from his Downing street residence just after midnight.

Britain followed this speech with an authoritative warning that "Great Britain and Russia will stand by France," who would be bound to aid Czechoslovakia against attack.

Mr. Chamberlain in the after midnight statement said:—

"We regard ourselves as morally responsible for seeing that promises (to cede Sudetenland to Germany under terms of the Anglo-French agreement) are carried out fairly and fully . . . with all reasonable promptitude.

"I trust that the Chancellor will not reject this proposal. . . .

"I cannot abandon my peace efforts."

Although recognizing that the chance of peace remained, the tone of the Chancellor's address caused much British disappointment. The times (Independent) called it "a tempestuous and rather offensive statement."

The Daily Telegraph (Conservative) observed that "the best that can be said of the speech is that, while it slammed the door, it did not irrevocably bar and bolt it."

Call For Peace Will Go Out To World

LONDON, Sept. 27—(AP)—Mr. Chamberlain's new call for peace, to be delivered just 24 hours after Chancellor Hitler broadcast the warning he would act if he did not have the Sudetenland Oct. 1, was listed for transmission from all British stations, including a short wave sender for the United States, Canada and other parts of the Empire.

Kingston Press Wins Right To Sit In On Operation Trial

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 27.—(CP).—After two newspaper reporters had been threatened with forcible ejection if they did not leave the court room at the illegal operation trial of Dr. Clifford K. Robinson to-day, Judge Evan McLean reversed a decision he made at the opening of the trial yesterday that the press be excluded.

When court resumed to-day two representatives of the Kingston Whig-Standard were in the press box. They were Arthur L. Davies, managing editor, and Wallace Muir, reporter.

Sheriff Fred R. Davies, brother of the Whig-Standard's managing editor, approached the press box and told the newspaper representatives that the Judge had ordered them to leave the court.

The reporters said that on advice of counsel they did not intend to leave. The sheriff called a constable to put the reporters out.

As the constable approached, W. M. Nickle, K.C., rose in the court and said he represented the Whig-Standard and the Whig-Standard was correspondent of The Canadian Press.

Different Under Amendment.

Mr. Nickle argued that while the judge had the right to exclude the public if he thought fit, he did not have the right to exclude the press in that, under new amendments to the Criminal Code the press was, by inference, set apart from the public. Certain penalties were provided if the press published certain matter calculated to injure public morals.

Mr. Nickle submitted it was the intention of the Minister of Justice and Parliament, when it enacted the new amendments to the Code, that the press should be present at all cases and prepare a careful report for the public, omitting certain details that would injure public morals.

Judge McLean asked Crown Attorney T. J. Rigney, who made the original motion excluding the press, if he had anything to say. The crown attorney replied he had not. Defence counsel also offered no comment.

Judge McLean ruled that, in view of the amendment to the Criminal Code specifically setting out what the press may and may not publish with regard to trials, the press could remain present.

France On Verge Of Calling Parliament

By Taylor Henry
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

PARIS, Sept. 27—(AP)—France has answered Chancellor Hitler's threat against Czechoslovakia by calling additional masses of troops to the colors, sources close to the government said today.

This disclosure of the French reaction to Hitler's speech at Berlin last night came as the cabinet was called into session for an urgent survey of the crisis.

Some sources predicted the cabinet meeting might result in a call for a special session of Parliament, whose consent is necessary for a declaration of war.

Semi-official sources still saw hopes for peace, but such hopes were dependent upon Hitler's easing conditions of his "last definite offer." There were indications that the government wanted to be in a position to act if Hitler carried out his threat to take action if Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland were not handed over to him peacefully by Saturday.

Throughout the night telephone and telegraph lines largely were taken over by the government as orders were sent out to local authorities to call up reservists individually.

There were no formal mobilization orders such as were issued last Saturday. Authoritative sources said, however, that France was putting under arms an increasing number of troops to add to the 2,000,000 ready for immediate action.

Guarding Italian Front.

Advices from the south of France said many troops were being sent to the Italian frontier, where an estimated 150,000 were holding mountain passes.

In the opinion of observers close to the government the crisis had grown far beyond any question of German annexation of Sudetenland. These sources saw the issue as a question of whether force—or threat of force—should be allowed to rule Europe.

With military preparations moving swiftly, authorities concentrated on protection of the civilian population.

On the advice of the ministry of public works civilians began leaving the capital.

The ministry of the interior announced that extra trains would start running Saturday—the date of the expiration of Hitler's ultimatum—to speed voluntary evacuation of Paris.

One of the most notable indications that France was tightening her belt was the restricted size of this morning's newspapers. All French papers agreed to a six-page limit, to conserve newsprint.

The government extended its export restrictions to foodstuffs for the first time, putting lard, salt and bacon on the forebidden list.

Two True Bills Are Returned By Grand Jury

True bills in two criminal actions were brought in late Monday afternoon by the Grand Jury at the Fall Assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario. The session started at one o'clock Monday with two criminal cases and 12 civil actions which include five divorce cases on the list. Mr. Justice Urquhart is presiding judge.

Mrs. Caroline Baker is charged with manslaughter arising out of the death of 17 year old Elva Preston following a collision at the intersection of Highways No. 7 and No. 30 at the western end of Havelock Village on July 4th. Mrs. Baker is being defended by the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C. and Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry is prosecuting.

Russel West, 17 year-old youth of Stirling faces a charge of criminal negligence in the death of 78 year old Thomas Anderson who died after being struck by a car on Highway No. 7 at the east entrance to Havelock Village. C. A. Payne of the law firm of Porter, Payne and Arnott of Belleville is counsel for West. This case starts at ten o'clock Tuesday morning.

DARTFORD, England—(CP).—A cat's head preserved in a bottle was used as evidence here when a draughtsman was sentenced to one month's hard labor for attempting to destroy the animal in an improper manner.

King Declares Case Of Emergency Orders All British Air Forces Called

"After my first visit to Berchtesgaden, I did get to the Czech Government the proposals which gave the substance of what Herr Hitler wanted, and I was taken completely by surprise when I got back to Germany and found that he insisted that the territory should be handed over to him immediately, and immediately occupied by German troops without previous arrangements for safe-guarding the people within the territory who were not germans and who did not want to join the German Reich.

"I must say that I find that attitude unreasonable. If it arises out of any doubts that Herr Hitler feels about the intentions of the Czech Government to carry out their promises and hand over the territory, I have offered on the part of the British Government to guarantee their words, and I am sure the value of our promise will not be underrated anywhere.

Not Giving Up The Hope Of Peaceful Solution

"I shall not give up the hope of peaceful solution or abandon my efforts for peace as long as any chance for peace remains.

"I would not hesitate to pay even a third visit to Germany if I thought it would do any good."

Ought To Be Possible To Arrange Change

"However much we may sympathize with a small nation confronted with a big, a powerful neighbor, we cannot in all the circumstances undertake to involve the whole British Empire in war simply on her account.

"If we have to fight it must be on larger issues than that.

"I am, myself, a man of peace to the depths of my soul.

"Foreign conflict between nations is a nightmare to me. But if I were convinced that any nation had made up its mind to dominate the world by fear of its force, I should feel that it must be resisted.

"Under such a domination the people who believe in liberty would not feel life worth living."

Mr. Chamberlain continued:

"Meanwhile, there are certain things we can and should do at home.

"Volunteers are still wanted for air raid precautions, for fire brigade and police reserves and for the Territorial (Reserve) units.

"I know that all of you, men and women alike, are ready to play your part in the defence of the country, and I ask you to offer your services, if you have not already done so, to the local authorities who will tell you if you are wanted, and in what capacities.

Precautionary Measures To Be Taken

"Don't be alarmed if you hear of men being called up to man anti-aircraft defences or ships.

"These are only precautionary measures such as a Government must take in times like these, but they do not necessarily mean that we have determined on war or that war is imminent.

". . . .For the present I ask you to wait as calmly as you can the events of the next few days.

"As long as war has not begun, there is always hope that it may be prevented, and you know that I am going to work for peace until the last moment.

"Good-night."

Always German Land.

"Sudetenland, too, was included in it, although this region has always been German and although its inhabitants unanimously declared their desire for anschluss (union) with the German Reich after the destruction of the Hapsburg monarchy.

"Thus the right of self-determination that was proclaimed by President Wilson as the most important foundation for national life was simply denied the Sudeten German.

"But that was not enough.

"In the treaties of 1919 certain obligations, which according to their wording were far-going, were imposed upon the Czechoslovak state as regards the German racial element.

"From the very beginning these obligations were not kept.

"The League of Nations failed completely to carry out the task assigned to it, namely, to guarantee the fulfillment of these obligations.

"Since then Sudetenland has been engaged in heaviest combat for the preservation of its Germandom.

"It was a natural and unavoidable development that after the German Reich regained its strength and Austria was re-united with it that pressure of the Sudeten Germans increased for maintaining their culture and for becoming closely associated with Germany.

"Despite the loyal attitude of the Sudeten German party and its leaders the points at issue between them and the Czechs became ever more pronounced.

Prague To Blame.

"From day to day it became more clearly evident that the government in Prague was not willing to grant most of the elementary rights of the Sudeten Germans.

"On the contrary it attempted to bring about the Czecholization of Sudetenland with ever more forceful methods.

"It was inevitable that this procedure led to ever greater and more serious tension.

"The German government at first in nowise interfered with this development and maintained its calm restraint even when in May of this year the Czechoslovak government proceeded to mobilize its army on the pretext, manufactured by pure cloth, that German troops had been concentrated.

"The fact that Germany at that time refrained from taking military counter-measures has merely served, however, to strengthen the intransigeance of the government in Prague.

"The progress of negotiations by the Sudeten German party with the government for a peaceful solution clearly showed this.

"These negotiations brought definite proof that the Czechoslovak government had no idea of tackling the Sudeten German problem really from its very foundation and to bring it to a just solution.

Sudetens In Misery.

"As a consequence, conditions in the Czechoslovak state, as is generally known, have become entirely insufferable during the last weeks.

"Political persecution and economic suppression have plunged the Sudeten Germans into unspeakable misery.

"To characterize these conditions it is sufficient to refer to the following:

"At this moment we count 214,000 Sudeten German fugitives who had to leave their house and hearth in their ancestral homeland and who brought themselves into safety across the German border because they saw therein the only and last possibility for evading the revolting Czech regime of force and bloodiest terror."

Whole Town To Pray

DOVER, N. J., Sept. 27—(AP)—This town of 11,000 persons, many of whom work in huge munition plants, will cease all activity on Friday in a one-minute prayer for world peace. Mayor John Roach, a Great War veteran, issued a proclamation that the fire alarm signal the noon prayer time and asked churches to toll their bells for the minute during which trafic lights will flash red, halting traffic. Industrial plants and offices were asked to halt work.

Ninety feature films from the United States were shown in Czechoslovakia in the first half of this year.

Macaulay Urges King To Aid Peace By Stating Canada With Britain

TORONTO, Sept. 27 (C.P.).—Hon. Leopold Macaulay last night called upon Prime Minister Mackenzie King to contribute to the cause of peace by immediately telling the world that Canada, come what may, stands side by side with Great Britain in the present international crisis, in a speech before the St. Paul's Women's Conservative Association.

The Conservative Leader in the Ontario Legislature said that in the event that another European war could not be averted, the Canadian Government must take strong measures that would prevent any possible profiteering such as occurred during the Great War.

The Association adopted a resolution which will be sent to the Prime Minister, urging immediate adoption of a policy, in the event of war and Canada's participation, whereby the resources of the Dominion would be available and profiteering eliminated from the commencement of hostilities.

Germany Well Fixed

Germany's bumper wheat crop is expected to total well over 28,000,000 tons. Field Marshal Hermann Goering, Nazi economic dictator, told the Nuremberg Nazi party congress that it was certain no one in Germany would go hungry, that no blockade could bring Germany to its knees for lack of food.

The meat situation in Germany presents a different picture. Fresh meat is not very plentiful in the Nazi realm, since farmers still are suffering effects of the pork crisis which began three years ago.

It was asserted, however, that with 750,000 head of hogs and 236,000 head of beef on the farms, stored in refrigerators, and canned, Germany could face the future confidently.

Usually well informed sources said Italy has laid by only a comparatively small stock of food. Some purchases of wheat were believed made recently in Argentina. For her meat supply, Italy depends largely on Yugoslavia.

MORE ABOUT—
Queen Launches

rejoin the King at Buckingham Palace tomorrow, instead of continuing her stay at Balmoral Castle.

Longest Ever Built.

The Queen Elizabeth's two funnels instead of three and racier streamlining give her a profile different from that of the Queen Mary.

The new liner will register 3,763 tons more than the 31,235-ton Queen Mary. The Queen Elizabeth is 1,030 feet in length, the longest liner ever build. The Queen Mary is 1,020 feet long and the Normandie 981 feet long.

The new ship will accommodate 2,400 passengers to the Queen Mary's 2,000 and has 14 decks to the latter's 12.

The maiden voyage of the Queen Elizabeth, which will be used exclusively in the Atlantic service, is scheduled for May, 1940.

The new ship's long rakish prow is designed to carry a third anchor in the centre to facilitate docking in New York and Southampton. Her two funnels instead of Queen Mary's three, were made possible by reduction of the number of boilers from 24 to 12.

Advances in naval architecture since the Queen Mary was planned a decade ago and the experience of running the Queen Mary have suggested great improvements incorporated in the new ship.

The Queen Elizabeth will be propelled by a system of 16 single reduction geared turbines which will get their steam from 12 high-pressure boilers, the largest ever constructed for a ship, each having 71,000 tubes. They will burn oil fuel under forced draught.

The whole ship will be air-conditioned.

No Wonder You Are Constipated!

What do you eat for breakfast? Coffee, toast, maybe some eggs? What do you eat for lunch and dinner? Bread, meat, potatoes? No wonder you're constipated—due to lack of "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean the amount you eat. It means the kind of food that forms a soft, bulky mass in the bowels. It's this mass that helps your bowels move.

The common sense thing to do about it is to eat a natural laxative food. Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast will give you just the "bulk" you need. And it gives you, in addition, Nature's great intestinal-tonic, vitamin B_1. Eat this crunchy toasted cereal every day, drink plenty of water, and life will be brighter for you! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in London, Ont. Sold by every grocer.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Then he will talk—good gods, how he will talk."—Nathaniel Lee.

And this:

"But far more numerous was the herd of such,
Who think too little, and who talk too much."—Dryden.

Dear Friends:

How DO you talk? Do you do it to interest those you meet, to entertain others, to exchange ideas, to give needed information at times, or do you just talk?

Every one of us when we go avisiting, or to a club, or any place where we meet with our own kind, have a duty to talk as pleasantly as possibly. How do you expect to be entertained if you will not exert yourself to entertain?

And you don't need to bore others with your talk either. Let us see what the ditcionary says about bores, shall we? "To weary by tiresoma repetition, or by dulness; to annoy . . . a stupid or uninteresting person: any person that causes dull weariness. . . . "

With all the knowledge of world affairs we have, with the radio and the movies, with the fast-moving affairs of everyday life, there is no need for anyone to be a bore.

One day recently I heard practically the same comment made about two women. Of the first one it was said, "What a wonderful talker she is. I could listen to her all day, and never be wearied."

And of the second one they said, "Does she talk? Land, how she DOES talk." Which of these comments would you like said about you?

When operations were first used to save life, it was interesting to hear some of the details because the subject was new. But now it is so commonplace that no one is really interested but you and the doctor, so why bore others with the details?

And if you have a cold, it's sad all right, but we all get them, so why bother so much explaining how your head aches, etc., etc.? The truth is, if you find something else to talk about, your cold will get a chance to clear up.

Sometimes we hear a person start off with something like this: "I remember last Thursday, or was it Wednesday? No, it must have been Thursday, for on Wednesday I did such and such."

And on they go, debating with themselves which day it was, and all the while you are waiting tensely to see what they were going to tell you. Often they are so concerned with which day it was that you never do hear it.

Sometimes, too, going along the street, I am amused and amazed at the loud way some talk. They seem bound to let the whole street know their conversation.

We were meant to talk. There is nothing I like better than listening to a good orator, or a good preacher. It does me good to sit back and listen, and I always get some good ideas to take home with me.

What ideas do YOU give anyone to take home with them? The weather? The amount of work you have done that day? The size of the wash on your line or how many loaves of bread you baked? (Or do you bake?).

The world and your community are always ready for some new ideas, so think up the unusual things you have experienced and speak of them. Maybe it's an unusual flower or weed, or a different bird, anything that gets away from the commonplace.

And in your talk, learn some things that will help like these. Be brief, for long-windedness is tiresome. Be kind, for cruelty returns like a boomerang. Be charitable, for you will need some shown you. Be tactful, for the truth must be made palatable. And with all these be interesting and you will be liked.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Britain's Oldest Woman

Britain's oldest woman, Mrs. Rachel Swain, celebrated her 108th birthday this month. She was born in a tiny cottage in Water End-lane, Bedfordshire. She lives in Water End-lane still.

Two great nieces of this little old lady live in Peterborough. They are Mrs. P. Malsch of 421 Edison avenue, and Mrs. Arthur Church of 297 McDonnel street.

Mrs. Malsch, who was born in the same little village as was Mrs. Swain, the village of Flitwick, Bedfordshire, says it is fourteen years since she last saw her, and she remembers her as a frail little lady who always wore a snowy lace cap trimmed with bits of narrow black velvet. She does not need glasses and has remarkable hearing. Once in her century of life she moved her home. That was because the cottage where she was born fell into disrepair, and she moved to her present dwelling, which Mrs. Malsch says is of white brick, and but a stone's throw from the original home.

The overthrow of the Tsar and of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy made history in her time. The Crimean War, the Boer War passed over; the Great War brought new countries into being; dictators rose to power.

Five kings and a queen have reigned in Britain since Mrs. Swain was born, but time for her has always been measured in terms of "Willie's measles" or "Sarah's wedding." Mrs. Swain has never seen the sea or a boat of any kind, and she has never been to a theatre.

Mrs. Swain was married at nineteen to a shepherd working on a Flitwick farm. Her husband died thirty-five years ago. She has had eleven children. Two, Sarah, the eldest, eighty-five, and William, the youngest sixty-five are still alive. Five generations gathered to celebrate her birthday.

Each birthday since Mrs. Swain reached her century she has receive a telegram from the King of good wishes. She has thus received royal messages from King George V, King Edward VIII, and King George VI, and is looking forward this year to the receipt of the royal greetings.

Norwood Bride Married In Violet Velvet

St. Paul's Church, Norwood, was the scene of a very pretty Autumn wedding on Tuesday morning, when Veronica Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Heffernan of Norwood was united in marriage to William John, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Torpey of Indian River. Rev. C. J. Carroll officiated during the ceremony, assisted by Mr. Francis Fitzpatrick, nephew of the groom.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. C. Coughlin, and a duet was sung during the signing of the register by Mrs. D. Brennan and Miss M. Voyer of Havelock.

Entering the church on the arm of her father, the bride was charming in a graceful gown of violet velvet in cape effect, floor length, with matching accessories. She carried a bouquet of Talisman roses.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Mary Heffernan, who wore a gown of wine velvet with fitted velvet jacket. Her accessories were in blending tones, and she carried a bouquet of carnations.

Mr. Joseph Fitzpatrick, nephew of the groom, was best man.

A reception was held at the home of the brides parents after the ceremony. Receiving with the bride and her attendants were her mother, Mrs. Heffernan, gowned in navy triple sheer with matching hat, and the groom's mother, Mrs. Torpey, wearing black crepe with black hat and accessories.

Sixty guests sat down to the wedding dinner in the dining room, which was decorated with streamers and bells of pink and white.

Later the happy couple left by motor to Ottawa and Eastern points, the bride wearing a travelling frock of navy sheer, with short jacket, navy coat and accessories. On their return they will live in Indian River.

The groom's gift to the bride was a wrist watch; to the bridesmaid a compact, and to the groomsman a tie pin and combination set.

DINNERS OF THE WEEK

By MARY MOORE

SUNDAY
Baked Stuffed Pork Tenderloin
Spiced Apple Sauce
Pan Roast Sweet Potatoes
Cabbage and Tomato Slaw
Squash Custard Pie (see note)
Coffee

Note.—Squash custard pie is same as pumpkin pie. We think it is dressed up if we use a little unsweetened whipped cream on it and in the centre of this a teaspoon of strained honey.

MONDAY (Hasty)
Sliced Cold Pork Tenderloin
Spiced Peaches
Potatoes in Cream Parsley Sauce
Chopped Buttered Yellow Beans
Cantaloupe Halves Hot Tea

TUESDAY (Baked Vegetarian)
Baked Tomatoes stuffed with Cheese and Rice
Casserole of Squash in Bacon Fat, thin Cream Sauce (see note 1)
Buttered Broccoli
Peach Bread Pudding (see note 2)
Coffee

Note 1.—Use bacon fat in place of butter in a very thin cream sauce—put the squash in greased casserole after dicing it and pour over the thin sauce, sprinkle buttered crumbs on top, cover and bake about 50 minutes, then uncover and let crumbs brown.

Note 2—Peach bread pudding: In buttered pudding dish place alternate layers of quartered buttered toast, and sliced peaches—until you have added 5 slices of toast and 3 cups peaches—sprinkle each layer of peaches with 2 tablespoons sugar. Over this pour a custard mixture made of 2 beaten eggs, ¼ cup sugar, 2 cups milk and ½ teaspoon mace. Sprinkle top with mace and bake at about 325 deg. Fahr., standing dish in larger dish containing warm water. Bake until custard is set.

WEDNESDAY (Economical)
Corned Beef Hash (detail recipe on last week's note)
Whole Tomatoes stuffed with Apple and Celery Salad
Open Face Plum Pie Hot Tea

Note.—Last week's page had recipe for corned beef hash—its main hint was that hot boiled potatoes mashed and added to the minced or diced corned beef are infinitely better than cold leftover potatoes — horseradish added to a cream sauce makes it a dish fit for royalty.

THURSDAY
Fricasseed Veal Chops
Corn on the Cob
Chopped Buttered Spinach
Sliced peach, cantaloupe ball and orange Fruit Cup
Iced Boed Cookies. Hot Coffee

FRIDAY (Guests)
Nova Scotia Tun Mould (see note)
Remollade Sauce (see note)
Tomato Casserole with Crouton Crust
Mashed Mixed Turnips and Potatoes
Baked Pears in Lemon Syrup
Coffee, Cheese Straws

Note.—Heat Tuna in the tin—the tuna from Nova Scotia has grand flavor. Remoulade Sauce is something special—it is actually mayonnaise made from hard cooked yolks instead of raw and is grand with fish hot or cold.

Remoulade Sauce: Work to a paste the yolks of 2 hard cooked eggs—this requires about 5 minutes, then add 1-3 teaspoon English mustard, ½ teaspoon salt 1-8 teaspoon fresh white pepper, 2 tablespoons lemon juice (or vinegar if you prefer it). Have ready 1 scant cup cold salad oil. Mix the ingredients very well, then begin adding oil 1 teaspoon at a time until emulsion begins, then add 2 teaspoons until half cup is used, then 1 tablespoon at a time. This takes care—and if you are in a hurry, 1 raw yolk may be added to the above to speed the process—1 tablespoon each chopped gherkins, parsley, or capers added make a delicious zestful sauce.

SATURDAY.
Cream of Corn Soup
Sauted Bologna
Mashed Vegetable Marrow
Diced Beets with Hollandaise
Warm Apple Sauce Cake, Vanilla Ice Cream, Hot Tea

WEDDINGS

Baptist—Brown

CENTRETON, Sept. 27.—On Saturday at the Manse, Grafton, Rev. D. M Smith united in marriage Jessie Matilda, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Brown, of Baltimore, to Milton Everett Baptist, eldest son of Mrs. Edith Baptist and the late James Baptist.

The bride, who was unattended, wore a dress of deep blue with hat and matching accessories.

After the wedding supper at the home of the bride's parents, the happy couple left on a motor trip to Toronto and points west.

On their return they will reside on a farm near Centreton.

Jessie Armstrong Weds Ernest Powell

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Sept. 27. — A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday at 12.30 noon, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Armstrong, when their only daughter, Jessie Isabel Lillian, became the bride of Ernest Jeffrey Powell, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Powell, Millbrook, the Rev. A. L. Sisco officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and looked very attractive in her wedding gown of pink Chantilly lace, floor length, flaring from the hips, and with a bolero jacket, the dress having high neck and short sleeves, and tiny satin bows down the front from neck to hem; she wore a shoulder-length veil of pink tulle, held in place with coronet of blossoms, and carried pink Premier roses, pink satin slippers completed the ensemble.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Phyllis Armstrong of Peterborough, who wore an ensemble in robin's egg blue similar to that of the bride, a coronet of flowers in her hair, and carried Briarcliffe roses. The groom was supported by John Armstrong, the bride's brother.

The ceremony took place out of doors, under an arch of evergreens intertwined with flowers, and centered with a white wedding bell, immediately in front of the porch giving entrance to the large homestead, the one hundred or more guests being seated or standing about the smooth, green lawns facing the bridal party when they had taken their places beneath the arch.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. Harry Goss of Bewdley, an aunt of the bride, and during the signing of the register Miss Ruth Thorndyke, the bride's cousin, sang "Through the Years," Mrs. Goss accompanying.

The bride and groom stood on the porch for the informal reception which followed the wedding ceremony, and for the buffet luncheon the bridal table was lovely in color scheme of pink and white carried out in the fluted streamers from the large white wedding bell immediately over the three-storey wedding cake which centered the table, the tall tapers burning in silver holders, and in other details. Assisting with the service of the guests were Misses Wilma Armstrong, Blanche Fallis, Betty Armstrong, Bernice Smith, Margaret Armstrong, Henrietta Wood, Doris and Isabel Kennedy.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Powell left by motor for their honeymoon to Boston and other points in the Eastern States, the bride travelling in a becoming dress of black sheer triple crepe, with insets of white in the sleeves, top coat of black caracul, hat, and other accessories in matching shade.

Upon their return they will reside in the groom's newly-purchased home, King Street East.

Could Not Accept

"The German claim to the Sudeten area has been conceded by the French, British and Czechoslovakian governments. But if in spite of all efforts made by the British Prime Minister a German attack is made on Czechoslovakia, the immediate result must be that France will be bound to come to her assistance, and Great Britain and Russia will stand by France. It is still not too late to stop this great tragedy and for the peoples of all nations to insist on settlement by free negotiations."

The Examiner quotes that press despatch from the British government for two reasons, (1) at the moment it accurately states the situation in Europe, and (2) in times to come it may be regarded as an historic document.

At the moment it is as though some giant hand, unseen and yet all-powerful, is dragging the world on a course which the world does not want to take. The people of Britain do not want war; for months British statesmen have been doing what they could to avoid it, nor can any one convince us that the people of France want to go to war. But feeling is not sufficient in a world where might is regarded as being right.

The negotiations of recent days are pretty much a matter of current history. Premier Chamberlain's first visit to Chancellor Hitler resulted in the securing of certain conditions insisted upon by Germany for the ceding of the Sudeten area to the Reich. After consultation with France these two powers, Britain and France, recommended to Czechoslovakia that the district in question be given to Germany, and it is known the two powers told Prague plainly that if the request was not granted then they could have nothing more to do with the situation.

On the second conference with Hitler it was found that the demands had been stepped up; everything in the Sudeten area was to become German property without compensation, and German troops were to immediately occupy the territory. There were to be other portions of the nation where a vote must be taken to see if they too desired to come in with Germany. The demands were such that the Prague government knew they could not accept them. What had been conceded primarily as a peace offering for the world was turned into a demand which would make peace intolerable.

United States sent a plea to Hitler and another to Benes at Prague to see if it were possible to continue negotiations. As a kindly gesture it may have been well timed and perhaps opens a new door slightly through which troubled nations may pass if they are so minded. If Germany listens to Roosevelt there may be hope yet of averting war. Czechoslovakia is more a child of United States than of any other nation; it was at the insistence of the late President Wilson that the nation was formed, and he had his way on the understanding that United States would become an active and powerful member of the League of Nations, something which that country never did. Thus United States had much to do with the creation of a situation which she apparently expects other nations to defend.

Why Does She Sue?

Aimee Semple McPherson, the evangelist of Los Angeles, who was born in Ingersoll, has decided to enter suit against a picture magazine in United States. The reason is that there is a heading in the magazine which declares "I am God's best publicity agent." Mrs. Aimee says she has been deeply humiliated and has suffered "grievous mental anguish." So she is asking $500,000 general damages and $1,000,000 punitive (or by way of punishment) damages.

Granted that the people who turn out the magazine did put it on too thick, and the heading quoted above indicates they did, what good purpose is going to be served by bringing suit for $1,500,000?

The Los Angeles evangelist preaches what she is pleased to term a Four Square gospel, and we doubt if she can open the Book from which she receives inspiration for her evangelism and find a chapter or a verse which would show her that she should bring suit because she considered she had been unfairly attacked.

Stealing From The Dead

New England States had so great a storm that the death list now stands at 420 and no one can state whether that is the last figure. Property damage is placed at $200,000,000.

Stories of the devastation ran for several days in the papers, and they would have been given greater length had it not been for the more pressing news from Europe.

We have noticed in three separate districts where a phrase quite similar has been used to this effect: "The National Guard was called to prevent looting of damaged property." In one case the wording was changed to include "the stripping of valuables from the bodies of the dead."

We are not suggesting such custom is the peculiar property of New England States because we have seen the same thing happen in our own land on a lesser scale. There was for instance the car which smashed into a ditch on a county road in the western part of the province. A doctor staying at a nearby summer resort was available at once and he was there in five minutes and helped remove the driver. It was half an hour before the traffic officer could be notified and make his way to the scene, and in that time a raincoat, club bag and a spare tire had been taken away. We recall several years ago going to the scene of another accident where a woman had been killed and afterward it was found everything in the way of personal possessions had been removed, including the hat of the woman which had been lying on the seat of the car.

Fortunately the percentage of ghouls in the population of any country is relatively small. There are good brave people who will willingly expose themselves to danger and at times death because they want to help those who are in trouble or distress. The fact that the overwhelming majority of people are in that class is what makes life worth living.

Figures Tell The Story

The annual report on Prisons and Reformatories in Ontario does not get general circulation; in fact the great majority of people never see it. Like other government Blue Books it has pages of figures, and most people have small interest in statistics. Yet this report tells quite a story and gives the answer to a number of questions which people might well ask. It deals with a population of 4,419.

We learn that 1,551 of the sentenced men were married and 2,673 were single. One might well wonder if education had much to do with a tendency toward crime. According to the tables it works this way:

Illiterate	361
Elementary schooling	3,196
High school	755
College or university	107

One might take it for granted when reading reports of people being sent down following charges in which liquor was mentioned that intemperate folk would be in the majority. But they are classified this way:

Abstainers	785
Temperate	1,888
Intemperate	1,646

We believe it is safe enough to say that many people associate reformatories with those who are addicted to the use of narcotics in one form or another, but again the figures show:

Abstainers	4,233
Drug addicts	186

We learn too that going to reformatory does not produce a cure. The people who went the first time also go back a second and a third time. To this extent:

First time	1,316
Second time	657
Third time	377
More than third time	2,069

J. D. Heaslip, M.D., superintendent of the Reformatory at Guelph, states he has made mental tests covering 816 cases, and 81 of the cases were placed in the mental defective group; 68 were of borderline intelligence; 180 were found to be mentally dull, and those classes which made up about 40 per cent. had minds which in point of intelligence were those of children from 9 to about 13 years of age.

According to ages inmates of reformatories and prison farm are grouped:

15 to 19	519	45 to 49	406
20 to 24	718	50 to 54	297
25 to 29	528	55 to 59	233
30 to 34	520	60 to 64	163
35 to 39	477	65 to 69	100
40 to 44	429	70 and over	29

Perhaps you have already noticed — one of the most unwelcome features is that 1,237 inmates are between the ages of 15 and 24.

The Mayor Takes a Hand

Just how plain miserable are some of the games of chance played in fall fair midways was demonstrated at Stratford. Mayor Henry was on the grounds and he considered it advisable to go poking about through some of the tents to see what was going on. His search was not of long duration before he encountered a farm hand from the district, and then it was that Mr. Henry learned this chap had lost $70, and that was the sum total of his savings for a summer's work.

Then the mayor went into action with the operator of the game, who was quite sure it was none of Mr. Henry's business what was going on. Apparently this stranger in the place did not know Mayor Henry, but the upshot was that the farm hand was given $50 of his lost money, after which the Mayor saw to it that the game was closed.

That game was travelling along the same midway which has been playing at all the principal fall fairs in the province, and it is evidence that the proper method is to weed out such things before the season opens.

It also shows there are a number of people who could profitably spend some time reading the newspapers. If they did so they would find reports of complaints about games of chance; they would find out that people had been swindled out of their money, and they would also come in contact with the plainly expressed view that it was highly advisable to abstain from playing the part of a sucker. The man who reads can find a good deal of material which he can turn to his own profit and protection.

A Tragic Last Chapter

James Simpson, ex-mayor of Toronto, was killed in a collision between an auto and a street car. Even in death most people will refer to him as "Jimmy" Simpson. His was an interesting career and perhaps one which has been often enough told and retold to show Canada was a land of opportunity for young immigrants.

"Jimmy" Simpson came from Lancashire when 16 years of age, and that was 48 years ago. He found a job in a tin factory and after working there for three years was apprenticed to learn the printing business. When he had mastered that he promptly dropped it and started at the editorial end of newspaper work and for eight years "covered" the city hall in Toronto.

He was a Labor man always. The Lancashire immigrant went far enough to serve on Royal Commissions, and for six years he was the Canadian delegate to the international Labor body at Geneva. And in the end he was victim of a collision on the streets of the city where he had spent the entire period of his residence in this land of opportunity. Yes—it was a tragic last chapter.

NOTE AND COMMENT

One thing seems assured: Hitler will not be in the front line trenches.

A letter in a Toronto paper is headed "War Profiteers." Surely the thing has not got to that stage already.

A young girl in Erie, Pa., has been sleeping for four years. She has missed bright days and also a lot of troubled ones.

Toronto salesman was arrested in Chatham for being asleep in the wrong house. Surely people do not start to feel muddled when they get to Chatham.

The continent has gone back to standard time but that is about the only sign of normalcy to be noted in the world at the present moment.

A new horror of modern warfare will be the blasts of propaganda sent out over the air from enemy broadcasting stations.

Premier Aberhart has no luck with his legislation. Now the supreme court of the province has found his production tax to be ultra vires. And as Andy says —"that's bad."

The storm in the New England states last week resulted in $200,000,000 damages in a few hours. It would take modern bombing planes, powerful as they are, a long time to equal that record.

John Boyd, who lived in Barcelona for 56 years, is visiting in London, Ont., and says Franco will win the war in Spain. Just at the moment most folk are not even mildly interested in what is going on in Spain.

Somebody in Toronto has been giving fake orders for goods over the telephone while another misguided individual in Ottawa has been placing large stones on railway tracks. Those extensions to Ontario hospitals for the mentally ill would seem to be needed.

There was one man who passed the office just a few minutes ago. He walks with a cane and rather slowly. The reason is he was in the war which was to end all wars over 20 years ago. We couldn't help wondering if he recalled the purpose and the slogan of that war.

NEAR THE END

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I'm glad preserving season's through, perhaps there's one more job to do, on that I shall not dwell; I know the signs of many years, and words fall lightly on my ears, they're winding up the jell.

¶ There's not another jug around, an empty one cannot be found, the sealers too are filled; there's no more room to park the stuff, and if they make more than enough, it would I know be spilled.

¶ The Sunday sugar bowl I miss, I've known before of times like this, the gravy bowl's gone too; if folk came in on Sunday now, I often wonder when and how, we'd have enough to do.

¶ The vases where we put bouquets, have all been missing many days, I took them down myself; they're filled with pickled stuff I know, and now they're standing down below, I put them on a shelf.

¶ The water pitcher's gone by now, for it contains new sort of chow, the glasses are full up; so when we want to take a drink, we wander to the kitchen sink, and have to use a cup.

¶ Containers have run down so low, preserving's getting rather slow, we've neither jar nor pot; so when they reach that stage each year, I always know the time is near—when they will have to stop.

The History Of The Sudetens

(By Sonia Tomara in the Washington Post)

EVER SINCE Slavic tribes, chased from the east by the Avars, settled on the Bohemian plateau in the sixth century, warring began between them and the surrounding Teutons. Neither in these early times of the Middle Ages, nor later in the twelfth century, when peaceful German farmers and traders began to penetrate Bohemia, did the Slavs and the Germans merge into one homogeneous nation, as was the case in France or England.

For a whole millenary going from the 6th century to the sixteenth, the Czechs were the real masters of Bohemia, which all military exports consider to be the key to the Danubian region and to the southeast of Europe.

There were times when their realm extended over wide territories, as in the ninth century when Svatopluk created a great Moravian empire, or in the thirteenth century when under Wencaslas II all Hungary, part of Poland and part of Austria were included.

At other moments, German emperors—Charlemagne, Frederick Barbarossa or Rudolf of Hapsburg enforced their suzerainty on the kings of Bohemia.

In the thirteenth century, the Bohemian king was altogether with German princes, one of the seven electors of the emperor.

When the powerful Czech dynasty of the Pjemislids died out in 1306 and was replaced on the Bohemian throne by German princes of the house of Luxemburg, Bohemia remained independent and Czech language dominated in all its provinces.

But Germanization of Bohemian towns and of the outskirts of the kingdom—the regions now called Sudetenland—had begun.

A great part of the clergy was German. Trade and industry were in German hands. Literature became German. At that time it seemed that Slavs and Germans could unite. It was Bohemia's happiest time.

This golden age was brought to an abrupt end by the Hussite religious wars. Jan Huss' religious reform quickly became a Czech national movement against German priests and burgers.

The country was devastated by the violence of the conflict and German expansion was set back for a short time. But in 1526 Ferdinand of Hapsburg was elected king of Bohemia and for four centuries—until the end of the World War and the creation of the present Czechoslovak state—that country became united to the Austro-Hungarian Empire.

German language quickly took precedence over Czech, Germans were given better posts than the Czechs.

This led to an uprising of Czech nobility, their crushing defeat by the Germans at the White Mountain, the 30 years' war, and the stern punishment of the Czech rebels, whose land was confiscated and given over chiefly to Germans.

The outbreak of the World War made pan-Slavism blaze up in Bohemia. On the front Czech regiments went over to the enemy.

In Paris, London and later in Washington, Thomas Masaryk and Eduard Benes molded new Czechoslovakia.

October 28, 1918, the new state was proclaimed in Prague, while the Austro-Hungarian Empire crumbled. The frontiers of Czechoslovakia were set at Versailles and 3,500,000 German Bohemians were included into it.

These Germans tried to protest and demanded it be given over to Austria, but Czech troops forced them to silence, meeting little resistance among people exhausted by the war.

To The Editor

ARMY STRENGTH

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I have been asked by different people in the last month on the question of the possible war in the east with Germany. One man was good enough to tell me that England has not the fighting force in man power as in 1914-18. I am one of the men that fought in France and Belgium from 1916-1918; was there until part of 1919. I have on file the fighting strength of the nations and the small countries. The British Empire had 5,000,000 men in arms at the end of the world war and she can put the same today if need be.

Standing armies of the others:

Germany, 2,700,000.
Russia, 16,500,000. Russia has about 40 submarines in the Baltic Sea.
Poland, 2,050,000.
Italy, 8 250,000.
Czechoslovakia, 1,650,000.
France, 2,500,000; reserves, 1 000,000.
Yugoslavia, 1,700,000.
Rumania, 1 900,000.
Latvia, 210,000.
Austria, 80,000.
Hungary, 36,000.
Bulgaria, 33 000.
Turkey, 670,000.
Greece, 58,000.
Norway, 330,000.
Denmark, 75 000.
Sweden, 875,000.
Estonia, 100,000 (may go with Germany).
Lithuania, 70,000.
Finland, 370 000.

These figures including regular armies and organized reserves which will come out later.

Thanking you for space in the paper.

(New York Sun)

CZECHOSLOVAKIA is learning now what Ethiopia learned a short time since and what the Psalmist knew ages ago when he said, "Put not your trust in princes!" A synthetic state to begin with, put together out of odds and ends of peoples and territory accumulated out of the wreckage of the world war, it has had to depend for survival not on its own internal resources but on the support of greater powers whose ends it could serve.

It might have known all along that when it could no longer serve those ends or when these became less important than other ends—preservation of peace, for example—such support would be likely to collapse.

WHAT'S THE USE?

• A World That Has Failed

(Observer in Toronto Star.)

SUCH was the world in which I and millions more of decent, well-meaning Christian folk lived a brief half century ago. We knew that life had risks—risks of accident, of sickness, of failure of hopes, of disappointed ambitions, of unaccountable and distressing checks to ordinary business prosperity, but fear of any great national calamity we did not know. We belonged to the family of Britain and Britain feared no nation and no conceivable concert of nations. Even when a few years later she seemed for a time to stand alone a Canadian could proudly and defiantly speak of her "magnificent isolation." We believed that our civilization, particularly the civilization of the Protestant countries, though we were beginning to be dubious of the Germany of Bismarck and the kaiser. That such a civilization could be threatened did not enter into our minds to conceive. We could almost as easily have believed that the throne of God could be shaken.

✧ ✧ ✧

THAT in the friendly and democratic country to the south of us free citizens should be forced into industrial conditions more cruel than the slavery of the south; that the stimulating business competition in which we gloried should issue even in rich America into helpless poverty for millions; that two Protestant peoples could squander blood and treasure in the wholly unnecessary South African war; that Protestant countries like Germany on the one side and Great Britain and the United States on the other should be at each other's throats; that Greek Christianity should be well nigh suppressed in Russia, that Latin Christianity should find her own children rising up against her in Mexico and Spain; and, most appalling of all surprises, that the Christianity of the British Empire and the United States and France should not have been able to protect inoffensive China from the rapacity of Japan or innocent Ethiopia from the Italian wolves, Spanish democracy from foreign aid to its hereditary oppressors, or gallant little Czechoslovakia, the bastion of freedom in central Europe, from the devouring arrogance of one man, half-genius, half-madman and fundamentally wild beast, leave us no alternative but to say either that God is not concerned to protect what passes for Christianity among us or that the Christianity in which we have trusted was not Christianity but a fundamental heathenism only slightly camouflaged by a thin veneer, or a mere smear, of abstract Christianity. It may well be that only a most thorough-going and immediate repentance can save western civilization from the perils internal and external for which she is herself responsible.

• Consider This Wee Boatie

(Ottawa Journal)

WATERS of the Clyde will run high on Tuesday as the Queen Elizabeth slips down the ways in a launching ceremony to be graced by the Queen's presence. Glasgow will be en fete. If the 85,000 tons of ship turn turtle, proclamation of war over Czechoslovakia would find only the back page of the Glasgow Herald.

But this heaviest and longest of ships will not turn turtle. The launch will run "as scheduled," as rehearsed in miniature a thousand times under the proverbially cautious eyes of Scottish engineers.

Eighty-five thousand tons, about 4 000 more than the Queen Mary! One thousand and thirty-one feet long, 12 feet longer than the Queen Mary! And even the wariest of Scots will wager she'll exceed the Queen Mary's speed!

Such a ship staggers contemplation. Yet she is said to be designed like a yacht, trim and graceful, with two funnels instead of three and a great anchor at the bow giving her the rakish look of a young adventurer.

In three weeks the hull will be alongside the fitting-out berth, and in another 18 months she'll be shipshape. That is, if something 1,031 feet long and 130 feet high can be in the shape of a ship.

• They Keep Right On Gambling

By RALPH M. BLAGDEN

NEW YORK—When the Hines trial was only a week along, this writer stood outside 351 Lenox Avenue—the old policy racket headquarters—and heard two Negroes talking:

"I got a hunch I picked the right number today," one said.

At the country clubs there was the slap of cards on tables, with stakes from a quarter of a cent to 25 cents a point.

At a place on the West Side one night recently there was a sudden commotion as Police Commissioner Valentine's officers nabbed 13 men conducting a wireroom for placing and paying bets on horseraces.

In the New York Times latest index there were numerous references to the Hines trial—easily the major criminal trial in the nation at the time. Immediately following these entries was a reference to a prominent society woman who "—plans lottery to help Hot Springs hospital."

Almost any Sunday during the trial, the New Yorker could buy a certain newspaper and discover exactly what the odds were on the prospects for conviction, acquittal or a mistrial.

Now that proverbial but convenient "visitor from Mars" might observe that this was all very strange—to make such a noise about the conviction of a few men when there seemed to be so much gambling going on all the time. He probably would not be put off by the comment that "it is just one of those things," so you would have to start by explaining that gambling is very prevalent, and that this complicates the whole problem greatly.

You would have to explain all about beano, bingo, church fairs, charity lotteries and bridge. You would have to dig up those statistics and give him some such story as this:

It is estimated that from $3,000,000,000 to $10,000,000,000 is wagered each year on all modes of gambling; that $1,000 000,000 is wagered in playing the numbers, that millions of Americans probably play bridge for money once a week or so, that millions of dollars go into slot machines, fashionable casinos and fully-equipped gambling rooms in hundreds of American cities, and that additional millions are bet on prizefights, Mexican beans, football games and every other game about the outcome of which there is any doubt.

This fellow from Mars, who has a frightful reputation for being literal, would undoubtedly come forward with copies of State constitutions in which it is written that games depending upon chance instead of skill are unlawful.

But if you agree with this visitor that something should be done to elevate the level of consistency you are certain to run straight into at least two fixed poins of view, first, that gambling is deeply entrenched in human nature itself and, second that gambling is almost a national trait in the United States.

In support of the first viewpoint there is voluminous literature. The caveman, for instance, emerging from his cave for a day of "cave-manning," would return to sit all day if a cloud cast a shadow in a certain way. Primitive chiefs would pull shrubs from the ground, and if the roots came up, the signs were propitious and the chief would lead his men to the wars. Hannibal, the Great, would turn back from great enterprises if six birds suddenly flew in a certain formation across the blue Mediterranean.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

THE REVELATION of Jesus Christ, which God gave unto him, to show unto his servants things which must shortly come to pass; and he sent and signified it by his angel unto his servant John: who bare record of the word of God, and of the testimony of Jesus Christ, and of all things that he saw....

I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day, and heard behind me a great voice as of a trumpet, Saying, I am Alpha and Omega, the first and the last....

Write the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are, and the things which shall be hereafter..

And I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea.

And I John saw the holy city, New Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband.

And I heard a great voice out of heaven, saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God.

And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things are passed away.

And he that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new. —Rev. i, 1, 2, 10, 11, 19; xxi, 1-5.

"No," said Pat, looking down on the busy streets below, "but sure now, I'm afraid of walking off it!"

AFRAID TO MARRY

by HELEN WELSHIMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Judy Rogers, New York hearess, is stunned when Craig Denby, the man she loves, tells her on the phone that he has married a girl he met at a week-end house party. Afraid of marriage, Judy reflects she put Craig off once too many times. Then she phones her father's lawyers to learn the details of his financial crash, just announced in the newspapers, and talks with Ronald Birrell, a brilliant young attorney from Tennessee who has just joined the firm. Ronald both angers and fascinates Judy, doubting that she has the stamina to remain in New York and make her own way designing dresses which she says she likes to do. Judy's father tells her he is going west with her stepmother, assuming his daughter plans to join her mother abroad. Judy doesn't tell him her mother cabled, announcing other plans for the winter with her second husband.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 4

People passing on the street saw a slim girl, dark brown hair blowing in the cool autumn air, skirts whipped around slender ankles under a huge white polo coat. To them, she was buying a paper. Buying two papers.

They did not see her eyes. They were so frightened, so hurt, that the man who sold the papers looked away.

Judy hailed a taxicab. She could not go home just yet. She must stay outside where she could breathe. The top of the cab was rolled back. A dark sky, spangled with silver stars, hung over the city. A moon rolled along lazily, as though grown too big for its mission. Yet the night was misty. It might rain.

She opened the papers. Ah, there was Craig! The half-crooked grin she knew so well. The amused eyebrows. The keen glance. Craig, with the face of a strange girl in an inset. No, it was the other way around, of course. The girl took up most of the space and Craig was the inset. She laughed hysterically. To her Craig's face filled the page, obliterated the girl entirely.

Judy controlled herself, checked the laughter that wasn't laughter but a harsh, brittle sound. This girl had no right on this page. She was pretty. Probably she was sweet and appealing. She could make Craig feel that he was as necessary to her happiness as roses are to June, or —butter to a baked potato. She smiled over the homely simile. This was Mary.

She picked up the other paper. She leaned forward in sudden interest. It was her own picture that graced the front page. She turned to the story. I related briefly that the young society man, stock broker and polo player, had unexpectedly wedded a radio entertainer just as the Rogers' fortune crashed. It went on to explain that society had been expecting an engagement between Craig and Judy.

Ronald Birrel would read about this! She sat up in shocked surprise at the thought. But what if he did? Why should she care? She never would see the man again. She wouldn't have to face his pity.

She tapped the dividing glass between her seat and the cab driver's and asked him to take her home. Once there she undressed and lay for a long time in a warm bath in the great white tub in th big green and white bathroom that belonged to her bedroom. She was rested and calm when the telephone rang.

Someone would be offering sympathy about the money or about Craig. Maybe she wouldn't answer. Yet all of the time she was slipping into a negligee and slippers and crossing the floor.

"Hello," she said softly.

"Judy!"

Her heart turned over twice and began to roll down hill at the sound of that voice. Resolutely she grabbed the wandering cardiac organ and restored it to its usual place. So Craig had called her.

"Yes, Craig. But I thought you were out at sea."

"I will be in half an hour. That is, maybe I won't be. Judy, this is terrible! I just heard. I've been such a selfish galoot, all wrapped up in my own affairs today, I forgot you said that you needed me when you called, until I saw those papers a while ago. I've been calling for an hour. Where were you?"

Where were you? So often he had asked that question, and she had answered for, even though she would not marry him then, somehow it had seemed his right to know.

"Just on an errand," she answered. An errand, Craig, that was all about you, she added silently. I wanted to read about your marriage in the newspaper. You see, I have to believe you are gone, since you are, and I can't—I can't.

"I'm so sorry about the wheel of fortune spinning in the wrong direction. What can I do to help, Judy darling?"

"You're sweet to bother, Craig, but there isn't anything. We'll be fine."

"Of course you will be. Your father's one of the ablest men on the Street. He'll come back. But, just at the moment, what are your plans?"

She spoke carefully. "My father thinks it best for me to join my mother."

"Soon, Judy?"

"Almost at once." (Only I won't be taking a boat, Craig. I'll be packing my trunks and my books and prints and moving to a room somewhere, and hunting a job. Nobody will know it. Not you or my father or even Ronald Birrell.)

"I want to see you, Judy. May I drop by on the way to the boat?"

That would be wonderful — that would be terrible. . . . She hesitated. He spoke while she considered.

"I'm so sorry about the implications in the news stories, Judy. Everyone who knows us understands. But I was a fool! I don't know why I plunged into matrimony this way. I should have done it decently and in order. But I didn't think you would need me."

"Do you love her, Craig?" Very gently Judy asked.

"Yes, Judy, I do." The simplicity told more than any lavish phrases might have done.

"Then be glad, Craig. Take love when it comes. I guess that's best. I'm just such a coward I can't believe it lasts."

(But I almost did, Craig — almost. I would have married you, had you waited a few more hours. Now I know I was right. Love doesn't last, unless you get your heart broken and then it hurts and hurts, the way mine is doing now. You taught me that, my dear.)

Craig, not suspicious of thoughts that were steeped so deeply behind the low words she spoke, answered:

"I hope some day someone will change your mind for you, Judy. Is there anything I can do now? Please let us drop by."

Let — us — drop — by. With one little word Craig closed the door that stood open between them, even now. Closed it and locked it for all time.

"No, Craig, I want to make a dazzling impression on your wife, and I'm sunk under my burdens tonight. Next month when you come back."

"The first night we're home, Judy. Is it a date?"

"It is."

"It's a date I won't keep,' she told the telphone. "That's over."

It was starting to rain. The water came with a monotonous beat aginst the roof and slanted upon the windows. She closed them, and rang for a maid.

"The trunks, Marie. I might start to pack now."

"But, Miss Judy, I'll attend to that for you."

"I know you will, Marie. You're a darling. But I'd like to see a trunk. Just to have it around to touch makes me feel active. I can't realize I'm awake."

The maid hesitated. She had served the family a long time.

"If it's about Mr. Craig, Miss Judy, don't fret. He loved you first. He'll come back. I know it."

Judy's eyes were almost angry as she answered. "Oh, no Marie. He mustn't. I don't want warmed-over love. I always said marriage didn't last, love was a myth, nice for light operetta, and I thought I believed it. Now it happened that way— I was right — and I don't know why I'm so surprised. But it's all right, Marie. You won't mention it to anyone?"

"No, Miss Judy. But you wait. Love may get sidetracked for a while, but when it's love, it finds its way back.'

Judy smiled. "Maybe, Marie, but somebody has to be hurt. And I hate hurts."

She bound back her brown curls with a gold ribbon, slipped into bright shade, and mules that matched. She would sort some old programs and souvenirs for saving. Then she would read herself to sleep. The book she wanted was in the library. No need to trouble Marie gain. She would get it. In the wide hallway, outside the library door, she stopped.

A tall young man with rough, red hair and amazed gray eyes, was standing there, watching her approach.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

Finally the crab told Hanid and Knarf and Simple Simon how they could make themselvse heavy enough to stay at the bottom of the ocean. For, in spite of what you may think, it is not easy to stay deep under water. The moment the two shadow children and Simon had taken a step along the bottom, they had sprung right up as though they were balloons. Goodness knows how far they would have floated off if the crab hadn't come along and aided them get to bottom again. You see, they had made up their minds to catch Simple Simon's whale. They had seen the whale hiding behind an underwater rock not far off.

Tells Them How.

"Yes," said the crab, chuckling merrily, "it's pretty hard to keep from floating off, especially when you don't belong in the ocean in the first place. But I'll tell you how you can make yourself heavy enough to stay under water as long as you please. Have you any pockets?' He chuckled again to see his three friends holding fast to an underwater tree to keep from floating off.

"Yes, but how will that help us stay down?" Knarf asked.

"Fill your pockets with sand," the crab said simply. "Then see what happens."

Hanid and Knarf and Simple Simon filled their pockets with sand from the ocean floor. In an instant they felt heavy again.

"I can see his tail from here."

"Oh, we're able to stand on our feet!" Hanid exclaimed.

"We can walk again! We don't float off!" Simon shouted joyfully.

"And now let's find that whale," Knarf said.

"We'll get to that whale in no time", said the crab. "There he is—behind that rock. I can see his tail from here. Follow me."

The nearer they got to the whale, the bigger he looked.

"Frightened?" chuckled the crab.

"Oh, n-no," said Knarf. "I don't care anything about whales."

"He pretty big, all right," whispered Hanid.

"M-maybe we s-shouldn't bother him n-now," Simon stammered.

Mothers Should Begin Early To Correct Faults Of Speech As Well As Other Deficiencies In Their Children, Because That Is The Habit-Forming Time; They Will Be Saved Trouble Later

DEAR MISS DIX—We have two young children. When I correct their English and their manners my husband resents it and insists that they will outgrow their faults and that, anyway, no child should be heckled about what it does. I do not feel that simple corrections, lovingly made, should be considered heckling, but I am very anxious to do what is right by the children and would like your views on this matter.

MRS. A. L. V.

ANSWER:

You are entirely right in correcting the children's manners and mode of speech, because they are at the habit-forming time of life and the way they learn to talk and to do things now will stamp them as cultured or uncultured to their dying day.

No matter what a veneer of education and sophistication we acquire later in life, our early training breaks through it in times of stress. A famous orator once told me that when he got swept away by his own eloquence in making a speech, he always said "git," because he had said it as a child.

And not long ago I had as a dinner partner a man who had been honored all over this country and Europe for his learning, but he still manipulated his knife and fork as if they were agricultural implements, as he had been permitted to do in his infancy.

Many people, like your husband, hold to the optimistic theory that if you will let children alone they will outgrow their faults and automatically turn from being little savages into polished, elegant men and women of the world. Never was there a more baseless belief. The habits we acquire in childhood stick to us almost as closely as our own epidermis, and later on, when we try to rid ourselves of them, the process is almost as painful as being skinned alive.

That is why it is so important that children should be taught good table manners, to speak correctly and to be courteous and considerate of others, all the little niceties of observances that we lump under the head of good manners, from the very cradle. It saves them not only from having to make themselves over, but gives them an ease and poise that are a letter of introduction wherever they go.

To do this requires that a mother should do a certain amount of what your husband calls heckling, for telling a child once to do a thing makes no impression upon him. It is only after you have told little Johnny ten thousand times not to talk with his mouth full, to take off his hat when he comes in the house, not to use double negatives and not to mispronounce his words that you finally turn him into a well-mannered little gentleman who speaks correctly.

But it takes line upon line and precept upon precept and "don't" upon "don't" to do it, and it is what turns mothers old before their time, unless the fathers will lend a hand at the job.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—For sixteen years I have been a good and faithful wife, but in the last months I have fallen desperately in love with another woman's husband. He has three fine sons and I have a lovely little daughter of 15. This man and his wife have been our friends for twelve years, and during all of this time we have not been attracted to each other. Now suddenly out of a clear sky comes the realization that we love each other. When I am with him it is heaven on earth; parted, it is hell. We have met clandestinely, but the realization that things cannot go on like this is driving me toward a nervous breakdown. He says he will do what I think is best, but honestly I don't know what is best. Shall we take our love illicitly or shall we make a clean breast of it and face the music? Either course will wreck two happy homes and bring disgrace on four of the loveliest children in the world. What shall I do?

WRETCHED.

ANSWER:

You know the answer. You know that there is only one righteous solution to a problem like this, and that is for you and the man to have the courage, the manhood and the womanhood to give each other up and never see each other again. And don't dally with temptation. Make the break clean and complete, before it is too late.

No matter what suffering it causes you to give each other up, you have no right to sacrifice your innocent families to your passion. There are the man's good wife and his fine sons, your good husband and your little daughter to be considered before your own happiness.

Think of them and put away any thought of breaking up your home for the sake of living in a love nest yourself, and shut your teeth upon any confession that would force your family to sacrifice itself to let you gratify your desires. Buck yourselves up to do your duty by your mates and your children and let all the rest be silence.

And believe me, you will find greater happiness in doing the hard right thing than you would in doing the easy wrong thing, for you and your lover are not the light-principled people who sin gayly. If you do this thing that you are tempted to do, you will never know a moment's peace or joy in each other. Your consciences will reproach you. Your self-respect will be gone. And your longing for the children you have given up and who are ashamed of you will blot out your love for each other.

Forget this mad flare of passion that has burned up so suddenly in your heart. Put it out. Overcome it. You can if you will. There is something more worth while having in life than love, and that is the integrity of your own soul and the knowledge that you had the strength to do your duty.

• • • • • • •

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—My fiance insists upon my visiting him in his apartment. I refused because I told him that I could not do so without giving rise to gossip, and over this we had our first quarrel. Which one of us is right?

BEWILDERED.

ANSWER:

You are right. No girl can go to a mans' apartment alone without setting every tongue in the neighborhood wagging and having every one think the worst of it. Don't do it. If your fiance had any regard for your reputation he wouldn't ask you to do such a thing.

A day of mixed influence again is read from the rule of important planets. While there may be advancement or recognition in employment, with superiors and those in authority friendly disposed, also there is an omen of frustration, with delays or postponements which may have a depressing effect. However, the mind may be able to concentrate on balky situations, and the judgment may be depended upon, thus swinging delays or seeming defeats in favorable channels.

Those whose birthday it is may be ready to turn some seeming obstacles into fortunate results by wise judgment, patience and persistency taking advantage of difficult situations and bringing to bear the powerful and friendly influence of employers, superior or elderly persons.

A child born on this day may be clever, serious and have fine mental ability which may be turned to very practical, constructive work, pleasing to its employers or superiors.

Summer Rains Revive Prairie Bogs Bring Hordes Of Ducks, Hunters

WINNIPEG, Sept. 27—(CP). — Plentiful rainfall throughout Western Canada during the past summer filled marshy areas, long dry after almost a decade of drought, and provided feeding grounds for one of the heaviest flights of ducks in recent years.

Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta all report increased numbers of hunters and birds. Included in the list of shooters are many from United States, best known of whom is motion picture star Clark Gable.

Gable arrived in Winnipeg from Minneapolis this week after a quiet trip from Hollywood. He is guest of Jimmy Robinson of Minneapolis at a Lake Manitoba camp and on the first day out was reported to have shot his daily quota of 12 canvasbacks. Bag limit across the Prairies is 12 ducks a day and 100 a season.

The Manitoba duck season opened Sept. 20 and will run till November 15.

W. H. Wallace, Alberta Game Commissioner, said there are increased numbers of hunters and birds in his province this season. Last season approximately 8,000 hunters contributed $16,000 in licence fees to the Alberta Game Department.

Governor Hovey Emphasizes Rotary Ideals

(Examiner Correspondence:)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 27. — Rotarians gathered to hear District Governor Harry Hovey of Geneva, N.Y., who paid his official visit to the club here on Monday evening. Speaking before one of the largest gatherings that this club has had in over a year, Governor Hovey urged members to keep in mind the chief principle of Rotary, "Service above self." "Rotary," said the speaker, "stands for all that is best and worth while in the community."

Men from all nations of the world have given their time freely that they might serve in the interest of Rotary and only because they believe in the principles of Rotary. It will grow any place that it has been planted if it is permitted to grow and it is only in certain of the totalitarian nations that it has been disbanded. But, continued Mr. Hovey, who has been a Rotarian for the past nineteen years, "all great movements experience some difficulties." Emphasizing its growth the speaker told of his visit to an isolated club in South Africa which was located three thousand miles from the seat of its district governor.

Everyone's Duty.

The most important committee is the one you are on and the success of the club comes as the result of everyone lifting a little. In the Club in Jerusalem there are represented seventeen different nationalities and these men gather together once a week and break bread together. "There is no other flag or organization in the entire world where these men could meet under such similar conditions and with such a friendly feeling towards each other. "and that to my mind is one of the greatest things in Rotary."

Urging members to keep high their attendance record he pointed out that this was particularly important in the smaller clubs especially. "There are only exceptional circumstances when a member should be unable to attend," he said, drawing attention to the record of Dr. Charles Mayo, one of the busiest men in the United States," who has not missed a meeting in six years.

An Eventful Week.

"This may be one of the most eventful weeks in the history of the world, we don't know what is coming nor do we know when or where war will break out with millions of men lined up on the borders of European countries walking up and down 'with chips on their shoulders.' No good ever comes of fighting, everybody loses."

Referring to his visit to the Kingston Club on the occasion of the opening of the bridge at Ivey Lea, he drew sharp contrast to this bridge and its purposes to make easier the access of both countries to the people of each nation as compared to the borders in Europe which bristled with guns and forts to keep them out. "All this is simply because these two nations believe in peace and they have further proved this by the fact that three thousand miles of common border go unprotected. Rotary has peace as its main objective and although we have already accomplished much in this direction we are still devoting considerable study to it and will as time goes on be able to accomplish more and more."

"Fellowship is a wonderful thing but it is not only by meeting once a week and calling each other by first names that makes it important, it is what we accomplish throughout the year. There is nothing in the world that will make us so happy and give us riches as to do something for somebody else. Just give to Rotary the best that you have and the best will come back to you," he concluded.

Mr. George Lucy was guest soloist of the occasion and among the other guests were all those who assisted in booths at the recent Rotary Carnival.

Two Cars Collide At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 27. — Only slight damage resulted when two cars collided at the corner of George and Canrobert Streets at noon on Monday. It was the third accident to occur at this location during the past year and since the view in all directions is unobstructed police do not regard the fact with any particular significance. John Campbell was the driver of the vehicle going south and W. R. Hunter of Cardinal was in charge of the other car, which it is alleged was endeavoring to negotiate a left turn at the time of the collision. Damage to Hunter's car was estimated at fifty dollars.

Kinmount Resident Remanded For Theft

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Sept. 27.—A resident of Kinmount named Askey, was arrested on Sunday by Provincial Constable Adair and Corporal Woods, R.C.M.P., on a charge of theft. It is alleged that the accused entered the home of Miss Kate Gaffigan in that village on Sunday morning, wearing a mask and carrying a toy pistol. He demanded money and brandished the pistol, which the elderly woman thought was a real weapon. When she refused to hand over her money, the accused beat a retreat. Askey came before Magistrate Gee Monday morning and was remanded for a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Batchelor, of Haliburton, celebrated the 57 anniversary of their wedding on Sunday. A reunion was held in Minden at the residenec of their daughter, Mrs. Harry Easton.

The sudden death took place at Fenelon Falls on the week-end of an old resident of the village, in the person of Margaret Jordan, sister of ex-Magistrate G. A. Jordan of Lindsay. Death came while she was sitting chatting with an old friend, Miss A. M. Robson. She was a lifelong resident of the district.

The death is announced of John Thomas Currins, a pioneer resident of this district, and a brother of Mrs. Margaret Moore, of Peterborough. Mr. Currins, who was in his eighty-seventh year, was born in South Monaghan and came with his parents to Fenelon Township when he was quite young. After living in that township for some years, he moved to Ops, where he served in the township council and was also an assessor. He was a member of L.O.L. No. 96, Dunsford.

During the business session it was decided to hold a fowl supper on Wednesday, November 2 in connection with the anniversary services on Sunday, October 30.

Committees were appointed to secure the fowl and Mrs. E. A. Bradburn, Mrs. Hamilton and Rev. M. A. Bury were apponted to arrange a program.

The treasurer's report was most gratifying, proceeds from sale of recipe books to date, $105.40, from sale of home cooking at the lake $123.00. After paying $140.00 to church purposes there remains in the bank over $100.

The president thanked all those who had assisted in the sale of recipe books and home cooking and also those who loaned cars.

As this was the "grandmother's" meeting the program was along suitable lines: Reading "Hide and Go Seek", Mrs. C. Deyell; paper, "The Blessings and Opportunities of Old Age", written by Rev. M. A. Bury and given in his absence by Mrs. M. Armstrong; reading, "Grandma" (Edgar Guest) by Mrs. A. Heaslip.

The roll call of grandmothers was read by the secretary, Mrs. J. R. McGee and as the grandmother's assembled at the front they were presented with bouquets by the immediate past president, Mrs. Sara E. Bradburn.

Futile To Worry Teacher Advises

REGINA, Sept. 27—(CP)—People in Western Canada would be more content if they abandoned their worry and bustle and adopted the lackadaisical philosophy of Egyptians, in the opinion of Olive Jones of Cairo, a teacher employed by the Egyptian government.

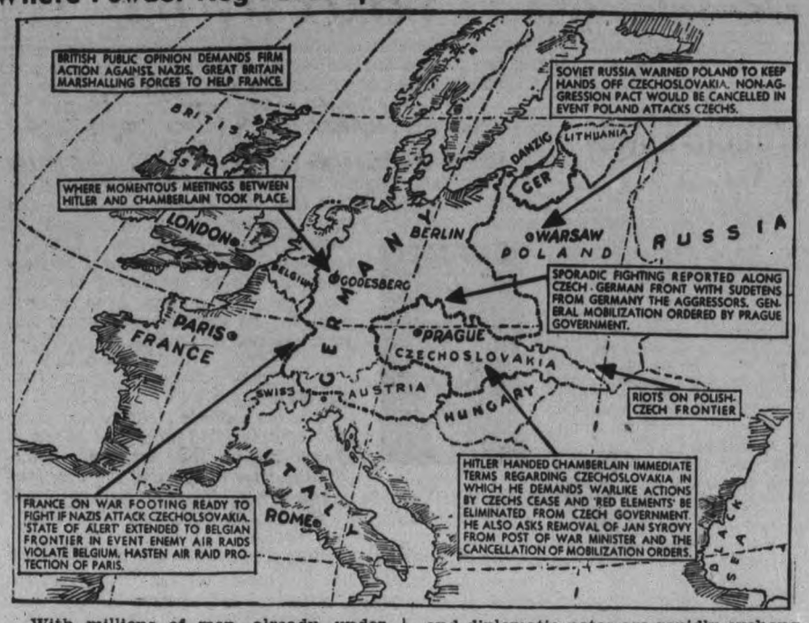
Miss Jones, holidaying in Canada, said Egyptians never worry. "The peasants are poor, but contented. The key word of their whole philosophy is 'malesh' which means 'it doesn't matter.' Try to worry them, they will shrug. Malesh brushes away al cares."

She said another favorite word is "Insha-Allah" which means "if God wills."

"They never hurry to do anything," Miss Jones said. "If you ask them at the hotel to bring breakfast at a certain hour, they assure you nothing. 'Insha-Allah' is always the reply. And if things go wrong, it is Allah they blame."

Expressing belief Canada would be happier with this easy-come, easy-go philosophy, Miss Jones said she had never been happier since adopting it. "It is so futile to worry about everything," she concluded.

Where Powder Keg Fuses Sputter



With millions of men already under arms and the major powers of Europe girding their land, sea and air forces for possible war, this map, ABOVE, shows where the powder keg fuses of Europe threaten to ignite. While statesmen confer and diplomatic notes are rapidly exchanged, the situation seemingly is becoming more acute. Arrows show where Dictator Hitler and peacemaker Chamberlain met and where armies have massed to prepare for eventualities.

Litvinoff Proposes British, French, Russian Army, Naval, Air Forces

"My Government now has studied the document and map (presented by Hitler). . . . . "It is a De Facto ultimatum of a sort usually presented to a vanquished nation and not a proposition to a sovereign state which has shown the greatest possible readiness to make sacrifices for the appeasement of Europe.

"Not the smallest trace of such readiness for sacrifices has yet been manifested by Mr. Hitler's Government.

"My Government is amazed at the contents of the memorandum. The proposals go far beyond what we agreed to in the so-called Anglo-French plan.

"They deprive us of every safeguard for our national existence."

THE CZECH STAND.

Sunday's Note.

The note dated Sunday significantly became public to-day, just after Hitler's strong speech yesterday. It continued:

"We dare not yield up large proportions of our carefully prepared defences and admit German armies deep into our country before we have been abel to organize it on a new basis or make any preparations for its defence.

Out national and economic independence would automatically disappear with the acceptance of Hitler's plan.

"The whole process of moving the population is to be reduced to panic flight on the part of those who will not accept the German Nazi regime.

"They have to leave their homes without even the right to take their personal belongings or even, in the case of peasants, their cows."

Authoritative London sources Sunday listed Hitler's "final" demands as: The cession of certain Sudeten areas so marked on a map submitted by Hitler; plebiscites in other marked areas; final delimitation of the frontier to correspond to the wishes of those concerned; creation of a situation of parity; occupation by German troops of areas designated on the map without taking into account whether in a plebiscite they might prove to be in an area with a Czech majority—with the same provision for Czech military occupation of certain areas;

Withdrawal of the whole Czech armed forces, police, gendarmarie, customs officials and frontier guards from the area to be evacuted; evacuated territory to be relinquished in its present condition; discharge of all Sudeten Germans in Czech army or police forces; liberation of all German political prisoners; the plebiscites to take place before Nov. 25 at the latest under control of an international commission; establishment of a German-Czech commission to settle further details.

Fooling Northerners

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont., Sept. 27 (C.P.). — The North must be getting soft when residents are fooled by what appears to be Northern Lights. Kirkland Lake people were sure they witnessed a peculiar aurora display when they saw a flashing light in the sky. They were wrong, however. The light came from the new airport beacon at Earlton, 22 miles distant.

Valera Advocates Peace Conference

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—(AP)—Eamon De Valera, president of the League of Nations Assembly and Prime Minister of Eire, yesterday urged a "general European peace conference" as the solution to the Czechoslovakian crisis and future similar situations.

"Not always will we have someone to do what Mr. Chamberlain has done," he said in a broadcast from Geneva through Columbia broadcasting system.

Such a conference, he said, "is overdue."

"If nations be called to make certain sacrifices at such a conference, these will be far less than the sacrifices they will have to make in time of war," Mr. De Valera asserted.

Sears Committed To Stand Trial

LINDSAY, Ont., Sept. 27—(CP)—Mark Sears was committed to-day by Magistrate E. A. Gee for trial at the Fall Assizes on a charge of shooting his brother with intent to maim.

The brother, Thomas Sears, was the only witness called to-day. He said the shooting occurred Aug. 25 last.

"I saw my brother pointing a sawed-off .32 rifle at me when I was shingling the roof of my house at 6.30 in the morning," Sears told the Judge.

"I hollered at him and then he shot," Thomas said.

"I threw the hatchet I was tarrying at him, and he shot me in the left hip as the hatchet left my hand. I fell from the roof unconscious and I was taken to the Lindsay hospital for two weeks," Thomas testified.

Earl Askey, 29, of nearby Kinmount, was charged in police court to-day with attempted robbery and Magistrate E. A. Gee remanded him a week for sentence.

Provincial Constable David Adair said Askey entered the home of Miss Kate Gavigan, elderly Kinmount resident, yesterday and demanded money. When she refused to hand over any money, Adair said Askey fled.

Mission Circle Members Hold Fall Rally

An enthusiastic group of Mission Circle members met in their 9th annual fall rally Monday night in Knox United church.

Taking the form of a supper meeting a really sumptuous banquet was laid for 140 girls. The table were lovely with asters and marigolds and made a pretty setting for the interesting program which followed.

Eunice Thexton of Knox Circle, and Effie Rowe, of St. James' acted as registrars, when representatives from Circles at Hastings, George St., Knox, St. Andrew's, Trinity and St. James' registered.

After the opening hymn, "Christ For the World," was heartily sung, prayer was offered by the pastor, Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt.

Connie Wagar, Presbyterial Circle secretary, who presided throughout, cordially welcomed the large delegation to this rally, and introduced the guest speaker, Miss Marie Crosby, now on furlough from Africa.

Greetings to girls were brought in brief addresses by Mrs. W. H. Morton, Presbyterial President, who stressed for their emulation 'study,' 'pray' and 'give.' She also brought many concrete suggestions to be worked out by the various circles.

Challenge to Girls.

A Mission Circle secretary for the Bay of Quinte Conference branch, Mrs. Ernest Mesley brought a real challenge to the girls for maintaining the high standard set last year. She also gave a fine report of the summer school for leaders, held at Whitby, outlining the various activities and urging the girls to send delegates again this year.

A delightful vocal solo, "Now the Day is Over," by Isabel Weddell, St. Andrew's Circle, was accompanied at the piano by Musa Cox.

The roll call was combined with the presentation of the efficiency banner and the prize for the best missionary poster.

The basis upon which this banner is awarded, covers every phase of Circle work from January 1 to June 30. The successful group this year was the Frances Watt, Mission Circle of Knox United Church, whose president, Irma Darling, received it on their behalf.

Poster Contest

In the poster contest, the entry from George Street Circle was judged the best, and a missionary book presented as the prize.

"The World in Canada," the new study book for Circles, was given a fine introduction and a comprehensive summary presented by Corona Hanbidge, the Presbyterial delegate to the Whitby Summer School this year. She reviewed briefly the life of the author, Rev. J. I. MacKay, B.A., B.D., and told of his purpose in writing this book for study.

An interesting feature of the evening was the presentation to Mrs. Mesley, the lately retired Presbyterial Circle secretary, of the gift of a fine painting, and an address of appreciation read by Jessie Lamb of Hastings, while Jessie Martin, St. James presented the gift.

Mrs. Mesley graciously responded and thanked the girls for this expression of their love and loyalty to her.

Of unusual interest was the very human story of African girlhood, brought by the guest speaker, Miss Marie Crosby, who has served in Angola in the American Board of Missions. "It is something to know that the girls here care," said the speaker, who based her address chiefly upon the work done in girls camps, which are a comparatively new idea in Africa and are operated without touching her budget.

Where there are 500 girls in an area, only thirty may be touched in regular station work, while through the camps 225 are reached for at least ten days. Some of the girls travel on foot for six days in order to reach such a camp, and each must carry her own food.

On behalf of the Rally girls Ethel Robson of George Street Circle voiced their thanks to Miss Crosby and all assisting in the success of the meeting, which was brought to a conclusion with prayer offered by Mrs. A. I. Brown, representing the conference branch as its first vice-president.

Other guests at the Rally included Mrs. A. E. Sanderson, President of Knox W.M.S.; Mrs. Wm. Stevens, Presbyterial literature secretary; Mrs. H. Clegg, 1st vice-president of Peterborough Presbyterial and honorary president of the Banner Mission Circle; Mrs. F. W. Craik, St. James, and Mrs. Wagar, Presbyterial press secretary.

The programs for the Rally were provided through the generosity of Nellie Douglass of George Street Circle.

PROLIFIC CITRONS

Another example of the greater production by local gardens this year was the harvesting of sixty citrons from three hills by Walter Johnson, 202 King street.

CHAMBER TO MEET

A meeting of the Chamber of Commerce has been called for Thursday evening. Several items of business are listed for consideration.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE.

When his mother appeared in court and consented to go on his bond, the young man who pleaded guilty to the theft of a bicycle was to-day allowed to go on suspended sentence for one year by Magistrate Langley.

MANY VISIT DREAM HOUSE.

Close to 1,000 persons have visited the Kiwanis Dream House since it was first opened for inspection, Club President L. J. Pettit said to-day. "We are looking forward to our Carnival on Thursday and Friday nights, and are confident it will be a huge success," he said.

NOT A GOOD EXCUSE.

Charged with drunkenness a local man told Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court to-day that he had several broken ribs. "Do you think we ought to let him off because he has broken ribs," the magistrate remarked to Chief Constable Newhall. The latter did not seem to think much of the idea and a fine of $10 and $3 costs was imposed.

A MINOR ACCIDENT.

David McGrath, 275 Romaine street, reported to the police Monday that as he was driving his automobile south of Part street and making a turn at Romaine street, his machine was struck and had a front wheel damaged by another car proceeding north on Park street. Mr. McGrath failed to obtain the name of the other driver or his license number.

WAS RELATED HERE.

James Simpson of Toronto, mayor of the Queen City three years ago, who was fatally injured in a traffic accident Saturday, was the uncle of Herb. W. Cardwell of Wallace Point. He was an occasional visitor to the home of his sister, Mrs. R. A. Cardwell, the last time being about six weeks ago. Several years ago he addressed the Peterborough U. F. O. at their picnic at Wallace Point, and was rather widely known in this city as a life long labor man, and also as an active promotor of the cause of temperance.

NO MORE ADJOURNMENTS

A strict warning from Magistrate Langley that adjournments in liquor cases will soon be a thing of the past in the local police court was handed out to a man charged with illegal consumption on Monday. The accused had received an adjournment until today and this morning asked for another week. The request was granted but the Magistrate declared that henceforth persons who wanted to get drunk would have to be prepared to face the consequences.

140-POUND PUMPKIN

It was "some pumpkin," visitors from this city to Belleville last week agreed when they saw a huge pumpkin atop a trailer in downtown Belleville. The men, attending a farewell dinner to Grain Inspector William Michael, said the pumpkin weighed between 140 and 150 pounds, was grown by Miller Carl, of Stirling, was of the mammoth field variety. A mammoth squash, also grown by Mr. Carl, was atop the trailer and weighed more than a hundred pounds.

HUNDREDS OF JOB SEEKERS.

Anyone who doubted that Peterboroughs young unemployed do not want work and would not take it if it were offered to them—a theory often advanced by crotchety oldsters—would have had his eyes opened on Monday if he had paused in front of the Quaker Oats Company at about 8.30 o'clock. News that the large company had hired a few men in the past few days brought literally hundreds fo job seekers to the employment office, Hunter St. bridge was crowded on both sides as they filed hopefully into the building only to file disconsolately out a short time later.

IN DANGEROUS LOCATION.

For Emil Baumer, George Street, the news from Europe these days is more terrifying than to most Peterborough people. A native of the disputed Alsace-Lorraine district which France took over from the Germans in 1914—after the Germans had confiscated it from the French after the Prussian conquest of 1870—his parents are still residing there. Or at least they were three months ago, when Emil last heard from them. Since that time he has received no word, is worried about them. One report a few weeks ago said that the entire district where his parents made their home had been evacuated, while another later one more or less denied the first. In any event they are in a dangerous location should war break loose.

USING THE TOMATOES.

Rev. Dr. E. W. Young of St. Andrew's Church, believes there is opportunity for extending an idea which came to his notice recently as a means for making good use of the excessive crop of tomatoes in the district. In response to an inquiry from the Examiner Dr. Young said he had tried out the plan with success. "I found growers who had tomatoes which were not needed and which would probably be wasted. I took my car and with a little assistance we secured twenty baskets on one trip and these were distributed to families in my congregataion where we knew they would be acceptable. They were preserved or turned into tomato juice instead of being wasted. It might be that others would like to try the same plan as I know those to whom we took the baskets were pleased to receive them."

Trouble Likely In West Indies In Near Future

Trouble in the near future with the native population in some of the West Indian Islands was predicted by Dr. A. Moir in an interesting and informative talk to the members of the Peterborough Rotary Club Monday on the trip he made earlier in the year to the West Indies. Dr. Moir based this prediction on two things, first the fact that the radio had taught the natives that other workers elsewhere were living under much better conditions and secondly because brighter native boys and girls were, through scholarships, enabled to complete their education in Great Britain and they were convinced that circumstances should be improved for their people at home.

Introduced by President Jas. Dutton, Dr. Moir outlined the geographical and historical features of the West Indian group and declared that the extent of these islands was not thoroughly appreciated. The speaker described his visit to such places as St. Thomas, Antigua, Martinique, St. Lucia, St. Vincent, Trinidad, Barbadoes and the features of all these islands were outlined in most interesting fashion. Port of Spain in Trinidad he said was the New York of the whole West Indies and there folk from all over the world were to be found.

Incidentally Dr. Moir told an amusing story of an experience he had in a store in Port of Spain where the clerk, thinking he came from the United States, asked him what he thought of President Roosevelt and then discovering that the doctor was a citizen of Canada exclaimed "Do you know Mitch Hepburn."

"I asked him," said Dr. Moir, "if he wanted us to lend him to them for a while."

The speaker said Trinidad was of great importance to the British Empire. Its oil fields could produce enough oil to outfit the whole Royal navy.

Rotarian Dr. H. R. H. Kenner proposed a vote of thanks to the speaker for his most enjoyable address.

Voting On War

CHICAGO, Sept. 27—(AP).—The attitude of Illinois voters toward war will be determined at the Nov. 8 elections. The Illinois referendum is a "public policy" question, the handiwork of William Hale (Big Bill) Thompson, former Mayor of Chicago. He wants the State to take the unusual step of going on record against participation by the United States in a foreign war.

Britain's Defence Falls On Their Shoulders

Air Marshal Sir Edward Ellington, LEFT, and Sir Roger Backhouse, First Sea Lord, RIGHT, will be largely responsible for the defence of Britain should war break out in the near future. Working in close co-operation with the French military command, the British high command have evolved a plan whereby British and French land forces will join arms under French leadership. France will place her air force and navy under the command of the British. To the British navy will fall the responsibility of blockading Germany and engaging the German fleet in naval battle, if any. The French fleet will undertake convoy and patrol work to leave the British fleets free to operate in the North Sea and the Mediterranean.

Plenty Of Tame Raspberries Ripe, Fish Are Biting In Hastings Area

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Sept. 27.—Tame raspberries as ripe and delicious as in mid-summer were picked from a small patch over the weekend owned by Fred Foster of Toronto. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Mace of Toronto, who have been holidaying at the cottage, said they had all the berries they could eat for the past week.

Francis Kennedy, local youth and fisherman of no small ability, said he had caught fourteen pickerel from the Hastings bridge Saturday evening between 10.30 and 2 a.m. Sunday. This would serve to illustrate how well the fish have been biting lately. His catch was made, seven before midnight and seven after, and so his catch was legal.

A preview of the movies taken in Hastings and district was witnessed by members of the council and others in the council chambers here Saturday evening. The pictures were shown just as they had been taken and have yet to be edited.

Child Suffers Minor Injuries

Gerald, the 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Willis, 520 Sherbrooke street, received minor injuries to his head and legs Monday afternoon when he collided with the side of an automobile, driven by W. S. Rose, 265 Rubidge street.

According to the driver's report to the police the little boy ran out from the side of the road as Mr. Rose was driving west on Sherbrooke street and came into contact with the front fender of the car.

The driver picked the injured lad up and took him to his home and afterward to the office of Dr. Yellland where it was found that his injuries were not serious.

The Animals Kick

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27—(AP). The end of Daylight Saving Time created a sensation at the Zoo, where the animals keep time by their stomach. Roaring, yowling, screeching and grunting, they protested the delay in meals—postponed an hour when the clocks were set back to Standard Time.

Seize Poles' Radios

WARSAW, Sept. 27 — (AP). — Polish refugees from Czechoslovakia to-day reported the Czechoslovak Government had ordered Poles in three districts of Silesia to turn their radio sets over to the government within 24 hours. These reports said a secret Polish broadcasting station had been appealing to Poles living in Czechoslovakia to start an uprising against the Prague Government.

Lakehurst Church Been Renovated

The congregation of Lakehurst United Church will next Sunday rejoice in the fulfillment of an ambition that members have cherished for some time when the church will be re-opened after complete renovation. Sunday marks the 51st anniversary of the opening of the present church building, a one-room brick structure. The walls and ceiling have been re-decorated in cream and white, the windows frosted and all the woodwork, pulpit and pews have been refinished in light grain.

The anniversary services on Sunday will be held at 11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. The church choir and the Curve Lake Indian choir will furnish special music and Rev. Ellis Snelgrove of Queensborough, a former pastor will preach. Mr. Kenneth Stewart is student-minister of the church.

CZECHS BUY FROM U.S.

Direct imports into Czechoslovakia from the United States in the first six months of this year were valued at $17,789,000, a gain of $3,541,000 over the corresponding period of 1937.

Four Employees Of The Bell Given Banquet

Employees of the Bell Telephone company here said farewell to four of their number, who are being transferred from Peterborough, at a banquet at Hooper's Tea rooms Monday night. Every department of the company here was represented, a total of nearly sixty attending the function.

The employees who leave for other branches of the firm are as follows: F. B. Boswell, who was traffic superintendent for Peterborough and district, and who will be personnel supervisor for Toronto, his assistant, E. Frith, who will also be stationed in Toronto; Harold McClelland, assistant manager in the commercial department here, who goes to Newmarket as district manager; and Miss J. Edwards, a stenographer, who will be stationed in Toronto. Each was presented with a suitable parting gift from fellow workers.

Besides the Peterborough guests were representatives from Beaverton, Lindsay, Cobourg, Port Hope, and Brighton. P. L. Smith, division traffic superintendent from Toronto, was also in attendance. The banquet was under chairmanship of District Superintendent D. Cameron.

Havelock's Grand Old Lady Is Hale And Hearty In Her 92nd Year

Mrs. Margaret Jennings, 91-year-old lady, who is Havelock's oldest resident, has been married twice and claims "If I hadn't broken my hip a few years ago I might have got myself a third man."

"I was just like a young girl of twenty when I married the second time," joked the grand old lady to an Examiner reporter yesterday. "A mighty old-fashioned one," answered her sister, 87-year-old Mrs. Elizabeth Gibson, of 131 Morrow street.

The story of Mrs. Jennings' second marriage was like a story book romance, for she became the bride of an old beau of her youth when she was close to 70 years of age. And no wonder either, for at 91 she has a sparkling wit, a pleasant, cheery disposition, and a joie de vivre that many a woman half her age would envy.

Living Too Fast

Despite all the gadgets of today, even the motor cars and slot machines that make up most of youth's pleasures, Mrs. Jennings still prefers the days of her own youth. "You're living too fast to enjoy yourselves," is her answer to 1938.

"We didn't have the things to amuse ourselves with that you have now," she said, "but we were closer to one another, I think." They were simple, happy days that this mellowed old lady recalled, days full of hard, honest work from which threats of war were as far removed as cannibalism, days in which only good neighborly feeling existed.

Settled in Clark Township

Born in England, she came to Canada with her parents when she was only seven years old and settled in the township of Clark, 11 miles from Port Hope. Her parents hewed their farm out of bush land, later moved to what is now Pontypool, where they were again pioneer settlers.

MRS. MARGARET JENNINGS

They were good and wholesome days that Mrs. Jennings recalled. "Why I remember we used to have corn husking bees, all we young people, and then we'd have a bit of a dance afterwards and a jolly good time. What more could you want?" she asked. Then there were taffy pulls when young men and girls would come for miles around, and their sleighs would have "lots and lots" of bells ringing.

Married When Young

She married Charles Ashby when she was still a girl and moved to Havelock forty years ago. Twenty-seven years ago her husband died, and seven years later she went to Orillia, where she married William Jennings. He died ten years ago. Now she is living with her sister, Mrs. Ezra King, in Havelock.

A few years ago Mrs. Jennings fell and broke her hip while coming home from a picture show. "I guess I shouldn't have gone, but girls will be girls," she chuckled. She has difficulty getting around now, but people are kind to her, she says, and she still has all her faculties, enjoys life as much as ever.

She boasts that last winter she attended a quilting bee, going to it on a sleigh on a cold day. She hopes to go to many another.

Peterboro Club Likely Refuse Northern Offer

UNOFFICIALLY, the Peterborough Baseball Club executive appears to be unfavorable toward the large financial demands made by Creighton Mines in an offer to play their O.B.A. senior semi-final series here this weekend. With weather uncertain, and it being too late to get insurance on the weather Saturday, the local officers feel it is too big a risk. But a meeting may be held this evening to draft an official reply. It has been noticed here that neither Creighton Mines nor the O.B.A. has made any guarantee offer to the Peterborough Club.

Stirling Youth Goes On Trial Criminal Count

Russel West, 17, pleaded not guilty to a charge of criminal negligence when arraigned before Mr. Justice Urquhart at the Fall Assizes of the Supreme Court here today.

The charge arises out of the death of 68-year-old Thomas Anderson who died after being struck by a car on Highway No. 7 near the eastern entrance to the village of Havelock.

Anderson was walking eastward on Highway 7 about nine o'clock on July 3rd last when struck by a car allegedly driven by West who was also travelling in an easterly direction.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., gave the jury a synopsis of the facts of the case and asked them to pay particular attention to the fact that the road at this point is very straight. During the selection of the jury only one juror was challenged.

Plan Made Of Highway

J. W. Pierce, O.L.S., was the first witness called by Crown and described a plan he had made of the stretch of highway on which the accident took place. L. P. McGillen, reporter, identified photographs he had taken of tire marks on Highway 7, and described the locality.

Prior to a 10-minute recess Justice Urquhart advised the jury not to discuss the case nor arrive at an early conclusion because very little evidence had been heard so far. He also stated that during lunch period or recesses they were not to discuss the case with any outsiders. "If any persons attempts to discuss the case with you, they must be reported and will be summarily dealt with."

Measured Tire Marks

Constable Gordon Broughton, provincial traffice officer, the third witness, told of measuring tire marks and seeing a blood stain on the travelled portion of the road. The tire marks which ran parallel to each other were 98 feet long and the bloodstains were 22 feet east of the end of the tire marks. He stated a hat owned by Anderson had been picked up by him also 22 feet from the eastern end of the skid marks.

He was cross-examined rather thoroughly on the time when measurements had been taken. He told of arriving at the scene of the accident at 11.15 fast time, and by then the body of Thomas Anderson had been removed.

Provincial Constable John Hatch of Marmora said in evidence he arrived at the scene of the accident at 9.45 standard time, where he found the accused, a crowd of people and a car which Russel West admitted he had been driving. He recognized photographs which showed a deep dinge in the right hand side of car hood and a broken right headlight.

Describes Lighting

He described the street lighting at this point as being "very poor" and said trees cast a shadow on the road.

Dr. Don Holdcroft of Havelock told of being called to the scene of the accident. Found the body of Tom Anderson lying on the south side of the road with his head and shoulders on the south curbing. He had compound fractures of both legs, numerous head lacerations and a swelling on the back of his head. There was a puncture wound in the left temple, and extensive body and facial abrasions. Court adjourned at one oclock and the trial is continuing this afternoon.

Members of Jury

The personnel of the jury is as follows: Charles Westlake, Ernest Cooper, Thos. W. Thorne, Harold B. Dunford, Alex Irwin, Lewis Comstock, Cecil Moore, L. J. LeClair, Richard Darling, Hilliard Darling, John McDonald, and John Primeau.

Boulanger's View

ST. RAPHAEL, Que., Sept. 27 (C. P.). — Canada is not interested in Czechoslovakia and will not participate in any foreign war as long as the present Government is in power at Ottawa, Oscar Boulanger, Liberal House of Commons member for L'Islet, told a meeting of county people in this village last night.

A. E. Paterson New Leader Of Symphony

The Peterborough Symphony Orchestra held its first rehearsal of the new season Monday night with an attendance of thirty members, definite prospects of a total membership of at least forty-five, and membership for two concerts during the season, one prior to Christmas and the other towards the end of the winter.

Gerald O. Dawson, president of Peterborough's Symphony which is now beginning its fourth year, informed the Examiner to-day that there is every assurance of increasing the strength of the organization to broader symphony instrumentation than in the past.

"We had six first violins and eight seconds last year," Mr. Dawson said, "and this year we expect to have fourteen firsts and sixteen seconds, two violas, two cellos and two bass viols, also three trumpets, two trombones, three clarinets and one bassoon, also drums and piano."

This may not be the exact composition of the orchestra when its organizations is completed, Mr. Dawson said, there might be others added as the first part of the season develops. With the retirement of Harry Prevey, the talented conductor whose keen interest in music and his ability as a leader brought the orchestra together, some doubt was expressed last spring about its future. Recently, Mr. Prevey was transferred back to Peterborough by the Canadian General Electric Company, but his stay is only temporary, two or three months.

The question of this season's leadership was discussed with him, and for the ultimate benefit of the orchestra it was felt that another director should be chosen who could assume the responsibility for the entire season.

Mr. Dawson reported that A. E. Paterson, a graduate of Kneller Hall, England, will wield the baton this season, and those who have been associated with him locally in music say he is no Creatore. That means Mr. Paterson follows the traditional reserve of manner characteristic of most musical directors in the Old Country. He has played the bass horn at three of the concerts given by the orchestra, and from several local bandsmen the opinion was gleaned that the Symphony was, fortunate in enlisting a musician of his experience and competence. The members deeply regret the loss of Harry Prevey, but they are looking forward to a successful season under his successor.

It was also learned that Miss Florence Gladman will not be at the piano this season. It is understood that she is going to reside in Toronto, where he spent several months this year, and is moving this week. Miss Gladmon has been pianist with the Symphony since its inception, was deeply interested in its progress, and should share largely in any recognition of the place the orchestra has attained in the musical life of this city. Mrs. Cyril Searles will be the pianist this season, Mr. Dawson said.

The Orchestra is an independent organization confined almost entirely to its membership, without associates and subscription assistance. It has overcome the initial difficulties of formation as a result of the co-operation of the instrumentalists and their lead, Mr. Prevey, and is beginning this season with renewed enthusiasm.

Norwood Man Is Pulled From River

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Sept. 27.—A middle-aged Norwood resident was pulled to safety from Trent River here after dark last night when he fell off the long pier while fishing. The victim told Claude Hoard, lockmaster, that he lost his balance on the pier opposite the foundry when he had a "strike." Three United States visitors were responsible for rescue. He was brought to the lockmaster's residence and given a complete change of clothing and then taken home.

Lacrosse Note

East York defeated Caledon, 12 to 9, last night, to sew up their O.L.A. senior "B" semi-final series. They will play their third game likely on Wednesday in a neutral arena. The winner of this series meets Peterborough in group finals, and the first game will probably be on the East Yorkers grounds the end of the week. Definite word should be received here within a few days.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

ROLLIE (WHITEY) DANN, senior hockey goalie, expects to try out with the Petes' pucksters when early ice workout are called about Dec. 1st. Dann has headquarters here on a travelling job, and has been making Peterborough his home since early last winter. And last season was the first one he missed playing hockey since he started learning the game with Chuck and Lionel Conacher in the Jesse Ketchum School in Toronto some years ago. Whitey has a pretty impressive goaltending record, and was seen here a couple of winters ago in goal for Toronto Dominions when they trimmed the locals in a puck exhibition. He was regular net-guardian for Native Sons seniors in Toronto in the 1934-35 season and was with the Kimberley Dynamiters the following winter when they lost out in Allan Cup playdowns to Trail—the club having dropped but two scheduled games that season. He played senior O.H.A. and mercantile in Toronto in 1936-37. Dann was junior goalie with Sudbury 11 years ago when they were Memorial Cup finalists. Last winter business kept him out.

* * * * * * *

THE OLD HOCKEY URGE, plus his local girl friend's advice, have decided Whitey to don the pads again. He is just 30 years of age, medium height and goes around 150 pounds. A chap with his experience in the little twine tepee should be welcomed with open arms by local Hockey Club officials and players. And if Dann should catch the No. 1 goaltending position with the Petes, and Joe McNulty lines up with the locals, the hockey outfit here might ice a pretty fair squad again. It is at least an encouraging thought, and we're tickled to pass it along.

Dust Off The Alibis

PROBABLY the week after next, the big C.G.E. Shop Bowling League will swing into action at the Duffus' Alleys. Theyll play on Tuesday and Thursday nights all winter there, with from 24 to 30 teams banging the pins around. Roy Parnell is loop president this year, with Frank Wood vice-prexy and Tommy Miller again secretary-treasurer. This is one of the finest maple-toppling circuits in the city and sees a big turnout of young trundlers and veterans on scheduled nights. Lots of good bowling and fun for all. Other leagues here are lining up and will be set shortly to swing into competition in the big indoor winter sport.

LEW HAYMAN, Argos' coach, points out that rugby football is a good part "football" and hence offers this advice: 1. Inside your own 15-yard line, kick on the first down; 2. inside your own 30-yard line, kick on the second down; 3. kick on the third down whenever there are two or more yards left for a first down; 4. with a strong wind behind you, kick at every opportunity, trying for single points or to get into place for a major try; 5. kick often on cold or wet days; 6. try for placement or drop-kick field goals when inside the enemy 25-yard line; 7. when in doubt, kick. As for forward passing, he says it is usually unwise to call for one on wet days, or when ahead late in a game, or against strong wind, in your own area (especially early in the game with the score close), and on opponents' goal-line after one attempt has failed.

Shooting For The Sky

SPEAKING of hoofing, Toby Westbye has been practicing punting with the Orfuns lately and may come along okay after a lengthy grid layoff. Coach Bill Irwin likes the height Westbye gets on his kicks but wants a bit more distance on 'em. Toby used to hoof 'em high and far, and with a lot of practice on the blown-up bladder, he is likely to get distance. Don Crowe and Mike Loucks have been punting in pretty fair style, too, lately.

TURNING ON THE HEAT in the Lindsay arena last gloaming, the Petes knocked Brooklin out of further O.L.A. senior "B" competition by a 20-7 count. Yessir, they mopped up the floor with 'em and now advance into the group finals against the East York-Caledon winner. Over 1500 fans, mostly from here, rattled the rafters with their joyous yodels as Frank Randle's lacrosse machine went to work from the start in an exciting, open tussle to earn the decision all the way from here to Hitler's home. They played nearly perfect lacrosse and looked far superior, the Brooklins battling back gamely but appearing outclassed from the start. Great work by Red Creighton in goal, and all his buddies, clinched the series in the deciding joust. It'll take a tough team to stop the locals now.

'Twas Old Home Week

IT LOOKED LIKE Peterborough Old Home Week in Lindsay last eve, everybody and his brother and sister being on deck. No. 7 highway was a lacework of auto headlights as carloads of happy fans journeyed home. The game was rough with both sides laying on the gad, but no fights broke out. The referees threw no less than 27 guys over the boards into the penalty-box, and thus prevented any serious outbreak. Penalties in the second period to Brooklin, when they jammed the cooler like bootleggers in Cleanup Week, probably 'cost them their chances—the Petes ramming home nine markers in this heated session. A swelegant showing by the locals, many of whom today are wearing their numerous scars like medals—and who can blame 'em? Our ball and lacrosse clubs are hitting it on high these days, accompanied by large and noisy followings of redhot rooters.

* * * * * * *

WRITES BILL GAYNON of the Falls: "That the Falls were beaten by a better team was the foregone conclusion of supporters who saw both games, and in our humble opinion the Petes will go all the way and collect provincial honors. They have power in every department and their ability to rise to an occasion appears like their finest asset. Joe Jakafby on the winners' mound tossed so many curves he had the Falls' batters dizzy trying to get a piece of the ball. Four hits was all they could do and the big fellow, used mostly in relief roles this season, gave a real display on how to curve a team into submission. All Bright's batters looked alike to him, and he received nice backing from Doll, Kingdon, Murphy and Starr." With Toronto and Stratford due to clash now, the Petes may be idle again for a time, unless they're sent in against the northern victor.

PICKING 'EM OFF the Grapevine: Fred Martin of the C.G.E. had a perfect bowling score last eve at the K. of C., rolling 450 in a game with Reg. Dyer and Alfie Mattucci....Pick Hines, Petes' puck coach last winter, will coach Baltimore Orioles in the U.S. eastern loop this year. Frank Buckland informs us....Six of the seven N.H.L. teams make the playoffs this year, which is funnier than most Mae West stories....Niagara Falls and Oshawa settle the O.B.A. junior championship in Hamilton on Sat'day....The Cobourg gridders took a 17-6 win over Toronto Oakwoods last week-end....Joe Jakafby has become famous, with this writer calling him the Peterborough pitcher, the Falls' columnist saying he's from Hamilton, and the Oshawa scrivener claiming he's an Oshawa boy!....Drake Jopling will likely line up with the Lake Shore team at Kirkland Lake in hockey this winter....Some business matters will be discussed by the local Hockey Club executive tomorrow night....Paul Hillier is the efficient trainer with the C.G.E. Athletic Club boxing class....Our Colts may have an O.H.A. grouping this winter with Lindsay, Oshawa and Belleville....Wonder if our ball season will be over before the boys have to lay down their bats and take up gats.

Present at the banquet were members of the George Street Majors, church softball champions this year, and members of the George Street Buzzers. Manager Ronnie Payne of the Majors was presented with a trophy on which was engraved the names of his entire team.

Those present included Joe Dunkerley, George Gatfield, Ronnie Payne, Ron Akers, Earl Wellman, Dough Hough, Bill Griffith Art Roberts, Lloyd Wells, Bert McClennan, Ward Wright, Roy Heard, Charlie Munro, Joe Weir, Jack Skitch, Al Metcalfe, Mel Akers, Lloyd Ash. Alice Marbles Takes Singles Crown, Plus Roses

Disappointment and joy are predominant in this picture as Alice Marble, CENTRE, receives the cup, filled with roses, emblematic of the United States women's singles tennis championship, which she won by defeating Nancy Wynne, LEFT, of Australia, in the finals. The finals were a keen disappointment to the Australian girl, whose game was spoiled by her nervousness and she went down, 6-0, 6-3, to the American star, who regained the crown she wore in 1936.

FACTS ABOUT FOOTBALL

Here Are Fundamentals For Successful Punting and Passing Systems

By LEW HAYMAN

Coach of Toronto Argonauts, Dominion Rugby Champions

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of a series of articles dealing with every phase of the grid game, written for the Examiner by Lew Hayman.

Today, gang, well go over football generalship, something absolutely necessary for consistent success when you're out there on the field. Generalship, that is the proper direction of the team when it's out on the field and beyond aid from the coach, centres around the quarterback. By knowing what to do and when to do it a quarterback can change a mediocre team into a good one, and a good one into a championship squad.

Lew Hayman

With this in mind I'll waste little time from the opening practice in looking for quarterback possibilities in those that turn out. Generally speaking a boy's natural leadership is soon apparent with the result that before long I'll have one or two lads spotted as likely candidates for the position. From that moment on we become very close friends. We practically eat, sleep and drink football.

The quarter is the sole judge and boss of the team on the field of play, therefore it is absolutely essential that he be a leader. He must command the respect of his teammates; must have the kind of personality that inspires confidence and above all he must have the courage of his convictions. Many times a wrong play properly called will work better than the correct play, badly called.

In addition to leadership and personality the aspirants for the quarterbacks job should possess a keen mind, with a leaning towards imagination, analytical ability and what we refer to as plain common football sense.

Naturally we will be told the do's and dont's of various tactical situations. Strategy maps, blackboard talks, question and answer periods, will all give him a general idea of quarterbacking, but if he will follow these two thoughts his signals will never be far wrong.

1. When in doubt, kick.
2. Play the situation as it arises.

That is, keep in mind the number of downs, yards to go, score and time left to play.

From here on let's call our quarterback, Joe. Just put yourself in Joe's place and we'll talk over the kicking end of the game. In our Canadian game we still have much of the foot left in football. Kicking still predominates our game, so it's imperative that we know when to kick.

We have a pretty good hoofer on this team, Joe, so let's forget about punting being a defensive measure, particularly on rainy days when the ball is slippery and chances for fumbling are greater. Get that ball down the field. Let the other team do the wet ball handling. As a matter of fact, Joe, at the beginning of any game it is good football to use a kicking offensive, with our backfielders, at the start, apt to be a trifle nervous and jittery. In cold weather their hands may be stiff and numb. Naturally if there's a strong wind against us and we're losing considerable yardage on the kicking exchanges, hold the ball as long as possible.

Also follow this thought...if our opponents have a decided edge on the offensive, yet are weak defensively, kick less than you would if the situation were reversed. Here are some general rules for kicking, Joe, that you might follow when you get out there on the field:

1. Inside your own 15-yard line, kick on the first down.
2. Inside your own 30-yard line, kick on the second down.
3. Kick on the third down whenever there are two or more yards left to go for a first down.
4. With a strong head wind kick at every opportunity, playing for single scores or trying to get into position for major tallies.
5. Kick frequently on cold or wet days.
6. Try for placement or drop kick field goals when inside your opponents' 25-yard line.
7. When in doubt, kick.

Now if we can just get one of the team to hoof consistently well, those general rules will pretty well take care of our kicking worries. But how about our forward passing, Joe? Right at the start, Joe, I never want you to lose sight of the fact that this play should be used mostly as a threat. The forward pass is a dangerous play and can often boomerang into a very unprofitable venture.

General rules are the best we can lay down until we actually get into a game, so here are some pointers, Joe. It is usually unwise to call for a forward under the following circumstances:

1. On wet, slippery days.
2. When ahead late in the game.
3. Against a strong wind.
4. In our own territory, particularly early in the game with the score even.
5. On opponents' goal line after one attempt has failed.

That's about all we'll try to digest today, Joe, but before you go I want you to realize that at all times your manoeuvres should be called according to play. If we're ahead, don't take crazy chances. Gamble only when you really believe the percentage is with you.

So long for now, Joe. We'll see you and the rest of the gang TOMORROW, when we'll have a strategic map on hand showing when and where to scheme your attack.

City Carpetball

Up to the present time the following entries have been received:

St. Johns, 1, St. George, 1; S. O. E., 2; Legion, 3; Fire Hall, 4.

These are definite, it has also been reported that the following are meeting this week to decide how many to put in the league.

St. Lukes expect to put in 2 teams. Trinity, 2 teams, L. O. L. one or two, Forestors one team, Moose one or two and the Legion a fourth. W. O. W. uncertain, also that St. James and Mark street are seriously considering entries.

We would like to draw attention to all Clubs that an open general meeting is being held in the S. O. E. Hall on Wednesday, Sept. 29, at 8 p.m., to discuss the acceptence of all teams to give all teams official numbers for seasons play.

It would also help to facilitate matters if the teams would bring in the names, addresses and phone numbers of the teams and appoint their representative or the executive committee. One representative is allowed for each organization in the League.

One matter being brought up for discussion is that on event of a team dropping out of the league before the season ends, should all points be erased for games played or points be allowed for games, abandoned, this point caused a little discussion last season and it is hoped that we can clear things up in case of a reoccurence of such action.

Another point to be urged is that all fees must be paid within 30 days of play. As this has caused quite a little bother in the past and your co-operation with the secretary would be appreciated.

Every one interested in the City Carpetball League is duly welcomed to attend the general meeting at the S. O. E. Hall, Wednesday, Sept. 29, at 8 p.m. sharp.

Golf Marathon Fizzes As Attraction

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y., Sept. 27 (A.P.). — The "Westchester 108," which started out as a "dream tournament," has turned into a nightmare.

As it headed into its final 36 holes to-day at the Fenway Golf Club, this $13,500 open golf competition had failed to live up to any of its promises except possibly that of close rivalry.

On Saturday and Sunday it attracted thousands of persons, but hardly any of them paid. Yesterday as Billy Burke of Cleveland remained on top of the heap, the play didn't even attract enough people.

To liven up the competition, circles were drawn around three holes and it was announced prizes would be awarded to those putting their tee shots within the circles. But the circles were so small, and the pins in such hard-to-reach corners of the greens, that only four players have been within them in the last three rounds. One of the four got a hole-in-one.

With the regulation open tournament's 72 holes completed and 36 holes to play to-day, Sam Snead remained the gallery choice.

He started this morning's fifth round only four strokes behind Burke, who had a 72-hole score of 286. The surviving Canadians, Stan Horne of Ottawa, and Bob Gray of Toronto, had 301 and 306 respectively.

Stratford Scribe Speaks Of Ball

(Stratford.)

Public Joy-Killer No. 1 swung his leg over the corner of the desk and parked his dripping umbrella in a corner. He offered an edge of his crying towel, whereon he had been figuring. "I see you quote Johnny Jones as saying that the Nationals want a shot at the O.B.A. senior title," he grated. "Now where in — (deleted by the proofreader) does he figure he's going to stand a chance even if he gets by Windsor on Saturday and those hitless wonders of his bump into good pitching? Do ya know what Schoolboy Mussel would do to those guys? Or Deacon Wasser or Lefty McNally? It'd be murder, I tell ya. You've heard that old chestnut about trying to belt the boy over the centre field fence with your little brother's toy shovel. That'd be the Nationals against that good right-handed pitchin'. I know that McNally is a southpaw. But if you think the Nationals are hot against southpaw pitching, haul out your score book and see what they did against Lefty Colman in the Intercounty finals. Colman beat them. And if it comes to a choice between Colman and McNally, I'll take McNally, and give you the grand stand to make it more even." Time out for station identification. Look, Lefty.

"Why those right-handers from Windsor ain't in the same class as the Niagara Falls and Peterborough guys (Mussel, Wasser, and McNally). The Nats should shell them Windsor flingers out like clay pigeons. But have they done it? You've got three guys on the club who are hitting better than .300 against that 'nothin' ball pitching. Tom Hanlon is one of them, but they've had him buffaloed when there's ducks on the pond (quaint way of saying there are men on the bases). Carrick, who usually murders right-handers, is hitting .286, and Irish, who should pin those guys' ears back, is crippling along with .125. He's hitting the ball, and hitting it hard, but he's got his eye on the fences, and the outfield is backing out for him. Nope, they're not goin' to win no title with that kind of stick work. Now, do you know what I'd do with them batters? I'd:.....We shut him off there by reminding him that he was assuming the role of professional witness, and shouldn't give evidence without getting an expert's fee. Anyway, his testimony wasn't necessary. Everybody knows a better way to run a ball club and a newspaper.

Prince Of Wales School Team Whitewashes Queen Alex Boys

Queen Alexandra Public School soccer team received a white-washing, on Monday afternoon in a league game played on King Edward Park, by the score of 5-0 in favor of the Prince of Wales eleven.

First Half

Both teams made repeated attacks upon goal to find the goalkeepers clearing their citadel but after ten minutes of combination tactics by Prince of Wales forwards they were successful in opening the scoring through S...ith who seemed to be very aggressive whenever he got within shooting distance. This was followed by Maudsley re...istering the second counter. Queen Alexandra team never settled down to their usual style of play thereby allowing the west-enders to frustrate their attacks inside the goal area. Prince of Wales relied upon break-aways along the wing and after Doughty had carried the ball down into the corner, shot it across the goal where Crowe connected for the third counter. Prince of Wales 3, Queen Alexandra 0.

Poor Marksmanship

On resuming, Queen Alex boys endeavoured to reduce the lead. They broke through the winner's full backs many times to test out the ability of the custodian who cleared many dangerous shots. Prince of Wales half-backs dominated the play thereafter through their effective tackling whenever a man w... attempting to break through. The losing defence men were weak in intercepting at the proper moment. Again Smith came into the picture by his first time drive past the custodian. About three minutes before the final whistle, Queen Alexandra hammered away at the winner's goal until Frappe, full-back intercepted a pass up the centre by punting along the wing to Doughty who dribbled his way around Woodgate and sent an oblique shot into goal between the custodian and the upright. Prince of Wales 5, Queen Alexandra 0.

Goal scorers—Smith (2), Maudsley, Crowe and Doughty.

Queen Alexandra — G. Palmer, goal; A. Woodgate and C. Seal, full-backs; T. Tighe, D. Hume and M. Coones, halves; J. Gaskill, M. Richardson, E. McEwen, N. Jowell and N. Harvie, forwards.

Prince of Wales—G. Beatty, goal; R. Nattress and J. Frappe, full-backs; D. Batley, S. Detlor and L. Maudsley, halves; J. Saunders, R. Crowe, H. Henry, T. Smith and R. Doughty, forwards.

Referee—D. Buchan.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (A.P.). — This week tells the story in the National League....Cubs against Pirates in a three-game series starting to-day....Pirates still remain the favorites, although thousands are pulling for the Cubs....You can't lose sight of the fact that the Bucs have been on top of a hectic race since July 12 and that's a real test in any man's league....Besides that, they have one of the best balanced clubs in either major league ....On the other hand the Cubs are coming along under the inspiring leadership of old Gabby Hartnett, and they have two red-hot pitchers right now in Bill Lee and Clay Bryant.

We'll go on record as predicting the Yanks will take either the Cubs or the Pirates in five games....Doc Williamson, the football expert, likes Texas Tech and Auburn....There is no change in plans for a big shake-up on the Giants....Only a bare half-dozen are sure of their jobs next year.

Whizzer White is bringing in the dough at the box office for Pittsburgh Pirates...."Little Monk" Simons, who starred for Tulane in the first Sugar Bowl game, is doing all right as assistant to Red Dawson, head coach of the Greenies. . . His old man, "Big Monk," has been trainer for Tulane for so long we hate to remember.

Arny Herber, passing star of the Green Bay Packers, has the smallest hands in pro football....Usually passers need large mitts, but Herber's success is due to the fact that he has the wrists of a circus aerialist and a tremendous grip.

Still In Marathon

One of the two Canadians still left in the chase after the $5,000 first prize in the Westchester, N.Y., golf marathon is Bobby Gray, ABOVE, of Toronto. He and Stan Horne, Ottawa pro, were well back, but still in there after 36 holes had been played in the somewhat bizarre 108-hole test, which, because of its rich prizes, has attracted the continent's leading players.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB. MARTIN

We have been advised by the greens committee that the greens will be closed for this season, on Saturday evening, Oct. 1st. Work will commence on Monday morning, on the greens in order to build them up for early next season.

The open tournament committee announces an open tournament for men on Saturday, Oct. 1st, commencing at 2 p.m. It will be Irish trebles and wide open. The fee is $1.25 per man. This will be the last of the season, so take advantage of it.

A number of our boys motored over to Lindsay last evening to take in the doubles tournament. They report no success.

We don't know what the final result was in the Gimblett-Sloane game, but when we left the greens at the conclusion of the 8th end, Sloane's quartette was leading 10-8.

And we have a couple more announcements to make:

The mixed tournament to-morrow night at 7.30 p.m. and the men's annual meeting next Monday night at 8 o'clock.

Perfect Game Is Bowled By F. Martin

Fred Martin rolled a perfect game last night at the K. of C. Bowling Alleys, getting a 450 score on No. 4 alley in the third game. He was bowling with Reg. Dyer and Alfie Mattucci at the time, it being his 17th game of the present season. Martin's perfect game was only the third one in the bowling history of the city, W. G. Shiner and Tom Curvin having previously cleaned the boards on every pitch. Both these records were hung up at Duffus', and Martin's mark last night was the first such score rolled at the Knights of Columbus bowling academy.

High tension reigned as the score mounted and Martin got strike after strike with a fast, smooth throw. He has been rated one of the best bowlers in the city for some years, always being high up in the City League and C.G.E. Shop League averages. Last season, he won the cup for the highest average in the City 5-Pin Bowling League with a neat mark of 248. As his perfect score last evening did not come in league competition, but in a friendly game, he is not eligible for any of the bowling and merchants' prizes which go for a perfect game.

PETES OUST BROOKLIN BEFORE BIG CROWD IN LINDSAY, 20 TO 7

Cop Deciding O.L.A. Tilt With Fine Performance Before Over 1,500 Fans

The Petes blasted Brooklin out of further O.L.A. competition last night in Lindsay and shot themselves into their senior "B" group finals with a 20-7 victory over Brooklyn before 1,500 fans. The huge crowd, mostly from Peterborough, cheered themselves hoarse at the debacle, their roars of approval at every local score rocketing around the rafters in the spacious Scugog arena.

It was a wide-open and exciting game, despite the one-sided score, with plenty of rough checking but no fights. A grand total of 27 penalties were passed out by Referees Davidson and Thom, with the winners drawing down the official lre 14 times. The going was hot in the second, with the penalty-box packed, and fights threatened several times, but no outbreak occurred. Costly penalties to Brooklin paved the way for the Petes' big lead in this heat. The score was 4-0 for Peterborough in the first quarter, 13-2 for them at half-time, and 15-7 going into the fourth.

Smart Lacrosse.

The Petes played a smart game of lacrosse, showing up well in all departments. They checked on equal terms with their rivals but had more speed, a superior passing attack and an edge in shooting. A big margin was the mastery of Red Creighton in goal, the local sorrel-top being almost unbeatable in the first half and breaking the Brooklin boys' hearts with repeated saves on hard close-in attempts. Only in the third period, when the Petes were penalized frequently, did Brooklin have an edge in play. Otherwise, they were well beaten by a better club.

All the Petes looked good in this game, no weak point being noticeable. Creighton in goal, Westonfelt and Chute on defence, and Magee, Crowe and Whitton on the attack looked outstanding. But the veterans King, Dundas and Worthy were quite effective and sparkled in spots, while the younger players easily held their own in a fine showing. Luther and Lewis Vipond, with Grice, Saunders and Karpicho were best for the losers, all of whom battled hard in a losing cause.

The teams:

Brooklin— Goal, Luke; defence, Cooper and Leroy; centre, Luther Vipond; wings, Lewis Vipond and Grice; rover, Saunders; alternates, Cook, Ormiston, Karpicho, Kivell, Armour, Bovin and W. Vipond.

Bears Rampage Over Bisons For 10-2 Win

BUFFALO, N.Y., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Newark's rampaging Bears appeared today to have a stranglehold on the International League playoff championship after battering Buffalo Bisons for a 10-2 victory in the third game of the final series.

Last night's one-sided win gave the Bears a two to one edge in games played. The teams will meet here again tonight.

Buddy Rosar, hard-hitting Bear catcher, put the skids under the Bisons, in the first inning of last night's fray when he clouted a homer with one aboard. Before the evening was over the Newark sluggers had driven Ken Ash to the showers and had treated his three successors roughly.

Jack Haley will take the mound for Newark tonight with either Fabe Kowalik or Southpaw Fred Archer on the slab for Buffalo.

Vic Fraser, who clinched the semi-final playoff with Milwaukee, has a chance tonight to clinch the American Association finale for St. Paul and send the Saints into the Little World Series against the International League champ.

His opponent in the fifth playoff game will be Marvin Bruer, who won the series opener in St. Paul to give Kansas City its only victory over the Saints.

The Saints timely hitting and combined six-hit pitching of three hurlers gave them their third straight last night, 7-1.

McLin Hanover Wins Futurity

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 27.—(AP)—McLin Hanover and Driver Henry Thomas, the winning Hambletonian combination, captured the forty-sixth running of the Kentucky Futurity at the Grand Circuit Monday in straight heats.

The Hanover Shoe Farm's star again turned back Long Key, his chief rival. Vesta Hanover was third in a field of ten. The race was worth $9,570.

Vic Fleming of Dundas, Ont., and Syracuse, N.Y., scored a driving double. He piloted Altamaha, winner of the first division of the 18 pace and drove Mack Abbey to victory in the Phoenix Hotel pace. Summaries:

How To Manage a Big League Team

"Hm-m-m-m. Let's see now . . . who'll I have pitch today? M-m-m-m. Ruffing, Gomez, Hadley? Let's see . . . who's had the most rest . . . m-m-m-m."

"I have it. I'll pitch Hadley today. All right boys, you can put that down in your story. . . . Hadley is the pitcher. We oughta win this game."

"Say! Look at that ball travel! Boy oh boy! That's over the fence. How many's that? Three homers today? Four? This managing business is easy."

Manager Joe McCarthy of the home-and-cooled-out New York Yankees gives a demonstration of major league masterminding. Of course, it's really a little more complicated than this, but with those Yankees popping the ball out of the park it's not exactly an ordeal.

Hartnett Gambling On Dizzy Dean To Win Today's Tangle; 40,000 Expected At Wrigley Park

CHICAGO, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—The Chicago Cubs paid plenty for Dizzy Dean and expected plenty of victories in return, but Manager Gabby Hartnett was willing to settle for one to-day — the series opener against Pittsburgh's National League leaders.

Dean and his famous sore arm proved a gamble for the Cubs from the start. To-day he was Hartnett's finesse to a championship.

If he wins, the Cubs would be a half-game behind the pace setters and Hartnett would have his big trumps—Clay Bryant and Bill Lee—to play against the Bucs to-morrow and Wednesday.

If he loses, the Cubs still would retain an outside chance. It was merely another gamble for Hartnett, who has called enough turns to bring the Cubs 17 of their last 20 games—seven of them in a row.

The first of the all important series that probably will determine the 1938 race was expected to attract 30,000 at Wrigley Field. However, with the surprise announcement that Dean would pitch, Charley Drake, assistant to Owner P. K. Wrigley, boosted his estimate to nearer 40,000.

Jim Tobin was the pitching choice of Pirate Manager Pie Traynor, who said "we don't care a whoop who Chicago pitches against us. We are steaming at our proper pace now, and if we win five of our remaining seven games, it doesn't make any difference how many the Cubs win.

Three Aces in a Row.

"I'm going to play my three aces—Jim Tobin, Bob Klinger, and Russ Bauers—one right after the other. We've won eight of our last ten games, and these three have accounted for six of those eight. That's doing pretty good in my book."

Dean's book was something else. The pitcher for whom the Cubs gave $185,000 and three players, made his last start August 20—against the Pirates. He was knocked from the box. After the defeat, his only one of the season compared with six wins, the standing showed the Cubs nine games out of first.

Since then Dean has pitched six and two-thirds scoreless innings in three appearances as a relief pitcher. He last saw action on September 18.

Lee Whips Cards For 5th In Row To Place Chicago Cubs Game And Half Behind Pirates

When you go back into the records, it becomes harder than ever to figure out what may happen in this Pirates-Cubs "pennant" series which is bound to make all other baseball take a back seat until it's over.

In the first place, neither has been able to gain a decisive edge in 19 previous encounters this season. The Pirates have a 10-9 lead so far and appear in a bit better shape, especially where pitching is concerned, for a tough series.

On the other hand, the records don't prove it will help Pie Traynor much to be able to shoot Jim Tobin, Bob Klinger and Russ Bauers at the Cubs in order. They're his aces, but in ten starts against Chicago they have won only three games among them and lost five. Only "Fireman" Mace Brown has been consistently successful, being credited with three victories in five relief appearances against the Cubs.

Gabby Hartnett, after tossing his No. 1 moundsman, Bill Lee, against the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday to gain a 6-3 victory that put the Cubs only a game and a half behind, decided to take a chance with Dizzy Dean for to-day's opener. Old Diz has faced the Bucs twice, winning one game with a seven-hit job and being knocked out to Jose the other. Clay Bryant, with two wins and one loss and Lee, with four straight triumphs against Pittsburgh are due to follow, but they'll be going in there with only two days of rest apiece.

Lee apparently didn't have to work any too hard to beat the Cards. He kept a dozen hits well scattered and never was behind. It was his 21st victory. Stan Hack and Frank Demaree backed him up with three hits each and Demaree drove Hack in three times.

The winning and losing streaks of the rivals don't prove much, either. Since August 9, when the Bucs held a 6½-game lead, Pittsburgh has won only half its 46 games and Chicago has won 30 out of 47. They've both been going great guns more recently, however, the Pirates taking eight of their last 10 and Chicago grabbing 17 out of 20.

In the only other game yesterday, New York Yankees began tuning up for the World Series by conquering the second-place Boston Red Sox, 4-3, on Steve Sundra's good pitching and a three-run rally in the sixth inning. It was only their second victory in 10 games.

Births Marriages In Memoriam Cards of Thanks Deaths

ENGAGEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Stabler wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Gertrude Pearl, to Bernard Charles (Bun) Hatton, son of Mr. Arnold Hatton and the late Mrs. Hatton. The marriage to take place early in October.

DIED

DERRY, William J. — On Monday Sept. 26, at his residence at 469 McDonnel street, William James Derry, in his 82nd year. Funeral on Wednesday, September 28, at 2.30 p.m., from his late residence. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

GIRVEN, Thomas Henry—In Peterborough on Tuesday, September 27, in his 82nd year. Funeral from residence of his son, A. Roy Girven, 278 Burnham, on Thursday, September 29, at 2.30 p.m.

MOORE, Reuben.—At St. Joseph's Hospital, Tuesday, Sept. 27, 1938, Reuben Moore, 209 Hunter street, beloved husband of Vivanna Smith, in his 90th year. Funeral on Thursday, September 29, at 2.30 p.m., from the Funeral Home of A. Comstock and Sons, 305 Water street; Adjutant Neil Warrander of the Salvation Army officiating. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

INNES.—In loving memory of Mrs. Gordon Innes, who departed this life September 25, 1925.

There the buds from earth transplanted,
For our coming watch and wait,
In the upper garden growing,
Just within the golden gate.
Though our hearts may break with sorrow
By the grief so hard to bear,
We shall meet her some bright morning,
In the upper garden there.
—Ever remembered by her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Ellis.

WILKINSON.—In loving memory of Private Arthur F. Wilkinson, killed in action September 26, 1918, in Quarry Wood.

Sweetly sleeping
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies our boy we loved so dearly,
And the one we could not save.
Just a thought of you, dear Arthur,
Just a memory still fond and true,
And a token of affection
That our hearts still ache for you.
—Always remembered by Mother and Family.

DOWNER.—In fond, loving memory of my dear sister, Lillian Downer, who departed this life two years ago to-day September 27.

We watched her suffer day by day
And could not help in any way,
But just stood by and watched her pass
Into the Saviour's arms at last.
Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days.
Gone, dear Lillian, gone for ever;
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember,
None on earth can take your place.
Peacefully be thy rest, dear Lillian;
It is sweet to breathe thy name.
In life we loved you dearly;
In death we do the same.
God took her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she liveth still.
—Sadly missed by her sister and brother-in-law and family, Violet, Charlie, Mr. and Mrs. C. Harris.

Old Divisions Fast Fading

By REV. E. W. YOUNK

On Thursday and Friday last I had the opportunity to look in at the eighth general council of the United Church of Canada, which is at present in session in Trinity Church, Toronto.

The council meets every two years, and is the supreme court of the church. It has power "to legislate on matters respecting the doctrine, worship, membership and government of the church."

It is composed of delegates elected by the conferences throughout the Dominion in the proportion of one minister for every twenty-seven ministerial members of the conferences, and an equal number of non-ministerial representatives. There are also elected delegates from the foreign mission fields of the church —Africa, Honan, India, Japan, Trinidad, South China and West China.

The council is thus not only composed of men and women from Newfoundland to Victoria, B.C., but one meets people there from the ends of the earth. The number of delegates is slightly les sthan 300, so that it is not as large a body as the central conferences—Toronto, Hamilton, London and the Bay of Quinte. What it lacks in quantity, however, is made up in quality. The leading ministers of the church are there, and laymen from all walks of life, many of whom are foremost men in their local spheres.

Methods Very Orderly

The methods of the council are very orderly. The first few days are given up to the reception of reports regarding the different departments of the church's work. During this period sessional committees are appointed. These committees are allotted a couple of hours each day for their business, and every member of the council is a member of at least one committee.

The reports of these sessional committees will begin to come in after the council is three or four days at work. These reports form the crucial business of the council.

On Thursday afternoon there were reports from Dr. R. B. Cochrane, home mission secretary, who told of the heroic labors of the missionaries in the northland and in the drought areas in the West.

Rev. Kenneth Beaton spoke on his work in missionary education, and emphasized the need of informing the church regarding the work at home and abroad.

Crowded Meeting

At night a crowded public home missionary meeting was held in Trinity Church at which men from Newfoundland, Sasketchewan, British Columbia and other areas told the thrilling story of their work for Christ among the new Canadians and old Canadians in the isolated areas, and the big centres of population. One woman, a young minister's wife, told of their first charge in the Peace River district, and rejoiced in the privilege of braving hardships for the church of Jesus Christ.

On the Friday morning Lorne Edy, of St. Mary's, reported for the commission that has been dealing with the church publications. Mr. Edy is the editor of the local paper in his town, and has given his time and capable abilities to the church without restriction. He recommended the adoption of one national paper published bi-weekly at a cost of one dollar a year. His report, like others, was sent to the committee on publications.

Deaconess work was represented by two ladies, one of whom was Miss Lydia E. Gruchy, the first woman to be ordained to the ministry of the United Church, who has been appointed head of the Deaconess Institute in Toronto.

Rev. Harold Young reported the results of a commission on church work in rural and urban areas. This commission has important recommendations to make which will be considered later by Presbyteries and conferences.

Board Not Consulted.

Dr. T. W. Jones, of Montreal, reported on the council of theological education which was set up at the Ottawa council. His main grievance seemed to be that this board was not consulted in the appointment of theological professors as was ordered by the general council.

Rev. W. Armour, D.D., an Irishman, (whose father, Rev. J. B. Armour, of Ballymoney, County Antrim, was a staunch Home Ruler, and was nevertheless highly respected in Ulster), spoke on behalf of the Bible Society, and presented the moderator, Rev. J. W. Woodside, D.D., of Ottawa, and Rev. Gordon Sisco, D.D., the secretary, with a special copy of the Bible, commemorating its four hundredth anniversary. Dr. Armour received a warm welcome from the council both for his own sake and of the Bible Society which he represents.

The general impression that one received was that of the essential unity of the United Church of Canada; the old denominational divisions are fast fading out, and the spirit of brotherhood was the dominant note.

The earnestness of the delegates was also evident. The war background probably made its contribution to that earnestness. Prayers were offered for the cause of peace.

Here are 300 persons pledged to the cause of Christ and His church in Canada. They face the acute problems that confront all the churches in difficult days. We appeal for the prayers of Christian people that they may be guided by the wisdom of the spirit of God.

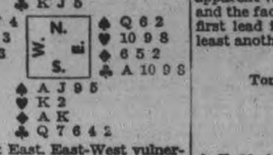
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

A FLANK MOVEMENT

WHEN your partner clearly has led a four card suit against no trump and the declarer's prompt taking of the trick betokens his utter lack of worry over that suit, it is well to think about some shift in tactics. If you get in the lead later, it is possible that a flank movement to another suit may turn the tide for you.



(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

When East passed on this deal, South for some unknown reason decided on a call of 1-No Trump instead of showing clubs or spades. North replied with 2-No Trump and South went to 3-No Trump.

The spade 4 was West's opening lead, on which dummy played the 3, East the Q and South the A. The diamonds A and K were next cashed by declarer, who then tried out clubs. East went in immediately to return a spade. The 8 forced West's 10. He then took the K and returned the 7 to South's J. A club to the K was declarer's next play to cash the diamonds Q and J. Then the club 5 was played to the Q. South next played the heart K to West, who won with the A and was obliged to lead to the heart Q. The result was the defense cashed four tricks and South made game.

When East was in with the club A, a switch to the heart 10 would have been his correct play, as it was apparent West held only four spades and the fact that the South won the first lead indicated that he had at least another stopper in that suit.

Press Is United Condemning Nazi Demands

LONDON, Sept. 27—(CP Cable)—The British press today weighed the solemn issues of peace or war in the light of the new German demands on Czechoslovakia.

"What we have to confront," declared the Yorkshire Post (Conservative), "is not only an ultimatum to European democracy but a challenge to our liberties, our concept of civilized society, and our belief in the dignity of human life. These things must perish so the Nazi writ may run in Europe.

"To so monstrous a threat the people of this country have, and can have, but one united answer. Civilization, no less, is at stake."

The Liverpool Post (Liberal) said: "The German terms suffer from one crucial, fundamental flaw. They contain no suggestion of a guarantee that they are at the end of the German demands and that, if they were granted, Czechoslovakia would be permitted to live in peace. The Czechs have mobilized and if the Germans try to enforce their demands there will be war. To prevent such a calamity little time is now left."

The Manchester Guardian (Liberal) commented that Great Britain had no legal obligations to Czechoslovakia, but contended the Government must look beyond that.

Similar Rule for Europe?

"Whatever were the reasons for pressing the Czechs to accept Chancellor Hitler's first demands, the Government will have to consider what would be the effects on the position of Britain if Europe should be ruled by the methods which have been and still are being, applied to Czechoslovakia. Still more it has to consider what those effects would be to us in terms not only of moral, but also of material force in the near future."

The Western Mail of Cardiff said: "He (Hitler) proposed to carve Czechoslovakia into pieces and leave it in such a mutilated condition that it could hardly survive....It seems incredible that after amputation had been decided upon and the victim resigned to his fate, there should be a final failure to agree about the most human method of performing the operation."

The Star (Liberal) declared: "Today it is at least clear that freedom and right have the big battalions on their side. The real force of the world is drawn up behind the stern determination that right and reason must prevail....Every reasonable man in the world hopes that issue will not be forced. No one doubts its outcome if Herr Hitler is driven on by what he calls his fate and decides to force it."

Judge To Retire

Sudetens Return To Eger – Armed To Fight

Bonarlaw Couple Robbed In Sleep

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BONARLAW, Sept. 27.—Robbers broke into the residence of Mr. Thomas Caldwell on Thursday evening and took some bills from a purse lying on the table, then went into the room where Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell were asleep and took sixteen dollars in money out of Mr. Caldwell's trousers and made their escape. So far no trace of the robbers has been found.

With The Boy Scouts

Attention, all Scout Officers, Cub-Scout and Rover. — A special meeting is called by the District Commission for 7.30 p.m. sharp on Tuesday, September 27, in the Association Headquarters. It will be the occasion of the committee of the executive of the local association to have a talk with the scout officers, and I would urge that every officer do his best to take advantage of this opportunity.

At All Saints the Cubs held a very successful meeting, the main features being first aid by Baloo and an Indian war dance led by Akela. There were several visitors among whom were District Commissioner J. T. Hornsby, A.D.C. L. Grant, D.C.M. Gordon Clegg and Mr. Hope of the group committee. A.D.C. Grant told the pack a story. After the meeting D.C. Hornsby gave the leaders a good hearty talk on the future in cubbing.

Friday night found the St. John's scouts out in the open along Bear's Creek, where around the open fire a weiner roast was held. The boys went out and returned in patrols.

Although no official report has been received we understand that two carloads of boys went out to Welcome on Saturday and assisted in picking the apples for the Boy Scout Apple Day that is being held on October 15. Nearly every troop is stringing up the tags for the occasion.

A few boys from several troops were picked to go with Mr. Sturrock and Mr. W. Lyburn to see what sort of apples were being bought, how they were picked and packed. And it was also scheduled that Mr. Beebee would give them a talk on the cultivation of apple trees, etc. Owing to the bad storms it was doubtful if there would be many apples left on the trees.

Several suggestions have been put forward as to advertising the Apple Day, but I feel that the best way to advertise the Scout Apple Day and the Scout Movement is by the speech and actions of the boys themselves.

We must always bear in mind the words found in the New Testament: "By their works ye shall know them." Let it be the aim of every boy who has at some time taken the scout promise, that he will reflect the movement in all his actions.

By radio I learned last night that the scouts in Prague have been put on duty to see that no bright lights are visible—a precaution against possible air raids. So once again the scouts are proving their worth in being useful.—The Skipper.

Convention Held Coe Hill Church

(Examiner Correspondence.)

COE HILL, Sept. 27.—The annual Sunday School convention under the auspices of the North Hastings district of religious education was held at Coe Hill United Church Wednesday with afternoon and evening sessions. There was a fair representation of delegates from outlying districts, some travelling over 60 miles by auto. Mrs. James Phillips of St. Ola presided at both sessions and was ably assisted by the secretary, Miss G. Gunter.

A very beautiful devotional service was conducted by the Rev. Redding of Coe Hill Anglican Church who chose as his theme, "Jesus Only." This was followed by the president's address in which he gave a brief resume of the year's work.

Dr. W. P. Fletcher of Odessa and representative of the Department of Religious Education conducted a five round table conference at which many of the problems were dealt with. The Rev. George Crabb of Maynooth gave an interesting talk on health. A very fine survey of the field of activity was ably presented by the Rev. W. J. Davis of Bancroft in which he showed the extent of work carried on. The devotional period was conducted by the Rev. A. C. McCallum of Coe Hill.

The high light of the evening was the inspiration address by Dr. Fletcher which brought to a close a very profitable convention. Officers were elected for the ensuing year and arrangements made to hold the next convention at St. Ola.

Aberhart Opening Six Credit Houses

EDMONTON, Sept. 27—(CP). — Six treasury branches of "Credit Houses" operating under the Alberta Social Credit Government's interim program will be opened on Friday, Premier Aberhart announced last night at the Edmonton Prophetic Bible Conference.

The Premier said Cabinet Ministers will speak at opening ceremonies at Edmonton, Grande Prairie, Andrew, Rocky Mountain House, Killam and St. Paul.

Treasury branches operating "somewhat similar" to credit unions of Eastern Canada will be established throughout the province, Mr. Aberhart stated, to "enable the people by co-operation to gain the advantage of their combined financial strength as well as their combined credit power.

Mr. Aberhart said the treasury branches would handle "the credit we are issuing in the building of roads in many northern and western constituencies where little road work has been granted in the past. The credit is being issued on a basis of one to two—one of credit which will supply the people with groceries, clothes, lumber etcetera, and two to apply on the unpaid tax arrears.

The Premier said the scheme involved a method of increasing purchasing power by granting a bonus on goods purchased "when and if a certain proportion of them are Alberta-made goods."

The program will prevent "a great quantity of money from being taken out of our province."

TWEED

Dungannon Barn Is Burned To Ground

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Sept. 23.—On Sunday afternoon, Leith Robson, a young man from the vicinity of the village of Marmora, was travelling east on No. 7 Highway when a tire blew out on Dougan's Hill. Before being able to get his automobile under control, it struck a post and landed in a deep ditch. The young man was badly cut about the face and had one arm broken. Dr. Beatty, Madoc, was called to the accident and had the young man removed to his office and later transferred him to the Belleville General Hospital.

Fire of unknown origin, which spread rapidly through the structure after starting in the stable loft, completely destroyed the large barn and several smaller buildings on the farm of Oscar White, Dungannon township farmer. Only a heap of ashes remained of the barn and the season's crop of hay and grain. Firefighting was hampered by shortage of water in the well.

Keeping a close watch for a bear which had been playing havoc with his sheep for the past several weeks, Chris Musclow of the Township of Monteagle outwitted Bruin by setting a shot gun trap on the bear's trail in such a manner that when the animal attempted to partake of the inviting bait to which the gun was connected, it fired at point blank range. As a result of his work, Musclow bagged a fairly large black bear.

As a result of the wind and heavy rainstorm which passed over the district, a large barn on the farm of Nathan Montgomery was destroyed and a large shed at a nearby rural school was demolished.

HASTINGS

Rally Speaker Is Returned Missionary

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Sept. 27.—Miss Lottie Brooks who spent her girlhood days near Hastings, and who is the only missionary to go to the Foreign Fields from Trinity United Church, was the guest speaker on Thursday afternoon, at the W. M. S. Rally, to commemorate the 50th Anniversary of the W. M. S.

Miss Brooks who has been in Canada for the past two years was stationed in the city of Luchow, Province of Sze Cheun, China for 39 years. She gave an interesting account of all the United Church work done among the Chinese in the far East, and in the province of Sze Cheun.

Mrs. C. M. Scott of Peterborough another guest speaker, gave a splendid address on the Founding of the W. M. S.

Mrs. A. M. Brooks, one of the oldest members of the Hastings W. M. S. and a valued and active worker gave a full account of the W. M. S. in the past 50 years.

Duets were rendered by Mrs. Harry Edwards and Mrs. Gordon Fox, and by Mrs. Rork Ferguson and Miss Packenham of Norwood.

Despite the inclement weather, many ladies were present and enjoyed the social hour following the program.

Anniversary Cake

A 50th Anniversary cake, adorned with 50 candles was made by Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe, president for 12 years, and who with Mrs. G. Fox secretary for 12 years, and Mrs. F. W. Newell had the honor of lighting the 50 candles. Mrs. Fox then cut the cake which was served with dainty refreshments by members of the Mission Circle.

Friday was the evening for the Women's Association dinner and Old Time program. An exceptionally large number were present at the dinner hours. In fact more than they had expected attended. The tables seating 100 were filled and refilled which kept the ladies busy for hours.

Following the dinner, the church auditorium was found the only suitable place to accommodate the large crowd for the old time program with Rev. Newell acting as chairman.

An account of the serious war news the opening hymn was "O God Our Help in Ages Past."

To the strains of the wedding march played by Miss C. Doxsee, modern and old time wedding parties were displayed.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Thompson were the modern bride and groom, the latter wearing her bridal gown and veil as they marched up and down the aisle, followed by Mrs. W. J. Warner as the modern grandmother, and Mrs. F. W. Newell as the modern mother. Then came the wedding party of 75 years ago. The costumes worn by them brought to mind the days of long ago. Miss Bernice Garside of Peterborough as (Miss Marthy Perkins) looked particularly lovely in her wedding gown with a low-cut, tight-fitting bodice, very full petalled skirt, long silk net veil, Dolly Varden hat, long curls and dainty nose gay (which was a wedding veil of 90 years ago and owned by Mrs. Jame Johnston.

A. V. German as (Hiram Wiggs) was groom and looked gay in clothing for the male of that period, wearing a long tailed frock coat, stiff front vest, and side beards.

The attendants were, Miss Flo German as (Emmalena Perkins) mother of the bride, dressed in a beautiful old black satin dress loaned by Mrs. G. Marryat and worn by her grandmother 75 years ago. Mrs. G. Fox (as Caroline Perkins) was a near relative and wore a shawl 90 years old and a quaint hat worn by a bride 75 years ago. Miss Ruby Fleming (Marry Jane Wiggs); Mrs. C. Hoard, the grooms grandmother; Frances Hoard (Australia Wiggs; and Ona Hoard (Susanna Wiggs) all wore quaint but attractive costumes.

Not Invited

Humor was added to the display when Miss Kate German as (grandmother Murphy) and Claudine Hoard as a poor grandchild, known as (Emma Riggle), poor relatives, who were uninvited and unwanted came unexpectedly to the wedding.

Others who contributed towards the program were—Miss B. Roberts, of Havelock, sang two numbers, "In that Old Fashioned Town" and "The Perfect Day," Mrs. G. Fox and Mrs. F. W. Newell sang as a duet "Long Lang Ago."

Miss Ruth McCredie of Campbellford rendered the solo "My Grandfathers' Clock."

Mr. Victor Scriver sang "Mother" accompanied by his guitar.

Rev. L. M. Hinton of Castleton, a former pastor gave remarks also, Miss Lottie Brooks a missionary from China. Both expressed their pleasure at being present on this happy occasion.

Czech Troops Are Mobilized

These machine-gunners of the Czech army, shown in action during recent manoeuvres, are now playing at real war, if reports from Sudeten areas are true. The reports indicated that fighting had broken out between the Sudeten Free Corps and Czech troops.

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Acid Indigestion, Colds, Headaches, Bilious Attacks, Constipation OFTEN START THIS WAY

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight!

CHAMBERLAIN, DALADIER AND MUSSOLINI MEET HITLER THURSDAY IN FINAL ATTEMPT

Preferred War To Waiting Chamberlain Is Told By Hitler At His Castle

Tense House Hears Premier Tell Of Talks, Says Trips Alone Delayed Invasion, Rapped Nazi Host For Coolness To Peace

LONDON, Sept. 28 (AP).—Prime Minister Chamberlain told Parliament today that Chancellor Hitler had informed him at Berchtesgaden that "rather than wait" to help the Sudeten Germans achieve self-determination "he would be prepared to risk a world war."

The Prime Minister declared he had no doubt that his visit to Berchtesgaden "alone prevented an invasion of Czechslovakia for which everything was ready."

The crowded House of Commons, tense and silent until then, cheered this statement.

The Prime Minister began his historic address with the statement that "we are faced with a situation which has had no parallel since 1914."

His declaration was made to Parliament while thousands massed outside the historic building, waiting, intense, to know whether Europe was to be plunged into a new war.

Mr. Chamberlain and members of the Royal Family were cheered as they arrived but otherwise the crowd was grimly silent.

EARLIER TREATY REVISION THE REAL SOLUTION

"I cannot help reflecting," asserted the Prime Minister, "that if Article XIX. of the League covenant providing for revision of treaties by agreement had been put into operation instead of waiting until passions became so exasperated, the crisis might have been avoided."

"There were three alternative courses open. (He referred to July when deadlock arose in negotiations between the Czech Government and the Sudeten Germans).

"Either we could have threatened to go to war with Germany if they attacked Czechoslovakia; we could have stood aside and allowed matters to take their course; or finally we could attempt to find a settlement by way of mediation."

"We have found it our duty to do anything in our power to help the contending parties to an agreement."

He explained that mediation was decided upon and Viscount Runciman was sent to Czechoslovakia.

"That Lord Runciman did not succeed was no fault of his," said Mr. Chamberlain.

GERMAN ACTIONS KEEP BRITAIN UNEASY

While negotiations were proceeding under Lord Runciman in Prague, Mr. Chamberlain said, "the developments in Germany had been causing considerable anxiety to the British Government."

"Early in August," said the Prime Minister, "the Government received notice of measures of military movements in Germany on an extensive scale.

"These abnormal measures, in the view of the Government, could not fail to be interpreted abroad as threatening to Czechoslovakia."

Mr. Chamberlain said the abnormal measures included "calling up of reservists, service of second-year recruits, conscription of labor for the western frontier fortifications, and powers for conscripting civilian services."

"The Government," he said, "had also in mind the close approach of the Nazi congress at Nuremberg.

"His Majesty's Ambassador in Berlin was instructed in the middle of August to point out to the German Government that these abnormal measures could not fail to be interpreted abroad as a threat towards Czechoslovakia and must therefore increase the tension throughout Europe and might compel the Czech Government to take precautionary measures on their side."

"The British Ambassador added that this might also destroy the prospect of Anglo-German conversations.

RIBBENTROP IS COLD TO ENQUIRIES

"Herr von Ribbentrop (German Foreign Minister) replied in a letter refusing to discuss the military measures and expressing the opinion that British efforts in Prague could only serve to increase Czech intransigence.

"Towards the end of August, the French Government, in consequence of information which reached them about the movement of several German divisions towards their frontier, took certain precautionary measures themselves, including the calling up of reserves to man the Maginot Line.

The Prime Minister then went on to describe other event leading up to the present crisis: How on August 31, Sir Nevile Henderson, British Ambassador at Berlin, had personally warned the German Government against military action in Czechoslovakia; how on September 3, the British Minister in Prague told President Benes it was vital that Czechoslovakia offer concessions to Germany; how Ambassador Henderson went to Nuremberg to impress upon leading German statesmen the attitude of the British Government.

"The French Government," said Mr. Chamberlain, "had been particularly insistent that Britain's

Prices Of Stocks Rise Sharply After Conference Is Announced

New York, Sept. 28.

WALL STREET today greeted news of the Munich conference of leading European government heads with a rousing upswing in the stock exchange, one of the sharpest of recent years.

Stocks had slumped $1 to $3 a share in the first few minutes of trading, in response to extreme nervousness of European markets.

Buyers swarmed into the market at the end of the first half hour, as financial news tickers printed the announcement that Prime Minister Chamberlain, Premier Daladier, and Premier Mussolini would meet Reichsfuehrer Hitler in Munich tomorrow in a fresh effort to avert war.

Losses were quickly recovered, many stocks jumped $1 to $4 above yesterday's final prices.

Tense Britain Heaves Sigh Of Relief And Smiles, At News of Parley

London, Sept. 28 (CP Cable)

A WAVE OF RELIEF and joy swept through London streets today as news spread of the four-power conference to save peace.

Britons, tense and anxious for days, gasped with surprise. Gloomy faces broke into smiles. One newspaper boy ran through the streets shouting "good news! good news!" Newspapers were seized as fast as they were available and people formed into small knots to read of the dramatic development.

Newspaper placards told the story thus: "Dramatic peace move," "Premier sees Hitler, Duce tomorrow," "Chamberlain, Hitler and Duce to meet."

Beneath the shadow of the Nelson column on Trafalgar Square a group of soldiers and sailors gathered in a circle to read the momentous announcement. Phone booths were filled with persons eager to tell others the cheerful tidings of the lifting of the shadow of war, for a time anyway.

Queen Mary, who had heard Prime Minister Chamberlain from the speaker's gallery, was in tears as she left immediately after the speech.

All German Shipping Companies Recall Vessels At Sea; Liner Quits New York Suddenly

LONDON, Sept. 28 (A.P.). — A Reuters despatch from Berlin said to-day that German shipping companies had recalled ships at sea and were not allowing any vessels to leave ports.

BERLIN, Sept. 28 (A.P.). — Both the North German-Lloyd and the Hamburg-American steamship lines to-day announced that all sailings of their ships had been cancelled. The liner Europa, which was due at Southampton to-day, was recalled, and, according to North German-Lloyd authorities "is now en route home."

Nazi Liner Rushes Home

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—(AP)—The Hamburg-American liner Hansa, scheduled to sail at midnight to-night, cast off suddenly at 9 a.m. to-day and steamed toward Germany.

At the line's office it was said the Hansa sailed 15 hours ahead of schedule in response to orders cabled from Hamburg.

The St. Louis, another Hamburg-American Liner, arrived in New York with 444 passengers and 505 tons of general cargo. She was ordered to discharge the cargo, refuel and sail today without passengers.

A rush homeward of United States Nationals from Europe prompted the United States lines to prepare for wholesale evacuation on ships with capacities augmented by hundreds of cots, lifeboats and extra provisions.

The line moved to meet an emergency like the exodus from abroad in 1914's Great War days. Liners heading for Europe found some passenger lists halved or even more greatly reduced by last-minute cancellations. Plans went foreward to have United States Consuls abroad certify excess passenger lists for westbound ships.

The liner Washington was ordered to make a quick turn-around at Havre and start the return to this country Friday, via Southampton and Cobh, eliminating a scheduled docking at Hamburg, Germany.

The line said the skipping of Hamburg was ordered to speed fleeing Americans homeward rather than by fear of imminent hostilities in Germany.

Last Passenger Trip?

SOUTHAMPTON, Sept. 28 (C.P.). —The giant liner Queen Mary prepared to-day to sail for New York on what may be her last transatlantic voyage as a passenger liner before being placed under Government control. Shipping circles said the large Cunarder would be placed under Admiralty control without notice at any time if necessary.

Decapitation Call Races Police —To Wax Dummy

Lindsay, Ont., Sept. 28 (CP)

POLICE CHIEF R. H. Lawler roared away from headquarters in a patrol car last night when a woman telephoned frantically to "Come quick, there's a woman been killed."

"She has been decapitated," the woman told startled police. "Her head is cut right from her body."

When police reached the scene of the "crime," they found—that's right—the head of a wax dummy.

Mackenzie King Supports Chamberlain

OTTAWA, Sept. 28—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King was ready to summon his ministers for cabinet council on the shortest notice if news from Europe required immediate consideration of the government.

Late this morning no call had been issued. It was assumed the advices reaching the government were such that a meeting today might not be necessary. All ministers were asked by the Prime Minister to remain within call in event of an emergency.

Yesterday they sat nearly seven hours studying the European situation as it affects Canada and the Prime Minister issued a statement declaring "the Government is making preparations for any contingency."

Mr. Mackenzie King declared the Government was ready for the immediate calling of parliament "if the efforts which are still being made to preserve the peace of Europe should fail."

At the same time Mr. Mackenzie King said "the Government is in complete accord with the statement Mr. Chamberlain has made to the world today." He was referring to the British Prime Minister's broadcast address yesterday, the text of which was before the afternoon session of Council.

Details of the preparations being made were not divulged and the Prime Minister expressed a desire not to be questioned on such matters as movements of men or material which make up Canada's defence force.

Speaking to newspaper men after yesterday's Cabinet Council the Prime Minister made a plea for unity. "For our country to keep united is all-important," he said. "To this end, in whatever we may say or do, we must seek to avoid creating controversies and divisions that might seriously impair effective and concerted action when parliament meets."

German Dictator Calls Halt In Nazi Mobilization 24 Hours, Pending Outcome

Duce Agrees To Attend On British Guarantee Czechs To Cede Sudetenland; New Hope Sends British Commons Wild

By J. F. Sanderson (Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Sept. 28 (CP Cable).—Prime Minister Chamberlain will fly to Munich tomorrow for a four-power conference arranged in a final attempt to bring peace out of the Czech-German crisis.

The momentous conference, in which the British leader will meet with Chancellor Hitler of Germany, Premier Mussolini of Italy and Premier Daladier of France was arranged after Mr. Chamberlain had informed the Italian Dictator that he already had "guaranteed that the Czech promises (to cede Sudetenland to Germany peacefully) shall be carried out and I feel confident of full agreement within a week."

When the Prime Minister made the dramatic announcement of the 11th-hour conference to a crowded House of Commons today, the traditional calm of Westminster was shattered as members, fearing the worst, suddenly realized war might be averted.

NEW HOPE ELECTRIFIES BRITISH HOUSE

Members on the floor of the House and peers in the galleries waved papers, shouted their approval and cheered loudly.

The Prime Minister, visibly affected by the unbridled demonstration which followed his announcement, also revealed that Hitler had agreed to postpone mobilization of the German army for 24 hours to permit the Munich conference to be held.

Throughout his speech to the emergency session of the Commons, in which he disclosed for the first time details of his two momentous meetings with the German Fuehrer, Mr. Chamberlain had spoken in strong and sometimes ringing tones.

His voice suddenly became low and apparently he controlled it with difficulty as he declared:

"No member of this House will not feel his heart leap that the crisis once more has been postponed. I hope the House will release me now to go to see what I can make of this last effort."

He sat down amid ringing cheers.

After a few brief speeches the House agreed unanimously on the Prime Minister's suggestion to adjourn until Monday.

While he talked the British fleet was mobilizing, millions of men were under arms in Great Britain, Germany, France, Italy and Czechoslovakia.

THE CALL TO A FOUR POWER CONFERENCE

Just as Mr. Chamberlain concluded an hour and a half speech he was handed a pencilled note by Sir John Simon.

He read it, lifted his eyes from the paper and announced the invitation for him, Daladier and Mussolini to meet Hitler tomorrow.

In a few lightning moments after Sir John Simon handed him the scrap of pencilled paper he painted the changed aspect of world affairs.

"Hitler has invited me, Mussolini and Daladier to Munich tomorrow morning," he said.

"I need not say what my answer will be."

Then he disclosed the 24-hour postponement of German mobilization and the fact that Mussolini had sent his Berlin Ambassador to Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop to ask Hitler to defer his use of force against the Czechoslovaks.

There was no indication that Czechoslovakia would be directly represented at Munich.

All this came after Mr. Chamberlain's electrifying break in his hour and a half combre speech.

He broke his words off to read the note and then said to the hushed House:

"I have something else to tell the House now."

And when he told it the Commons became a bedlam of cheers.

CHAMBERLAIN CALLS ON MUSSOLINI

Mr. Chamberlain disclosed that only today he had sent his message to Mussolini stating he had made a last appeal to Hitler.

He told Il Duce he felt sure the dispute could be settled by discussion and asked him to help.

From Paris came reports, current in diplomatic circles, that Premier Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia had resigned, and in Rome it was indicated Mussolini had made Benes' retirement a condition of his acceptance of the role of mediator.

When Mr. Chamberlain had finished speaking the Opposition leader, Clement Attlee, rose to say fervently:

"When the House re-assembles in a short time (Monday) the war clouds may have lifted."

Other Opposition men, Sir Archibald Sinclair, George Lansbury and James Maxton, joined in wishing the Prime Minister God-speed on his journey to Munich, his third trip to Germany in a fortnight in search of peace.

A madly cheering crowd greeted Mr. Chamberlain at the entrance to 10 Downing Street.

He turned and shouted, "It's all right this time."

The hundreds in the packed Commons chamber literally hung on every word as the Prime Minister made the report on his ceaseless efforts for peace and finally brought the story up to last night.

A PLEDGE COMES FROM HITLER

At 12.30 a.m. he had received a communication from Hitler in which the Chancellor said definitely that troops would "not move beyond the red line"—beyond the Sudeten areas—into other parts of Czechoslovakia. The Chancellor's proposal was that the predominantly-German regions of Czechoslovakia be ceded immediately.

$100,000,000 To Him

On Sept. 28., his 45th birthday, Marshall Field III, of Chicago, received quite a present, $100,000,000! Heir to the vast fortune of Chicago's pioneer merchant, he received the accrued interest on his grandfather's estate that is believed to range upward from a half a billion dollars. When Field is 50, he gets the whole thing.

Call To Munich Stirs Hope For Daladier

PARIS, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Premier Edouard Daladier told his countrymen tonight he would continue at Munich tomorrow his efforts to save peace and safeguard the vital interests of France "with the backing of the whole nation."

In his broadcast, lasting only two minutes, the premier told of accepting the invitation of Chancellor Hitler to meet him at Munich tomorrow, together with Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain and Premier Mussolini of Italy, in an effort to seek peace for Europe.

The text of the premier's address follows:

"You have been told that I would make this evening an announcement to the country on the international situation, but early this afternoon I received an invitation from the German government to meet in Munich tomorrow morning with Chancellor Hitler, M. Mussolini and M. Neville Chamberlain.

"I have accepted this invitation.

Delays Explanation

"You will understand that on the eve of such an important negotiation it is my duty to postpone the explanation which it was my intention to give you.

"But before my departure I wish to address to the people of France my thanks for their attitude, replete with courage and dignity.

"I particularly wish to thank those French citizens who have been recalled to the colors for the coolness and determination of which they have given fresh proof.

"My task is a heavy one. Since the beginning of the troubles through which we are now passing I have not for a moment ceased to work with all my strength to preserve peace and the vital interests of France.

British Navy Mobilizes All Classes

London Begins Moving Crippled Children, Enlisting Increases

LONDON, Sept. 28.—(AP)—The King in four proclamations speeded mobilization of the great British fleet today as parliament gathered for an emergency session (8:45 a.m. EST.) to deal with the war dangers before Europe.

The King and the Privy Council previously decreed a "case of emergency" after Prime Minister Chamberlain broadcast that he would try for peace "until the last moment" but that "I see nothing further that I can usefully do in the way of mediation."

Of the proclamations signed by the King, the first called up officers of the Royal Naval Reserve.

The second called men of the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve.

The third extended the term of service for seamen serving in the Royal Navy and of Marines serving in the Royal Marine forces. The fourth called up officers of retired and emergency lists of the Royal Naval Marines, the Special Reserve of Engineers and Officers of the Navy, and Special Reserve of Officers of the Marines.

The King's proclamations were posted throughout the country and announced in a special issue of the London Gazette.

Begin Moving Children

Evacuation of crippled children from London started and was to be completed by tomorrow. Many blind children were among the 3,000 being taken from the capital.

Along with the rush to enlist in the fighting forces and the home defence corps, there was a dash underway by German refugees seeking naturalization as British subjects.

The war office announced "normal" anti-aircraft practice would be conducted tonight with searchlights seeking British target planes. Wide publicity of the practice was designed to prevent spread of reports enemy planes were over London.

Anthony Eden, former foreign secretary, called at the foreign office this morning.

Hitler Forwards A Guarantee

BERLIN, Sept. 28 (AP)—An authoritative source said to-day Chancellor Hitler had sent a letter to Prime Minister Chamberlain guaranteeing that Czechoslovakia's political and economic independence would not be endangered by German occupation of Sudetenland.

The letter, sent yesterday after Mr. Chamberlain's broadcast, was reported to have said, however, that occupation of the Sudeten territory was "indispensable" in view of conditions which Germany could no longer endure.

Hitler told the British Prime Minister Germanys dicision to occupy Sudetenland by Oct. 1 was intended solely as a measure of safety to ensure order during final settlement of the problem by a plebiscite.

Germany is even ready to be coguarantor with Poland and Hungary of the revised Czechoslovak State's independence, Hitler was said to have written.

He also was reported to have asked Mr. Chamberlain why Great Britain was mobilizing her fleet and France was preparing for a state of war if he realized, as he said in his broadcast, that Europe ought not to be plunged into a war on account of the German-Czechoslovak conflict.

There was no nation in existence anywhere that desired to dominate the whole world by force, he was said to have told Mr. Chamberlain. And Germany demands nothing more than the granting of a right solemnly conceded to it.

Many hundred thousand bunches of bananas are being shipped from Guatemala to Europe.

Rome Thunders Approval As Mussolini Heads For Dramatic Munich Meet

Rome, Sept. 28 (AP)

PREMIER Mussolini, suddenly become the central figure of Europe's efforts to avert war, left Rome at 6 p.m. (noon EST) tonight for Munich, where he is to meet tomorrow with Prime Minister Chamberlain, Chancellor Hitler and Premier Daladier.

Il Duce was accompanied by his foreign minister and son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, on his special train.

A vast crowd, evidently relieved at the momentary lifting of the war clouds, gave Mussolini an uproarious send-off as he departed to assume the role of mediator in the German-Czechoslovak crisis.

Hope Of Peace Dwindles In Germany

Mobilization Denied But Troop Movements Go On

BERLIN, Sept. 28—(AP)—Hope dwindled in Germany today that Czechoslovak Sudetenland would be obtained without bloodshed.

World statesmen assured each other of their desire for peace, but Germans said only a miracle could solve the crisis peacefully.

Excitement like that of 1914 gripped the nation.

Rumors swept Berlin that Germany would mobilize if Prague did not meet German demands for Sudetenland by 2 p.m. (8 a.m. E.S.T.).

Sources with official connections said that the reports came from abroad and were false. The Foreign office spokesman neither would confirm nor deny them.

"We are not the war council," the spokesman said.

Troop movements continued. Motorized units blocked Berlin traffic several times yesterday as they passed through the city and headed to the southeast. Camouflaged army trucks and motorcycle detachments last night jammed Unter Der Linden, the capital's famous white way of imperial days.

German official circles held that Prime Minister Chamberlain's radio address yesterday unduly favored the Czechoslovak viewpoint and paid scant attention to the grievances of Sudeten Germans.

These circles held that the facts did not justify the British Prime Minister's optimism that Czechoslovakia would carry out pledges to transfer Sudeten German sections to Germany, peacefully and through negotiation.

All Blame Prague.

The press displayed widely the Tuesday exchange of Roosevelt-Hitler messages, each newspaper underscoring Hitler's will to peace and placing responsibility upon Prague for any conflict that might come.

The declaration of a state of emergency in Britain added to tension here, and many British families departed for home.

The Foreign Office organ, Diplomatische Politische Korrespondenz, added to emphatic denials that Hitler would extend the time limit in which Prague could surrender Sudetenland in an editorial to-day. Extension of time, The Korrespondenz says, "would only serve to stiff-

Mrs. Elliott died on Friday at the age of 70, her will named Rosalie Spatcher, Radio City Music Hall dancer, and William Reilly, former house manager of the Roxy Theatre, as principal beneficiaries.

Canadians Volunteer To Fight For Czechoslovaks

Montreal, Sept. 28 (CP)

MANY Canadians have volunteered for military service with Czechoslovakia in the event of war, Dr. Frantisek Paviasek, consul-general for that country here, said last night.

The consul asserted several of those seeking to enlist here with his country's forces were aviators. Consular officers have taken no action on their applications except to record their names.

Manion To Run In London Contest Likely

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 28 (CP).—Dr. R. J. Manion, leader of the Federal Conservative Party, will seek the Conservative candidate in the London riding, it was announced last night.

Dr. Manion's acceptance of the nomination offer of the London Conservatives coincided with the announcement by Premier King that four Federal by-elections, including London, would be held November 14.

At the same time, the Prime Minister said that the Government would like to see the Conservative Leader unopposed if he is nominated in London, and it is understood that the London Liberal Association has the matter under advisement.

A contest in the riding seemed likely though, as E. O. Hall is the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation nominee already in the field, and he said last night that the announcement of the Premier and the Conservative Leader's acceptance of the nomination here would not change the determination of his party to enter the riding.

A statement issued by the London Conservative Association over the name of Frank H. Curran, president, said:

"The City of London National Conservative Association has received word from the Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion that he has accepted the invitation of its executive to allow his name to go before the local convention shortly to be called for the purpose of selecting a candidate for the by-election to fill the unexpired portion of the term of the late Major F. C. Betts."

In his telegram to the president of the local association, Dr. Manion said, "I am very deeply appreciative of the kindness of your association in inviting me to be national Conservative candidate in London, and have much pleasure in accepting."

The Mascot's Jokes

PITTSTON, Pa., Sept. 28 (AP). — Members of the Eagle Hose Company, weary of answering false alarms, chucked with relief when informed by police that the person responsible had been arrested. But not for long. Patrolman Frank Valeski said the defendant was Albert Kress, the hose company's protege and mascot.

Government control of all telephones and equipment is being established in Japan.

Political Guns Roar Upon 4 Fronts In Next Seven Weeks

OTTAWA, Sept. 28 (CP)—Political guns will roar on four widely separated fronts in the next seven weeks for federal by-elections will be held in Brandon, Waterloo South, London and Montreal-Cartier, scheduled for Nov. 14.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced the date last night and also disclosed that the Liberals of London had been asked by the government not to oppose Conservative Leader Manion should he be nominated in that riding.

Dr. Manion was selected leader at the National Conservative convention in July when former leader Bennett resigned. He was defeated in the 1935 general election and was without a seat.

(In London last night Frank Curran, president of the London Conservative Association, announced Dr. Manion had accepted the association's invitation to allow his name to go before a convention to select a candidate for the riding.)

Want Manion In House

In Ottawa Dr. Manion expressed "warm appreciation" of the prime minister's courtesy." Mr. Mackenzie King told reporters the government wanted the opposition leader to have a seat in parliament as soon as possible.

The vacancies were all created by death, F. C. Betts, Conservative, in London, A. M. Edwards, Conservative, in Waterloo South, David Beaubier, Conservative, in Brandon, and S. W. Jacobs, Liberal, in Montreal-Cartier.

It takes about seven weeks to make provision for a by-election once the date has been fixed, under existing electoral laws, and the date of Nov. 14 is the earliest that could be fixed. Nominations will be Nov. 7 in all but Brandon where they are always held two weeks before polling day.

Bitten By Dead Snake

MARTINSVILLE, Ind., Sept. 28.—(AP)—A "dead" rattlesnake sent Floyd Peters to the hospital. Thinking he had killed the snake, Peters picked it up to remove the rattles for good luck charm. The rattler wriggled and bit him before he could drop it. Physicians said he would recover.

Roosevelt Makes Second Appeal To Chancellor Hitler Asking Negotiations Continue

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP)—President Roosevelt appealed anew to Chancellor Hitler late last night to avoid plunging Europe into war.

Unlike his earlier plea for peace which went to Czechoslovakia, Great Britain and France as well as Germany, the United States president directed his message only to Hitler, thereby indicating he believed the chancellor would be responsible if negotiations to avert war broke down now.

"Present negotiations still stand open," he said. "They can be continued if you will give the word."

The president suggested, too, possible convoking of a general conference in some neutral spot in Europe where all nations "directly interested in the present controversy" could meet and settle their troubles pacifically.

U.S. Steering Clear

Mr. Roosevelt made it clear at the same time, however, that the United States would neither sponsor nor attend such a meeting and that it was for Europe to work out its own solution unaided.

The decision to send the second appeal was reached at a cabinet meeting yesterday afternoon. Shortly before, Mr. Roosevelt and his cabinet had listened to Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech from London and carefully examined Hitler's reply to the President's earlier appeal.

To some of the President's advisers, informed persons said, it appeared Hitler had carried the world even closer to war by the language of his reply than he had in previous statements.

views should be made clear to Hitler himself.

Britain Takes Steps

"On September 9, the British Cabinet decided to take certain precautionary naval measures. These included commissioning of minelayers and sweepers.

"Hitler, on September 12, for the first time promised support of the Reich to Sudeten Germans if they could not obtain satisfaction, and for the first time raised the issue of self-determination."

Speaking of his conversation with Hitler at Berchtesgaden after his flight there, the Prime Minister said Hitler "made it plain Sudeten Germans must have the right of self-determination."

Mr. Chamberlain described Hitler's position as:

"If they could not achieve this by their own efforts he (Hitler) would assist them to do so. Rather than wait, he would be prepared to risk a world war."

Checks Hitler Up

"So strongly did I get the impression that the German Chancellor was contemplating an immediate invasion of Czechoslovakia that I asked him why he had allowed me to travel all that way as I was evidently wasting my time."

Mr. Chamberlain said he decided to return from Berchtesgaden to consult his colleagues and Hitler promised he would refrain from hostilities until a reply was received, providing nothing happened "to force his hand."

"Looking back," the Prime Minister asserted, "I have no doubt that my visit alone prevented an invasion for which everything was ready."

The House, tense until then, cheered.

Mr. Chamberlain said Hitler, in answer to the question of why he allowed him to make the trip, said, "If I could give him (Hitler) there and then the assurance that the British Government accepted the principle of self-determination, he was quite ready to discuss ways and means of carrying it out.

"I, of course, was in no position to give there and then such an assurance, but I undertook to return at once to consult my colleagues if he would refrain from active hostilities until I had time to obtain their reply.

"That assurance he gave me, provided, he said, nothing happened in Czechoslovakia of such a nature as to force his hand, and that assurance has remained binding ever since.

Then Mr. Chamberlain outlined how the British Cabinet had agreed to the principle of self-determination for Czechoslovakia, deciding that the great powers of Europe should guarantee the continued independence of the remainder of Czechoslovakia in the manner that Switzerland is maintaining intact.

France, he told Parliament, agreed to this solution and the Government of Prague was informed of this agreement.

People Want Peace

The House cheered again when Mr. Chamberlain said his warm welcome on his return to Germany September 22 "demonstrated to me the desire of the German people for peace."

"I thought," Mr. Chamberlain continued, "I had only to discuss with the Chancellor the proposals already submitted.

"It was a profound shock to me when Hitler said he could not accept new proposals because they were too dilatory and offered too many opportunities for further invasion. Hitler insisted on a speedy solution."

Describing his farewell talk in private with Hitler, Mr. Chamberlain said:

"He said again very earnestly that he wanted to be friends with England and that if only this Sudeten question could be got out of the way in peace he would gladly resume the conversations.

"I bitterly reproached the Chancellor for his failure to respond in any way to efforts which I had made to secure peace."

Then, just as he had ended an hour and a half of spetking, the Prime Minister was handed a pencilled note by Sir John Simon.

He read it, lifted his eyes from the paper, and announced he was invited to meet with Hitler, Daladier and Mussolini in Munich tomorrow.

The Prime Minister said: "I need not say what my answer will be. I will go to see what I can do as a last effort."

With this the Prime Minister ended his speech at 4.20 p.m.

A French Plan

Earlier today France offered Germany another suggestion for peaceful settlement of the German-Czechoslovak crisis as Premier Daladier prepared to place France's case before the world in a broadcast.

Andre Francois Poncet, French ambassador to Berin, had an hour's conference with Chancellor Hitler and it was learned here that he carried proposals for a last minute settlement of Germany's demands on Czechoslovakia.

Use British Legion.

It was believed this plan or a variation of it was communicated to Hitler by Poncet.

The author of it was Ludovic Frossard, former minister of public works. Frossard's plan would assure a symbolic occupation by the German army of those Sudeten areas whose Germanic minority was uncontested.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Lead Winnipeg Grain

WINNIPEG, Sept. 28 (C.P.). — Prospects of a peaceable solution of the German-Czechoslovak dispute brought excited selling to world wheat markets to-day. Sudden morning advances were generally turned into losses and Winnipeg wheat futures fell more than five cents after opening two cents higher.

At the final bell values were 3 to 2⅝ cents lower, October 64¼, November 64¼, December 63¼ and May 66¼ to ⅝.

Canadian wheat and flour export sales estimated at more than 1,000,000 bushels partially steadied the jittery market near the close.

Liverpool soared 7½ pence, but final quotations were ¾d higher to ¼d lower.

Cash wheat dealings were overshadowed by action in the futures' pit. Sales of No. 2 Northern were reported with a spread improvement of ½ cent.

Paris Prepares For Union War Cabinet

By Taylor Henry
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

PARIS, Sept. 28.—(AP).— Premier Edouard Daladier was reported in political circles to-day to be considering the make-up of a National Union Cabinet in the midst of semi-official French advised that Germany had presented a new ultimatum to Czechoslovakia.

(The official German News Agency in Berlin said authoritative sources denied there had been an ultimatum. The German Foreign Office would not confirm or deny it.)

Daladier scheduled conferences with minority leaders who were to go straight from his office to see President Albert Lebrun. The Premier talked at length with former Premier Leon Blum, leader of the Socialist party, which is the largest in France although not represented now in the Cabinet, and with other party representatives in the Cabinet.

Although the danger of war appeared to grow hourly, all hope for peace has not yet been abandoned in France.

Peace Not Abandoned.

Daladier's statement late yesterday that "the fight for peace is not yet finished," was adopted as a slogan by the Government, which indicated nothing was being left undone that might swing the balance in favor of peace.

In efforts to break through to the German people themselves, all French government-owned radio networks last night broadcast German translations of peace appeals by Prime Minister Neville Cham-

'Action Decided' Hitler Wrote To Chamberlain

LONDON, Sept. 28 (A.P.). — A declaration by Chancellor Hitler to Prime Minister Chamberlain that the Czechoslovak situation had become unbearable "and will now be terminated by me" was disclosed today with publication of correspondence between Mr. Chamberlain and Hitler.

The British Government issued a White Paper disclosing the documents exchanged between the Feuhrer and the Prime Minister during their negotiations.

This showed that, as the two sat in their hotels separated by the Rhine at Godesberg last week, Hitler wrote to Mr. Chamberlain that Sudeten refugees were coming into Germany "of their own free will based on the right of self-determination of nations."

He added it was "the irrevocable decision of the German Reich to give effect to this will."

Hitler further gave warning he was not prepared to allow territory "which must be considered as belonging to Germany to be left without the protection of the Reich."

"It is impossible for us to refrain from giving immediate protection to this territory," he said.

The White Paper disclosed that in his first letter to Hitler written at Godesberg last Friday, Mr. Chamberlain said he was ready to put up to the Czechoslovak government Hitler's proposal as to the areas to be ceded to the Reich so that Prague might examine the suggested provisional boundary.

Hitler continued: "I can only emphasize to your excellency that these Sudeten Germans are not coming back to the German Reich by virtue of the gracious or benevolent sympathy of the other nations, but on the grounds of their own will, based on the right of the self-determination of nations and of the irrevocable decision of the German Reich to give effect to this will.

Must Protect Sudetens

"I am not prepared to allow a territory which must be considered as belonging to Germany to be left without the protection of the Reich.

"There is no international power of agreement which would have the right to take precedence over German right.

"The idea of being able to entrust to the Sudeten Germans alone in the maintenance of order is practically impossible in consequence of the obstacles put in the way of their political organization, particularly in recent times.

"It is impossible for us to refrain from giving immediate protection to this territory."

In a second letter, sent last Friday, Mr. Chamberlain asked Hitler that "no action should be taken, particularly in the Sudeten territory, by the forces of the Reich to prejudice any further mediation which may be found possible."

The Last Plea

The final message sent by Mr. Chamberlain to Hitler Monday stated:

"A settlement by negotiation remains possible and, with a clear recollection of the conversations which you and I have had and with an equally clear appreciation of the consequences which must follow the abandonment of negotiation and the substitution of force, I ask your excellency to agree that representatives of Germany shall meet representatives of the Czechoslovak government to discuss immediately the situation by which we are confronted with a view to settling the agreement the way in which the territory is to be handed over.

"I am convinced that these negotiations can be completed in a very short time and if you and the Czechoslovak government desire it I am willing to arrange for representation of the British Government at such discussions."

Just A Security Move

Hitler replied that immediate occupation of Sudeten areas by German contingents was no more than a security measure to guarantee quick, smooth achievement of a final settlement which was indispensable.

He declared the Czechoslovak Government would be in a position to drag out negotiations and delay final settlement.

Hitler said:

"You will understand after everything that has passed that I cannot place such confidence in assurances received from the Prague Government.

"The British Government also would surely not be in a position to dispose of this danger by any use of diplomatic pressure.

"It is clear from my memorandum that German occupation would only extend to the given line and that final delimitation of the frontier would take place in accordance with the procedure which I have already described. The Prague Government has not the right to doubt that German military measures would stop within these limits. If, nevertheless, it desires such a doubt to be taken into account the British, and if necessary also the French Government, can guarantee the quick fulfilment of my proposal.

An Excuse For Prague

"In these circumstances I must assume that the Government in Prague is only using a proposal for occupation of German troops in order that by distorting the meaning and object of my proposal to mobilize those forces in other countries. In particular in England and France, from which they hope to receive unreserved support for their own aim and thus achieve the possibility of a general warlike conflagration.

"I must leave it to your judgment whether, in view of these facts, you consider you should continue your effort, for which I should like to take this opportunity of once more sincerely thanking you, to spoil such manoeuvres and bring the Government in Prague to reason at the very last hour."

Praha's Best Seller

As the threat of a German invasion looms bigger and blacker, Praha is preparing to protect its citizens against poison gas in the event of enemy air raids on the Czechoslovak capital. The gas-mask is the biggest selling commodity today. Here you see a man draped with cans of masks, probably bought for neighbors on commission.

Circle Presents Pageant At Campbellford

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 28.—The largest attendance of the season marked the meeting of St. John's Y.P.U. held on Monday evening. Harold Kitney directed the presentation of a pageant given by members of the Mission Circle and depicting a strong moral lesson that each one should do his duty. Those taking part in the pageant were Mrs. J. D. Mills, Miss G. Payne, Mrs. R. Tomlinson, Mrs. E. Sloggett, Miss Gladys Stephen and Miss Dorothy Henson.

Miss Ruth Palliser, the president, presided for the opening of the meeting. Mrs. A. G. Watson gave a vocal solo to which Thomas Brooks gave the poetical responses. Following presentation of the pageant entitled "Wake Up" which was splendidly given, Mrs. A. G. Watson rendered a vocal solo "The Holy City" while lantern slides were flashed on the screen to illustrate the story told in the song. Current events were presented in pageant form by Miss Dorothy Henson who was capably assisted in their re-enactment by Miss Ruth Palliser, Don Holmes, Leonard Smith and Miss June Burgiss.

During the business period it was arranged to hold a crokinole party on Oct. 3rd and at the close of the meeting a short period of games was enjoyed.

Anglican Y.P.A.

The Anglican Young People's Association planned to hold a bake sale on Oct. 8 according to a report of their meeting held in the parish hall on Monday. President R. C. Ramsden presided for the meeting and the opening devotional period and prayers were conducted by the Rev. T. H. Floyd. The matter of entertaining the other young people's groups of the town at a social evening early in October was discussed but a definite date for the affair was not determined. Those appointed to the committee for the bake sale were Misses Elsie Southern, Alice Tripp and Mrs. Russell Farrell. At the conclusion of the meeting the members played bingo.

Presbyterian Y.P.S.

The Young People's Rally in Cobourg on Oct. 28th was discussed at considerable length by the Rev. B. Simpson Black who spoke to members of St. Andrew's Y.P.S. on Monday evening urging that all those who were able to supply cars should do so on this occasion. Mrs. P. H. McMillan, the newly elected president, presided for the meeting which opened with a brief devotional period. Following this leaders were chosen for the membership contest which has been instituted in an endeavor to create more enthusiasm for the young people's work and bring new members to the Society. Chosen to head the opposing groups were Miss Gwen Smith and Hector MacMillan and Miss Ruth McGee and Walter Greenshield. Outlining the work done at the executive meeting in Colborne last Friday Mr. Black particularly stressed the plans and program for the Toronto convention.

The program was in charge of the missionary convenor, Miss Helen Meiklejohn and the topic. "John Wycliffe" was taken by Miss Violet Patrick who found her material in the study book, "Keepers of the Faith." Following a vocal solo by Miss Dorothy Reynolds and the scripture reading by Ruth Kelly Rev. Black closed the meeting with the benediction. Miss Reynolds was appointed program convenor for the next meeting.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BONARLAW, Sept. 28.—Thursday evening the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. James Gibson was packed with friends and neighbors in honor of their daughter, Grace, who was married on September 3 to Mr. Ralph Heath.

A very appropriate address was read by Miss Jennie Thompson. Ralph and Grace thanked their friends and wished all to visit them in their new home on the 9th line of Rawdon.

Several musical selections were given by Miss Evelyn Gibson and Garland Irwin, also several solos by Mr. Ken Bain. A dainty lunch was served and they all joined in singing For They Are Jolly Good Fellows.

Mr. and Mrs. Heath will reside with Mr. Heath's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Verney Heath. Many beautiful and costly gifts were a token of the high esteem in which the young couple are held.

Revenuers Use Hogs To Detect Georgia's Stills

Valdosta, Ga., Sept. 28 (AP)

THE HALF-WILD HOGS that range the South Georgia swamplands were ranked today by J. O. Stewart of the United States Revenue Branch as tops among moonshine still detectives. The animals' keen sense of smell and love of the fermenting mash from which the illicit liquor is made, he explained, led them—and in turn revenue officers watching for them—to many a hidden still that otherwise never would have been located.

Bolt Wakens Meaford Farm Family In Time To See Barns Burn

Meaford, Ont., Sept. 28 (CP)

DAMAGE reaching $5,000 or more was estimated today after a fire, believed caused by lightning, destroyed two large barns on Joseph Lamb's farm near this Georgian Bay town late last night. The fire burned 1,500 bushels of grain, more than 50 tons of hay, a Durham bull and a number of pigs and chickens.

Mr. and Mrs. Lamb and their two sons were awakened by a loud crash of thunder. In a few seconds they saw the grain-filled barns burst into flames. Reflection of the blaze could be seen for many miles and brought farmers from all over the district to aid in fighting the fire.

Lamb and his sons managed to save two teams of horses, several cows and pigs and two colts. Neighbors saved the home and a second house a short distance away.

Quebec Will Tax All Payrolls

QUEBEC, Sept. 28—(CP). — Applicable Oct. 1, a decree of Quebec's Fair Wage Board will levy one half per cent. on all payrolls governed by its ordinances in Quebec Province.

The levy will apply only to employers and will result in no change in present salaries and wages of workers.

Dividing employer into two classes —those with more than 50 employees and those with 50 employees or less —the decree calls for some submission of sworn statements on pay list and number of workers by both employer groups.

Employers with more than 50 workers will submit their statement each month, beginning Nov. 15, together with a cheque to cover the levy. Statements and cheques of the second group of employers must be submitted to the board every three months, beginning Jan. 15, 1939.

He Keeps On Hoping

On the verge of war it may seem foolish to talk of peace, but why not do it? If one reads the statement of Premier Chamberlain carefully it will be noticed that at intervals there breaks through the hope that there might yet be peace. The flame is low admittedly, but while it had not gone out the British Premier was prepared to keep it alive.

It came in such words: "I find Herr Hitler's demands unreasonable — but I shall not give up my hope for a peaceful solution." And then again after describing the steps which had been taken, of the disappointments, he returned again to the thought which he refused to relinquish: "It seems still more impossible that a quarrel which is already settled in principle should be a subject of war."

The power of conference and negotiation has not lost its full force. Each and every war has proved that. When the order to cease fire came to stop the war in 1918 it was after that the conferences came which resulted in the final agreement. What this war-sick world is hoping for is that such conferences might be held and made effective before the conflict starts rather than after the warring nations have bled to the point of exhaustion.

And so the world joins with Chamberlain of Britain in persisting to hope for peace even while the flame in the lamp burns low.

How Detroit Views It

One full page is taken up in the Detroit News with pictures and short statements by 32 residents of that city telling what they think of the crisis in Europe, and also what should be done about it. Those who were interviewed range from Governor Murphy of Michigan, Mayor Reading of Detroit, to chefs, workers, teachers and a number of women. So it is a fairly representative cross section of public opinion.

Governor Murphy said: "For once I would like to see a human family wise enough to have a peace conference before slaughtering each other instead of afterwards." That is a well-framed sentence built on common sense. It was a better utterance than that of Mayor Reading: "I think United States should adopt the same course as a wise citizen who finds his neighbors quarreling; that is, stay out of it and let them settle their own disputes. Incidentally one who interferes in a fight generally gets the worst of it."

The amount of territory covered in the 32 statements is wide. "I think we should stay out of it" naturally has a fair following, but much less than might be anticipated. There were several who qualified that belief by adding, "but I do not see how we can."

Some of the comments we consider interesting:

"Talk as you will when a big bully comes and starts kicking you around there is no use answering him with talk of peace."

"Nothing was gained in the last war. What is to be gained by another?"

"It's a dirty mess and how can we say we'll stay out of it?"

"A few more wars like the last and they will realize they are all losers."

"I hate to see Hitler get away with what he is doing. I think the whole world has an obligation to stop him."

This from Rev. W. B. Pullinger, rector of Grace Episcopal church, a former Canadian: "I think it is the most lamentable thing I ever saw. I think the United States should stay out of it."

"America's only concern should be to defend herself and Canada if attacked."

"It was President Wilson who sat down with the others and created the state which is now threatened."

Whether those interviews correctly reflect the feeling of a large number of American people we do not know but the comment is interesting and shows that people across the line are closely in touch with the situation. It is significant that in none of the 32 opinions was there a word to indicate sympathy for Hitler or his methods.

One Tax That Failed

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of Alberta has been considering some more of the legislation passed by the legislature of Alberta, and the verdict is that said legislation should never have been passed. It is not the first time that the handiwork of Premier Aberhart has been rebuked, but this case is interesting not only in Alberta but to every agricultural province outside of it.

The legislation was framed under the heading of the Alberta Production Tax and the proceeds of this special tax were to be used for the introduction of some form of insurance against crop failure. Under the provisions of the Act 7 per cent. of all agricultural produce would have become vested in the Crown in the right of the province, and agricultural produce was defined as: Wheat, oats, rye, barley, flax, peas, beans, hay, alfalfa, sugar beets, potatoes, grass seed, clover seed, eggs, honey, cattle, horses, sheep, swine, poultry, geese, wool.

The list included also everything produced from a dairy farm, and the defect was that the method of taxation "imposed indirect taxation, which comes under Federal authority only." It is easy enough to see where there would be plenty of difficulty in taking from each farmer an exact 7 per cent. of everything he produced, especially if it was to be delivered in kind. It would have been more feasible to take 7 per cent. of the sale price, but the Act did not so provide.

It is not difficult to understand the reason which prompted the introduction of such legislation especially in a land where drought, hail, wind, etc., are apt to make some form of insurance against heavy losses necessary. The idea that those who were to receive the benefits should be expected to provide the funds was also correct enough. On the face of it the measure looked more reasonable than others which the same legislature has passed, but the decision is that Mr. Aberhart was skating over the blue line of Federal rights when he delivered his shot. Therefore it has been disallowed.

A Stupid Thing To Do

Two Toronto detectives received a report that a garage had been entered and went to investigate. They found two young men in there who did not wish to be arrested, and the result is described in reports as "a furious rough and tumble brawl."

And that is just about as silly as anything which could have taken place. The chances of getting away from an officer are not bright at any time; in fact they are rather dull. A policeman or a detective is not a weakling, and he has a rather good knowledge of how to deal with men of all classes and sizes. If an individual does get away his chances of ultimate escape are not good. A general alarm will put other policemen all over the community on the search for him.

When these youths come to court they will face a charge of breaking and entering, and in addition another charge of obstructing police. There will be that extra price to be paid and the arrested men will have to pay it themselves.

There are too many cases where fighting policemen has received the support of the crowd that often enough gathers, and we lose patience with all that sort of rot. For that's all it is.

A policeman is part of our system of law and order. If a man goes to break into your house you have a right to call for one and expect he will take the risks involved in protecting you or your property. When an individual is arrested he merely makes things worse for himself by starting a fight with the policeman, and he stands to gain nothing at all.

Butter And Eggs

A farmer who sells a good deal of his produce direct to consumers in this city was talking this morning about the price of butter and eggs. "With butter at 25 cents and eggs from 38 to 40 cents it is hard to make out just what the trouble is. I know I can get a dozen eggs for a much less cash investment than I can get a pound of butter." That claim is undoubtedly true enough and it would stand a good deal of investigating and still be true.

At this season of the year egg production is not high and that is why the price is firm and satisfactory. Butter is not in that favored position. The fact that we have about 14,000,000 pounds more in storage now than we had a year ago is what keeps the price close to the 25 cents a pound mark and farmers cannot make money on that basis.

According to the Federal Department of Agriculture we are making little progress in getting rid of our surplus butter in the one place we hope to sell it—in Britain. For the first seven months of the present year the imports of butter reaching the British market are listed as coming from the following sources of origin:

Australia (pounds)	109,530,700
New Zealand	173,197,300
Foreign countries	287,822,100
Canada	88,900

We have a surplus supply now of about 75,000,000 pounds, but in the first seven months of the year we delivered only 88,900 pounds to the British market. The city of Peterborough itself would probably consume in one month as much butter as the entire British market has taken from Canada in the first seven months of 1938.

Exporters say they cannot sell Canadian butter in Britain because the price is too high. Whatever the reason the plain fact is that we are not selling enough in that market to affect our surplus, and while we keep on making butter that surplus is growing. By neglecting the cheese factories we have created the butter problem. We can sell cheese in competition with the world but we cannot do the same with butter.

Hard Fact In a New Way

When Sir Edward Beatty, president of the C.P.R., makes an address it is certain newspaper offices will get a copy of it. Generally it comes along complete in booklet form. When they come too frequently we don't read them all; when they come just now and then we do. Sir Edward can generally be counted on to say something. He is of course talking from the standpoint of the C.P.R., and he does not seek to disguise that, but he has at his disposal such an array of facts and figures that he does not waste time when speaking.

He was speaking at Fort William recently on the poor policy of trying to provide more railway service in a district than the business warranted. From the Beatty address we take this:

> You know fully the danger and the folly of trying to force transportation into uneconomic channels. You have seen nearly $70,000,000 sunk in a railway to Hudson Bay —built in a hopeless attempt to divert your commerce from its natural and economic route.
>
> Experiments in railway construction and construction and operation by the Government of Canada have saddled us with responsibility for debts aggregating over three billion dollars—more than eight times the total Dominion Government debt at the time when we started the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme.
>
> It is common to hear the remark made that the burdens of the Government in connection with the Canadian National Railways were occasioned by the taking over of bankrupt private railways at more than their own worth. Unfortunately for this contention it is a matter of official record that more obligations have been incurred by the Government of Canada in support of these railways since they were acquired than the total capital obligations at the time they were taken over.

That is the place to stop because we doubt if the people of the Dominion have had occasion to look at the situation previously in that light. It is a matter of plain record that our Government took in railway property to the extent of millions of dollars which was virtually bankrupt and which had never earned money, but the fact that from this bad starting point we have poured in an equal sum to support these railways is something to which few have turned their attention. Sir Edward has a perfect right to put his finger on that sore spot, for while he is president of the C.P.R. he is also a ratepayer in the Dominion and a portion of his own taxation will eventually find its way to paying for deficits of the rival road.

NOTE AND COMMENT

One thing to be said in favor of modern warfare is that it has a tendency to check the drift to the cities.

Aurora firemen had to deal with a blaze in their own hall. In that case the usual lecture about carelessness was no doubt omitted.

The broadcast of the Hitler speech showed that the Reich has a cheering section that should make college football rooters envious.

We seemed to gather from something that Hitler said that he does not rank President Benes of Czechoslovakia as one of the world's ten greatest citizens.

There are said to be 2,000 Reds in Montreal. We thought the padlock law was supposed to stop all that sort of thing.

A woman in Toronto dies while listening to a broadcast on the European situation. And some of the broadcasters can make a thing sound gloomy enough.

Rev. A. J. Bruce of Copper Cliff predicts a real old-fashioned winter and advises people to get their underwear on early and not to take it off until March 21. All right brother, but we suppose it would be right enough to allow it to be put through the wringer now and then.

One story going the rounds at the moment tells of the man in Aberdeen who had a standing order with his butcher for a pennyworth of lights each day for his cat. On a recent morning he called the butcher to suspend the order for the day as the cat had caught a mouse.

When Queen Elizabeth presided at the launching at Glasgow of the giant liner bearing her name she was so excited she forgot to say: "I name thee Queen Elizabeth." And so Her Majesty joins a great body of people who after some event or incident is closed and over begin to think of something they had intended to say.

SAFETY

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Cousin Jake paints pictures now, he showed me one about a cow, I asked him what it was; Jake answered back quite short and curt, perhaps the thing I said had hurt, guess that's just how it was.

¶ And I know cows, at least I should, I used to treat them fairly good, I know them like a book; but that one Jake had painted there, was such a strange and odd affair, and had a funny look.

¶ The cow that's daubed by Cousin Jake, has legs like posts that swing a gate, they're shapeless and they're fat; I've often got up in the mow, forked hay for quite a funny cow, but never one like that.

¶ And then there was another thing, the tail Jake painted couldn't swing, 'twas such a funny tail; when I looked at the thing I thought, that Jake had put there like as not, a piece of cedar rail.

¶ Its head was turned half way round, one eye was fixed upon the ground, and it looked rather sad; the other eye I couldn't see, and hope kept coming up in me, perhaps that one was glad.

¶ But Jake likes painting so he said, he says he'll keep right straight ahead, and as he works he bends; it's well that cows are near his heart, it might be tragic if he'd start—and try to paint his friends.

Peace Policy Has Not Worked

(Letter in Montreal Star)

SIR,—I have never been much good at writing comments at any time, but your editorial of September 20th, had just what was needed to put a good many of the people's mind back on the right track regarding the British viewpoint.

I hope that you can find it possible to give a little space in your newspaper (editorial page) for me to express my views, which are in common with your editorial.

First, for the people who are at the present time finding fault with Britain, outside of the fact that the majority of them would not have gone to any war for Canada a week ago when it was as close as anyone would want it to be, today, after Britain has stated that she will not allow herself to be drawn into war, we find these people full of talk of what they would like to do to so-and-so, and what Britain should have done.

During one of our neighbors-to-the-south's newscasts (Sept. 22) I heard the commentator remark very sarcastically about Britain accepting the regrets of the Japanese for the shooting of the Ambassador, but I didn't hear him comment at all about the U.S.A. doing the same thing plus plenty more when the U.S.S. Panay was bombed....or maybe they have found it best to forget.

I do not agree with Britain backing down for any country, but when she goes into a situation with the idea she is helping someone, then finds out that these so-called 'friends' are full of talk and no action. I think it's time that Britain looked to her own ends and most of all her colonies. She should see that these are all taken care of plus her own home defence....and let other nations look to their own troubles. Then, when anyone thinks of taking a shot at the British, they will find us ready and waiting alone, not depending on the "Allies" (or are they?) to come and help.

The happenings of the past week or two should be a good lesson to Britain. She can see now that asking nations to try and make peace is of no use. She must now build herself to such a strength that she won't have to submit with weakness but will be able to demand peace with strength. L. C. T.

UNCLE SAM TOLD.

(Letter by G. S. Anderson, Ottawa, in New York Times)

"WE LIKED the easy friendliness of your people and the courtesy of American officials whom we encountered. We liked your highways and we liked your drivers. They drive fast, but they drive well. We thoroughly enjoyed your scenery, your beaches, your resorts. We liked your coffee and we liked your tea, which is sometimes maligned by Englishmen and even Canadians. We could go on all day outlining things which appealed to us.

We did not like being classed as foreigners. When you come to Canada, as you do in thousands each year, we do not look upon you as foreigners—cousins, perhaps, at least our guests, but not foreigners.

Another thing that all Canadians find annoying is the fact that you don't like our money. Close to the boundary our currency is accepted in small denominations, though not with any degree of favor. Ten per cent exchange is levied on notes of five dollars or larger. Farther inland Canadian currency is only rarely accepted at all.

Being the business men that you are I know that you will welcome this mild criticism and will, I hope, take steps to rectify a condition which is very annoying to tourists from north of the international boundary.

CONTENT TO WANT.

(Financial Page, Toronto Telegram)

"WHY," asks one of our constituents, "don't you keep away from this war talk. We see enough of that on the front page."

We'll try, but the point is this. A newspaper staff is a group of individuals who hang over a telegraph wire to get the latest news on whatever captures their interest.

Usually we are the strong, aloof type.

We are never among the group breathing down the back of the telegrapher's collar when a world series baseball game is being played.

We never hover around the race wire to see the result of the fourth at Santa Anita.

When there is an election going on we are quite content to wait for the paper to see who was elected.

In flood, or fire, prize fight or beauty contest, we are quite willing to wait until after the news is set up in type before it gets to us—but when there is the chance of another world war we are right in there hanging over the wire for the very latest rumor.

WHAT OF THE FUTURE.

(Letter in Montreal Star)

SIR,—I wish to write a few lines, hoping you will be able to print them in your column, in regard to the present situation in Czecho-Slovakia. Germany seems to have gained a moral victory so far, but how much further does Adolf Hitler or his form of Government intend to go? Why should we, a few democratic peoples, whose ancestors always fought and died for their beliefs and traditions, surrender anything at all, especially if it affected us directly, to any foreign dictator and his fantastic ideas? We Canadians are a peace-loving people, but we have a lot in common with the British and their institutions, and we must if necessary meet force with force. We can make just as good soldiers as Germans, and we must live up to the name of the British Empire. If Germany had not been let off so easily in the last war, we probably would not have this situation confronting us today. The British and French governments may have preserved peace temporarily, but when Hitler gets stronger, with more men and more resources.—WHAT THEN?

• Holding A Case In Camera

(Kingston Whig-Standard)

AT the County Court this morning the Crown suggested that a case in which certain charges are being made against a local doctor, which concern a young woman, be held in camera. The judge and defence counsel concurred.

While a judge has the right to try cases in camera, if he feels it is in the public interest, both the Crown and the judge take upon themselves very grave responsibilities when they do so. They arbitrarily usurp the rights of the people, an usurpation which is particularly irritating at the present time, when democracy is fighting for its very life in Europe.

In so far as the case under consideration at the moment is concerned, we feel that judicious publicity would have been far more in the public interest than a "hush-hush" policy.

At the preliminary hearing before the magistrate, sufficient evidence was taken to send the case to a higher court. But no defence evidence has been given the public. The public, therefore has had no chance to judge the merits of the charge.

On September 29th the accused was arraigned before Judge McLean of Picton at the Court House here in Kingston. He was charged with unlawfully using an instrument for the purpose of bringing about an abortion, contrary to the Criminal Code. The accused elected to be tried before a judge, and now, although the case has hung fire since May, the judge has decided to try the case in camera. So far as we can recollect, it is not the general practice to try such cases in camera.

The good judgment and restraint of the press in reporting court cases was, we feel, amply demonstrated quite recently in connection with a gross indecency charge tried here in Kingston. There was much in that case that was not very savory, yet a Supreme Court judge tried the case publicly, and we do not feel the public suffered thereby.

The Whig-Standard feels that it cannot let this matter pass without a protest. We feel that the Crown and the judge have both erred in excluding the public and the press from a case in which a man is charged with contravening an important section of the Criminal Code.

The courts of our land are public courts, and those in charge of them are public servants. They should hesitate a long while before introducing into our courts any arbitrary methods which might be contrued by the public either to mitigate against the accused or to favor the accused.

• Suspended Before A Trial

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

MANY ONTARIO newspapers have expressed adverse criticism of the suspension of Dr. George Stevenson, superintendent of the Ontario Hospital at London, which was carried out on suggestion of Premier Hepburn before commencement of the present enquiry into detention of a St. Thomas patient. London Academy of Medicine has initiated an effort to bring to public attention what that body regards as unjust treatment of Dr. Stevenson, and Perth Medical Association last week unanimously adopted a resolution protesting the action taken as being "contrary to British and democratic principles."

The Perth resolution expressed "great faith in the ability and ethics of Dr. Stevenson with regard to the performance of his duties as psychiatrist." At the time of the suspension, the Sentinel-Review alluded to his high standing among members of the service and of the profession, and endeavored to mitigate the significance of the suspension by commenting that such action was not unusual when an institution was to undergo investigation. That is true, of course, in respect of a general enquiry into administration, but in this case there is a reflection upon the superintendent's standing as a psychiatrist. Premier Hepburn has stated publicly that the St. Thomas patient is perfectly sane. Whatever weight, may be attached to such opininion, against it must be set that of professional men upon three different occasions. Commitment in 1933 was on the certificate of two Toronto physicians; in 1936 two London doctors made the examination, and six months ago the man was recommitted upon authority of Dr. Stuart Fisher, London, an Dr. W. D. Smith, newly appointed by the Hepburn government as head of the Ontario Hospital now under construction near St. Thomas.

"Fairness," says Stratford Beacon-Herald, "suggests that the suspension of Dr. Stevenson was an act which could only be properly performed should the Royal Commission find, on the evidence presented in open enquiry, that such action was justified. To suspend him in advance of any evidence being heard has inevitably raised questions as to the motive behind the suspension."

• Labor Wants God's Plan Tried

LONDON, September 27.—Emphasizing the need for Labor to adopt a constructive policy of moral rearmament in the face of the present world crisis, sixteen British union leaders, including Alan Findlay and Herbert H. Elvin, President and Chairman respectively of the Trades Union Congress, today issued a statement to the press. This statement follows the call to moral rearmament recently made by a number of national leaders headed by Lord Baldwin.

Among the other signatories of the statement are: Mark Hodgson, secretary of the Boilermakers' Union; John Hill, ex-chairman of the Trades Union Congress; William Westwood, secretary of the Northumberland Miners' Association; James Gilliland, secretary of the Durham Miners' Association; Joseph Hallsworth, secretary of the National Union of Distributive Workers; Charles Dukes, secretary of the National Union of Municipal and General Workers; Gordon MacDonald, M.P., member of the Executive Council of the Miners' Federation; and the following Labor Members of Parliament, Sir Robert Young, who was deputy speaker in the last Labor Government, Arthur Henderson, Adam Hill and Alfred Barnes.

The statement reads as follows: "During these days the world has been on the brink of catastrophe, and danger is not yet averted. Crisis calls on us to face reality and forces the adoption of a constructive policy that will make impossible its recurrence. This makes it imperative for Labor at the present crisis, not only to see clearly the root causes at work, but to discover the best way to eradicate them. Basically, world unrest is found in the root disease of materialism, showing itself in widespread selfishness, fear and greed. These are not in one nation alone—we are all guilty.

"Labor in all countries, if true to the traditions of placing human and spiritual values before material things, can build bridges over national barriers and play a decisive part in the reconciliation of nations. It can make such a contribution to world conditions that the voice of faction and self-interest can be effectively dealt with, fear will go and God's great plan for mankind will be revealed and find expression. Such was the dynamic spirit of the great early Labor leaders and must be recreated.

"This is what moral rearmament really means for Labor. Labor is gradually realizing this in every country and making this its objective. Inspired by such a spirit, Labor would have moral authority sufficient to challenge all sections of every community and call for their co-operation in framing and applying a policy which would confront materialism with its only master."

TALKING SHOP.

(London Sunday Dispatch)

THE LIBRARIAN of the great American prison of Sing-Sing wanted to know what types of book the convicts preferred.

He asked 200 of them—and five said "Crime stories." But a check on the records showed that 75 per cent of books taken out were crime stories.

Perhaps the coyness of the convicts can be simply explained.

Perhaps they did not want the librarian to know they liked talking and reading "shop."

The most stupid of modern poses is "no talking shop." Why a man should be thought a bore if he talks about his job but all right if he talks golf or racing is one of the big mysteries of 1938.

It's just sham. If we really were not interested in our jobs we should not have them for long.

35 Million Gas Masks Dwindle Fast As Britons Prepare For Worst

By Guy Rhoades
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Sept. 28 (C.P. Cable).—Great Britain to-day was in the thick of preparations to protect its population from a sky attack it hopes may never come.

Millions of citizens formed long queues in the major urban centres, standing hours before air raids precautions depots to be fitted with gas masks.

The Home Office announced 35,000,000 respirators were available for the civil population, which takes care of all but children, who will be evacuated to open country at the first sign of danger.

Torches flared on Hampstead Heath, the nocturnal haunt of courting couples, as men worked all night digging trenches. In the beautiful green of Hyde Park the grass was torn up and the land scarred with trenches. Throughout the country thousands labored to build burrows in which citizens could crouch if death threatened from the air.

Army Leaves Cancelled.

The Government issued an appeal for more volunteer diggers after the available lists were exhausted at Labor Exchanges. Territorial anti-aircraft units were called up, placing almost 50,000 "amateur soldiers" under arms. Army leaves were cancelled and the Royal Air Force balloon barrage volunteers were ordered to stand by. Work was rushed on air raid alarm system.

The Government had measures ready to take control of railways and other means of transport, to supervise food distribution and to regiment the life of the population so as best to conserve the country.

It was announced there would be no change in food prices for two weeks should war break out. In the case of widespread casualties among ships bringing supplies to the United Kingdom, the citizens could find comfort in the Government's storage plan which has in reserve unstated amounts of wheat, sugar, and whale oil (used for making margarine, a butter substitute).

Protection Instructions.

Tomorrow morning will see heavily laden postmen dropping into letter boxes the first of a huge issue of pamphlets telling the householder how to protect himself and his family against bombs and gas.

Stress is being put on the necessity of co-operation in digging up gardens and making dugouts which would be effective against shrapnel bomb splinters but not against direct hits. The pamphlet cautions that dugouts should be as far away from houses as possible to avoid the chance of occupants being trapped in the wreckage of demolished dwellings.

The people threw their backs into the work. Volunteers streamed to territorial recruiting agencies and an appeal was issued that they inquire what units were filled to avoid wasting time going to wrong stations.

Air raids precautions volunteers—men and women of all ages—flocked to borough headquarters and offered their services. Hospitals planned evacuation of all patients capable of going home or out of the city, making room for possible casualties.

It was disclosed a Northampton fireman had invented a machine that will assemble a gas mask every minute compared with the 100 daily that can be assembled by hand.

9 Miles of Trenches.

Cardiff, Wales, planned immediate construction of nine miles of trenches to accommodate 24,000 persons.

There were some demonstrations held in London but Sunday night's street fights and arrests were absent. The people, generally busy, looked grim but gave no sign of panic. Whitehall was quiet with only a few scattered groups standing on the wet sidewalks.

Late at night police visited offices which were open, distributing pamphlets with directions for screening lights in buildings, the glare created by some industrial processes, and the lights of automobiles, so as to make them invisible to aircraft.

German-Owned Liners Continue Their Atlantic Schedule

The Columbus is scheduled to dock Oct. 6, but there may be a change if war breaks out. Other German-owned liners are reported to be maintaining their usual schedules.

Roseneath Enjoys Fine Anniversary

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Sept. 28. — Anniversary services were observed in the United Church on Sunday morning and evening, September 25. Rev. H. B. Neal of Campbellford was the special speaker for the day. Mr. Neals' morning sermon centered around the great need for the cultivation of a devotional and spiritual life in this age of materialism and that God is in his world and always available.

The choir rendered special music singing three numbers, an anthem, "O Father Almighty," a mixed quartette "Softly and tenderly," sung by Mrs. A. Skuce, Mrs. M. Davey, and Messers A. Kelly and M. Macklin and a number "Draw Me Nearer" sung by the male section, Messrs. L. Roberts, A. Kelly, W. Dowler, M. Macklin and R. Joice.

Mr. Neals sermon at night was based on St. John's Gospel, the challenge of Nicodemus in his loyalty and defense of Jesus. Mr. Neal emphasized the need of the church in the moral and spiritual leadership in the community, and likened the church to a great light upon a hill.

The choir sang an anthem "I will extol Thee." Lewis Roberts sang a solo, "Nearer to Thee", and the male section sang "Redeemed."

Baskets of cut flowers were placed in the chancel against a background of palms.

Mrs. James McKinnon, of Cobourg was a guest of her aunt, Mrs. W. J. Roberts, this week.

The Rev. J. N. and Mrs. Blodgett, of Toronto were week-end guests of his sister, Mrs. A. Nill.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Buchanan, son Harold and daughter Reta of Havelock, visited Mr. and Mrs. James Brown and Mr. Joseph Robbins, on Sunday.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

NOT ONLY will the Orfuns be carrying a lot of responsibility and signal instructions into their frays this fall but the local football players will be toting quite a bit of armor onto the gridiron, too. Just for fun we checked up last night and found that the Orfuns' equipment will weigh approximately 10 pounds per man. Not perhaps, either. That includes sweater, padded pants, stockings, helmet, kidney and hip pads, shoulder pads, cleated shoes and possibly a few knee or elbow pads. It is the latest and lightest pridiron equipment, but will still bump the beam at close to 10 pounds, daylight saving or standard time. As this lovely new equipment gets its rugby baptism, and absorbs mud and perspiration, it will follow nature's rule just as surely as is the case when a plump maiden nibbles too freely on sweets between meals. And in the fourth quarter of a tough game with Sarnia, each player will swear it weighs 48 pounds!

• • • • • • •

NOW, this is a lot of weight to tote around. It would be plenty of poundage to just carry a couple of blocks up George street. But when ya must run, run, run—and tackle and block and kick—with it on for a full game, well it sounds like a lot of labor to us. Of course, we may be a bit prejudiced on the matter. As we were never noted for carrying a heavy load with laughter. We refused to wear heavy underwear to school on wintry days or to tote too many books home for an evening of delightful study around the fireside. As Charlie McCarthy says, we trusted to the honor system at the school—where the school has the honor and the kids the system! No, that's just a joke, ha, ha. We really studied terrifically and nearly passed sometimes, too.

• • • • • • •

It's a Lot In Steaks

FOOLING ASIDE, we can sympathize with the football huskies in battling away hard all afternoon and wearing this heavy regalia. But it is most necessary if injuries are to be avoided. And many clubs will be attired in armor, weighing more than the light padding of the Petes this fall. Michigan Collitch, for instance, has its players wearing 11 pounds in games, and five pounds more for the many hard practice sessions. The Orfuns' 10-pound array may not sound like too much to some folk, but figure it out in beef steaks, or the fish that you nearly caught, or what the neighbor's new babe scales, or a gun on the shoulder as you go over the top. Or even as an extra bulge at the waist-line. Yeah, 10 pounds is most decidedly 10 pounds. It adds up to a lot of ounces.

• • • • • • •

THERE is a good chance of a lacrosse playoff here this Friday. East York and the Inglewood-Caledon Combines are playing their deciding tilt tonight, the winnah to meet the Petes in their O.L.A. senior "B" group finals. East York will come here Friday, if they win, but the other squad is inclined to stall and look for a few days of rest. However, the O.L.A. may order the joust here Friday, the first of the three-game finals. The winner of this group final series steps right into the Ontario finals against the other big group winner, which is Wallaceburg. The Petes have a fine chance of copping a lacrosse title this year, though Pete King tells us they expect a tougher tussle from East York, if that club beats Inglewood, than from Brooklin. But more again. Lacrosse will be played here at the arena as long as weather permits, we have been informed.

• • • • • • •

Is a Four-Hit Game Luck?

OSHAWA SCRIBE says the Petes have phenomenal luck in picking pitchers, and points to Whitehill's win over the GM-men and Jakafby's nod over Niagara. Waal, pardner, we dunno. Is it luck to have four good hurlers on your staff—even if two are used more frequently than the other pair—and to have the two who were used least often win in important games? Don't forget that the Gunner led the loop in hurling a few years ago, and that Joe was imported to twirl and is still here. We call it good judgment—and don't think that the Petes were compelled to use Russ Kitchen and Lefty McNally for all their games. C.O.B.L. scribes laughed at the locals for carrying such a big pitching staff this season, but it seems the Petes are raking in dividends now. And those other scribes have no baseball now to write about in their towns. (Ed. Note: Now, now, sap, don't rub it in.)

• • • • • • •

DOESN'T SEEM LIKE the Petes will have a ball game this week. Creighton Mines are still dickering through the O.B.A. with the locals in an attempt to stage an O.B.A. semi-final series here, but they want some $400 guarantee; the officers here feel that is too risky—what with weather uncertain and it being too late to insure Saturday's games against rain. The northern squad lost money at home in their series two weeks ago with Canadian Corps of Toronto, so they want the Petes to take all the risk down here, or threaten to drop out of further competition. It might simplify things if they did that. Stratford and Toronto have a semi-final series this week. If the semi-finals between Creighton Mines and the Petes fall through (as they appear likely to do now), the Petes will be idle till next week. It is noticeable that the northern ballsters make no offer for the Petes to go there—nor has the O.B.A. offered to assist financially in such a series. The rustle of greenbacks is music that charms.

The Bouncing Boys Are Back

COMES AN INVITE to the Orfuns from the Montreal Cubs of the Big Four—called the Indians last year—for an exhibition grid game this Saturday. The Cubs offered to come here for a guarantee but were informed the gridiron wasn't in shape for play yet. So the local rugby club offered to play in Montreal, for a similar guarantee. At this writing, nothing had been settled yet. As for the Orfuns' scheduled opener 'gainst the Nationals in Mo'real on Thanksgiving Day, the Peterborough players will travel by bus to Port Hope the preceding Sunday aft and go by C.N.R. to the French-Canuck metropolis. Arrive there in time for a good night's sleep at the Queen's Hotel. After the game they head for home in the eve and will arrive back early Tuesday a.m. Thanksgiving Day is Monday, Oct. 10th.

Queen Mary School Team Shuts Out King George 2-0

Queen Mary Public School team gathered two points from King George eleven, Tuesday afternoon, on King Edward Park, by the score of 2 to 0. Loucks and Kinmont being the marksmen for the winners.

League Standing

	P	W	L	D	F	A	P.
Queen Mary	2	1	0	1	2	0	3
Prince of Wales	2	1	0	1	5	0	3
King Edward	1	1	0	0	3	1	2
King George	2	1	1	0	1	2	2
Central	1	0	1	0	1	3	0

Two points for a win and one for a draw.

First Half

In the early stages, both custodians were called upon to save the forwards who were getting the better of the defence. Loucks broke away on the wing to centre in front of goal where Kinmount rattled a hot drive past the upright. King George replied with a steady attack to find Ward unbeatable. He many times run out of goal to help his full backs that were not reliable in tackling. At last, the break went in favor of Queen Mary when the King George goalie failed to clear a shot from Matthews and Loucks gathered up the loose ball to place it in an empty goal. Thereafter, King George forwards played too much individualism to make any progress. Queen Mary 1, King George 0.

Second Half

On resuming, the leaders settled down to make inroads upon the loser's goal but found Withers and Ralph repulsing their offensives. This gave their forwards every confidence to get within shooting distance of Queen Mary goal but their passing play in between the full backs allowed the custodian to run out repeatedly to kick clear or handle with ease to relieve the pressure. After twenty minutes of play the King George right winger shot the ball across the goal mouth but his centre wasn't there to take he pass. Lester passed out to Dewart who travelled along the wing to let Loucks carry the ball into the King George goal. Anderson saving Kinmonts' shot at the corner of the upright, went back a little to get the rebound and the ball landed in below the cross-bar. Queen Mary 2. King George 0.

Kink George—R. Anderson, goal; H. Withers and D. Ralph full backs; K. Ferguson, G. Powell and F. Wise halves; K. Withers, H. Foster, A. Barrie, C. Cornwell and S. Stewart forwards. Subs—K. Lee and S. Joyce.

Queen Mary—E. Ward goal; L. McCartney and R. Blondin full backs; F. Mortimer, A. Lester and M. Dewart halves; D. Loucks, W. Jones, B. Kinmont, D. Dundas and J. Bond forwards. Subs—G. Matthews and J. Franks.

Referee—D. Buchan.

Eight Teams In Bowling League

Eight teams entered the City 5-Pin Bowling League last night at the annual reorganization meeting held in the Duffus' Bowling alleys. Chief George Gimblett, president of the circuit, presided and was assisted by Secretary Walter Firth. Teams in to date include: Quaker Oats, Grafton's, Lucky Seven, C.G.E., The Examiner, K. of C., Barbers, and the Bowlrites. It is hoped by league officials that 10 teams will comprise the City League during the coming season.

It was decided to bowl on Thursday nights at Duffus' at eight o'clock, starting about the middle of October and running all winter. The closing date for entries was set at October 6th, when another meeting will be held at eight p.m. in Duffus'—and any club wishing to enter is advised to have a representative on hand. The Duffus' Academy may enter a team. There was some general discussion at last night's session before the gathering adjourned.

Huddle System Abolished By Imperials

SARNIA, Spt. 28.—Art Massucci, who led Canadian football into most of the Americanisms it has adopted during the past five years, has dipped back into the Canadian bag for his latest gridiron wrinkle.

The Imperial mentor has decided to abolish the huddle.

There is nothing wrong with the huddle system of conveying the play to the players, Massucci still likes it. But he has decided that its advantages of more explicit interpretation of the play to be used is counterbalanced by the fact that too many of the players want to call the play.

Veterans Give Help

When Alex. Hayes called signals there was a minimum of interference. But with younger players in the key position the natural tendency of the veterans is to give him so many helping hands that everyone is fuddled when they march into the line for the play.

Verdun Seeking Joliat As Coach

MONTREAL, Sept. 27—(CP).—Art Therrien, newly-elected president of Verdun Maple Leafs of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, today announced efforts were being made to obtain Auriel Joliat, former National League star with Montreal Canadiens, as manager.

Joliat, Pete Lepine and Marty Burke recently were released outright by the management of the Habitant team. Lepine was signed only last week as coach of New Haven Eagles of the International-American League. Joliat, a star of 16 seasons with Canadiens, also was mentioned at the time for the New Haven position. Burke was named coach of Saskatoon Quakers of the Saskatchewan Senior Amateur League.

Therrien said to-day the job of managing Leafs is Joliat's if the little wingman wants it. Also mentioned as a possible leader of the Verdun forces is Odie Cleghorn, another former N.H.L. star. It also was learned Canadiens suggested Joliat take over the post of manager of a team in the National League in England but that Joliat rejected the offer because he wished to remain in Montreal.

Exhibition Game Is Called Off

MONTREAL, Sept. 28 (CP). — Plans for an exhibition game this weekend between Montreal Cubs and Peterborough of the Ontario Rugby Football Union have been dropped because of inability to obtain a field, it was announced here last night. Molson Stadium will be occupied by the Intercollegiate McGill and R.M.C. teams, and the Peterborough stadium is not yet ready.

LONDON—(CP).—R. N. McDavid, star player with Queen's Park Rangers at the turn of the century, died suddenly at 62. In his day the Rangers were amateurs and the darlings of West End soccer. McDavid, a prosperous tailor, never gave up his amateur status.

VERSATILE BOXER

MELBOURNE—(CP). — Professional boxer, sculptor, engineering student and a former member of the Palestine police force, Pat Marrinan has arrived in Australia for a series of fights.

STORY-BOOK FINISH

BOURNEMOUTH, England—(C. P).—When only two balls of the last over of the county cricket match between Nottinghamshire and Hampshire remained, Hampshire had lost eight wickets. Each of the two balls took a wicket and Nottinghamshire won by 167 runs.

FACTS ABOUT FOOTBALL

Neck and Side of Head Used in Block Make Your Opponent Move First

By LEW HAYMAN

Coach of Toronto Argonauts, Dominion Rugby Champions

SHOULDER BLOCK

The blocker makes contact with his opponent just above the hips, using his neck and side of his head. His feet are wide apart and his motion is forward and up.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth of a series of articles on proper football, written for the Examiner, by Lew Hayman.

Today, without further preliminaries, we'll go into the subject of blocking. Blocking is the basis of any successful offence. Regardless of the type of play, whether it be a buck, run, pass or kick, it cannot succeed unless the blocking is well executed. So you see the successful attack of any football team is based on how well the blockers do their job.

Different situations call for different types of blocking, but regardless of what type is used you must always keep this in mind: ALWAYS KEEP YOUR BODY BETWEEN YOUR OPPONENT AND THE PLAY.

Hit That Man Properly

In the picture above I want you to take particular notice of the positions of the various parts of the blocker's body. He carries his feet wide so as to give him balance with a sustained leg drive. This also enables him to control his power. CONTACT IS MADE WITH THE NECK AND SIDE OF THE HEAD. This gives the blocker a firm hold just above his opponent's hips. A common fault is to hit a man with merely the point of the shoulder while turning the neck away. The result of this is that the shoulder slips off and you miss your block.

Note the head and eyes. They are held up so you can see what you're doing and where you're going. Knowing this you can concentrate on your target.

Once contact is made keep your feet apart, your head and eyes up, then DRIVE with your legs and up with your body as if you were going up and through your opponent.

DONT LUNGE in making the initial contact as this makes it difficult to follow through and hold the block. Good blockers move forward with their feet always under their body as well as wide apart. At all times STAY BETWEEN YOUR OPPONENT AND THE PLAY.

Protecting the Kicker

Halfbacks use the shoulder block when protecting the kicker. When your duty is to protect the kicker your objective is to prevent the rushing opponent from taking a particular course. With this in mind, don't try to stop his charge, merely attempt to turn his intended direction to a path away from the play.

Make your opponent commit himself. Anticipate the fulness of his charge and then meet him at the point where he least expects it. DON'T MOVE FIRST. This gives away the direction you intend to block him in and he will easily elude you.

On kicks, all blocking backs should hold their ground as long as possible, moving just enough to give themselves some drive. Turn all opponents outside and never chase a man. He may be a decoy and as soon as you leave your original position one of his teammates will rush through the hole you leave.

That should give you a pretty good idea of that type of block. TOMORROW we'll discuss another kind of block, the "pin block." Everybody out!

Plenty Of Helpers

ELKTON, Md., Sept. 28—(AP).—When a truck overturned and burst into flames, passersby obligingly helped the driver remove the cargo —40 cases of liquor. After the fire was extinguished, the driver turned to thank his helpers. They were gone. So were the 40 cases of liquor.

Jury Souvenirs?

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 28.—(AP).—A restaurant where a Dauphin County jury took its meals billed County Controller J. Montgomery Trace for 10 forks and three spoons. The restaurant said the eating utensils disappeared from a basket used in serving the jurors.

Nats Perfecting End Runs To Meet Petes

(By The Canadian Press.)

Hopes ran high around Montreal Cubs' den today as they prepared for tonights exhibition tilt with Rockland intermediates of the Quebec Rugby Football Union, and Coach Johnny Macdonald was confident he had solved the Big Four teams weakness by switching a surplus of backfield strength up to the front line.

Macdonald made the change last night as the team ran through a light drill, switching Jimmy Dinee, 185-pound back, to inside wing and Glen Brown from inside to middle. Ross Flanagan was moved from snapback to middle, leaving the snapping chores for Burly and Mac Parsons.

Godie Noseworthy and Jerry Searight, who were on the sidelines with injuries last Saturday when Cubs suffered a 14-3 setback at the hands of McGill Redmen, will be in tonights starting lineup.

Tommy Burns ripped through the line for long gains and Charlie McLean, former Queens star, was impressive with his blocking and tackling as Hoddy Foster ran his Montreal Royals, through a two-hour drill. Nats worked hard at perfecting an end run, putting emphasis on timing.

With exhibition games against Ottawa Rough Riders and Queen's under their belts, Nationals are preparing for their first scheduled Ontario Rugby Football Union tilt against Peterborough Oct. 10.

Redmen Shaping Up

Coach Doug Kerr drove McGill through a lengthy signal drill and concentrated on polishing up plays in preparation for the Redmen's exhibition game next Saturday against Royal Military College of Kingston, Ont.

The University of Toronto's Intercollegiate Union team went through a session of signal drill and then broke up into small squads for line scrimmage and kicking. The U. of T. meets Balmy Beach of the O.R.F.U. Saturday in a game for the Reg DeGruchy trophy and the city championship.

The Beaches went through a short signal drill while Argonauts of the Big Four practised with charging machines for the linemen and passing and signals for the backfielders and outsides.

In Kingston, Ted Reeves began sorting out Queen's University's junior, intermediate and senior teams in the O.R.F.U. then aided by Bobby Porter, outfielder with Toronto Leafs of the International Baseball League, ran his sixty hopefuls through a short workout.

Porter, a former star footballer, gave an exhibition of plain and fancy punting for the benefit of Queen's kickers and hoofed the ball 70 and 80 yards.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB. MARTIN

Apparently our announcement regarding closing the greens on Saturday night was a little premature. It seems now that they will be kept open till next Wednesday, at least, in order that the postponed mixed tournament of September 14 will be played.

Our memory tells us we have bowled as late as Thanksgiving Day. Maybe we will this year. Who knows?

It seems to us that the boys who are left in the singles and novice competition don't realize how near the end of the season is.

It was an ideal night to bowl, and yet only one game in each competition was played.

Don't forget the mixed to-night at 7.30.

PIRATES' LEAD IS CUT TO HALF GAME IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

Greenberg Lifts Out Two Homers In One Game For 58 Total; Dean Cuts Bucs Lead To Half Game

By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

The rest of the baseball world may be hanging upon the outcome of the Pittsburgh-Chicago series that means the National League pennant for the winner, but what excites Detroit Tigers and most of the American League, is whether Hank Greenberg can sock three more homers between now and Sunday.

Big Hank hit his 57th and 58th circuit blows of the season yesterday in a short second game as the Tigers trimmed St. Louis Browns 5-4 and 10-2. That broke a record in itself. It was the 11th time he has hit two or more in a game this season. But the question is whether he can equal or top Babe Ruth's major league record of 60, established back in 1927.

Greenberg has five games to go if rain doesn't interfere. At this stage in 27, Ruth had only 56 homers, but he made four in three days, belting No. 60 in the semi-final game of the season.

Greenberg was the only one who managed to give 14 other clubs a look-in while the Cubs and Pirates battled it out in their "crucial" opener. Chicago's 2-1 victory, earned through a magnificent mound performance by sore-armed Dizzy Dean, reduced the Buccaneer lead to a half game.

Need Two More Wins.

Another victory today would put the Cubs on top but they'd still have to win the final tomorrow to hold the lead.

Boston Red Sox walloped the Athletics 11-1 behind Bill Harris' four-hit flinging while the Indians downed Chicago White Sox 6-1 on a five-hitter by Bobby Feller. The champion Yankees made it two straight beating Washington 5-3.

Paul Dean, Dizzy's comebacking brother, took a pasting at St. Louis when Cincinnati Reds belted him out in five inings and beat the Cards 3-1. Jim Turner allowed the Phillies three hits in 11 innings and Rookie Tom Early granted four in nine frames as Boston Bees swept a doubleheader 2-1 and 4-1. Giants and Dodgers broke even in their final engagement, New York taking the first game 5-3 and Brooklyn the six-inning nightcap 5-1.

Simpson Out Of Game

HAMILTON, Sept. 28. — Still a patient in the General Hospital, where he was taken after Saturday's practice at the H. A. A. A. grounds, when he sustained a badly fractured jaw in a heavy collision during a practice brush, Jimmy Simpson, All-Eastern outside wing last season, is probably lost to Tigers for the entire season.

Simpson's injuries are worse than first examination revealed, another fracture having been located, and x-ray pictures show three separate breaks. He will likely remain in the hospital for the balance of the week, and his football days are very few for this season at least, and perhaps for all time.

Russia plans to open many candy factories and ice cream plants within the next year.

Ching Johnson Pilots Millers

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 28 (CP).—Ivan (Ching) Johnson, former defence stalwart with New York's National Hockey League clubs and one of the game's most colorful figures, signed to-day to manage Minneapolis Millers of the American Hockey Association.

Paul Loudon, President of the Millers, announced the player who came to be known as "the man of a thousand stitches" had signed "to pilot the team this season," indicating it was a one-year contract.

Last Winter, when Ching wore the New York American livery, he was below the form he had shown in his eleven straight years with Lester Patrick's New York Rangers.

Although the ever-smiling Johnson was given considerable credit for "sparking" the Amerks into the Stanley Cup finals, the hockey wise figured it was his last year in the Big Time. But Ching said after the final losing game against Chicago Black Hawks he "figured there was another winter of hockey left in the hide.

Johnson, a native of Winnipeg, admitted to 40 years. His claim to being the most surgically stitched player in the N.H.L. was never refuted.

His return to Minneapolis is something of a homecoming. He played his last year of amateur hockey with Minneapolis Millers of the United States Amateur Association.

End Of Triumphant Trail

This may be the last picture photographers will be able to secure of Don Budge, world's No. 1 tennis player, holding a trophy signifying he has won another amateur crown. The mighty Don completed his "grand slam" for 1938 by defeating his doubles partner, Gene Mako, in the finals of the much-postponed U.S. singles championships. The win put all four major titles, Australian, English, French and American, in Don's hands, something never previously accomplished in the world of tennis. It was his second straight triumph in the U.S. event, and it is now expected he will cash in on his ability and pull at the box office by turning pro.

Little Margin Between Outfields Of Yanks, Bucs and Cubs Except For Beacon DiMaggio

By Gayle Talbot
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP)—In sizing up the outfielders that will clash in the first world series game next Wednesday — whether the Yankees play the Pittsburgh Pirates or the Chicago Cubs—the most logical first move is to take Joe DiMaggio, who is receiving $25,000 for playing centrefield with the Yanks this season.

Joe, the leading slugger of the club feared for distance hitting, has a batting average of .328 and 31 home runs to his credit, and gives the Yankee bleacher patrol an obvious edge over either National League trio in a short series.

A right-hand hitter with lots of "wrist" on his swing, DiMaggio will be a distinct threat every time he goes to the plate. So, to a slightly lesser degree will be Tommy Henrich (.269) who plays right field for the Yanks and has poled 26 homers. George Selkirk (.253), who divides left-field duties with Myril Hoag (.281), has hit 10.

Over the season, the Pittsburgh outfield of Johnny Rizzo, Lloyd Waner and Paul Waner has been a sweet one to have around. Any baseball man would rather have it than the Cub combination of Augie Galan, Frank Demaree and Carl Reynolds. Yet the Pirate trio seldom knocks the balls out of sight.

20 Homers To Rizzo

Rizzo, the nearest the Pirates have to a game wrecker, has hit 20 home runs and has an average of .297. Also, he has knocked across 104 runs, which is excellent. But Lloyd Waner, who heads the club in hitting with a mark of .311, and his brother Paul, with .283, are strictly spot hitters.

This outfield, though, is the spearhead of the Pittsburgh offence. Lloyd is supposed to reach first, Paul is expected to advance him a base or two, and then it is up to either Rizzo or Floyd Vaughan to bring him around. It that doesn't work, they wait an inning or two and try it again.

Reynolds, the veteran centre-fielder, leads the Chicago gardeners with a hitting average of .299, followed by Galan, .284, and Demaree, the clean-up slugger, with .270.

Galan, however, twisted a knee in yesterdays game with the Pirates and may not be available if the Cubs win the pennant. Phil Cavaretta, a .240 hitter, is taking Galan's place.

There is little to choose between the three outfields in fielding skill. They're all good.

SPORT SPICE

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (A.P.), — The Yankees figure the Cubs'll come through in the National League race ....But that may be only what they're hoping....Because the box office (and the players' cut) will be lots sweeter in Wrigley Field than in Pittsburgh.

Things we'd like to see: Jimmy Wilson managing those Dodgers, with a bank roll big enough to cash in on those baseball wits of his.... Of course, he'd have to be really serious about quitting the Phillies first....And somehow, letting Jimmy go doesn't sound like the usually smart prexy Gerry Nugent.

That 185 G's can't all be written off as loss for the Cubs after the way Old Diz came through yesterday....And howzabout an assist for Louisiana Bill Lee coming in cold to fan Al Todd in the ninth, after tossing a full nine innings against none other than your old pal Oiling Boily Grimes scouting the Yankees for the Pirates.

There'll be no War Admiral-Seabiscuit get-together at Belmont this year....The Biscuit's already been shipped to Delaware....The grapevine says Bill Terry has his eyes on Johnny Mize and Phil Cavarretta for the winter trading....But you can definitely write off the Joe DiMaggio-for-Hank Greenberg talk.

John Henry Lewis will train out near Pittsburgh for his October 21 title go with Al Gainer at New Haven....Incidentally, the weight bogey man is beginning to get in old Jawn's hair.

The latest is Mickey Cochrane is through with baseball—but don't bet the house and lot on it, if the Red Sox make that proposition interesting enough....Red Grange, in case you're interested, doesn't worry about the wolf busting in the door these days....What with paying work as coach of the Chicago Bears, as a writer, sports broadcaster, and salesman—wonder what he does with his days off....The only crowd not worrying about the Yankees' slump are the Yanks....They'll be in there when the chips are down.

Hurled Four Shutouts In a Row

If Chicago Cubs fail to catch Pittsburg Pirates in the race for the National League pennant it won't be the fault of Pitcher Bill Lee, ABOVE. At the moment Bill has 20 victories to his credit, and those 20 include nine shutouts, his last four triumphs being acquired in that manner, to give him a string of 37 1-3 consecutive scoreless innings. He is the third National League pitcher to hurl four shutouts in a row, Ed. Reulbach having turned the trick in 1908 and Grover Alexander in 1911.

AFRAID TO MARRY

By HELEN WELSHIMER

Written for and Released by CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Judy Rogers, New York heiress is stunned when Craig Denby, the man she loves, tells her on the phone that he has married a girl he met at a week-end house party. Afraid of marriage, Judy reflects she put Craig off once too many times. Then she phones her fathers lawyers to learn the details of his financial crash, just announced in the newspapers, and talks with Ronald Birrell, a brilliant young attorney from Tennessee who has just joined the firm. Ronald both angers and fascinates Judy doubting that she has the stamina to remain in New York and make her own way designing dresses which she says she liked to do. Judy's father tells her he is going west with her stepmother, assuming his daughter plans to join her mother abroad. Judy doesn't tell him her mother cabled, announcing other plans for the winter with her second husband. Craig phones to tell her how sorry he is to learn of the family's reverses, then Judy comes upon Ronald as she goes downstairs for a book in the library.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 5

"I hoped I would see you," said Ronald Birrell, as Judy paused near the library door, which the attorney had just closed behind him. "I think that was why I came, instead of waiting until morning to give your father the papers I brought."

"Why did you want to see me?" she asked, aware of the gleaming gold of her lounging pajamas and mules. "I ran away at noon..."

"Maybe that was why. I like a good fight. Are you busy now?"

"We—hardly!" She glanced at her attire and laughed.

"Then will you take a spin up the river or around the park? I have a car downstairs."

"If you'll give me five minutes to dress."

"Good, I'll wait in the car."

"No, wait in the drawing room, or here in the den. I gather you don't want to go back to the library."

He shook his head. "I've said good night once."

Thus, 10 minutes later, wearing a sheer wine-colored woolen frock and a warm gray jacket and a beret whose style had cost very much, and whose material practically nothing, Judy slipped into the long roadster.

"Nice car," she observed.

"I got it second-hand. I've always wanted a car. When I was a youngster, running barefooted in the hills, I used to get a glimpse of one going along the roads now and then, and I made up my mind if I ever had money..." He stopped and laughed. "Skip it, please."

"But I want to hear."

"Maybe some other time." The car was passing Central park where the trees waved together, their wet leaves cool and distant in the fog. Suddenly a boat horn pierced the silence. Judy started. She almost had forgotten. Craig was going out on that boat...going away. Oh, what right had she to be here in a car with a strange man while Craig sailed out of port with a girl she never had seen? If she could turn back the hands of the clock, tear away all the hours between now and last Thursday night...

"You aren't listening to a word I'm saying," came Ronald Birrell's voice.

"I'm sorry. I was thinking. I wish that time could retreat."

"How far back would you have it go?"

"To last Thursday night at half-past 10."

"Why then?"

"I made a mistake."

The boat horn came again, louder. It must be turning its sound on full force as the ship swung out of its berth into the river.

Ronald Birrells words were studied when he spoke. "I'm mighty sorry about this Craig Denby's marriage, if it mattered to you. I can't believe it did."

"Why not?" Judy asked.

"I can't think any man would choose another girl if there were the remotest chance that you were interested."

"He didn't think there was. I had been saying no for such a long time, you see."

Ronald Birrell nodded gravely. "People do that. The contrariness of human nature. But maybe you were wiser than you thought."

"Why?"

"You hadn't met me yet." His grin removed all egotism from the words.

Judy smiled, too. "And now that I have?"

"You are running off to Europe to play with the counts and the dukes."

She didn't answer. She wouldn't let anyone know that she was staying in town, hunting a job. Maybe some day, when she was successful, she would drop into the legal offices and tell Ronald.

"Playing is one way to pass time," she murmured.

"I'd hate it." He stepped on the gas and the speedometer flew across the 50 mark, to 55, 60 and 65. "I want to accomplish something."

"I used to. My father put his foot down."

"But it isn't too late! How old are you? Twenty-one? That's infancy. I'm 24, nearly 25."

"That's young to have come so far," Judy reminded him. "Don't you know you have one of the choice legal births in this city?"

"I do." He said it so humbly she looked at him in surprise. All the gay arrogance and sureness were gone. "That's why I want to make good so badly."

They rode along the park. They turned at Ninety-sixth street, and swung across to the river. Its broad bosom was quiet, except where the raindrops dotted it. Here and there a river barge swung a green lantern. And Ronald began to talk.

He mentioned a log cabin, scrupulously clean and barren, and a mother who once had taught a term of school, married, had one child, and died.

"So my father married again," the voice went on. "A girl who never got beyond the fourth grade. And I started out for myself, when I was about 12."

"Where did you live?"

"Here and there, on that farm and this. Then I came to a college, with a prep school, and the president took me in, let me fix the furnace and care for the lawn and go to school. I stayed there until I finished high school and a year of college."

"But Princeton?" prompted Judy. "How did you manage it?"

"Working, saving money, one thing and another. Life's fun, Judy Rogers. Dare it to come on. Smile and meet it. It can't lick you unless you want it to."

Judy sensed that he was talking, not so much to relieve her mind from her worries, as to make her understand his background, though he would have sworn it was the other reason. They were worlds apart—Park avenue and the mountains of the south where people lived in one-room cabins too often.

Judy had visited in the long, rambling, beautiful homes of the southern cities, and shared their luxury and wealth, and now and then someone had suggested a trip into the backwoods. She never had entered one of the far cabins—only the nicely arranged ones by the road. Yet here was a boy who came from one of them, who wanted her to understand. Here was a boy who might some day be great in the legal world.

"What did you see in Denby?" he broke into her revery.

"You're too inquisitive. But we had known each other so long. He was part of my world..."

Part of my world—

The words hung in the air, separating them.

"I understand. He was a good scout. I played football against his team one year. I remember him."

"What year?" Judy asked. When he named it, she was silent. Craig had been a junior at Harvard that term. And she had seen the game, and after it had gone with somebody else to a fraternity tea where Craig had joined her presently. He had proposed that day. He had done it after house parties, and during house parties at the beach in the summer; at the club, at Lake Placid, and in the warm blue waters of Miami. In fact, her life these last few years had been protected by these words: "Judy, when are you going to marry me?"

But Craig could turn away, almost overnight. Love was thin and fragile. It never lasted. She hated the boy at her side because he wasn't Craig.

"Why are you bothering about me?' she asked him, merely to talk.

He slowed down the car, stopped, took out a wallet. From it he extracted a picture. It was Judy's face, caught on a newspaper page, that smiled back at her, creases in the sheet.

"It cut it out two or there years ago. I like the tilt of your nose. Sort of carried it as a talisman. Then you came along in the flesh."

This boy could be persistent. He could be thrillingly masterful, too, she perceived. Suddenly she was afraid. She didn't want him to have her picture. Almost mechanically she ripped the paper in two.

Then she stared aghast at the harm she had done.

"All right, Miss Judy Rogers," he was saying. "But you'll have to pay for the damage." Then he put his arms around her and pressed his mouth against her lips.

School Girls and Boys Make a Mistake By Falling In Love In The Classroom; They Miss The Fun And Knowledge Gained By Having Other Friends

A TEACHER asks: Should boys and girls of high school age keep steady company? The answer is: No. A thousand times no. No more pernicious custom has ever been devised by an unsophisticated society than that of children pairing off like old married couples while they are still in their teens and thus cutting themselves off from all freedom of choice in their future mates. Everything in the world is to be said against such an asinine procedure. Nothing whatever can be said in its favor.

To begin with, the relationship of school girls and boys should not be put on a sentimental basis. They should play together and work together free from sex consciousness. The love game is a diversion for adults. It is not an amusement in which babes can safely indulge. It gives the grown-up plenty of heartaches and headaches, and children should be protected from these as long as possible.

School children's minds should be on their books and their sports. This cannot be if Johnny's infantile breast is filled with jealousy because his girl walked home with the Tompkins boy last night, or the bow on little Mary's bob is trembling with indignation because she suspicions she saw Tommy entering the neighborhood movie with that Smith brat.

They have got involved in amorous entanglements that force a precocious maturity upon them that start them to worrying before their time about matters that are plenty troublous even when they are tackled later on in life, when one brings more knowledge and philosophy to the task than children can possibly possess.

Furthermore, when boys and girls start sweethearting, it is virtually the end of any real interest in their studies. The schoolroom becomes a romantic rendezvous to them instead of a place in which to acquire an education. Their vital concern is in each other, not in ologies and isms and the higher mathematics, and they might well say with the poet: "My only books were women's looks and follies all they've taught me." With double measure for girls.

Of course, you may say that when youngsters are at the jellybean and flapper period of life they are girl-crazy and boy-crazy and nothing short of locking them up in solitary confinement can keep them apart. True. But no harm is done if they spread their attentions and their fickle fancies over a group. It is only when a lad or lassie concentrates on one particular girl or boy that danger looms on the horizon.

For when a boy and girl begin in high school to go steady with each other, as the phrase goes, they are mortgaging their futures and very often they have to pay the debt with the sacrifice of their whole lives. Because Tommy and Sally "kept company" in school, they are bracketed in the minds of their community. Everybody expects them to marry. They are actually forced into marriage by public opinion: often long after they have outgrown their youthful romance and are already tired and bored with each other.

This puts both the man and the woman in a cruel position. The man knows that if he doesn't marry the girl with whom his name has been linked ever since he wore knee pants and socks that he will forfeit the respect of his friends and neighbors because they will feel that after taking up her time for all these years and keeping all other men away from her, he is in honor bound to marry her.

And the girl knows that, after having permitted herself to be monopolized for so long by Charlie and segregated from other men, it is Charlie or spinsterhood for her.

Both are denied by the custom of "keeping company" the right of a free choice in marriage and the privilege and the fun of shopping around for a mate, looking 'em all over and taking the ones that hit their fancies when they were grown up instead of having to abide by their childish tastes.

Nor can any one defend the practice of school girls and boys going steadily together on the ground that if they do they will automatically be congenial. Nature determines our development, and it is just pure luck when a grown man and woman have the same tastes in people at 25 that they had at 15. When we meet our first sweethearts after a lapse of years most of us thank heaven we didn't marry them.

Glamorous Fortunes Delight Your Friends

Entertain That Brand New Beau

"Let me tell your fortune!" Your dating rating soars as you say those words. For — shy Joe, conceited Ted, handsome Don—is there a man anywhere who isn't interested in himself?

Begin by memorizing the meanings of just a few important cards. For example: 9 of Hearts, your wish comes true; 5 of Clubs, wedding; 7 of Diamonds, money; Ace of Spades, a long journey.

Next, try the easy fascinating fortunes that are based on name and birth date. Suppose you've a friend, Peter, born May 12, 1912. Add the letters in his name — 5; then the number in his birth date, counting each letter as one — 19. Subtract name number (5) from birth date number (19) — which leaves 14.

Now ask Peter to draw 14 cards from the pack and shuffle them well with his name card—Jack of Diamonds, since he's blond and slim. Read his fortune from these 15 cards.

Our 32-page booklet tells how to read cards, tea leaves, embers in the fire, dominoes, simple horoscopes. How to play amusing fortune-telling games.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of FUN WITH FORTUNE-TELLING to The Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

Did you ever talk to a whale?

At first they were afraid to go near him.

Well, Hanid and Knarf and Simple Simon did. They found him sitting on his tail on a comfortable mossy rock at the bottom of the ocean.

"He's bigger than an elephant," Hanid said. Simon suddenly remembered that his dinner was getting cold, and started to run away. As for Knarf, he pretended to be brave. "I bet that whale's more afraid of me than I am of him!" But he was careful not to say this too loudly.

All at once the whale spied them. "Ah, good afternoon," it said. They were surprised to hear that in spite of its great size it had a gentle voice. Still, its mouth was awfully big.

"Ah, good afternoon."

"Well, well," it said, looking straight at Simon, "aren't you the young boy who's always fishing for me in your mother's wooden pail?"

"I—I—I'm sorry if I've bothered you," Simon stammered.

Hasn't Bothered Him.

"Oh, you haven't bothered me any," the whale laughed. "To tell you the truth, I've often wished you could have caught me. But I've never been able to fit in that little wooden pail."

Simon looked pretty sad. "I guess there's no use my fishing in my mother's pail for you any more?"

"Don't be silly," said the whale. "You keep right on as you've been doing."

"But I'll never be able to catch you there."

The whale was thoughtful for a moment or two. "Perhaps you'll find me there one of these days. I'll tell you what I'm going to do. I'm going to go on a diet. I'm going to try to get smaller. I'll go without my dinner for a few years. You just wait for me."

"Oh" said Simon joyfully. "That's very nice of you. I don't mind waiting."

And that's what Simple Simon is doing. He's fishing for the whale every day in his mother pail.

2,000 REDS IN MONTREAL.

LA TUQUE, Que.—Hon. Henry Auger, Provincial Minister of Colonization, told Knights of Columbus at a banquet here last night there were now 2,000 Communists in Montreal. Of that number, said Mr. Auger, 1,200 belong to 65 different societies and are "spreading their subversive ideas among the populace."

Wife Preservers

Streets and sidewalks in the United States are untidily littered with papers and other rubbish. Teach the children never to throw pieces of paper, banana skins and other litter on the sidewalks or streets. Cities have rubbish receptacles in which such things should be placed. Even if they have to be carried home and destroyed, it is better than to strew them in the public streets.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KENDLE

For Thursday, September 29.

Judging by the lunar aspects, this may be a day of major events, although they may be conflicting. On one hand there are staunch and sturdy ability and application, leading to a vanquishing of obstacles, a forging ahead to solid places by tenacity and perseverance. On the other there is a tendency to act on impulse, aggressively and not at all amiably. This may cause enmity, jealousy, and defeat, and "upset the apple cart," after which fine diligence and hard work.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which the issues are dependent on wise and controlled conduct. There may be an earnestness and determination to make sound achievements by diligence and hard work and, at the same time, there may be tempestuous urges which may incite vindictive reprisals, enmity or strife. This may lead to the loss of a promised fine friendship or assistance of an influential person. Suppress rash and over-strenuous acts and behavior.

A child born on this day may have a difficult nature with excellent talent and sound abilities, as well as good judgment, but it may be reckless, nervous and impatient. This may cause hostility and strife, although elders and powerful persons may be its friends and patrons.

DeLUXE FOOTGEAR

By PRUNELLA WOOD

Cinderella went down in history as the girl with romance at her feet, but she might have had even more good luck if she could have displayed her tootsies in 1938's de luxe footgear. After all, glass can't be so easy on the dogs, and this department would rather dance with Prince Charming while wearing Herman Delman's notions of clever footwork. Take the platform-soled, wrap-around sandal that is sketched directly below. The ankle straps are gold kid, the platform and toe straps wine velvet, embroidered with gold! Scrumptious! And upper right is a black velvet sandal such as we have never seen before. It is gold piped and has velvet thong sports pendants of topaz.

In the centre is an all-gold slipper made of delicate thongs. They are spiraled up the heel, and then around and around the ankle to keep the shot firmly fitted. Below it, at the right, is a latticed black satin sandal, as delicately constructed as a good coil spring, and a good deal more flattering, you might say.

Do You Know?

Shoes will wear longer if the soles are given a coat of shellac when they are new, or if wax is worked well into the soles?

◇ ◇ ◇

When washing boys' flannel suits it is an excellent scheme to put the coat through very thin starch, then mangle it and dry out of doors? This treatment makes the coat iron up beautifully and keep its shape. Also the suit does not have that washed-out look.

◇ ◇ ◇

That you should soak brooms well before using? Never let the bristles stand on the floor. A new floor-mop for wet use lasts longer if tightly tied round with cord as near the swivel part as possible. All brooms and brushes need regular washing in warm suds. Hang in the air to dry.

G. S. Mattice Presents Diplomas

The Kindergarten Room at the Prince of Wales School was filled to capacity on Tuesday evening, when the first fall meeting of the Home and School Association was held, and 39 successful students presented with entrance certificates.

Mrs. P. Black presided at the meeting, and Valedictory addresses were capably given by Helen Thompson and Billy Allen.

Certificates were presented by the principal, Mr. G. S. Mattice, who spoke in an encouraging manner to the graduates, and to the Lion's Boys' Band, who, under the direction of Mr. Stewart entertained the audience with three delightful numbers. A piano solo by Chris Huffman, and a piano duet by Wilbert Edgar and Billy Allen completed the musical program.

In her usual interesting manner, Mrs. Morris addressed the graduating class, urging them to keep up the high standard they had attained during Public School days. Inspector Wightman congratulated the class also, reminding them that in a good school pupils had to do their part.

Tea was served by Mrs. Constable and her committee, and certificates presented to the following pupils:

Margaret Batley, Hilda Robbins, Gladys Milligan, Betty Simmons, Jean Hutton, Dorothy Mahood, Wilma Storms, June Patterson, Annie Johnson, Agnes Pogue, Phyllis Carr, Hilda Suddards, Irene Stewart, Helen Thompson, Phyllis Constable, Mildred Rusaw, Clinton Stewart, Malcolm Campbell, Reginald Burns, Kenneth Childs, Carman Sproule, Jack Carter, Chris Huffman, James Kay, Max Doughty, Wallace Parnell, Robert Robertson, Wilbert Edgar, Frank Alcock, Norman Dwyer, Donald Hamblin, Edward Bestard, Eddie Reid, Kenneth Dale, James Richmond, Henry Clapham, Robert Lacey, Ralph Braund, Billy Allen.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

Dear Friends:

We speak of dictators as if they were new in the world. We want freedom, to do as we will with out lives, but which amongst us can do just that? I have never known one person absolutely free.

One would think that tramps (or transients as they are called now) would know the ultimate in freedom, but are they? Aren't they subject to the demands of their stomach, the demands of their body for shelter and for rest?

If they will not work, are they not at the mercy of a public which has grown weary of working to support others who will not work? So they are not lords of themselves no matter how you look at it.

Is the man of the house lord of his life? No, for there are too many who depend on him and his paycheck, his loyalty to his wife and children, his duty to the community, for don't forget that when he pays his bells he does a big duty and keeps the wheels going round.

Is a mother lord of her life? What would the home be if mother were not there, to cook, and mend, and comfort, to sacrifice her own desires for the good of the rest, and even altho' there are bad mothers, careless, selfish ones, yet the good ones predominate. So, Mothers are not lords of their lives.

Is an employer lord of his life? What about those who work under him, what about his product which he must sell if he is to keep on being an employer? So when you think of him as lording it over you remember someone else is lording it over him, while competitors are doing their best to undersell him.

Is then, the employee lord of his life? No, for if he doesn't give value for money received, none will employ him, and without that employment he is of little value to himself or any other.

Who amongst us is lord of his appetite, his temper, his whims, likes and dislikes? Mighty few. Which of us is so much lord of our lives that someone outside cannot get in to hurt and wound us?

And how many can mold circumstance to suit their will? How many are so strong that a little germ cannot bring them low, disrupting their lives in every way?

Yet, man is "Lord of creation," having dominion over birds and beasts, which every day are killed for his pleasure at the table. The heights are there for him to scale but how often he wallows in the mud.

And how often he forgets the lordliness which is his birth-right to lose himself in petty mean-nesses. He may not be the absolute lord of his life, but there is enough of it there to let him rise to the level of the gods if he but wills it.

It can be done in the depths of a coal mine, on the heights of a building, on the deck of a ship, and on the engine of a train. You can learn it behind a counter, at a desk, driving a car or truck.

It is the Divinity within you, without which you are only a creature of flesh and blood, with "eat, drink, and be merry for tomorrow we die," as your motto.

With this Divinity you are great whatever your station in life may be, and without it, you are small, no matter how successful you may seem.

But you must recognize it, you must use it. And when you do, you have greater compassion, more tolerance, more sympathy and understanding. You may not be absolute lord of your life, but you will never miss the bit you lack once you grasp the significance of it.

Your Friend, ROBERTA

"Modern Events" Topic at Meeting

A Christian Cultural meeting was held last evening by the Young People's Union of St. Andrew's church, with Miss Margaret Emerson in the chair. Miss Betty Herle gave the Scripture reading, and business was conducted by Mr. Harry Vass.

"Modern Events" was the topic chosen by the speaker of the evening, Mrs. J. A. McKone, who introduced in a dramatic manner the leading characters in present national events. Hitler with his cheering crowd that sounded like a huge wail; Chamberlain, one man before the world who stood for the things that are worth-while. "Young people," she said, "should think seriously in these eventful days. Our civilization is tottering on the brink of an abyss. We are a link in the chain that spans the world. There is an intangible force at work that has kept war back for several weeks. Jesus Christ has not lived in vain. This understanding is at the root of most national quarrels.

"The Roman Catholics have wonderful faith," said Mrs. McKone, "we have made too much of reason. When we do what is right we can never fail. The only solution to life's problems is found in Christian character and citizenship. Young people should find out what is going on around them—they should visit our jails and help the prisoners. There are many things in our own civilization that make us ashamed."

Tickets were distributed for Friday, October 7, and supplies voted for advertising, and for serving refreshments after the concert.

Rev. C. C. Boyter Is Guest Speaker

Miss Irene Ellis gave the Valedictory Address at the King Edward Home and School meeting held Monday evening, with a fine attendance.

Mrs. C. Hubel, president, was in the chair, and after a short business session, at which announcement was made for a church parade to be held on November 6, the guest speaker, Rev. C. C. Boyter, was introduced by Mr. F. N. Dearborn.

Rev. C. C. Boyter of Park street Baptist Church addressed the graduating class on the topic, "Will His Dreams Come True?" In well-chosen words of encouragement, he urged the students to choose a goal in life and work always towards that goal. He pointed out to them that success would never come to them if they sat back and waited for it — but would only be realized by work. His remarks were concluded by an earnest wish for their success.

Diplomas were then presented to the pupils by Mr. F. H. Dearborn and Mr. D. Crawford.

1,000 Red Cross Nurse Volunteers

OTTAWA, Sept. 28—(CP)—More than 1,000 Canadian nurses have volunteered for Red Cross service in the event of Canada going to war and the Department of National Defense has a list of their names, it was learned to-day.

Only 200 nursing sisters are carried on the militia establishment. These hold the rank of lieutenant and most of them served in the Great War. Their names are officially recorded with the Department of National Defense. The names of the 1,000 are held on an unofficial list supplied by the Red Cross.

Once a year associations of Canadian nurses circularize their members with respect to possible war service, it was said here. The names of those volunteering are sent to the Canadian Red Cross Society. Lists are then compiled and forwarded to the Defense Department. On the most recent list received by the Department there were more than 1,000 names.

London Market Uses Brakes To Block Panic

LONDON, Sept. 28—(AP).—The London stock exchange was placed under rigid restrictions to-day to prevent war panic.

Price control for government securities and high-priced stocks and bonds—the so-called gilt-edged class—was instituted with the opening of the market.

Regulation was entirely under the direction of exchange authorities. Dealers quoted minimum prices on a long list of securities which in effect established rock-bottom quotations to prevent an abrupt break in values.

Buying and selling must be done by negotiation within fractions around these minimum.

If traders do not like the prices, they do not have to do business. That is exactly the idea—to keep panic sales away from the stock exchange.

Effectiveness of the scheme was indicated in early dealings, which were extremely orderly and without a sign that the market was about to "run away."

Prices of securities other than those with agreed minima were made subject to negotiation in fixing the price for the transaction, but even in that category there was no public rush to dump shares overboard.

berlain of Great Britain and President Roosevelt of the United States.

All Paris newspapers this morning carried Berlin dispatches from their own correspondents under the huge banner headlines. Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech last night, saying new demands on Czechoslovakia were too great, and mobilization of the British fleet were prominently displayed.

The British fleet mobilization was seen in Paris as British reaction to a new German note which was said here to have been carried to London yesterday by Sir Horace Wilson, foreign office adviser to Mr. Chamberlain.

A special emergency bureau to aid the large British colony in Paris was established under direction of Lady Phipps, wife of the British ambassador.

Prayer Crusade Called

A prayer crusade for peace was declared by Cardinal Verdier. The Cardinal announced he would preside at special peace services Thursday and Friday.

The distribution of gas masks began in Paris with the first masks going to employees of state-owned communications systems which form a strategic link of the French military set-up.

Work started to protect valuable French art treasures from dangers of air raids. The famed medieval stained glass in windows of the Bourges Cathedral in the centre of France, known to thousands of tourists, was being removed and stored in safe places.

Special relief organizations were created to aid refugees who began to pour through Paris from the German frontier region.

Troops and guns moved to defence positions in southern France on the Italian frontier where an estimated 150,000 men were already in place.

French Army Chief Visits London

General Marie Gustav Gamelin, chief of staff of the French army, flew from Paris to London to consult with British military experts on the precautions to be taken in view of the critical situation which has now arisen from the Czech crisis. Under an agreement with Britain, General Gamelin would be in the charge of the British and French armies should war break out. He is one of France's greatest military heroes and is one of the experts who aided in drawing up the Franco-Soviet military alliance.

Indian Potentates Dicker On Time, Place For Their Annual One Cannon War

Simla, India, Sept. 28 (CP)

ANY DAY NOW the Khan of Khar and the Khan of Nawagai may renew their annual outbreak of war—provided they can arrange a mutually satisfactory time.

The two northwest frontier potentates usually come to blows once a year, when both parties agree on the time and place. The conflict is "adjourned" when more serious business intervenes—such as the harvest.

There's only one cannon for hire in the region. It belongs to the Halimza I Maliks. Whichever Khan is able to exert greater influence on the Maliks acquires use of this weapon.

This year the Khan of Nawagai has the cannon. Fighting has not actually begun although a few preliminary shots have been fired at the tower built by the Khan of Khar. Possession of this tower is one of the causes of the periodic war.

Train Kills Farmer Injures Niece

SUDBURY, Ont., Sept. 28 (CP).—One man was killed and his niece injured seriously when their small milk truck was struck by a Canadian Pacific Railway train at nearby Kelly Lake crossing.

Charlie Ristimaki, 43-year-old Kelly Lake dairy farmer, was carried 400 feet on the pilot of the train, a mixed passenger and freight bound for Little Current, Ont. Selma Ristimaki, 16, his niece, was pinned in the cab of the truck.

Ristimaki's body was picked up from under the wheels of the train. The girl was rescued from the truck by a passerby, G. Smith of Sudbury, returning home from work at Copper Cliff.

Smith said the truck appeared to have stalled as it crossed the tracks after climbing the slight grade to the crossing.

The girl and her uncle were on their way to Sudbury with a load of milk for the Co-operative Dairy.

Hepburn Favors Purchasing Windsor Bridge

WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 26—(CP).—Proposals for public ownership of the $20,000,000 Ambassador across the Detroit River between Detroit and Windsor and of the 25,000,000 International tunnel between the same two cities were studied today by Ontario and Michigan authorities.

Major James H. Clark, Liberal member of the Ontario Legislature for Windsor-Sandwich, suggested before a Federal Court in Detroit hearing plans for re-organizing the bankrupt Detroit International Bridge Company which operates the Ambassador bridge that Michigan and Ontario take over the bridge and operate it as a toll-free public utility. Major Clark extended his plan today to include the International tunnel.

Judge Arthur F. Lederle, who heard the re-organization application, said the court had the right to sell the bridge to Ontario and Michigan and it would solve the problem of the heavy tax tolls that kept the bridge from solvency. The hearing was adjourned until Nov. 10.

Michigan State authorities today made no comment on the proposal, but at Toronto Premier Mitchell Hepburn said his Government had adopted a broad policy of province-plus-state ownership of all International bridges and was in favor of Major Clark's idea.

Looking Back
On This Date

SEPTEMBER 28

This date might well be considered a red-letter one in the story of temperance in Canada, for it has at least three manifestations of that movement to its credit.

In 1663 an edict was issued at Quebec forbidding the sale of liquor to Indians under any circumstance. The proclamation expressly forbade the French, "who may live or go among the Indians settled near towns, keeping any publichouse or permitting Indians to receive liquor at any taverns in town." The penalty for breach of the edict was death, and there are records of many coureurs de bois as well as "pedlers from New England" being summarily shot when caught with liquor in their possession.

Then on the same date in 1684 Governor LaBarre issued another proclamation on the same lines following a long period during which there had been a bitter struggle between Bishop Laval as conservator of morals and Frontenac, the "agent of state," anxious to develop trade and who found himself handicapped because the "English" explorers debauched the Indians with rum. And for many years thereafter the prohibition of "fire water" prevailed in New France among the traders with the Indians.

The third temperance event of this date was in 1836 when the first provincial temperance society in what is now Ontario was formed at St. Catharines, and proved to be a cradle for many similar societies at a time when whiskey drinking was the custom, because of its cheapness.

Menagerie Grows

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Sept. 28.—(CP)—A fawn and an African gander are the latest additions to the "menagerie" on Premier Hepburn's farm at nearby South Yarmouth. Expected immediately is a pinto pony for young Peter Hepburn who will ride the animal at Aylmer fair.

CHARLES TUCKER.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Sept. 28. — The funeral of the late Charles Tucker, whose death occurred early last Wednesday morning, was held from the residence of his sister-in-law on Friday afternoon. The large gathering of friends and acquaintances gave tangible evidence of the esteem in which he was held. He was in his 74th year, and was unmarried. Born in England in 1865 he came to Canada as a boy and spent the earlier years of his life in the vicinity of Madoc. Fifty-one years ago he came to Norwood and associated himself with his brother, the late William H. Tucker, in the grocery and baking business. He was Norwood's oldest business man.

Mr. Tucker took a keen interest in the affairs of the community. He was a staunch supporter of his church, a member of the Public Library Board for upwards of forty years, and a member of the I.O.O.F. Although usually found at his place of business, he spent some time in travel, having made one trip to California via the Western States, also two visits to Canada's Western coast and the Prairie Provinces. He was one of the first in this section to own a motor car.

Relatives surviving are two nephews and a niece—Basil Tucker of Norwood, Cecil of Toronto, and Mrs. T. Elphick of Toronto.

The funeral services were in charge of the Rev. M. T. Robinson.

New Worries For Czech Diplomats

While the Czechoslovakia government capitulated to the Sudeten German question and the British-French plan for solving it, additional worries were heaped upon harried Czech diplomats by demands from Poland and Hungary clamoring for freedom for their minorities. Poland demanded Czechoslovakia give them the Polish area of Teschen. Hungary seeks to gain the freedom of the 700,000 Hungarians in Czechoslovakia. Meanwhile, great concentrations of German troops were noted between Vienna and the Hungarian frontier, adding to uneasiness in central Europe.

As Chamberlain and Hitler Conferred

Here is a view of the now-celebrated peace talk at Berchtesgaden between Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, LEFT, with Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, when the British Premier flew from England in a desperate attempt to halt a European war. It was at this meeting that Chamberlain agreed in the names of Britain and France to German occupation of the Czech Sudetenland. At their second meeting Hitler and Chamberlain couldn't agree when Hitler demanded more and now war seems nearer than ever.

Stirling Youth Is Acquitted On Manslaughter Charge Jury Deliberated One Hour

Russel West, 17-year-old High School student of Stirling, was acquitted on a charge of manslaughter at the Fall Assizes of Supreme Court here this afternoon. The jury deliberated one hour.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., based his case on three points in addressing the jury in the trial of Russell West, charged with criminal negligence in the Supreme Court Fall sittings at the Court House before Mr. Justice Urquhart here Tuesday.

He declared the evidence including tire marks proved excessive speed, that West was guilty of negligence in not keeping a proper lookout on the road ahead of his car, and that in driving with dimmed headlights, he was also guilty of negligence. Judge Urquhart, in his charge to the jury, said the last two grounds fell short of being conclusive, and he left it to the jury to decide if the evidence of speeding was sufficient to warrant a verdict of guilty. The jury retired to consider the cast at 12.30.

Dean Kelly, Havelock, who lives on the south side of Highway 7, told of finding Anderson lying on the edge of the highway and of seeing the accused in the act of stopping his car after a turn had been made facing the car towards Havelock village. He had used a flashlight to flag oncoming cars so they would not strike the body.

Eugene Gordon of Havelock the next Crown witness said at the time of the accident he was walking along Highway No. 7 in an easterly direction when he heard brakes being applied. He went to the accident and also saw the body lying on the road. He agreed that when he arrived there were several cars parked on the south side of the road.

Saw Skid Marks

George W. Varty, a railroader living in Havelock was walking east on the north side of the highway. He saw the brake light flash, heard noise of brakes being applied.

When he arrived the car was stopped and Anderson's body was lying about 8 feet in front of the car on the highway. The car was facing east. He noticed black tire marks on the pavement and the car was on the marks. Other cars stopped but their brakes did not make as much noise.

"Who was driving the car" asked Mr. McElderry.

"Russel West got out of the car from the door at the steering gear", answered Varty. He told that at the time of the accident two cars were approaching from the east.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Payne, counsel for West, Varty admitted the car driven by West must have passed him and if it had been driven at an excessive rate of speed he would have noticed it.

Broughton Recalled

Recalled to the stand Constable Broughton told of experiments which he and Constable McClure had made with West's car on the day following the accident. He said at 50 miles an hour on level road the car stopped in 69 feet. On a downhill test at the same speed the car stopped in 100 feet.

Mr. Payne suggested to Broughton that if a person dressed in black was walking in the same direction as a car at night and another car was approaching, there would be a short period of time when the driver would be unable to see the pedestrian. Constable Broughton admitted that this was usually true.

The jury was sent out while Mr. Payne moved for non suit but Judge Urquhart decided he would hear another witness who was known to be available.

James Baskin, Norwood told of walking along highway 7, in an easterly direction. Was expecting to be picked up by a car and was watching the traffic. Saw the West car pass at an estimated rate of 35 miles an hour and later heard brakes squeal and saw the car come to a quick stop. He also told of noticing a car pass him directly after hearing the brakes squeal, and going in the opposite direction.

Motion Is Denied

After denial of the motion for non-suit the trial proceeded and William Wellword of Toronto was the first defence witness. He said on the night of the accident he was on his way home from Ottawa. He recalled stopping at the scene of the accident and assisted in flagging traffic. He declared that one car in particular approached from the west at a high rate of speed and when flagged the squeal of the brakes was terrific. He believed this car a Graham Paige made the skid marks.

He could not however say whether the tire marks had been there before the Graham car stopped or not, when subjected to a rather stiff cross-examination by the Crown Attorney.

Robert Slater, a passenger in the car, was equally positive that the skid marks were made not by the West car but by the east bound Graham Paige. John Williams, driver of the Toronto car, said he was the first one to the body of Anderson and West went imemdiately for a doctor. He was positive the skid marks were made by an east bound Graham car, which Slater flagged down. William Bunker, Toronto, another passenger in the Toronto car corroborated the evidence of his three companions. He also testified that he was certain the straight skid marks were made by a Graham Paige, eastbound, which almost run him down.

Russel West called to testify in his own behalf, said he was a high school student and was returning to his home in Stirling when the accident occurred. There were four in the car besides himself, and they stopped and all got out of the car at Wellman's garage, then proceeded homeward.

He told his counsel Mr. Payne, he was travelling about 30 miles an hour. Was temporarily blinded by the lights of an oncoming car, then saw a man walking less than ten feet away, and jammed on his brakes and horn at the same time. He claimed he didn't have a chance to avoid hitting the man. He testified he had felt Anderson's pulse and inquired for a doctor, when there was no person who knew where one lived, he took his car and went for a doctor, then returned to the scene of the accident.

Clarence Hastings an automotive engineer and an expert. He stated positively that car driven by West makes a 5" or 5¼" wide tire mark and if the officers measurements are correct and the tire marks are six inches wide then they could not have been made by the West car.

He was subject to a severe cross examination by the Crown Attorney which resulted in the Judge permitting the witness to go outside and measure the width of the tread on the tires of West car, and return to the box for further evidence on this point.

Miss Jean McNab, a front seat passenger in the West car and her mother, Mrs. Mabel McNabb were the last two witnesses.

Consumption of fruit in England has now reached 86 pounds a year for each man, woman and child.

Urge Britons To Dig Bomb Shelter In Every Garden

London, Sept. 28 (CP).

IN THE MIDST of belated war preparations came an ominous warning from William Astor, parliamentary private secretary to Sir Samuel Hoare. Speaking at the opening of an air raid precaution pavilion at Fulham, he said:

"The situation is extremely serious. Herr Hitler is speaking tonight and on that speech we may know whether it is peace or war.

"We may not have to wait until Saturday. I ask you, therefore, not to waste an hour in doing everything possible to prepare for an emergency. I strongly advise anyone who has a garden to start building a shelter today before it is too late."

London Prepares For Air Raids As Europe Hovers On Brink Of War

Londoners are shown in this radiophoto, examining one of the new steel and concrete bomb shelters constructed below the surface of Hyde Park as part of the air raid precautions program. Today, with the threat of war looming bigger and blacker than ever, military authorities issued orders for all work to be concentrated on construction of similar shelters throughout all densely populated districts of the country. Patients were transferred from Portsmouth hospitals to the Isle of Wight to provide room for local air raid casualties.

Frank Roszel Sold 300 Books On Dream House

Frank Roszel has sold three hundred books of tickets on the draw for the Kiwanis Dream House. He expects to add another dozen books or more before the house is allotted to some permanent owner. Mr. Roszel's chief concern is that one of his "customers" should produce the winning ticket. He subscribes to the maxim of salesmanship, that the customer should be served. He can't secure a house for each of those who have bought tickets from him, but as long as one of them gets this house he feels all the rest should be satisfied.

"There's one strange thing," Mr. Roszel said today. "Some of my customers, not very many, prefer a car. They don't seem to want the house. They'd buy a ticket on a car, but not on the house. Isn't that funny? You'd think everybody would rather have the house. Look how much it is worth; and you'd have it a life-time. Maybe they don't expect to get married; but whether they do or not they have to have some kind of a house; and there's a pretty good one." And so Frank muses about the whims and peculiarities of some of his customers, the while wondering how many books of tickets he is going to dispose of beyond the three hundred mark while there is yet time.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 28 — (AP). — The Seaforth Highlanders, comprising the bulk of British defence forces in this Japanese-surrounded International Settlement, were suddenly ordered to sail to-day for Hong King aboard H.M.S. Birmingham. Officers explained that they were going for "manoeuvres."

TOM ALLEN SAILS

Tom Allen, M. Today Allan Findlay of Guelph, a Canadian Rhodes scholar at Oxford, to which university Tom Allen is bound, was notified not to proceed, his father said to-day. The secretary of the Canadian Rhodes trustees notified him to delay departure until further notice.

Archbishop M. J. O'Brien Marking His Episcopal Silver Jubilee

In the celebration this week of the episcopal silver jubilee of Archbishop M. J. O'Brien of Kingston, a place has been assigned to representatives of the parish of the Sacred Heart in this city, the pastorate which concluded his active priesthood twenty-five years ago this month. His Grace was appointed the first pastor of the south-end parish when it was formed and the church constructed about thirty years ago. It was in that section of the city he grew up as a youth. His parents' home was on Aylmer street south, opposite the present office of the Nashua Paper Company.

At eight o'clock this evening a group of parishioners from the church of the Sacred Heart will read an address of congratulation to Archbishop O'Brien in the cathedral at Kingston, and representative children will present him with a spiritual bouquet.

Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, the Archbishop will celebrate Pontifical High Mass at which Cardinal Villeneuve will be present. Bishop O'Connor, of Peterborough, will preach the sermon. At the week-end His Grace is coming to Peterborough, at St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday and at the Church of the Sacred Heart Monday morning.

"You laid this charge in the wrong court. It should have been taken to the Division Court," Magistrate Gee told an elderly complaintant in police court to-day as the man stated that he wished to withdraw a charge of stealing a number of furnace pipes he had laid against a young man. The withdrawal was permitted on payment of $1.25 court costs.

LIGHT TRAFFIC COURT.

BEAUTIFUL NORTHERN LIGHTS.

The Northern Lights staged their most brilliant show in many months on Tuesday night. At about 11 o'clock the sky was a pageant of changing streams of light flaring from the north, causing many a home-goer to pause in his steps and marvel

STOCKINGS STOLEN.

Students at the Peterborough Collegiate report that twice during the last few days, silk stockings have been stolen from the basement rooms while the girls were in the gymnasium engaged in physical culture. Two pairs were taken last Friday and since that time it is reliably reported that three more pairs have been stolen. Even five divorce cases has failed to arouse enthusiasm in the Fall Assizes of the Supreme Court now being held in the Courthouse, and so far this week only a handful of spectators have occupied the gallery seats. The southern section of the seats are filled with petit jurymen, but the remainder of the large seating section has been practically deserted during the first two days.

MISSIONARIES RETURNING

The Rev. and Mrs. W. G. Davis, missionaries from St. Paul's Church in Manchuria, successors to the late Dr. Goforth and Mrs. Goforth, will be in Peterborough next Sunday. On Monday, they go to Millbrook, Tuesday, Bowmanville, Wednesday, Port Hope, Thursday, Brighton, and will conclude their itinerary in Cobourg on Friday evening. As this is their first furlough, since going to this war-torn district in China, many will want to hear their thrilling story; and advice is given to people in nearby villages and districts to attend the nearest church.

COUNTY JAIL

The Grand Jury reported on County Jail as follows:

The Gaol under the careful supervision of Colonel T. D. Johnston, gaoler. There were 13 prisoners, who, we were informed had all been sentenced. The Jury make the following recommendations:

That screens be provided to cover the window openings and outside doors appertaining to the cell blocks.

That a good supply of carefully selected reading matter be provided currently to the gaoler for the use of the prisoners.

Horn Blower Is Fined For Making Noise

Because some of his passengers participating in a wedding procession wanted to tell the world, through the medium of swingtime music on an automobile horn, how happy they were about the whole thing, Roy Valcourt, tax driver, was fined $1 and $1.25 costs in police court this morning.

He was charged with unnecessary blowing of his automobile horn, the charge being laid under Bylaw 3262 which is officially described as "a bylaw to prohibit noises calculated to disturb the inhabitants of Peterborough."

Valcourt pleaded guilty, although he told the court he did not know there was any such bylaw in force here.

Inspector Reid said that the accused's car had come down George street with the horn blowing loudly.

"This is the first charge that has ever been laid under this bylaw," the inspector said. The measure was passed on July 5, 1937, and hundreds have been warned since without any improvement."

"I suppose that so long as there are weddings we will have horns blowing," remarked Magistrate E. A. Gee.

"They came down George street," remarked Inspector Reid, "and make so much noise that doctors and lawyers and secretaries and other people are unable to concentrate."

"Some of them may need to be wakened up," said the Magistrate.

"The fine under the bylaw is not more than $50," the Inspector stated.

"I think we will start in on a progressive basis," Magistrate Gee decided. "We will begin with a dollar and double the fines if the practice does not stop.

Busses Travelling Streets Chancellories On Wheels

Lawrie Mitchell, manager of Peterborough's bus lines, is no doubt in favor of the passing of the old era of secret diplomacy that ended with the invention and universal distribution of the radio. With the present change, illustrated along all the highways of the world during the last week, mankind of every race and tongue has been admitted to the councils of the mighty, and to the moments and decisions of policy, even to the threats and declaration of war.

The man on the street is being consulted as never before on a great issue of which in the past he heard only the results, the conclusions of it, not the progress, and according to Mr. Mitchell the buses are chancellories on wheels, where the evidence is debated all day long by men and women, young and old, tense with anxiety and doubt as to whether the former paper hanger of Austria, "and not a very good one at that" as one of his denouncers affirmed, is going to drive countless soldiers, and women and children too, over the abyss.

Drivers Consulted

And in the bus conversations, the drivers are usually consulted. They have to know something of the merits of Hitler's contentions, and the soundness of Neville Chamberlain's position, the latest appeal from President Roosevelt, and Mussolini's most recent posing. Mr. Mitchell isn't sure whether the bus drivers are reading upon their geography and history of Central Europe, to say nothing of the pronunciation of those Czech and Slovak words that are bristling in the news. Possibly they are burning the midnight oil to keep abreast of their passengers in the news from Prague (or should it be Praha, Mr. Mitchell). At any rate, according to the reports of the men the bus conversations are centred entirely these days on affairs of state, and if war should come the causes and other factors leading up to it are known to everybody. It will be openly arrived at to use a phrase about open agreements of comparatively recent diplomacy.

Cavan Jack Rabbits Are Built For Speed Reporter Discovers

Jacks grow speedy in Cavan swamp. It was near midnight and an Examiner reporter and his family were bowling along for home from a trip up country. Suddenly a jack bounded into the road, laid his ears back and licked off down the gravel path in the glare of the headlights.

The speedometer registered 25 and the bunny was holding it nicely. He perked off a half mile easily and the driver speeded up to pass, but sharp remonstrations from the wife to "not run over that poor rabbit" forced a slow down to the 25 m.p.h. gait again. "Johnny" purred off another half mile and looked as if he were good for miles, when friend wife proposed a halt to shut the lights off and let Brer Rabbit take to the bush. So a halt was made and the lights doused.

Given a Breather

A minute went by and a fresh start made, but the jack, instead of sidetracking, had merely sat down to wait for some more fun. As the car came up, off went Johnny again, his white fluff bobbing and long legs flicking back and forth like pistons. The speed got up to 30, then 32, and Johnny kept right on going—some of the pitch-holes skidding him a bit, but he never lost ground.

Held to 32 M.P.H.

Another half mile passed and the driver expected to see the jack collapse from the pace, for he was now extending so each leap he seemed to flatten out like the proverbial pancake. At the full mile mark, his second heat, Johnny was still holding his 32 m.p.h. rate, and the driver increased to 33 and slowly crept up on him, drew even, and finally away.

These statistics should be good for the district hunters, for if a 6-months jack—yes, he was only a baby—can lick off 25 m.p.h., then a breather, burn off 32 for another, think what his pa must be able to do!

Accommodation Inadequate At Hospital

Inadequate accommodation at Nicholls Hospital which will become even more pronounced as the years pass is given prominence in the report of the Grand Jury which was submitted to Mr. Justice Urquhart this morning. The report in every instance lauds the various officials and organizations responsible for the supervision and management of the different institutions which were inspected.

After hearing the report Judge Urquhart said: "I congratulate you on your fine presentment and also on the dispatch with which you carried out your work. I am very pleased to learn that the institutions are in such fine condition."

The text of the report, as submitted by G. D. Carlisle, foreman, is as follows:

"As instructed by Your Lordship we inspected:

The Court House and found everything in satisfactory condition with exception of window shades in the main court chamber which were observed to be in a state of disrepair and suffering in comparison with those hung in adjoining rooms. The Jury accordingly recommend that new and more suitable shades be provided for the Court Room.

The House of Refuge. The county may well be proud of the manner in which this institution is managed by Mr. and Mrs. Fry, superintendent and matron. There are 19 inmates in different stages and degrees of infirmity. Some active, others confined to bed. Those that can and are willing to work are kept busy on the 90-acre farm. Some milk the cows, look after chickens, hogs, drive the horses, pick the fruit, harvest the vegetables, etc. etc. Some of the women inmates sew and keep occupied. It is not surprising, therefore, that we found them contented. The buildings and equipment including an ample, hard and soft water supply, kept under pressure, were in excellent condition.

Anson House. We found this institution in splendid condition, the 37 inmates very contented and well cared for by the superintendent, Miss Abbie Robinson.

The House of Providence. In this institution there are 68 inmates, 38 men and 30 women, kept busy, their minds occupied and exceedingly well supervised by the capable Mother Superior and her staff of sympathetic attendants. The buildings and all equipment are in good state of repair and satisfactory condition.

The Children's Shelter. The Jury were very agreeably impressed with the care given the children in this and in the St. Vincent's Orphanage. There were 20 children in the Shelter, 5 of whom were confined to bed on account of sickness and one being detained on account of some misdemeanour involving a bicycle. The buildings and equipment are in good state of repair. We wish to recommend however that some additional space be provided in the basement for storage purposes, namely: coal, and that better and cooler facilities be arranged for the keeping of fruit and vegetables.

St. Vincent's Orphanage. There are 16 robust boys in this home mothered and cared for by the sisters in charge. The Jury felt that nothing more could be desired than what was being done for the physical, mental and spiritual welfare of these orphan children, ranging in ages from 1 to 16 years. The buildings, furniture and equipment are in good condition.

St. Joseph's Hospital. This is rated as a 100 bed hospital. There are 57 patients in the wards at the present time. The buildings are in first class condition, and the equipment is of the finest and latest type. The wards are quiet, bright and well ventilated. It appears to be well staffed, by devoted and capable nurses under the direction and guidance of the Mother Superior.

The Nicholls Hospital is a 90 bed hospital and there are 77 patients being treated and occupying the wards at this date. This is well below the average. The Jury finds a very serious lack of accommodation for patients and attending nurses in this hospital. All available space is occupied constantly in the (so-called) new wing. The older part of the hospital is condemned for use by patients, but has to be brought into requisition, to house the staff and attendants. The equipment is good and every conceivable use would seem to be made by the superintendent, Mrs. E. M. Leeson and her capable staff, of what working space is available, but the Jury feel that they cannot emphasize too strongly the need of the larger hospital at this point as the accommodation is by no means adequate to meet the ever growing need of the community.

In conclusion, we wish to extend to His Lordship our felicitations upon this, the first occasion of his presiding at an Assizes Court in the City of Peterborough, and we would express our deep appreciation of his exhaustive address to us which facilitated greatly the carrying out of our duties on the Grand Jury."

See the Fall Window Display this Week . . . A Complete Showing of Authentic Fashions for Fall!

THERE'S A HAT FOR EVERY TYPE, MAKING SELECTION EASY

New Fabrics Shown In Fall Hats

New fabrics and proportions in smart hats for fall are accented by their new colors. New snap brims and tyrolean models feature new rough textures which carry fall pastel shades perfectly. These fabrics have a roughed up or shagged appearance, with variations in crosgrains, spinner stripping, pebble grains and piped detail. These models carry out the theme of sports wear and casual ease for all-round wear.

Dress Fabrics Are Sueded

Fabrics for the dressier hats—homburgs and snap brims—have a smoother finish, and have a distinct sueded effect. The aim of hat designers is toward the popular demand for hats that are of lighter weight and which nevertheless hold their shape and have a firm base. Many of the new sport hats are waterproofed for inclement weather in the country and spectator sports.

Lower Crown

The desire for a casually streamlined appearance in smart hats is met in the lower crowns and wider brims. This style fits to the face in better proportion and coordinates more smoothly with the general fall wardrobe.

The new colors achieve distinctiveness in their many shaded values. New rust, green, tan, brown, grey, snuff and new offshades of black are most popular. There is a hat color to go with anything that might be chosen to wear.

Sport Hats Have Smart Detail

The new tyrolean and sport snap brims show smart new tailoring detail. Up-turned brims are constructed with raw edges and a finished wider welt. Tyrolean models feature all shapes with new details of plaited thong and felt bands and trick "birds," or feather groups. The majority of new hat styles are for the man who favors the casual comfort of semi-sports clothing. He has unlimited selection of all styles and colors.

Oxford Shoes Are Cut Higher

Suede, kid and calf oxfords are cut higher for fall. Some are perforated and underlaid with patent.

There are combines of suede and plaid woollen. There are highcut suede pumps trimmed with silk braid. Grained leather, calfskin, pigskin, crocodile, lizard are used for day wear.

Colors are tan, brown, ox-blood, wine, black, of course, grey and green for sports.

For evening you are offered silver and gold mesh high-heeled sandals, almost always open-toed, and platform sandals in oriental brocades, embroidered satins, jewelled jerseys and velvets.

In new coats the softer silhouette is frequently emphasized with blouse backs, roomier cut through armholes and small draped collars.

High Coiffures Do Predominate

Admittedly — high coiffures DO predominate. But ALL hair is not going up. Highland Mary, longish flowing locks are worn with tams and other sporting caps. More than that, some of Maggy Rouff's mannikins are wearing either the new Florentine or Victoria Hair-do. The first is done by parting the hair in the center, holding it very smooth at the sides and having the ends arranged in stylized curls.

The Victorian type is much the same, except that it is finished in a braided effect. A third long type endorsed by several leading modistes, is the "waterfall" coiffure which is quite high in the front, only to cascade down low in the back.

New Type Of Comb Is Used

Have you tried the new "up swept" Hair style, first introduced by Mlle. Danielle Darrieux in her current screen success "The Rage of Paris"? This new style has taken New York my storm—and when New York gets agog over a new style, it doesn't take long for it to spread all over this continent.

The trick is to pile gay little curls on top of your head, to sweep your hair up or back, to brush the curls back of your ears or catch them up in any one of the fetchingly feminine new ways. Stylists say the new style heralds a new era—gone are the page-boy, spaniel eared, droopy hair styles which seemed to symbolize depression and recession. Here, in their place is a style that's full of old-fashioned femininity, a style that's making history!

To aid you in achieving these new "up-swept" hair styles, there's a brand new comb just out which is just the thing to accentuate the hairdress as well as solve the practical side of the style. For instance, by using this comb, called the "KANT-SLIP", you can sweep your hair up or back and hold it in place without using a raft of hairpins, or you can securely hold in place those stray little wisps which no hairpin would ever hold.

This dainty little comb, through ingenious designing, fits snugly among your curls and stays "put", so that there's never any danger of it tumbling out and ruing your very best hair-do. You see, the teeth in ordinary combs continue in a straight line to the top but in the "KANT-SLIP" they continue half way up behind the top in an off-set arrangement, forming a narrow channel into which the hair slides and stays securely in place. The teeth do a complete disappearing act into the hair where they belong, and where they stay. The top alone remains on view, giving no more indication than that of a charming barette type of ornament. The top designs are just as intriguing as the principle, coming in tailored bowknots, daisy chains and plain bar styles.

Lights flash from unexpected places this season, since handbags and gadgets glitter.

STYLISH HATS FOR SMART COIFFURES

By ALICE ALDEN

The wise gal isn't going to let the new hats go to her head. She is going to choose a hat because it becomes her, not because it happens to be high fashion and the choice of stylists or models. There's a hat for every type, so it ought to be easy to choose the right model. And the hat should be thought of in terms of the whole head, since the coiffure is an integral part of the hat this season. The hat worn tilted forward over the right eye seems to please many women.

Margaret Lindsay, the famous movie star, likes that line, as can be seen from these pictures. The hat, top, is of black felt, the brim being manipulated to achieve a flaring beret effect. A stitched piece of chartreuse ribbon makes the lower part of the back and the side of the hat. The other model, more dressy, is of wine-red felt, with ostrich feathers shaded from pale pink to deepest wine.

Veils Adding Color To Fall Hats

When Marjorie Dunton shows hats with crowns 12 inches high, and Schiaparelli goes made about miniature hats with doll-size plumes and masses of bright bows, it may be said that Paris is crazy about hats!

Sensational high crowns! Adorable masses of feathers and bows! Giddy little veils and rainbow velvets! These are the beauty and the style of Fall Millinery. Borrowing from the extravagance of the Louis XIV Court Days, Paris wore high ostrich or paradise feather headdresses recently at the dazzling style pageant presented during the night racing at Longchamp. And high dramatic feathers and plumes will adorn many new Fall hats!

Simone Cange dips back into the 1900 Period of American fashions to get inspiration for a glamorous collection of forward tilted hats that turn up at the back and flaunt masses of trimmings. Gay tiny toques, top heavy turbans, bright colored veils, smart wide-brimmed canotiers made entirely of ostrich feathers, and many simple tailored and wearable felts are included in this collection.

Claude St. Cyre shows forward perched hats behind which are massed high curls in the new upswept coiffures that have taken Paris by storm! Color is strongly emphasized by this designer, with some of the most beautiful and daring combinations ever seen in hats. Stitched or corded velvets in brilliant dark hues, little velvet turbans, bright feather quills pointing high on more tailored felts—and silly little hats which are a mass of color!

Rose Valois shows the loveliest profile hats! Flattering and so cleverly styled that they suit almost any woman's profile, these hats are destined to be a great American success. Crowns are high but fitted firmly. Brims roll up at the side or back to flatter the new high hairlines. Toques are made of elaborately draped velvets in luscious colors. Hatpins and many bright ornaments give sparkling colors to these hats.

AAge Thaarup uses black jet to make a shallow winter sailor. A jet bird soars skywards at the centre front. The hat is tied on with tulle and finished with a high bow in the back.

Dressmaker Blouses Of Soft Type When Suits Not Strictly Tailored

News in blouse collections currently centres about the soft type of dressmaker blouse." This softer type of blouse is the logical complement to a season where suits are expected to veer away from the strictly tailored.

Some of the details which distinguish this fall's better blouses are,

Draped Effects. Much used, with drapery developed at high neckline particularly favored. Onesided draped effects are frequently noted, with draping released from tucks or shirring at one shoulder and at the waist on opposite side.

Closed Necklines. May be collared or collarless, with the high, draped effects particularly approved. Occasional square necks used.

Rough-Surfaced Fabrics. Including pebbly and bark weaves in satin and crepe, also novelty cloky effects. This is an important detail in fall blouse fashions as the rough surfaces have a definitely new look. Interest in novelty materials includes fringed crepes.

Novelty Sleeves. Bracelet-length and dolman sleeves, already registering in early dress collections, are included in nearly all the better blouse lines.

Tucking, Shirring. Favored trimmings in keeping with the softer trend. Tuckings are used all over or concentrated, as in a high-necked tucked yoke satin blouse.

Jersey. Important in the sports category and new-looking in soft stylings not generally associated with woollen blouses. These are combined with jersey, worsted or velveteen skirt as a strong recommendation for back-to-school girls. Makers emphasize the importance of good qualities of fabrics.

Plaids Favored In Fall Wardrobe

Here's something we've been doing a lot of wondering about. Why the immense favoritism shown plaids this season? In fall, plaids are always good, but never quite so widely used as now. The answer comes via Paris. French coutouriers, in an attempt to honor Britain's King and Queen upon their recent visit, showed a great many British plaids. Fashion experts picked up the gesture and translated it into a trend. And there you have it!

FOR TRIMMING

Different foxes are used chiefly as trimming on cloth coats, including larger collars than last year but the majority of fur coats keep smallish collars, frequently tuxedo style. Others have large lapels.

Feminine Slip

Net footing at the neckline for femininity in a dressmaker slip which can't ride up, featuring back pleat and slide fastening.

Buttons Smart Trimmings Fall Dresses

Buttons still have the power to make or mar a costume, despite the advent of the zipper, glorified snap and other ultra-modern trick dress fastenings.

Flatness is the prime requisite for most smart buttons these days; but their placement is even more important, for often they are the only trim on dress or coat. Five old gold coins, the size of a 25 cent piece, provide the main point of interest on a simple brown wool dress which uses the coins for buttons from neck to waist.

Various kinds.

Gold or brass, in fact, makes buttons for more than one fall frock. Small gold ones are used to fasten the front of a straight short black velvet dress; gold discs fasten the jacket of a violet velvet evening suit; and gold is worked in the shape of five-petalled flower buttons which run from neck to hem on a rust colored wool dress with rust velvet collar and cuffs. Nine burnished Persian coins fasten a light blue felt coat.

Golden metal makes a lace edging for black enamel buttons which trim a scalloped black wool crepe dress. There's a gold edge to the red glass buttons for a deep red velvet suit.

Fall Coats Are New In Line

Coats this season are new in elegance; new in line; new and exciting in color. They nearly all have squared shoulders; they either swing out recklessly, or they're tethered very tightly at the waist. They may be softly bloused, they may have a rush of fur to the front; or they may have a rush of fulness to the front. If they don't have fur, they're likely to have braid or big welt seaming. They often have great saddle-bag pockets, and they mostly are of smooth, duvetine-like wools or tweeds.

And the colors—curious new colors that may lure you away from your favorite black. Purples, fuchsias, reds, taupe, topaz, jealous greens, and beneath them dresses in as strange, but different shades.

Remember in choosing your winter coat or suit that it is your outward badge of smartness day after day; that anyone with taste can shine; anyone with an eye for color, and the ability to match both to her own personality can this year, more than any other, create in herself a glowing, living personality that comes from an awareness of one's own individual chic.

Dresses Advised.

However, if skirts are taboo, take along three dresses, one dark crepe, a gray wool frock, if this color is becoming, and a sheer wool, or a rayon silk in brown, dark green or vintage, that deep wine tone. These are interchangeable with black and brown shoes. During the Christmas holiday season the college girl can build up whatever portion of her wardrobe needs attention.

For a change of collars other than white, pink, pale yellow and aqua are very effective on either black or brown. And let me add that a reversible tweed topcoat lined with waterproof gabardine would be an excellent topper for the college girl.

NOW IN THE SPOTLIGHT

FURS PLAY IMPORTANT PART IN SARTORIAL SCHEME

By ALICE ALDEN

Furs take the spotlight as the autumn season gets into its stride. Never has fur played such an important part in the sartorial scheme of things. Pelts are used for hats, for gloves and for trimming of coats, suits and dresses, with a lavish hand. The new fur coats, whether the model be bunny or beaver, muskrat or mink, are always smart. The furs are worked carefully and manipulated into the soft silhouette.

Here are two charming models, the one at left the choice of Ellen Drew. It is of moleskin, dyed in a beautiful shade of bronze-green. Mole has returned to fashion after an absence of some years. This striking coat introduces the new elbow-length sleeve. A belt of green velvet with a buckle of malachite adds a novel touch. The other model stresses the importance of gray. It is of natural gray broadtail, with a silver fox collar and tuxedo.

Evening Skirts Go With Swing

New evening skirts go with a swing. They are floor-length all round.

They are neither rising in front or trailing at the back.

Two of the star materials are chiffon and lace, both making for fragile, feminine effects, and used in high, transparent necklines and short sleeves.

Busts are still emphasized and waists defined, but skirts sweep out widely.

In one Paris frock the skirt itself is made of black taffeta, stiff and rustling, belted in by a shiny waistband; the bodice is black lace, transparently fine, cut into a high frill neck and short puff sleeves.

Under it is a tight-fitting brassiere top made of candy pink taffeta; the whole effect like a rather daring imitation of a frock of the early nineties.

There's a definite upswing in the air, not only in hair styles but in uplifted shoulders and necklines too.

"Doll" Hats Look Much Smarter When The Hair Is Dressed High

Whether you are enthusiastic or just lukewarm about the idea, you're going to have to brush your hair upward, and, in some way or other, manage to keep it up. That is, if you intend to wear any of the various version of miniature hats which are becoming more popular by the minute.

There are no two ways about it. "Doll" hats look infinitely smarter on hair dressed high than atop long bobs.

However, if you have a very long face or a rather prominent jawline, it would be a mistake to brush your hair severely upward and pile it on curls on top of you head, thereby sharpening your jaw and accentuating the length of your face.

Rather, compromise with the mode, asking your hairdresser to design a coiffure that will give an illusion of being upswept but which will not be so severe as to be unflattering.

Regular Features

The girl whose features are quite regular can have her shining tresses brushed upward, with the locks on top cut fairly short and finished in soft ringlets. Or perhaps in a roll that extends from one side of her head across the back to the other. In either case, she can be taught to keep her new hairdress in order by means of small, invisible shell combs.

One whose features certainly require the softening effect of hair low-placed on the neckline just behind her ears, might try brushing the hair at the front, back and away from her brow, the sides up, eliminating all parts except one at the back. The front and side locks can then be arranged in a cluster of curls or a couple of rolls. The back can be long, but it ought to be dressed on the nape of the neck—not on the shoulders.

Fall Coats Are In Many Colors

New Collar

There is a clear point of agreement between London and Paris high-style fashion sources on tweeds for fall; it is in colors taken over from nature. Paris calls them "forest colors" and the designers who went over for the midseasons liked them. London dubs them "Woodland or Dale Colors," and they supply the keynote for the British Color Council's card for fall. Rusty copper leaf shades, yellow-tinged greens, rosy wine, chestnut and acorn browns and tawny gold shades are implied. The scheme reaches its most attractive versions in fancies. Not by any means are forest colors confined to monotones. Some of the importers show the leaves they used to dye their yarns to and some of the leaves have three or four different colors in them.

Plaids Numerous.

Plaids are most numerous of the fancy tweeds. A new idea this season is to link a giant fancy plaid to an exact miniature and throw in a plain for relief. The larger plaid is a heavier or coating weight. The smaller one makes the jacket and the plain makes the skirt.

Stripes, about which there has been so much talk—"will they still be good?" show all signs of crashing through in new versions. They are never banal; violet-raspberry-acorn-moss green isn't too lively a combination.

Herringbones hold an undispute place and many of the new ones go in for stripes between the herringbones to give them more spirit. One excellent collection shows a mossy-face herringbone two-tone coating to go with a monotone herringbone suiting. Another works the herringbones in three different colors for the striped effect. A third takes neutral color herringbones, like men's wear, and peps up the pattern with scarlet and gold knotty yarn stripes dividing one herringbone from the next.

Checks are mostly cross-bar and they have their inning when it comes to companion suitings. You find a great deal of red used with green, and they are just the right shades to escape garishness. Blues with the brightest wood greens are borrowed from modern art's water colors. Much is done with adding a lustre to the brilliant color work through raised mohair boucle crossbars.

The "Crochet" Waves.

A rustic mixture tweed idea that has caught on and will make its debut in good sports coats is the "crochet" weave. This is best in thick mixture neutral yarns, soft and closely constructed to look much more like crochet than loom work.

Black and white for some of the boldest, loudest tweeds doesn't compromise in quiet patterns. The market's biggest chevrons and diamonds come in black and white with some fluffy knops scattered through to break up the loud tile-like patterning.

From Paris the word is that "sissy" colors are going over in light tweed suits chic foreigners have been ordering. Sky blues, blossom pinks, gold and mauve mixed in with sober grey, beige and griege. Popularity of this imaginative color work is undoubtedly responsible for what follows it in fall collections. British tweeds are more influenced by the violet-lilac range for accent color than any other.

Any young girl will feel like an heiress in this belted Persian coat with new envelope collar.

Clothes Worn Care-Free Gay, Sparkling

The new styles are anti-depression. They're regular little gloom-chasers, gay and sparkling. Purveyors to our yen for new clothes start the fall fashion campaign with a program that finds better ways of making clothes cheerful than by the use of gaudy color.

First thing you notice about the fall fashions is how young they are. Short, schoolgirl jacket suits and bolero dresses, loose coats with soft gathered or gored skirts dominate the daytime end of the shows. The pint-size hats insist on youthful don't care spirits.

The styles get a lot of their cheerfulness by this accent on youth, and they look about 10 years younger than the clothes that have been worn around town this summer. Colors are going into a period of being easy to take rather than bizarre. Those weird shades that screamed, like shocking pink and violent purples, are replaced by muted yellows, reds, greens and blues. There are lots of black, and stormy dark reds all over the place.

She Helps Herself

Self- reliant children are dressed in self-help underwear with a minimum of troublesome buttons. Shop for them the next time you are down town.

Flower Bracelets For Evening Wear

Flower bracelets are new for evening—and they're simply wired on to a fairly slim wooden bangle. Let the girl who wears green or blue choose violets—snowdrops or tiny gardenias are for the girl in white. If you've tiny feet, make a posy to match and fix to your dancing shoes. Two medium gardenias will hide completely the toes of any modern Cinderella.

Stockings Are Real Part Of Wardrobe

If you were to stand in front of a long mirror and look at yourself in a suit, you would discover the rather startling fact that one fourth of you is legs, the forgotten fourth—unless you are a Zorina or a Dietrich. You take infinite care of finger tips, lips and eye lids, comparatively infinitesimal areas, yet allow your legs to go helter-skelter. You rush out, when you haven't a stocking left to your name, and buy two of three pairs; perhaps all the wrong color. Possibly you even indulge in stocking sachets. But do you stop to consider the colors of your clothes and your furs, the tone of your skin, the fashion news of the season?

Skirts are short and flaring, shoes are strange and exciting. All this throws the spotlight on legs. Today there is no such thing as "one color that goes with everything." Your bright red suit takes one shade of stocking, your plum dress another. Colors are powdery, soft. All are basically beige. All incredibly thin. Many stockings are blessed with new tricks; the sun-dye process that keeps colors clear under man-made light as well as the great outdoors; a live elasticity that prevents wrinkling; a special construction to make heels cling; hairline seams to give length and slimness.

You have great scope in dressing your legs You can do everything from blending your stockings to shoes, to selecting them to harmonize with each dress. But one thing is certain, your wardrobe of stockings will be quiet, ladylike, subtle.

New Waterproof Velvet Is Used

Rainy weather clothes begin to make their appearance as rainy days loom up ahead. Joining the cavalcade of rich fabrics, a new waterproof velvet becomes a favorite for sloppy weather ensembles. Among the best-looking of these rain-proof outfits is one made of a rain-pro of velvet whipcord! A plain skirt is topped by a two-thirds length loose coat, both made in a cheerful golden brown color. The blouse is of gay red and yellow surah silk. Moss green waterproof velvet makes another raincoat, this time belted and more fitted. And before we leave the subject of wet weather, don't forget that high-topped rubbers for the family can now be bought in all sizes and colors.

LATEST HANDFUL OF STYLE

By PRUNELLA WOOD

You get just about everything but a swimming pool and a radio in some of the new fall handbags. Look at the number directly above, with its capacious interior still intact after change purse, comb, bill fold, etc., are built into the bag. Choice materials are blue or black calf, black or roseberry patent, and black lizard grain.

The large model, upper left, is more formal, a bit more expensive, with its double bag under one looped handle. It's suede, of course, and you can get it in new, unexpected colors, plus gloves to match. The glove sketched, however, is not a bag mate; it's a velvet-trimmed, very short suede glove, Directoire in feeling and in Directoire colors. The velvet trim is black.

The satchel-shaped hand bag, lower left, is a wonderful buy. It is handsome in suede, alligator, lizard or calf—all of them padded to perfection, all of them concealing seven pockets, a bill fold and lots of room. The black suede glove sketched with it is touched attractively with embroidery in black and colored threads.

Highlights of the Fashion Mode

FAN velvet, velvet corduroy and moire are favored for Autumn fabrics, along with rich lame. The use of the wide, loose sleeve, often elbow-length, set in low on the shoulder with more or less fulness, in shades of violet or purplish red shades for wool or silk daytime clothes; white wool materials for winter, and a very high-waisted Empire line for evening gowns are high-lights of the fashion mode.

Necklines are high in all age groups. Narrow turn-down collars, sometimes double, are edged with the goods of fagoted or embroidered. Puffed sleeves are squared off to a broad shoulder line. In small sizes baggy pockets are trimmed to match the collar. A few peplums are seen in blouses to be worn with separate skirts. Boleros, although no longer prevalent, are still seen.

Dirndl Still Strong.

Even if we are tiring a bit of the "peasant influence," there is nothing we can do about it. The dirndl is still going strong, though modified by high necklines and smocked bodices and waistlines shirred on "Lastex". And there is the laced bodice from Sweden, demure above a gathered skirt. They are made up in stuffs with dark "peasant" backgrounds, and gay stripes, block prints and floral arrangements in challis weaves.

"Date" Dresses.

"Date" dresses favored by girls are shown in silk, rayon and wool crepes and occasionally in taffeta. These dresses are fond of developing high waist-lines and collars, such as wing-tips. Their skirts are usually moderately straight until they flare below the knees.

New colors are a cause for excitement in themselves, and include such interest - arousing names as orchid-rose, guardsmen-red, royal purple, Florentine-pink, salt-water greens, and shocking pink. However, black, generally relieved by a touch of color, holds its own important place in daytime groups.

Velvet Jacket For Evening

For evening, deck yourself out in a jewel tone quilted velvet jacket that zips right up the front. Pamper your young ideas and wear a miniature velvet muff on a cord around your neck. To tease your best beau, pin his flower right plum on the middle of the muff!

Wear scintillating sequins in sky rocket colors on a black net bolero or bright ostrich boas for the sirein in you. Or, if you run to the gentler side, don a beautiful soft pastel tweed evening jacket for those cool nights.

Try a venise bolero or jacket—it's just the answer for that black velvet evening gown. Beautiful lames with coloured embroidery have a very new exciting look and are grand for little dinner or evening jackets.

ARE BEING REVIVED

The gold watch and chain, so popular in the early 1900's are being revived as companion pieces to tailored suits for winter. The watch, suspended from a long, slender necklace, is worn in the breast pocket of the jacket.

FEATHER TRIMMINGS.

Feather and ribbon trimmings outshine fruit and flower themes this season. Ostrich feathers are given great prominence. Color is big news, with bright shades of purple, various greens, many blues, rust, rich reds, grays and grayish lavenders, pinks and blues, holding their own with black.

No Thumbs In Gloves

Here's a note we relay to you from a friend who's fall vacationing in Cannes. She says that gloves, designed to be worn with muffs, are often minus thumbs! Or the thumbs and forefingers are of matching net! All of which, of course, is an excellent convenience for moments when one wants to accomplish something without going to the bother of taking off and putting on gloves.

Dress Trimmings In China, Crystal

Leaving the plane of interior decoration, china and crystal are becoming feminine dress trimmings. Most talked about are the skillfully worked roses made of china, some of them with a pink blush, others gilt-edged. In large, full-blown sizes they may take the place of gardenias or silk roses as a shoulder corsage for an evening dress. In small bud sizes they are used as buttons or necklaces.

Suspender Dirndl

Your daughter would love this suspender dirndl with the dainty, separate blouse. It's one of the many school girl styles now featured in local stores.

SHOES NEVER BEEN MORE BEAUTIFUL

Children's Shoe Designs Follow Grown-up Styles

Todays shoe designers know that good looks, comfortable, sturdy support and readiness for lively action is what it takes in a shoe to fulfil the needs of the modern youngster. That's why the mother of today can choose shoes for little brother or sister with a feeling of assurance and satisfaction.

In a George street shop where better grades of children's shoes are sold, an obliging clerk showed a fine assortment of fashion-right and foot-right shoes. The little boot, oxford and single strap type with centre buckle which ca be bought in white and tank elk, kidskin and buckskin, seem to be perennial favorites. Evidently enjoying my enthusiasm over styles that seemed to have everything, the pleasant clerk explained that manufacturers of the better grades of children's shoes are urging parents to consider the fit and construction of a child's shoe before anything else. He assured, however, that children's shoes follow certain conservative style trends just as do those of adults.

Shoes For the Small Boy.

Sturdy brown elk oxfords are shown for the small boy to wear with corduroys and a shark tip or moccasin toe and leather or crepe sole are the chief trimming treatment. For dress-up occasions, plain brown or black calf-skin are considered proper.

The older boys are favoring a heavier brogue type of footwear, and for dress occasions their choice is a plain wing tip brogue.

Oxfords Popular.

In the growing girls shoes all the leading treatments for college girl's and women's low-heeled shoes are found, so little sister can look just as smartly and correctly shod as the big sister who is packing her bags for college. This includes a wide variety of the saddle oxford which is fashion-right for any girl from six to 60.

There are also some girl's oxfords with the new scalloped top, fashioned after the new camisole shoes for their mothers and older sister.

Brown, in various shades, from dark to tan, is the leading color for the young miss. These shades can usually be worn with her tweeds and plaids for school and play. For dress occasions the younger girls still cling to the patent leather sandals which are also being made to look more and more like grown-up shoes.

Hair Should Match Your Dance Frock

If a woman with green hair walks on to a ballroom floor this winter she will not feel self-conscious says a London newspaper. It's the latest fashion. If you want to be smart, start matching up your hair with that new winter dance frock of yours.

You can do it yourself at home. You will want one large spray, one bottle of color solution to tone with your frock, and a steady hand. Spray the color evenly over the hair and leave it to dry.

Be sure that it is even or you will acquire purple patches. The solution dries quickly, washes off easily, and you can either have a complete temporary dye—in which case you'd better let a hairdresser do it—or a luminous sprinkling shaded back from the face.

Follow the color scheme through to the finger and toenails, and there you are!

Anything Goes In Hats Now

From miniature bonnets that perch precariously over one eye and dramatize upswept coiffures no end to wide, roll brimmed, swashbuckling creations that are more dashing than pretty, more smart than cute, new Fall hats are something to shout about. Never have hats been more excitingly glamorous and at the same time essentially wearable.

Among the featured larger shapes are salad bowls (and they really look like huge wooden salad bowls), felt cart-wheels and wide brims that roll up on one side. The beret, in various versions with new trimming and in wonderful colors, is still very much in the picture.

Tricornes, pillboxes, poke bonnets with brims even higher and tilted further forward, soft, snap brims for sports, toques, turbans and skull cap effects in suave suedes—all of these, and others as well, as worn. It's a year to be guided far more by what looks best on you than by "what they are wearing."

UPSTANDING SHOULDER

Schiaparelli's Gigot-sleeve line has taken on quite well in some of the newer fall things. It is comprised of upstanding shoulders that have a Victoria look, and long slim sleeves, very snug at the wrist.

Semi-Sports In Hats and Topcoats

New hats for fall have a smartness that comes with the new sports mode. The hats are shagged tyrolean with a bound welt edge; the snap-brim has a new felt stripping.

Popular new diagonal weave is the pattern of this smart topcoat. It is a 3-button, fly-front model with notched lapel and a turn back cuff. It has full draping.

Fall Furnishings Are Being Shown In New Styles And Natural Colors

Fall furnishings for men show a distinct association with Nature's color schemes. For fall colors are reflected in the new shirts, hose and underwear. They cover the complete prism from crayon shades of grey to brilliant hues of red, brown, green and every other new and smart color.

Styling Favors Ruggedness

Shirts, neckwear and hose show a ruggedness in cut and design which coincides with the new season. Every new color blends well with definite design and trend toward large outseams in new shirts. This blends with the entire wardrobe of topcoats and suits which all employ the popular drape.

Shirts feature new broadcloths, madras, chambray in ever popular white, checks, stripes and weaves. Clip figure, end to end and white on white designs come in for most praise. Colors are pastel shades of gray, tan, blue and all other shades. Collars that are either long or short points are best for fall. Clean tailoring makes them seasonally perfect.

Shoes Are Huskier For Fall

Shoe designers feature styles that are more rugged, and that nevertheless are casual in their styling. New brogues, or dog-house styles, wing-tips, bluchers, plain toes in smart autumn colors of tan, grey, and beige are setting the style-pace. Reverse calf and suede models are best bets for fall sports wear.

Girls Love Them

The school-age girl prefers tailored pyjamas like these. Worn for lounging and sleeping, they're made of a crown rayon and cotton printed material.

Grangora New For Evening

Autumn fashions. Cumberland home spuns, Galloway reel woollens, angora, and grangora, an evening version of angora—tweeds, ostrich feathers, and velvet will be the outstanding fabrics.

Colors emphasize the black tulip theme, warm and inviting, with lighter variations, according to the Fashion Group of Great Britain.

Interesting new color harmonies for those of you who make a point of new accessories the moment August has left us will be coral with a deep, though soft, blue (accessories in tan with navy); amethyst with oak brown (accessories in oak brown); burnt yellow with black, red with black (accessories in all black); and plum with an amethyst blue (accessories in plum); as well as mulberry with bold contrasting checks.

Most fascinating in embroidery and decoration is to be the old-fashioned black jet in a modern featherlight guise which drapes about bared shoulders, decorates hems, and even composes whole hats.

A definite fashion note for the first time since 1860!

SMOOTH SHOULDER YOKES.

Several of the sports coats seen in British as well as American collections, have smooth shoulder yokes giving way to a healthy amount of flare in the coat proper. These models have the same bulky look that is so well liked in furs.

SEMI-SPORTS WEAR IS MOST POPULAR WITH MEN THIS SEASON

Semi-Sports Wear For Men Is Now Most Popular For Town And Country Wear

This fall more and more men are learning the advantage of taking life easy . . . of feeling young . . . of dressing for the part. For now they frown upon the idea that as soon as fall comes they must immediately harness themselves into staid black colors, heavy suits and burdensome greatcoats. This fall men are looking around at the multi-colored foliage and at our streamlined modernity . . and they're realizing that the new sports and semi-sports suits and topcoats are the ideal articles of clothing for fall and winter wear. That is why this fall will find men wearing new colors, new drape styling and new tailoring to business to informal parties, to the country and to spectator sports.

New Styles Are For All Men

These new sports styles, which were originally appropriated by collegiate and younger men, are now a popular mode for the business man. New sport back suits for all-around fall wear have a touch of conservatism that will appeal to men of all ages. The drape styling and tasteful combination of colors are suitable for all occasions, and they are welcomed for their comfort and genuine style.

Tailoring Not Sacrificed

Quality tailoring and selection of rich fabrics are not lost to this new conception of causualness and ease. Quite the opposite, in fact, with a shetlands, rough and finished worshelands, rough and finished worsteds and other fine fabrics. The tailoring is of highest quality, and is more satisfactory and flattering with the new broad shoulders and fitted waistline.

Topcoats Have Draped Style

From the new hats to smart fall shoes, the modern man has the appearance of casual ease. New fall topcoats have a definite drape or semi-drape. The new lapels fold softly and are either peaked or notched. The drape from the shoulders extends to a wider, roomier skirt, which flares slightly. Some models have plain backs with a noticeable center cent, some have a half belt buttoning across the back, others have a blouse of shirred effect.

The wider lapels of the new coats extend to the top button, which is set lower allowing exhibition of tie, shirt and muffler. The popular fly-front topcoat is now also being shown in a two button model which accentuates the drape. Field coats with high military collars are still in popular demand by the college man. Finger-tips are the coming sleeve style.

Fabrics For Fall Lighter

Most popular topcoats are those having light weight and necessary warmth. An ulster fabric for sports wear is shown in new fly-fronts. Camel's hair still leads the parade, because it is ideally light and satisfyingly warm. The camel's hair polo is the popularity leader. New cheviots, coverts and deep hair piles are more popular with the business man.

New patterns for fall include wide wales, herringbone tweeds, diagonal weaves. These patterns are shown in all models—reversibles, fleece-lineds, polos, coverts, field coats, fingertips and the rest. This wide selection of pattern, fabric and style gives every man the opportunity to obtain the coat he wants and the style that will give him the most satisfaction.

SOVIET'S AVIATION DAY

Hundreds of thousands of enthusiasts saw aviation stunting and racing at many airports throughout the country on Russia's Aviation Day.

Two Smart Fall Models

The single-breasted model is a 3-button style with the new, longer jacket. The fabric-pattern is wide-wale herringbone. The double-breasted model also has the longer jacket and a slightly blended plaid. Both employ new drape styling.

Feathers On Fall Millinery

Birds of all feathers have flocked together for the Fall output of millinery, evening capes and trimmings of all sorts. If feathers are not actually present you'll find the birds themselves reproduced in metals or woods. One bag specialist uses a plump oriole as inspiration for a big clip pin. The oriole's body is of paper-thin black wood; the head and wings are of golden metal. Lest birds have it all their own way, someone else has decided to give the turtle a break; so we find four ruby-eyed, diamond-footed turtles of gold hanging periolously from a gold chain bracelet.

TAXIMEN TREAT CHILDREN

Forty London taximen loaded 200 children of unemployed parents into specially decorated cabs and took them to the country for a picnic.

Purples Cover Wide Territory

The color that is mentioned most frequently is purple, and this term purple covers much territory. It means mauve, orchid, violet, cyclamen, fuchsia, magenta. These colors are recommended not only by themselves, but as accents for other colors, and purple on black is regarded as a new and good contrast.

Jackets Longer More Ample Waists Not Suppressed In Men's Suits This Season

English drape suits are out for men this season, the wheel of Fashion has spun and what popped out for fall, 1938, is a bit of mufti that makes the drape look older than a dowager without her beauty mask.

In short, jackets are longer and more ample, waists are not suppressed and are lower on the body line, shoulders are natural and not nearly as wide as before, lapels are rather narrower and chests have lost that clean-cut molded effect that had men all looking like heroes six months back.

A Matter of Buttons

Two types lead the suit style parade; the single-breaster three-button six-button model. This year the former should overcome the long reign the latter has had. In the S.B. type the lapels roll down to the top button and it's considered very, very smart to loop the first two buttons into their holders. Reserve this tip for country, campus and informal town wear.

When wearing the d.b. job button two buttons and use it for business and town appearances where you have to look tops, men. For strictly town wear the smart boys are beginning to shun the odd jackets and are sticking close to a complete suit with sweater replacing the vest.

Trousers—pants to you—are roomy at the hips, pleated and taper to about 18½ inches at the cuffs. Good news for hasty gents is the fact that more manufacturers are including slide fasteners.

As for fabrics, it's a big, rough, tough season in the main. Cheviots, shetlands, tweeds unfinished worsteds are the standouts for single-breasted suits, with herringbone far and away the favorite design. Widely spaced stripes get top billing, with diamond weaves and diagonals also popular. For double-breasted types, the keynote in fabrics is clear-faced worsteds, especially vertical stripes in great variety.

Grey is the top-flight color for fall and it tends toward the darker shades. High-price shops like brown this season. An interesting newcomer in suitings is covert. College boys are wearing it proudly and plentifully. Gabardine appears to be fading in popularity.

Lighter Weight Fabrics.

The overcoat picture is easy to convey. Greenish tones are coming up, fabrics will be considerably lighter in weight, coats with removable linings are due for much popularity and reversible jobs which are topcoats when the sun is out, rain coats when felines and canines are pelting down, are going like wildfire.

This is a single or double breasted raglan year. Polo coats, of course still have devotees. Covert types for them as can afford 'em are smart.

In coat fabrics, fleeces and shaggy goods lead. Tweeds and shetlands show up in fancy herringbone weaves. Heather mixtures and diagonals are strong. Plaids and checks seem to be slipping in popularity. Most-liked colors are (besides green) gray-blue, brown and tan. Oxford gray is phooey.

One thing more. Coat prices are coming down. It's a good year to junk the 1933 model.

MONK TURNS BUDDHIST

The Franciscan monk Van Zeyst, who is the first Roman Catholic priest to become a Buddhist, has arrived at Colombo, Ceylon, to take up his duties.

Gloves Of Gold Or Silver Mash

Glove authorities are now advocating enmeshing your arms in gold or silver lattice work. Long evening gloves are made in silver or gold mesh or net filet to carry out the rich motif of lame gowns of the moment. Other dressy antelope gloves in all colors have just their finger tips in gold kid. For daytime wear this autumn watch for the fur-cuffed gauntlet, which is already making a comeback in shop windows.

As for glove buttons, we see some lovely styles with mosaic buttons at the wrists of both black and white gloves.

Jacket Is Shortened

Several of the New York shops are featuring an attractive new suit-line for fall. They've lengthened the jacket a good deal and shortened the skirt, just a mite. The jacket is tailored on the precise lines of a man's shirt, no less, but it is narrowed-in over the hips. The skirt is six-gored for freedom.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

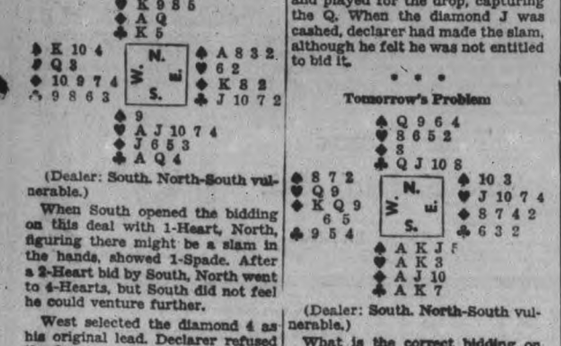
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

CREDIT — NOT BLAME

MAKING a slam when only game has been bid does not necessarily imply that the pair should be blamed for not bidding the slam. Possibly credit should be extended to the declarer for making the extra trick or tricks or maybe luck may have been the deciding factor, either in fortunate distribution of the defenders' cards or in the particular defense they chose.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

When South opened the bidding on this deal with 1-Heart, North, figuring there might be a slam in the hands, showed 1-Spade. After a 2-Heart bid by South, North went to 4-Hearts, but South did not feel he could venture further.
